BOROUGH NOMINATIONS

MADE BY THE DEMOCRATS LAST NIGHT.

Mr. Samuel St. J. McCutchen Unanimously Nominated for Mayor,—Messrs. A. E. Faber, Jr., S. B. Wheeler and J. A. Bovey Named for Councilmen.

The Democrats of the borough held their primary last night in the basement of the school house, on Somerset street, Mr. Elston French, as a member of the Executive Committee called the meeting to order.

Councilman Neal was elected chairman and Mr. Clarence Murphy was made secretary.

The chairman stated that the first business in order was the nomination of a candidate for mayor.

Mayor Saunders was re-nominated for that office by Mr. Elston French. The Mayor declined to accept, stating that he had already served two terms, and that while he appreciated the friendly feeling shown by the placing of his name in re-nomination he must decline to accept. He said he did not believe in third terms. He thanked the Democrats for standing by him and not only electing him but by giving hearty support during his administration.

The Mayor said he wished to nominate for Mayor, one who had grown up in the borough, one who, as a young man, had played base ball with the boys, and had always played to win. One who had since risen to prominence and had been admitted to the bar, and that one was Mr. Samuel St. John McCutchen. The Mayor said it had been through Mr. McCutchen's devoted efforts that the new school building had been erected, and that he was a man of integrity and ability. As Mr. McCutchen had played base ball to win, the Mayor, believed he could win an election.

Mr. McCutchen nomination for Mayor was made unanimous.

Messrs. A. E. Faber, Jr., and Samuel B. Wheeler were nominated for Councilmen for three year terms, and Mr. Jules A. Bovey was nominated for Councilman for a one year term.

The appropriation for borough purposes was made the same as last year, $1,500, and the appropriation for the Board of Health was also made the same as last year, $900.

It was decided to leave the fixing of the appropriation for road purposes until the Republicans had named the sum for like purpose to be placed on their ticket.

For Assessor Mr. Charles H. Lyman received the unanimous vote.

Messrs. Elston M. French and David Carney were appointed a committee on vacancies. Chairman Neal as chairman was also included in the committee.

Mr. Edward Morse moved that it was the sense of the primary that if the ticket was elected the borough council having a Democratic majority should appoint none but Democrats to fill the offices.

Mr. Neal said he supposed that he was as good a Democrat as there was in the primary, and when nominated for Councilman he had declined to accept, until urged by his friends to do so for his party's interest. He believed this motion off-red was a criticism of the present Democratic members of the Council, and he urged those present to vote with their eyes open.

Mr. Morse in support of his motion said that for 35 years he had worked for the Democratic party, and that he believed the men who did the work and spent their money and used their influence to secure the election of the Democrats should be the ones to receive the appointments to office. When the Democrats were in power he thought there should be Democrats on guard.

Mr. Morse's motion was lost, he being the only one to vote for it.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mayor Saunders for the excellent manner in which he had filled the office.

Mayor Saunders and Messrs. Elston M. French and David Carney were appointed a committee to notify the nominees of the action of the primary. The primary then adjourned.

Mr. French then called the township primary to order, and the same officers that presided over the borough primary were chosen.

A motion was made and carried to adjourn to next Thursday night.

It has been understood that Mr. McCutchen had declared that he would not accept the nomination. He is president of the Board of School Trustees, and was the moving spirit in securing the erection of the new school addition.

No better nomination could be made, if he was not afraid to fill an office where his services are needed, but there don't seem to be enough Democrats to go around, who are willing to accept the nomination without taking one already an office homebody.

Of the three Councilmanic candidates, Mr. Faber is a clerk in New York, Mr. Wheeler foreman of Mr. Herbert Johnston's stock farm, and Mr. Bovey, a caterer. They are all quite popular and decent people, but the country at large seems to feel that it has had quite enough of Democrats in power, and to vote to elect them even to local offices might be construed to mean that the people are thankful for the distress that has been brought upon them by the Democratic party every where. Hence, even in a borough election they may protest by electing the entire Republican ticket by an increasing Republican majority.

Mr. Charles Hand is building a house on Manson place.

Y. M. C. A. DIRECTORS.

A REGULAR MEETING OF THE BOARD HELD LAST NIGHT.

Reports Made by the Devotional, Education and Music Committees. Also by the Committee on Extension Work.

The following were present at the monthly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Y. M. C. A., held at the Association rooms, last evening: President Murray, F. W. Yates, Recording Secretary; H. O. Newman, Treasurer; and Messrs. E. L. Bonny, Stephen Cahoone, Geo. R. Cornwell, J. W. Gaskell, T. E. Hazell, A. C. La Boyteaux, Wm. Thompson, John Valiant and General Secretary Manning. After reading of the scripture and prayer the minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The Devotional Committee reported that the average weekly attendance at the Young Men's Meetings had been 32 and that there had been very special interest at Mt. Pleasant.

The Education Committee reported a total weekly average attendance for the month of 57. This department was represented at the State Convention in February by exhibits from the common branches, applied branches and mechanical drawing. Accompanying these was the statement "that our classes had an average weekly attendance of 55 for seven months exclusive of the class in light gymnastics, which is not included in this department."

The Music Committee reported the good service rendered by the male chorus at the young men's meetings. Special mention was made of the solos of L. G. March who has been working in the Evangelical Union in our city. Pledges have been received for the purchase of new hymn books Nos. 5 and 6 combined.

The Committee on Extension Work reported, as did also the Treasurer and General Secretary.

Reports of the Parlor Conference for Directors at the State Convention were received from Messrs La Boyteaux and Cornwell.

TAYLOR UNDER ARREST.

A PLAINFIELDER IN THE CUSTODY OF THE SHERIFF.

Because He Refused to Answer Questions at the Coroner's Inquest Over the Killing of Henrietta Jackson at a Freshmen's Banquet.

The Coroner's jury impanelled for the purpose of investigating the cause of the death of Henrietta Jackson, at the recent Coraell freshmen's banquet, reconvened at 9 o'clock yesterday morning at Ithaca, N. Y. One of the witnesses was the plumber who sold the tubing used to convey the gas from the fog to the stove above. He said he would not be able to identify the purchaser.

Dr. Lockerby, who attended the Jackson woman when she died, said that she really died five minutes after she was brought to his office, but that he produced artificial respiration for fully ten minutes after. He smelled the chlorine gas in her breath, but could not swear positively that she died from the effects of chlorine poisoning.

F. L. Taylor, of Plainfield, was then called. He stated his residence and name, and his class in college. He was then asked by the foreman:

"Are you a room-mate of Mr. Diedesse?"

"Under the advice of counsel I refuse to answer," he replied.

At this point Myron N. Tompkins, one of the best criminal lawyers in the State, said that he represented Mr. Taylor and several others in the case, and had advised his clients to refuse to answer all questions pertaining to Diedesse or the freshman banquet tragedy.

Taylor was asked if he refused to answer on the ground that it would tend to incriminate him, and he answered: "I refuse to answer on advice of my counsel." He was asked other questions, to which he gave the same answer. The Coroner, after consultation with the lawyer, Gen. D. M. Dewey, decided that the witness was compelled to answer the questions put to him unless they would "tend to incriminate him." He told Taylor that if he refused to answer the questions they would put him under arrest and have him committed for contempt of court. Taylor refused and was placed in the custody of the Sheriff.

C. L. Dingens, of Buffalo, was next placed upon the stand. He also refused to answer questions, his answer being: "I refuse to answer under advice of counsel." He was accordingly placed in the Sheriff's custody, as was also C. H. Mitchell of New York city, Charles G. Gerber of Pittsburg, and Karl S. Timson of Cincinnati for the same cause.

It was officially announced at 5.30 o'clock that the jury had adjourned until March 15 without taking action.

To Build a Plant at Greenbrook.

[Dunellen Call.]

The North Plainfield Electric Light Company will soon open a plant at Greenbrook. They intended this plant to supply Bound Brook and also to be able to supply this place in cases when the wires are out of order between here and North Plainfield. Mr. Sebring, the president of the company, thinks with the addition of this new plant the company will be able to furnish better lights and be more certain of furnishing lights every night even under unfavorable circumstances, as both plants will be wired to cover the same ground.

Lorraine Too Small to Have a Mayor.

The citizens of Lorraine met Wednesday night in the Town Hall and deposed Silas D. Drake as Mayor, abolished the Board of Trade and declared the office of chief of the fire department vacant. John W. Brower was elected, but John Radcraff was elected in his place. Instead of the Board of Trade a Lorraine Improvement Association was formed, and Mr. Drake was elected President. It was decided that Lorraine is not big enough to have a mayor or board of trade.

The Euchre Tournament Opens.

The Diocesan Union Euchre Tournament opened last night. The G. Y. M. I. team of this city played against the St. Pauls of Jersey City. Nine games were played, the Plainfielders wining four and the others five. Messrs. Flynn and Gill composed the Plainfield team.

Epworth League Meeting To-Night.

A regular business meeting of the Epworth League will be held this evening in Vincent chapel. A general invitation is given to the older friends of the League to hear the pastor's lecture on the "Persons of the Tabernacle Service," which will be given at 8.30 p. m.

Charged with Assault and Battery.

George Moore, a Westfield youth, is now confined in the county jail, charged with assault and battery on a married woman in Westfield.

There are some ugly rumors regarding the case.

—The Y. P. S. C. E. of the Park Avenue Baptist Church, will hold their usual Friday evening prayer meeting to-night. The Rev. J. W. Richardson will make an address to the young people. Strangers and friends are always welcome.

—The Plainfield Liederkranz, is a new organization and has nothing whatever to do with the Germ and Turn Verein. They will give an entertainment the last of April, the members will give an entertainment. The entertainment, as arranged, will be both in English and German.

NEW YORK, March 2.—Miss Caroline Seabe, better known by her stage name of Mlakuk, was married to Mr. Charles H. Hoyt, the playwright and manager, at the residence of her mother, 69 West Eighty-eighth street. Judge Barrett of the supreme court officiated.

Dunn Drowned in the River.

WARSAW, Ind., March 2.—A PRIOR comes from Bloomingburg, 20 miles north of Wabash, that a lady schoolteacher was crossing the ice of the Pigeon river with a dozen of her pupils when the ice broke and nearly all, if not every one, were drowned.

THE ROYAL ERMINE LEADS.

It Is the Favorite For Fur Opera and Ball Cloaks.

An unusual number of beautiful opera and ball cloaks have come out this season. Perhaps the popularity of fur has something to do with it. Ermine is omnipresent by its force, and all brown furs are favorites. The long cape is the most convenient and the least disturbing to delicate toilets in those days of bouffant trimmings and tremendous sleeves, although many cloaks have appeared fitted more or less closely to the figure and having large sleeves allowed to hang loose or gathered in at the wrist. In all cases the garment is made very full, and this being a season of rich materials it is an ideal wrap in the way of warmth, grace and beauty. All sorts of cloth, silk, plush, brocaded velvet and diamond effects in gold are used, while the variety of styles is infinite.

One, a plain full circular of heavy cloth, has revers of velvet, edged with ermine reaching to the bottom, and a short double cape or wide collar, also trimmed with ermine. The cape being full over the garment a high shouldered effect. On the other hand, an English model shows the fullness mainly gathered in at the back of the neck. A short, rather scant cape falls over the long cloak as far as the elbow, bordered with fur, as are the front edges of the cloak.

Over this again is a sort of fur pelerine of an old fashioned shape, which gives the shoulders an extreme slope. Delicately tinted silks of changeable hues are used for the lining of these luxurious wraps in preference to fur, which adds much to their weight. Fur bands are used for trimming almost entirely, however, and the graduated triple cape, both large and small, proclaims its popularity here as plainly as in street garments.

A particularly pretty opera cloak made of brocade shows three capes cleverly disposed. The first, bordered with a band of sable all around, reaches to the bottom of the skirt. The second falls below the elbow, while the third ends just above the elbow. The two shorter capes are edged with sable tails as well as with the fur bands. A cape like fur collar rises to the shoulders, while a flaring standing collar of the fur, very high in the back, forms a background for the wearer's face.

Where fur is not used a deep ruffle of velvet lined with silk finishes the edges of capes, while short double capes are shown made of velvet with a frill of lace between them.

A WOMAN'S CROWNING GLORY.

The Latest Styles In Coiffures Give the Forehead a Chance.

In most of the new styles of coiffures the mass of hair is worn at the crown of the head and is usually rather prominent, although several modes are shown where it lies flat and follows more closely the shape of the head. The ornaments used are pearls, aigrets and dragon flies, and one pretty style for blond hair has four "oreilles d'ane" (which do not sound so well called asses' ears) of peacock blue standing up on the left side of the five lateral puffs arranged on the crown. The front hair is parted a little to the left and curled, and the middle is drawn down on the forehead with a pointed effect.

In one new bridal coiffure the tulle veil falls full all the way around, covering the face, and the orange flowers are fastened in a narrow chaplet, with two or three erect sprays near or at the front. This is a much prettier arrangement than the bad fashion of leaving the bride's face uncovered, and the tulle veil, although inexpensive, is infinitely more becoming than those made of the finest lace.

English modes show a tendency to carry the hair back from the face and allow the forehead to be almost entirely unfolded, but the French still cling to the softening effect of fluffy curls and waves. Not one lady in a dozen can wear to perfection the arrangement of the hair, although it has sometimes a quaint look on a very young girl and is the most dignified style for an old lady, when the nose is supposed to have not acquired and the other to have outgrown the frivolities of the world. From the hairdresser's point of view it is a decided disadvantage to have very thick or long hair, as its bulk and weight are a hindrance to the art. His full ingenuity must be displayed only when scanty tresses fight enough to fall from their fastenings by their own weight.

A picture hat is worn with the Josephine coiffure. The back hair is waved and drawn up to the crown, where it is secured in a braided coil, through the centre of which is drawn a projecting loop. The short front hair is parted in the middle and curled at the sides, the curled portion being massed up to meet the coil.

LABOR FORCES AT WAR.

The Knights of Labor and the Federation Ready to Fight.

Each Issues Its Declaration of War Against Its Opponents.

BOSTON, March 2.—The smoldering fire of rivalry and hostility between the American Federation of Labor and the Knights of Labor broke out afresh last night and threatens to involve these two great labor organizations in a protracted struggle that will extend over the entire country. The issue is declared to be the oppressors. By a bit of strategem they have applied a settlement between the lasts as federation, and in the city and the most powerful adversary just at a time when a settlement would have saved the union from what now threatens to be disastrous.

About six months ago the United Garment Workers' union of the American Federation of Labor, composed of 1,500 garment workers, declared a boycott on the product of the shops of the clothing manufacturers of this city.

The claim that the manufacturers' association, refused to accede to the union's demands that all goods sold be stamped by the union label. The fight has been a bitter one, and the manufacturers have been sending their goods away from the city to be made up. Both parties have recently shown anxiety for a settlement, and both sides made concessions, and a settlement seemed imminent, when the manufacturers suddenly broke off all negotiations, and the chances of the union of making this important adjustment became nil.

It appears that the Knights of Labor people went to the manufacturers and succeeded in inducing them to cease all recognition of the federation and to recognize them, the Knights of Labor, claiming that a majority of the garment workers in the city were in the ranks of their organization, otherwise the shops would have been found to be there within a very short time.

The manufacturers took their side of the case and refused to treat further with the union. The federation people denounce the action of the Knights as an unwarrantable interference with their rights

STUDENTS SUSPECTED.

Those Would Not Answer Questions at the Professor's Request.

ITHACA, N. Y., March 2.—The coroner's jury in the Jackson case adjourned without rendering a verdict. District Attorney Jennings appeared at the hearing and examined several of the witnesses. The following students were placed in the custody of Sheriff Leach to be refreshed to answer the advice, they said, of F. L. Taylor of Plainfield, N. J., the questions that were put to them: G. L. Dingess of Bluefield, W. Va.; Marshall of New York and C. H. Corby of Pittsburg.

E. Simpson, a sophomore, was sworn, and when asked if he knew who attempted to break into Professor Cushman's dinner by means of chlorine gas he said he refused to answer under the advice of counsel. When asked if he refused because his reply would tend to incriminate himself, he made the same reply. The district attorney asked him several questions which he refused to answer.

Mr. McKinney, the plumber, was called up again and asked if he recognized any of the young men named above as of the party who bought the rubber tubing from him. He said he did not.

After some further testimony the jury retired to deliberate, and when they returned they announced that they had adjourned until March 10 without arriving at a verdict. Coroner Brown said that it was not his desire that the jury did not take any action and that he was in favor of arresting Dingess. "Of course," he added, "I will order his arrest, but will not do so at present, since the majority of the jury and the district attorney are opposed to such action. They believe there is not enough evidence to hold him." District Attorney Jennings presented all the witnesses except Dingess who refused to answer questions with subpoenas to appear before the [illegible] which site March 13.

M'KANE IN SING SING.

He Now Wears a Striped Suit and Has Parted With Watches and Diamonds.

SING SING, March 2.—John Y. McKane is now in prison here, where he is to serve six years for his political crime in the last election. When he was handed over to the warden, McKane removed his gold watch and chain from his waistcoat, took his diamond ring from his finger, his diamond stud from his shirt, as well as his diamond sleeve buttons, and gave them to Stryker Williamson to take home for him.

After the formality of taking his pedigree McKane was taken into the prison barber shop, accompanied by Sheriff Butting. Deputy Sheriff Davidson and Stryker Williamson. He was placed in the barber's chair, and his mustache and imperial that have formed as distinctive a part of his personal appearance were quickly shaved off. McKane's head was not shaved. He was then given a bath. He was next handed a convict's suit of stripes, which he put on himself.

This mouth suit consisted of a brown flannel shirt and white and black striped cost, vest and trousers. No cell was assigned for the present to be for what are known as the idle ranks. McKane went through all this ordeal with firmness and showed no signs of depression.

More Trouble Among the Miners.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 2.—One thousand miners are gathered at Montgomery and expect to attack John Wyndmes at Eagle. The situation there has become so grave that Captain R. S. Carr, in command of the state troops, has been ordered to declare martial law if necessary. Division Superintendent Gill of the Chesapeake and Ohio and the sheriff requesting it.

The Discouraging Wash Bowl.

NEWARK, N. J., March 2.—John Carberry, the man who has been suffering for 15 weeks from hiccoughing, is dead. Every known remedy was tried, and 15 physicians failed to relieve him. Fully 2,000 persons giving a "sure cure" had been received by the victim. Carberry attributed his trouble to the way in which the barber caught hold of his chin when shaving him.

Imprisoned Miners Released.

ASHLAND, Pa., March 2.—There was a joyful scene at the mouth of the Boston Run slope when Charles Mahan, Elwood Mengle, James Wagner, Lewis White and Benjamin Hughes, the imprisoned miners, stepped in the ascending mine car and were received in the arms of their weeping wives and families, who had waited eight hours for their rescue.

Fatal Boiler Explosion.

WARSAW, Ind., March 2—By an explosion of the boiler at Presley's planing and sawmills the premises were fired. Frank Rippy, engineer, was killed; Charles Dawson, superintendent, was scalded to death, and William Webb, fireman, and John Presly, owner, were fatally scalded.

Female Social Reformer Sues For Divorce.

OAKLAND, Cal., March 2—Charlotte Perkins Stetson, the well known social reformer, instituted proceedings for divorce from Charles W. Perkins, an artist living in Providence. The complainant states that her husband has failed to supply her with the necessities of life.

GLADSTONE WILL GO.

His Latest Speech is Commons Believed to Be His Last.

HE DECLARED WAR ON THE LORDS.

Announcement Positively Made From several Sources That Gladstone Is to Retire.

Report That He Will Inform the Queen Tomorrow.—Rosebery as His Successor.

LONDON, March 2.—The Pall Mall Gazette announced in big type that it was definitely settled that Mr. Gladstone would have an audience with the queen on Saturday next and that he will then officially tender his resignation. It is added that the public announcement of Mr. Gladstone's retirement from office will almost certainly be made on Monday and that Lord Rosebery will be summoned.

In connection The Gazette says that there is no present intention of a dissolution of parliament. Mr. Gladstone's resignation was decided upon at the opening of the year, but the necessary arrangements for the tranquil transference, and it has been decided that Mr. Gladstone will retain his seat in the house of commons, but he will not remain a member of the cabinet.

There was a state of feverish unrest in all sections of the house of commons when Mr. Gladstone arrived. The premier entered hurriedly, clutching a coatfall in either hand. As the cheers which greeted him died away Mr. Gladstone's expression became wistful and abstracted.

Probably His Last Speech.

The strain on the rest of the ministers was also apparent, and during Mr. Gladstone's speech the greatest excitement prevailed throughout the house. It was whispered on all sides that the great Liberal leader was making his last speech to the commons, and his delayed attack upon the lords delighted the Radicals and Irish.

The important part of Mr. Gladstone's speech is as follows:

The question is whether the house of lords is not merely to modify, but to annihilate, the whole work of the session [illegible]-work which has been performed at an amount of sacrifice of time, labor, convenience and health which is totally unknown to the lords. We have not been able to anticipate or to adopt any adequate any crisis. We have been desirous to save something of the session's work. We, however, are compelled to accompany the acceptance of the amendments with the sorrowful declaration that the differences are not merely temporary and casual opinion, but differences of conviction and proposition.

"The mental habit and fundamental tendency between the lords and the commons appear to have reached a development in the present year such as to create a state of things which, in our judgment, cannot continue." [Loud and prolonged Liberal cheers.]

After comparing the two assemblies Mr. Gladstone continued: "I do not like to say that the situation is intolerable because it may seem a hackneyed and dictatorial word, but I think, some way or other, a solution must be found for this tremendous controversy and incessant conflict on matters of high principle and profound importance. It is not for the commons to pronounce judgment on this subject, as the commons are a party to the case. The ministry, however, would have no difficulty in pronouncing frankly, fully and finally on the side of the commons."

Mr. Balfour made a reply, and when he had finished speaking the Radicals called for a division on the question of agreeing to the amendments proposed by the lords to the local government bill, with the following result: For agreeing, 273; against agreeing, 37; majority for agreeing, 236. Whether amendments were then agreed to without a division, and the house adjourned.

Interpretation of the Speech.

The speech of Mr. Gladstone is variously interpreted. In some quarters it is supposed to herald a speedy dissolution. In others it is thought that it discounts the ideas that he will favor the choice of a peer as his successor.

The queen will hold a council of the ministers at Windsor castle on Saturday. The ministers will be invited to be present.

When Mr. Gladstone struck the keynote of his speech, a stirring scene occurred. Some of the members below the gangway sprang to their feet, many of them waved hats, while all along the ministerial ranks there was a tumultuous uproar, the sound of which again gave the orator a long pause in a passage the possible significance of which struck the house.

He said: "My duty terminates with calling attention of the house to the fact that in considering these amendments we are considering the irreparable party of question, enormously large, which will become profoundly acute and which must at an early date receive a settlement from the highest authority."

A deputation of extreme Radicals, headed by Mr. Labouchere, waited upon the Liberal whip, Right Hon. Edward Mojeriebanks, and protested against the idea that Lord Rosebery should be selected to succeed Mr. Gladstone, saying that if the premiership was not chosen from among the members of the house of commons they should leave the Liberal party. Mr. Majoribanks promised to submit the views of the deputation to the proper quarters.

Friends Still Busy.

Among the ministers the idea of an immediate resignation by Mr. Gladstone is soon pooh-poohed, as he is credited with an early dissolution. Mr. Gladstone's colleagues do not believe that he will retire at this juncture. They interpret Rosebery's remarks in Edinburgh, in his intention next session to submit a resolution or a bill dealing with the veto power of the house of lords, to mean that, coupled with the rejection of the home rule bill, the employers' liability bill and possibly the registration bill, he will appeal to the country.

Supporters of Mr. Gladstone who do not occupy official positions are signing a "round robin" begging Mr. Gladstone, for the sake of his country, to remain in place and to delegate Sir William Harcourt as his deputy.

The Times says: "We have reason to believe that Mr. Gladstone has made his last speech in parliament as premier and that he is determined to resign before the new session opens. Our information is to the effect that he announced his decision to a few persons before he went to Biarritz and that he never swerved from that decision. At the audience on Wednesday he informed the queen of his intentions. He will take the necessary official steps in the next few days. The cabinet was not taken into the question's confidence, and only a few intimate friends were informed of his intention."

CORBETT ACQUITTED.

Jury Decided That Assault and Battery Was Not Committed.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 2.—The jury in the case against James J. Corbett, charged with violating the laws of Florida by engaging in a prize fight, was out but 15 minutes and returned a verdict of not guilty. A broad smile spread over Corbett's face as he shook the three presiding words, and the entire house crowded the rostrum to congratulate the prisoner. Corbett would have cheered had they not been informed by Judge Phillips when the jury came in that any such act would put to jail for contempt who dared express audible approval or disapproval of the verdict.

Charley Mitchell was present when the verdict was announced, and he leaned over and grasped Corbett by the hand and [illegible] congratulations. Mitchell, of course considered the verdict in the light of a practical acquittal for himself, as a case against him of a similar nature is pending. The prosecution leading up to the verdict were very tame.

Judge Phillips said in charging the jury: "In considering the guilt or innocence of the defendant under the second count of the information—that is to say, the count charging assault and battery—if it appears from the evidence that the blows were given as a result of rompact which the parties naturally agreed upon and entered into and consented to, the court instructs you that if such blows were given as a contest which was in the usual course of things and was being carried on in a manner as would not likely result in great bodily harm or injury, it excuses assault and battery, and the defendant under such circumstances cannot be found guilty of assault and battery."

Corbett left for New Orleans with the "After Dark" company. Mitchell is still here and will remain until the case against him, in either trial or not proved. The sports feel jubilant over the outcome, and members of the Duval club say they propose to pull off the Corbett-Jackson mill here.

WILSON IMPROVED.

His Physician Sends Word That He Is Out of Danger.

CITY OF MEXICO, March 2.—Dr. Prevost said that bulletins from Guadalajara indicated that the fourteenth day passed safely for Consul General Wilson's guest. That now he is so much better that he may be considered as no longer in danger. Congressman Tarsney has wired Consul General Crittenden to keep information as much as possible from the press, so as not to make friends in the states unduly anxious. This has caused all sorts of telegraphic messages to be sent here from Guadalajara exaggerating the facts of Mr. Wilson's real condition.

The following is the message received by Consul General Crittenden: "Mr. Wilson is doing well. His fever has left him, and his skin is cool and moist. He says he is a great deal better, and he only wants nourishing food and rest. I think in 10 days he will be up and able to go about a little. A little improvement of course would set him back, but I think he is now out of all danger."

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

Almost every variety of the poodle, pug, terrier or spaniel has worn the crown in its turn, and all have been deposed for the Japanese spaniel, who seems almost to have reached the limit in weight and inactivity.

Three fine homes exist in Japan at this very time, loved as we do not only the favorite, but the exclusive property of the colonies, the feudal rulers of provinces, and until the introduction of the foreign element in the government no one else was allowed to possess them. The daimios of the east had the black and white, while those of the west owned the yellow and white.

The change of government, the crushing out of the daimios as a class and the removal of the court from Kioto, the western capital, to that of the east, Tokio, distributed the two breeds of dogs considerably and made occasional exportation possible, and within two or three had arrived their beauty and intelligence put them easily at the head of the toy spaniels.

As I said 1861 made more than 10 were in the country, and they were owned by Mrs. Edwin H. Vanderbilt, Mrs. William Steven Webb, Mrs. C. P. Huntington and by one or two people who, having traveled in Japan, brought one over.

Mrs. Joseph Knapp of Seventy-second street boasts a Japanese spaniel, yellow and white, that has the proud distinction of being the smallest and finest coated dog of the breed ever seen in this country and weighs barely 2½ pounds and is remarkable for its intelligence.—New York Herald.

How to Make a Doll's House.

A fascinating dollhouse that was a wooden box a month ago is about 3 feet long and 1½ feet wide. It cost a quarter of a dollar. The lid was put on hinges, and when the box is closed upon end is formed the door or side of the house that can be set wide open. Two shelves are fitted in for floors, and four holes were cut for windows on each floor. These are filled in with window glass found about the house. The outside of the house is painted a warm yellow, with white around the windows. The walls are covered with old blue cartridge paper, with a frieze of pale yellow roses and olive pattern on the second story. The wall paper was found in the house, too, but books and samples are often given away by dealers in wall paper. If paper is not to be had without an outlay, cover the walls with pale tinted alsesia or cambric, with a little frill at the top. Fasten to the wall with tacks. Then add little curtains of lace or cheesecloth and make rugs or carpets of bits of old carpet or heavy cloth. A piece of plush of olive or carmine, with a wide border of another darker color, would make a rich looking carpet.—Exchange.

A Burglar Alarm.

Little Dot—Would it be wrong to pretend something that wasn't so if you was in danger?

Mamma—I presume not. Why?

Little Dot—I was thinkin that if a burglar should break in at night I'd scwatch on the bedpost, so he'd think there was a awful cross mouse in the room.—Good News.

"Waiting For Master."

Here is a charming portrait reproduced from the Pall Mall Budget. It is called "Waiting For Master." The dear old dog and the little boy, in a picturesque dress, are ready for a walk. The father of the boy will soon stroll down the garden path, and then the happy trio will start out for a ramble through the woods and meadows.

PARISIAN TEA TABLE NOVELTIES.

The Butterfly Napkin Holder and a New Visiting Card Holder.

One of the latest Parisian tea table novelties is the butterfly napkin holder. This is a gilt, silver or bronze clasp made in the shape of a butterfly's body, ornamented with imitation jewels, which likewise serve for eyes. The napkin itself is small, of course, and as fine and elaborate as one chooses to make it. The one in the sketch is of white linen, with a scalloped edge embroidered in forgetmenot blue silk.

A spray of forgetmenots is embroidered in each corner. The butterfly body has a sort of clamp or pin arrangement underneath just large enough to hold the napkin securely when the latter is gathered up in the middle. These butterfly bodies come also as menu holders. In that case the menu card is shaped in such a way as to form the wings.

Another French fancy is a crescent shaped holder for visiting cards. This may easily be made at home by any one apt at fancy work. A large crescent is cut out of strong pasteboard, and also another one somewhat smaller, so shaped that when it rests upon the ends of the latter extends 1½ inches beyond it all the way round. The larger crescent is covered with blue plush and the smaller one with ivory satin, and the back of each is neatly covered with silk or paper pasted on. A flower design is painted or embroidered on the satin, or it may be decorated with appliqued pansies glued in place.

The small crescent is then fastened flat on the plush face of the large one by means of several gilt or metal pins or tacks. The cards are slipped in between the two crescents. The card holder is hung up by a silk cord reaching from tip to tip, and each point is ornamented with a bow of ribbon.

Suede and other leathers are much used for fancy work just now and may be found in various tints. Soft leather is particularly appropriate for the little old fashioned gathered bags with drawing strings which are so popular at present. The leather bags require no lining and may be finished with a cut fringe at the bottom or left plain.

The drawing strings are run through two rows of small lengths of slits cut near the top. If ornament is desired, the material takes both painting and embroidery well. When it is used for glove sachets, perfumers and similar objects, gold or silver paint may be employed very effectively.

STYLISH MATINEE JACKETS.

Dainty French Flannels Used For Dressing Gowns and Morning Wear.

The shops are displaying a very attractive line of French flannels in delicate shades, both in solid colors and in stripes of two or more tints. They are sold at a reasonable figure and are used not only for children's clothing, but for dressing gowns and loose jackets. Their beauty is enhanced by ribbons and lace, or silk embroidery patterns are worked on the body of the goods, and as loose styles of making are generally selected the garments are not only pretty, but eminently comfortable. They are unlined and very simple in construction.

One of fawn colored flannel has a back fitted to the figure, but a plain loose front confined by a ribbon belt, which is tied with long bows and ends. There is a simulated yoke of parallel horizontal bands of narrow ribbon set rather close together, the break of each of which at the fastening in front is concealed by a small tied bow. The semi-bouffant sleeve is finished at the wrists by five bands of the ribbon, each band being finished by a tied bow on the outside of the arm. The sleeve has in addition a sort of straight chevron crossing the arm a little below the shoulder composed of four bands of the ribbon.

Another matinee jacket, also with a fitted back and loose front, is so trimmed as to have an entirely different effect. It is of pale pink flannel, with a rope girdle, and has a deep ruffled berthe, trimmed with a band of insertion, set a little above the lace bordered edge. The berthe forms a point in the middle of the back that extends to the waist line, one over each shoulder and two in front that fall below the girdle. It is mounted on the jacket about four inches below the collar all the way around under a band of the insertion. The standing collar is covered with lace, and a band of insertion and one of lace finish the sleeve at the wrist.

Accordion plaited morning jackets made of chinese material are also worn. The plaited goods are mounted on a short yoke and fall ungirdled half way to the knees. The yoke is concealed by an accordion plaited frill, and full accordion plaited sleeves gathered into a cuff complete the ecclesiastical effect. A matinee of this style was made up of red cashmere, with a black velvet yoke and cuffs, and was supplemented by an accordion plaited skirt of the cashmere.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

At some very swell dinner parties given this season the table is curiously ornamented with wide ribbons. These are of satin, in white, and stretch from the center to fall over the edge by each plate. Here they are inscribed in tiny gilt letters with a name—that of the person occupying that particular spot. They serve instead of the name card and are much more decorative.

A PECULIAR CASE.

A Brain Transfer That Resulted In Assault and Battery.

The city editor of a newspaper which employs the services of an enterprising young man—a friend of mine—to small amounts asked him one day to investigate a strange story which had come down over the telephone from the Fourteenth Ward hospital. He gave the young man an order on the hospital for his car fare. Having exchanged that for 10 cents' worth of malt extract with a gentleman on William street, my friend walked up to the Fourteenth Ward.

He passed his credentials in to the chief surgeon at the hospital and was admitted.

"What is this case you told us about?" he asked, borrowing the chief surgeon's knife to sharpen his pencil. "You haven't made a successful operation, have you?"

"Worse than that," replied the chief surgeon. "Infinitely worse. A young man named Brown was"—

"Got his first name?" queried the reporter.

"No. He was"—

"Age?"

"Didn't learn. He was brought in here a week ago"—

"Address?"

"Can't say. He was brought in here a week ago with a bad wound in his head. He had been struck by a brick which had fallen from a passing building, and"—

"A passing which?"

"A falling brick. He was passing, and a part of his brain was missing. It looked like a pretty serious matter, and so I took hold of the case myself. We found that it would be necessary to supply the deficiency in brains. We have none to spare here, so—got that?"

"Yes."

"So we sent out. After awhile we found an Irishman who had been mortally wounded in a prize fight, and who had no further use for his brains. We operated on him and made the transfer. Our patient was an American, and he seemed to get along first rate until yesterday. Then he got up out of bed and assaulted his physicians, throwing four of them down stairs. He doesn't recognize his wife and claims that he, alone and unassisted, can whip any man living. I left the hospital if he is not molested by the police. He also speaks with a strong Irish accent and has gone back on his politics. He claims his name is Mike Flynn."

The chief surgeon reached behind him for his handkerchief and wiped the perspiration off his face, with the air of a man whose confidence had been abused.

"How do you account for the change?" the reporter asked, recrossing his legs on the window sill.

"We don't account for it at all," the chief surgeon answered. "We find nothing in his organism, and if we make an autopsy will reveal the secret. I regret that we cannot perform an autopsy now. Will you have a cigar?"

"Thank you! But how is it that?"—

A tremendous fall and a wild whoop of defiance from above stairs interrupted the reporter and caused the chief surgeon to rise and remove his coat.

"That's him," he said. "You'll have to excuse me for a few minutes. If I call you, I wish you'd come up to assist me; I sometimes"—

As the chief surgeon disappeared, the sound of a fall came from above, accompanied by the words:

"Tak' yer corner, ye bald headed mick—tak' yer corner, or I'll baste the face off yez!"—Puck.

THE TROMBONE PLAYER.

A Girl Plays Him False, but He Gets Even With Her.

CHAPTER I.

When the trombone player left the home of the girl he loved, he was embittered.

The world was dark and dismal. Friends frolicked among the sunbeams. Women conversed gayly with each other about each other. Strong men gazed into each others' faces and bowqued fine cut.

But the trombone player muttered, and upon his bloodless lips were only words of hate.

"False!" he hissed.

Turning upon his heel, he walked away.

CHAPTER II.

"Frederick," she persisted, "I am afraid."

She shivered.

"Nonsense," rejoined he, upon whose vest her head reposed. "He is a coward. Forget his threats."

Yet a sigh fluttered her bosom, and all the evening while they talked of the future and of love her mind was filled with the suitor whom she had rejected, and the terrible look haunted her.

"I am frightened," she whispered.

"Fear not," he answered and kissed her. But at night she started from his embrace, terrified eyes and to hear curses.

CHAPTER III.

They were in the $1.50 seats, and her heart was light. Her eyes sparkled with joy, and he was glad to see her happy.

Suddenly she clutched his arm.

"Look!" she cried in startled tones.

The orchestra was entering.

Her glance was riveted upon the trombone player.

"Frederick!"

"Darling!"

"Let us go home."

"No, dearest. Am I not with you?"

Gradually she grew calmer.

CHAPTER IV.

It was the overture to the last act. Great waves of sound, and especially from the trombone, rose from the orchestra and swept through the theatre.

Without an instant's warning the tumult ceased, and the music grew soft.

"Is I my sweet peshus boy's pitty icky sing?"

The world heard it.

The trombone player's female face was lighted by a sardonic smile. He felt that the director was glaring at him. He confectured that he would lose his job. But he was content.

Vengeance was his.—Truth.

"Madam," said the prospective boarder timidly, "do you have any little boys in the house?"

"No, sir," said the lady who had advertised for a lodger.

"No plans?"

"No, sir."

"You don't serve stews very often?"

"No."

"Well, madam," and the young man's voice sank to a whisper as his face flushed, "do you serve—stewed prunes at each meal?"

"No."

"Then, madam," said the youth as he turned away, with a sigh, "then I cannot be your guest. I feel that I am not worthy of it."—Chicago Record.

REPUBLICAN PRIMARY.

THE NORTH PLAINFIELD REPUBLICANS NAME THEIR TICKETS.

A Large and Enthusiastic Attendance at the Primaries, and a Good Ticket Chosen.

THE TOWNSHIP PRIMARY.

The North Plainfield Republicans held their primaries in the basement of the school house, last night.

The township primary was held first. Ex-Mayor Charles Place was elected chairman and Township Clerk Horace J. Martin was elected secretary.

For Township Committeeman Councilman Robert Fountain and Committeeman A. P. Voorhees were named.

A ballot was taken and Mr. Fountain was elected by the following vote:

Fountain	95
Voorhees	33

Assessor Cooley was unanimously renominated.

For Collector there were two candidates named, Collector H. N. Spencer and Ex-Borough Clerk J. K. Arnold. A ballot resulted as follows:

Arnold	39

Mr. Spencer was declared the nominee.

Ex-Councilman David R. Weaver and Mr. A. Huff were named for Overseer of the Poor. Mr. Weaver was chosen the nominee as follows:

Weaver	104
Huff	69

The remainder of the township ticket was elected as follows:

For Justices of the Peace—T. J. Young, (3 years), Daniel A. Acker, (4 years).

For Commissioners of Highways—Michael Powers, Joseph P. Humble.

For Constables—Samuel H. Taylor, (3 years), and Geo. Stewart, (2 years.)

For Freeholder—Andrew Lutkins was chosen over the present incumbent Geo. Bullman and ex-Councilman Charles Sebring, by the following vote: Lutkins, 102; Bullman, 67; Sebring, 54.

For Commissioners of Appeal—Isaac Stout, James S. Lunger, Jonathan Clawson, and Harrison Coddington.

For Pound Keepers—John Stine, Samuel G. Taylor, Patrick Eggany, and George Lewis.

Moneys were voted as follows:

For repair of roads outside of Borough $1,000. $400 of which to be left in hands of Township Committee.

For support of Poor $1,500. $300 of which to be left in hands of Township Committee.

The salary of the township Committeemen was fixed at $50.

The township primary then adjourned.

THE BOROUGH MEETING.

Immediately after the adjournment of the township meeting the primary for the selection of the borough ticket was called to order. Mr. Place was continued in the chair, and Mr. Martin as secretary.

Councilman Henry E. Needham was named for Mayor, Messrs. Peck, Sawyer, John Valliant and James C. Peck were chosen candidates for Council, three-year-terms, and Mr. H. B. Lounsbury for the one year term. These candidates were the unanimous choice of the convention, and their nomination was received very cordially.

The amount of $4,000 was voted for as deemed necessary for roads, this being an increase of $600 over the amount voted last year, which it was considered was insufficient and that it would be more economical in the end to add the amount named.

The amount to be voted for borough purposes was placed at $1,000, being $500 less than last year.

The meeting then adjourned, and all agreed it was the best attended Republican primary ever seen in the borough, and there was utmost confidence expressed in the success of the ticket.

THEY MADE A GOOD FINISH.

The C. Y. M. L.'s of This City Wind Up the League Games by a Victory.

The Catholic Young Men's Lyceum bowled and won the last game in the Journal League last night. The game was rolled at Elizabeth. Their opponents were the E. F. C.'s. The contest was made very exciting owing to the fact that Dimock, one of the E. F. C. team, was trying for first prize for the highest individual score. He had to make a score of 172 to win. The prize was $15. It will be seen by the score that he lost by three pins, scoring 169. He beat Eagle for second prize by one pin. First prize now goes to Nolte, of the Y. M. C. L. A.'s. The following is the score:

C. Y. M. L.		E. F. C.
Lynch	164	Davis	150
Curry	132	L. Meyer	152
Galbraith	130	Stoddard	149
Nolte	176	Yates	116
Kiely	155	Wind	100
Hibbitts	137	Moore	126
Whalen	112	Dimock	172
Traynor	128	O. Meyer	116
Kenney	156	Barber	122
Butscher	102	Dupock	167
Total	1,448	Total	1,390

Dennis Kane Gets 10 Days.

Dennis Kane was arrested last night for being disorderly at the Salvation Army while a meeting was in progress. Policeman Cooney made the arrest. Kane was arraigned before City Judge Coddington this morning, and sentenced to 10 days in jail.

John Newman was also arrested on the same charge. He was also given 10 days in jail.

THEIR FINAL MEETING.

THE BOROUGH COUNCIL OF '93 CLOSES UP ITS BUSINESS.

Communications Received from Warren Engine Company, and the Telephone Company.—Bills Ordered Paid.—Other Matters.

A meeting of the Borough Council was held last night. The meeting was adjourned at eight o'clock for an hour, as the Republican members were attending the primary.

Mayor Saunders and Councilmen Edwards, Hammer, Neal and Needham were present. Absent: Councilmen Fountain and Howell.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

The following claims were ordered paid:

B. Gavin	$ 79 00
W. N. Pangborn	62 98
E. Wilson	10 00
J. Lines	50.00
J. Kelleher	10 00
Edison Electric Light Company	361 60
L. A. Kline	2 50
Geo. Wilson	10 50

Communications were read from Warren Engine Company notifying the Council that Joseph H. Newman and Thomas Mechler had been elected members of the company, and that Patrick Kellogher was entitled to his exemption papers.

The communications were referred to the Committee on Fire, Water and Lamps.

A letter was read from the New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, stating that they were satisfied with the ordinance referred to them, covering the erection of poles in the borough. The company agreed to furnish the borough with two long distance telephones. The matter was laid over until the next meeting.

Mr. A. D. Thompson and others petitioned for a sufficient number of electric lights on Fairview avenue and Grand street. The Fire, Water and Lamps Committee was empowered to have the lights petitioned for, located, but the number was not to exceed eight.

The report of Borough Magistrate Crossley, showing that $170 in fines had been imposed and received by him during the months of January and February.

Mr. Neal, of the Street Committee, reported that there had been considerable complaint about the placing of salt on the car tracks by the street railway company. Mr. Neal said that inasmuch as the street railway ordinance contained the clause, "no salt shall be used by said company excepting on curves and switches," he had instructed the Marshal to see that the ordinance was enforced.

Mr. Edwards, of the Printing Committee reported that the printing of the borough proceedings had been given to the Courier for $55, the Press having refused to bid and The News not having submitted any.

The Street Committee was authorized to have a sidewalk laid on the west side of Westervelt avenue, between Grandview and Summit avenues.

Lamp posts were ordered placed on Girard avenue and two on Myrtle avenue.

A resolution was offered by Mr. Needham voicing the sincere appreciation of the Council for the very able and energetic manner in which Mayor Saunders had filled his office, and for the courtesy and dignity he manifested in presiding officer. The resolution was unanimously adopted.

In response the Mayor expressed his thanks to the Council for the courteous treatment given him. He said that his two years as Mayor had been the most pleasant experience of his life.

Mr. Neal informed the Council the kindly feeling felt toward the retiring members, and stated that they had carried out the best wishes of the people in a faithful manner.

There being no further business Council adjourned.

Law or Hetfield is Getting Bright.

Two men named William and Michael Gallagher were brought up for trial at Dunellen this afternoon, charged with stealing coal from the Railroad Company. Lawyer Hetfield of this city was their counsel.

He informed the Judge, sarcastically, that Saturday afternoon was a legal holiday and that he had no jurisdiction in the case. He then marched out of court with the defendants. The crowd cheered.

May Vote in 1920.

Mr. Frank Hart of West Third street is a happy father to-day. It's a boy.

Mrs. C. D. Wheeler of Harmony street, and her husband have a new happiness, a baby girl. Mother and child are doing nicely.

There was an increase in North Plainfield's population Thursday morning, when a little daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Sheehan of Westervelt avenue.

A Non-Suit Granted.

The case of Galley vs. Yeoit, to establish right of ownership, came up before Justice Crossley this morning. As counsel for the plaintiff failed to appear a non-suit was asked for by Lawyer Depue, counsel for the defendant. It was granted, and the goods in question will now be sold.

CORRESPONDENCE.

A CLEVER CHAMPION.

The Netherwood Whist Club's Champion Has to a Disgruntled Would-be Member.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—The Netherwood Whist Club met and were entertained at the home of Mr. Louis Saunders Wednesday evening. The summary that they have kept, payable at Christmas, and the success of the club seems assured.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Beal, Mr and Mrs. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Dietz, Mr. and Mrs. Mumford, Mrs. and Miss Darling, Mrs. J. Van Deventer, Mrs. Hyde, Miss Lizzie Combs, Miss Clark, Mr. Alfred Lord, Mr. Holly, Mr. Darling.

The next meeting will be held at Mr. W. A. Lord's, Thursday, March 8th.

Some comment has been raised by an aspersion in the News recently, which reflected in a rather sarcastic and uncalled for way upon the club and Netherwood society in general.

The writer, in a quiet, convincing way, pointed out some of the club's shortcomings, critically dividing it into two cliques, which he designates as the "flowers" and Anti-howlers," describes the differences, and, in a masterly way, gives a glowing account of the respective conduct and procedure of the two cliques.

This is indeed generous, and Netherwood society is grateful for the kindness and condescension of such a well-known satellite of society as the writer. Such a compliment as was paid us cannot but have that several of the features were unrecognizable to the members, but the wandering is not to be wondered at, under the circumstances. The writer also stated that the club was exclusive; this is only true in certain cases, as the writer evidently has reasons for knowing. The members of the club are unanimous in their regret at not being able to thank the writer personally, but trust that this will meet his eyes, and that he will accept their thanks in the spirit given.

It is widely lamented that such a shining light should hide behind the skirts of the Press, which has been averse given to publishing such sputtering squibs as the article referred to. "Some writers indeed have concealed their names to great works, but their 'motives were of a very different character."

March 2, 1894. A MEMBER.

PERSONAL.

Jeremiah Rowe of Grove street is very low with consumption.

Miss Bryns, of Philadelphia, is the guest of Miss Adrian Smith of Putnam avenue.

Mr. Philip Maillette of East Front street will move to Lewiston, Pa., on Monday.

Miss J. M. Shepard returned to New York to-day after a visit to her home on East Front street.

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Evans of the borough will give a dinner to a few friends Monday night.

Miss Lillie Clark returned to her home at Lancaster, Pa., to-day, after visiting Mrs. Robert Wood for several days.

The condition of Mrs. Ira F. Biker of West Front street, who is suffering from pneumonia, is to-day, reported no better.

Mr A. D. Shepard and wife, of East Front street, wintering at the Buckingham Hotel, Ft. Y., Tuesday and Friday with the family of Mrs. J. Doull Miller of East Ninth street.

Mrs Ann D. Wooden, widow of the late Ezra Wooden, died at her home, corner Chatham and Warren streets, yesterday, aged 76 years. Funeral services will be held at two o'clock Monday afternoon.

Mr. Jacob M. Higgins, the builder, has nearly completed a home for himself, corner of Duer and Dupon streets, North The dwelling is of frame and finished in an attractive style. It will cost in the neighborhood of $3,000 when completed.

Mr. Edgar Scheock, of Grandview avenue, has purchased from Mr. John Kitchen, of Somerset street, a lot fronting on Somerset street, between Grandview and Fairview avenues. Ground was broken yesterday for a double house to be erected at once on the property.

A party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Dunham, on Arlington avenue, last evening, in honor of their guest, Miss Wilber, a charming young lady of Connecticut. Those present were: Miss Wilber of Connecticut, Miss Dunham, Miss M. Smith, Miss E. Smith, Miss S. Searing, Miss A. Searing, and Messrs. Alex Johnson, Robert Clark, Frank Splane, Edward Clark, George Taylor, John Clark.

"He Dond't Got Fit."

Mr. Peter Feiring of Harrison street, has become somewhat prominent since the Republican primary meeting in the borough last evening. Like the man of fame who wanted to know "where am I at?" Mr. Feiring got off a remark, with more intention of being funny than that of flying, but which caused much laughter, and is being repeated to-day.

Nominations were in order for pound keeper, or constable, and Mr. Feiring's name was called. Other names had been called and the honor declined in various ways, but Mr. Feiring's voice rose with a solemnity and volume that made every one quiet, after Mr. Place had called out "Mr. Peter Feiring is proposed as a nominee." Said he:

"He dond't got it!"

Mayor Needham and Councilmen Valiant, Peck and Lounsbury.

The next Mayor of North Plainfield, Mr. Henry E. Needham, is a good man for the office. He has had experience as a councilman and has proved himself a popular. He is not addicted to talking much and doing little, but quite the opposite. He has the welfare of the borough at heart and his friends feel that his best services will be looked after by him. Mr. Needham resides on Grandview avenue.

—Mr. John Valiant is a big little man, with a quantity of stored energy and get there in him that ought to make itself felt in Council. He is the Superintendent of the Sunday-school of Grace Methodist Episcopal church, which speaks experienced in Councilmanic matters may be counted on as always voting for what he considers the good of North Plainfield. Mr. Valiant resides on Craig place.

—Mr. James C. Peck will be better, and, doubtless, more favorably known when he occupies his place of prominence as Councilman. Mr. Peck is the manager of an extensive woolen company in New York, is considered a conscientious and thorough business man, in fact, just the man for the place. Mr. Peck resides on Rockview avenue.

—Mr. Henry B. Lounsbury, like Mr. Valiant, is also a superintendent of a Sunday school. His charge is that of the First Presbyterian Church on East Front street. Mr. Lounsbury impresses his hearers, when he speaks, as being a careful, thoughtful man, and not much given to acting on impulse. Well, Borough matters are too important to be impulsively considered, so Mr. Lounsbury would look well in the councilmanic seat. He resides on Grandview avenue.

Men Dressed in Women's Clothes.

Last evening word was sent to Chief Grant that two men dressed in women's clothes were masquerading on West Seventh street and Watchung avenue. The Chief and Sergeant Kiely made an investigation, but when they arrived in that section the masqueraders had disappeared.

Clippings of Interest of the Happenings in Various Cities and Counties.—Brief, but Newsy.

George W. Helme's Will in Doubt.

The will of the late millionaire, George W. Helme, of Helmetta, Middlesex County, was before Chancellor McGill yesterday in Jersey City for construction. The widow claims her dower in addition to the $10,000 stock and real estate bequeathed by her husband. The executor thinks she is not entitled to dower because of other large funds bequeathed her.

The Jersey City Board of Aldermen has arranged to have the city divided into eighty election precincts, for the charter election in April. Last Fall there were only seventy-nine precincts.

District Court Judge Paxton, in Hoboken, yesterday appointed Daniel J. McCarthy sergeant-at-arms of the court to succeed Constable Reese, who was forced to resign.

Judge Beasley, at Freehold, yesterday decided the Amuck-Forman election contest for County Clerk in favor of Amuck, the Democratic encumbent.

Herman Rosenfield was appointed postmaster at Woodbine, Cape May County, vice J. W. Young, resigned.

James E. Martine and the Lay Judgeship.

[Elizabeth Journal.]

Mr. James E. Martine has, it is reported, emphatically declared that he would not accept an appointment as lay judge. Although Mr. Martine has emphatically declared he would not accept the nomination for senator, but afterwards repented and did accept, we are perfectly free to believe that his resolution is final and conclusive as to the position on the bench. Mr. Martine does not intend to be either so cheaply, and, in justice to his ability, his aspirations and his chances, it must be admitted that he is right.

[Elizabeth Herald.]

Imagine James E. Martine a lay judge if you can. We cannot. He has the dignity and he has the ability and the intelligence to fill the position. But he hardly has the temperament. Why if he were on the bench and he thought Judges Van Syckle and McCormack intended to hoodwink a jury to say so. Mr. Martine is a man of broad views and possessed of rare oratorical gifts. He is fortunate for Union County and the State of New Jersey that honors not him a position in which he can exercise these gifts to advantage. He ought, however, that he is a young man, with looks good and we believe that JAMES E. MARTINE will yet be afforded an opportunity in some unrepresentative office of which his endowments and aquirements eminently fit him.

STILL GROWING.

Seven New Members Taken in by Columbia Lodge, A. O. U. W.

Columbia Lodge, No. 58, Ancient Order of United Workmen, is still making remarkable strides forward in point of membership. A largely attended and enthusiastic meeting was held last night.

Seven new members were added to the roll of membership. They were: Messrs. Clarence H. Leland, George Hart ing, Austin M. Compton, A. M. Griffin, L. B. Woolston, L. A. Kinne and F. M. Hulett.

Mr. Sidney E. Flower resigned as Master Workman, and Foreman Vincent W. Nash was elected to fill the vacancy. This left a vacancy for foreman and Overseer William A. Woodruff was elected to fill that position. Mr. William B. Addis was elected Overseer in place of Mr. Woodruff.

Master Workman Nash appointed Mr. Flower representative to the Grand Lodge.

Past Workman M. S. Drake of Newark was present at the meeting.

Campbell vs. Hall.

Two shooting matches have been arranged between Harry Campbell of Plainfield, and Samuel Hall of Perth Amboy, for $50 a side in each match. The first match takes place at the Perth Amboy Gun Club grounds on Thursday, March 15th, at 25 birds each, Long Island rules to govern trap, and 2nd and 3rd handle. The second race takes place at Campbell's club house on Wednesday afternoon, March 21st, 25 birds each, under Burlingham rules. All Plainfield sportsmen wish Mr. Campbell success in both matches.

—A Plainfield delegation will go to Jersey City to-night to attend the institution of a Council of the Degree of Pocahontas.

—There is a large society of the Children of Mary in St. Joseph's church, but no young men's or boys' society. Rev. Father Miller intends to start a young men's society in the Spring.

MR. MEREDITH'S FIST.

It Was Shaken In Mr. Funk's Face and Caused a Scene.

HOUSE ONCE MORE IN DISORDER.

The Virginia Congressman Was Making a Bitter Position Speech When the Illinois Member Struck Him Up—Fortifications Bill Passed.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The house entered upon the consideration of appropriation bills. The fortification bill, carrying something over $2,000,000, was passed in 25 minutes, and then the pension appropriation bill was taken up. This bill usually leads to a considerable display of political feeling, and this occasion was no exception.

An altercation occurred between Mr. Meredith of Virginia and Mr. Funk of Illinois over the former's attempt to prove that there were many fraudulent pensions on the rolls, which almost resulted in a personal collision. Mr. Meredith's speech on the whole was rather sensational. He said that he protested against making the pension roll a roll of dishonor in the name of a state that had paid three times as much for pensions as Vermont.

"That's because there are more of you," suggested Mr. Grout.

"But we get no benefit," returned Mr. Meredith.

"That's because you were on the wrong side," suggested Mr. Johnson of Indiana.

"Whether a man is a patriot or a rebel," retorted Mr. Meredith, "depends upon the result. Success makes a patriot of him whom defeat makes a rebel of. That was the case in 1776."

Mr. Meredith went on to cite cases which he said made it clear that there were hundreds and thousands of fraudulent pensioners on the rolls. During the progress of his speech the members of the Republicans for refusing to vote when the seigniorage bill was up.

Meredith on His Mettle.

"Why did you not count us?" asked Mr. Reed.

"If they had put me in the chair," replied Mr. Meredith, "I would have administered to you your own medicine—I would have counted you." [Republican applause.]

"I am glad to find there is one man of some sense on that side," retorted Mr. Reed. [Laughter.]

Later, in referring to some cases in his state of negro pensioners, Mr. Meredith said that only negroes got pensions in his country. "That is because they are the only people who were loyal," said Mr. Baker of New Hampshire.

"According to my idea of loyalty," replied Mr. Meredith, "there were no loyal men in my country, and I am proud of it."

The remainder of Mr. Meredith's speech a most exciting scene occurred. Mr. Meredith was still talking about fraudulent pensions and was having an animated altercation with Mr. Bailey of New Hampshire over a case which had come under his (Meredith's) personal observation, where a Union soldier was drawing a pension for a disability which he (Meredith) gloried he did not have.

"If I can judge from the fact that a man seems healthy and strong," said he, "and yet gets a pension by reason of a disability, when I see him day by day and week by week and year by year, to my plain, homespun country way of thinking I say that I believe that the man lied when he went before the officials and swore that he had been crippled in the army."

"I want to say if the gentleman is honest," interrupted Mr. Funk of Illinois, rising from his place, and stating what he believes to be true, that if he does not make that case known to the proper authorities he is not a good citizen."

"I want to say this," returned Mr. Meredith hotly, "if the gentleman undertakes to insinuate that I am dishonest—if the gentleman undertakes—"

Without completing his sentence Mr. Meredith left his place to the right of the speaker's chair and, hurried over to where Mr. Funk was standing in a side aisle to the left.

"I did not say so," protested Mr. Funk as Mr. Meredith advanced toward him in a threatening manner.

"You did better not say so," returned Mr. Meredith, still advancing up the aisle.

Crisp to the Rescue.

A personal encounter was imminent. Members rushed to the scene to the bellicerents amid the most intense excitement and confusion. They were both talking at the same time. Finally Mr. Meredith clinched with Mr. Funk, and grasped the latter by his adversary. By this time Mr. Funk, who had previously displayed no feeling, shouted: "I want to say that I am not to be bullied by weak he had said. Mr. Meredith again assumed a threatening posture, but the members who had crowded around gently took him by the shoulders and led him to his seat to prevent a blow from being struck.

All this time Mr. Outhwaite, who was presiding, was pounding with the gavel, and was pounding vigorously for order, but without effect, and Speaker Crisp, who had been hurriedly sent for, mounted the rostrum and assumed the gavel, as he is allowed under the rules to do when the house is in committee of the whole in times of great disorder.

"I undertake to say that you are not my keeper," shouted Mr. Meredith as he was backed down the aisle by his friends.

"I stand by that proposition," shouted back Mr. Funk, who was held on one side by Mr. Doolittle and on the other by Mr. Flynn, "either here or anywhere else."

A few sharp raps of the speaker's gavel produced a measure of quiet. The house recognized the hand of the presiding officer.

"The sergeant-at-arms will cause the gentlemen to be seated," said the speaker in his tones. "Every gentleman will be seated," he continued.

The assistant sergeant-at-arms rapidly cleared the aisles, and the members resumed their seats. The excitement quieted down. Mr. Meredith walked back to his seat and sat down. After order had been restored Mr. Meredith arose and produced loud laughter that he was not excited, but that gentlemen could hardly do more what they might do elsewhere. With this parting shot Mr. Meredith left, and immediately the house, which was at a high tension, on motion of Mr. Sayers took a recess until the evening session, to be devoted to pension legislation.

Postmasters Appointed.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—The following fourth class postmasters were appointed:

New Jersey—Woodbine, Herman Rosenfield. New York—Carrollton, S. H. Cook; Cuyler, Miss Ellen Burke; Copenhagen, F. E. Stone; Dexter, C. W. Burnham; Humphrey, C. S. Pierce; Marcellus, M. H. Dwelling; Winthrop, E. D. Gettinger.

Pennsylvania—Delmont, A. L. Bloor; Hartley Hall, W. H. Shaffer; Hillside, M. B. Shultz; Neshannock, S. F. Hale; Millheim, Simon M. Gramley; Nescopeck, Target, G. W. Miller, J. C. Pidcock.

MARTIAL LAW FOR MINERS.

Troops Are Guarding the Mines of Hazle, but Other Parts Are Restless.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 3.—After the meeting of the strikers at Montgomery bellow the governor did not withdraw the troops from Wyant's fortifications at the Eagle mines, and it is not likely now that the troops will leave for some time. Colonel Hedges, commanding the Second regiment, and Major Hanks, commanding a battalion of three companies, have declared martial law and settled down for a siege.

Sheriff Hinman called for more troops when the strikers moved around Powellton, which is five miles from the Eagle mines and on the Chesapeake and Ohio railway. The Hazleton miners are working at the reduction, and all the strikers wish is for them to come out. The governor and staff held a consultation all day and night.

Three hundred men are reported to have come over from New river, and there are as yet been no attack made by the strikers from Montgomery he believes the report that they were advancing in both directions to attack from the front and rear was correct. He asked the governor for military protection.

A telegram just received by Governor McCorkle since midnight from Division Superintendent J. M. Gill, now at Coalburg, 16 miles above here on the Chesapeake and Ohio, states that the strikers from the mines near there are congregating in large numbers, swearing that they will burn the Chesapeake and Ohio bridge on the branch road that runs from Coalburg to the Acme mines. In burning the bridge they will prevent coal being shipped from the Acme mines and they will stop the miners from working. Immediately upon the receipt of the telegram Governor McCorkle ordered out three more companies of military, with orders to proceed at once to Cabin creek.

BOLTS TAMMANY.

Congressman Dunphy of New York City Leaves the Big Organization.

WASHINGTON, March 3.—Representative Dunphy of New York has forwarded to Nicholas T. Brown of Tammany Hall his resignation from the Tammany Hall general committee.

His reasons for this action are that he does not approve of the political methods of Justice Patrick Divver, the leader of the Second assembly district, and that his views on the tariff do not agree with those of Richard Croker.

In a letter to Mr. Dunphy said he declares his resignation to be taken as a protest against the management, practices and aims of the leader of his assembly district. With particular reference to the platform adopted in the Second district last fall he added:

"My information is that to the election district giving the greatest majority to Maynard was to be given a $1,200 position; to the next best, another position; to the next, a $1,000 position, and clerk. In three separate election districts the entire registered vote was polled, and in these districts Maynard got every vote. Such a result was most astonishing. It was never known before in our district."

Mr. Dunphy said in conclusion that he did not think the public how his resignation from Tammany would affect him politically. He had taken what he considered to be a right course, irrespective of its effect.

Shocking Cruelties at a Poor Farm.

KANSAS CITY, March 3.—The horribly brutal treatment of Charles Palmer, once a well to do publisher of this city, was brought to Kansas City from the poor farm graveyard, where it had been buried, through the unraveling of the mystery of his family. Ex-Humane Officer Milan says that he has secured evidence that shocking cruelties have been practiced on the inmates and that Palmer's death was the result of injuries inflicted by the poor farm attendants. An investigation is being made.

Three Burned by a Fireworks' Explosion.

NEWARK, N. J., March 3.—Two girls and a man were seriously injured in an explosion in a fireworks factory in this city. One of the girls will die. The explosion occurred at the works of the Ruby Light company. The injured are Lizzie Rummell, Allen Connors and Minnie Wilback, proprietor of the works. The two girls were badly burned about the face, head, body and arms. Wilback was burned about the face, arms, legs, shoulders and body. His left arm was entirely burned off.

Whole Family Poisoned.

NEWTON, Kan., March 3.—The entire family of E. T. Snyder, a merchant at Sedgwick, a few miles from here, were accidentally poisoned by some unknown substance in their coffee. Mrs. Snyder died within a few hours in terrible agony, and Mr. Snyder lingered until evening. It is not expected the children will survive.

Hunters Lost In the Mountains.

DURAT, Mexico, March 3.—A party of Americans left here on the 15 days ago on a hunting expedition in the Sierra Madre mountains. The party became separated in the mountains, and three of the members were lost. The bodies of two of them were found in a ravine.

GEN. JUBAL EARLY DEAD

Man Who Caused Sheridan's Famous Ride Passes Away.

WAS A VETERAN OF THREE WARS.

He Served In the Mexican and Florida Wars and In the Civil War—He at One Time Menaced Washington With Confederate Troops.

LYNCHBURG, Va., March 2.—United States Senator John W. Daniel in a sad voice announced that his old commander, General Jubal A. Early, at whose bedside he has been a constant watcher for some days, had gone to his eternal reward. General Early passed away quietly in the presence of his family and physician, his kindred and several intimate friends. The old general seemed aware of the approaching end early in the day. Before noon he called for the morning papers, as was his invariable custom, and attempted to read, but found that his eyes were dim. Soon after he extended his hand to Senator Daniel and calmly said, "I want to tell you goodby, major."

Passed Peacefully Away.

He met death unflinchingly with his hand resting quietly in Senator Daniel's. Arrangements for the funeral will be made today. Private telegrams have been sent by Senator Daniel to many of General Early's ex-Confederate comrades, many of whom will no doubt come here to attend the burial.

Jubal Anderson Early, who was in his seventy-eighth year, was a Virginian by birth. He was graduated at the United States Military academy in 1837, appointed a lieutenant of artillery and assigned to duty at Fort Monroe, Va. He saw service in the Florida war in 1838, and in the latter year resigned from the army and began the practice of law in Virginia. Subsequently he became a member of the legislature and almost won a seat in congress. During the war with Mexico General Early served as major of a regiment of Virginia volunteers and was acting governor of Monterey for May and June, 1847. After the disbanding of the army he again returned to the practice of law.

At the beginning of the civil war he entered the Confederate service as a colonel, commanded a brigade at Bull Run, and in the battle of Williamsburg on May 5, 1862, was mortally wounded, according to first reports. He recovered, however, and was promoted to be brigadier general. In May, 1863, he commanded the division that held the lines at Fredericksburg, while General Lee was fighting the battle of Chancellorsville.

His Long Military Career.

He also commanded a division at Gettysburg. In 1864 he was ordered to the valley of the Shenandoah, where his operations were at first successful. In July he crossed the Potomac river, gained a battle and defeated Wallace there, but was obliged to retreat. Toward the end of the month a portion of his cavalry advanced into Pennsylvania as far as Chambersburg, which, by his orders, they burned. Sheridan was sent after him, and Early sustained defeat at Opequan and again at Fisher's Hill in September later. On Oct. 19 General Early surprised the national forces at Cedar Creek in the absence of General Sheridan, 20 miles away, but the Union general, returning to the battle-field in person, rallied his army and gained a decisive victory. General Early losing the greater part of his military and civil staff. In March, 1865, General Early was totally routed by General Custer of Waynesboro, and a few days later he was relieved by General Lee from the command in the valley.

After the close of the war General Early spent some time in Europe and on his return resumed his practice of law in Richmond. He subsequently took up his residence in New Orleans, alternating with Lynchburg, Va., where, with Colonel Bouregard, he became a manager of the Louisiana state lottery. He was president of the Southern Historical society and in 1867 published a pamphlet entitled "A Memoir of the Last Year of the War For Independence In the Confederate States."

Waite's Extra Session Ended.

DENVER, March 3.—Amid great hilarity the extraordinary special session of the Colorado legislature, called together by Governor Waite to provide relief for the mining interests and unemployed of the state, adjourned sine die.

INTENDS TO CRUSH THEM.

Peixoto Means to Destroy the Brazilian Revolutionists In Short Order.

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 3.—On all sides here people are congratulating themselves that the election passed off quietly, but the action taken by President Peixoto would cause the enemy—that fertile breeding and abettor end of the wretched revolution is not as near at hand as it was at first believed.

President Peixoto issued two important decrees. The first of these announcements calls for an increase in the strength of the regular army, and will, therefore, impose additional burdens upon the people and increase the already heavy taxation to a great degree. This increase of the strength of the regular army is said to be the first step in a movement to crush out the rebellion in this neighborhood and in the south, and should this object be attained it may be said that the additional burden which the people will be called upon to bear will after all be a blessing in disguise.

The second decree issued by the president provides that persons accused of treason shall be tried by military law, which would seem to indicate that additional repressive measures are necessary. At the same time it is announced that martial law will not be proclaimed so long as the situation remains as tranquil as it is now.

The insurgents in this vicinity now say frankly that they are fighting for their lives, and it is believed that if the Peixoto fleet was to make a bold swoop down from Rhode and engage the insurgent fleet in these waters the result would be a prompt and thorough victory for the government squadron.

Yellow fever continues to spread here. Thursday there were 91 deaths from that disease in this city, and in addition 20 deaths from other fevers were recorded.

RAN THE GANTLET.

A Plucky Rock Island Engineer Saved the Train From Robbers.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., March 3.—Engineer James D. McKinney of the Rock Island saved his company a heavy loss in treasure and also escaped with his life by an exhibition of nerve. Three miles east of this city and but half a mile from the place where the Rock Island was robbed two months ago is a deep cut. As the train glided into the cut a red lantern flashed across the track near the middle of the cut, and a torpedo exploded under the wheels. McKinney looked a little beyond the lantern and saw several men with guns.

His train was nearly at a standstill, but seizing the throttle he pulled her wide open. Then he and his fireman jumped down into the bottom of the cab, but not a minute too soon, for when the robbers saw the move they fired a volley into the engine and cab, but luckily hurt no one.

The train dashed through amid a perfect shower of bullets, the bandits, wild with rage, firing into the coaches as they passed and creating consternation among the passengers, who crowded down under the seats and hid their valuables. When the train reached Stockbridge, it was found that over 100 bullets had hit it. Messages were at once sent back to this city, and a force of police is scouring the country.

Mowre Baker Breaks Down.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., March 3.—Moore Baker, who killed two negro burglars right after they had murdered his wife and her baby daughter Gertrude, was in a bad way. It seems that his phlegmatic demeanor, which excited the wonder of all who saw him within a dozen hours after the tragedy, was due to opium administered by Dr. Hoagland. When the doctor refused to give him any more drugs, Baker broke down completely. So violent was his delirium that neighbors had to be called in to hold him. J. J. Baker, his father, says that on Thursday night Moore tried to kill himself with a carver.

Programme For Queen Lil.

OMAHA, March 3.—Hon. W. F. Alexander, special commissioner of the provisional government at Honolulu, passed through Omaha on his return from Washington. In an interview he said: "The provisional government has won the fight. It will give the queen a pension and retire her, providing she behaves herself. She will not be sent into exile, as the leaders of the provisional government do not regard her as worthy of martyrdom."

Evangelist Attempts Suicide.

SYRACUSE, March 3.—The police arrested William Miller, the evangelist of the Free Methodist church, on the charge of attempting to commit suicide. Miller lives at Sumner Hill, Cayuga county. His wife left him a short time ago, and he came to this city to seek work. He was despondent and swallowed paris green, but received prompt medical attendance.

Steel Pool Rumor Denied.

PITTSBURG, March 3.—Announcements have been published in the eastern newspapers that the manufacturers of steel castings had agreed to go into a pool, with the exception of the Midvale Steel company. This is denied by Pittsburg manufacturers.

Sheriff Slaughter Conducts a Hanging.

BATON ROUGE, La., March 3.—Sheriff Slaughter cut the rope, and Dave Johnson and Mansfield Washington, the two colored murderers, swung into eternity. They refused to make any statement, saying that they had already said enough.

America Bride For a Count.

KANSAS CITY, March 3.—A cablegram has been received from Geneva announcing that Miss Florence Stebbins, daughter of Mr. W. R. Stebbins, a wealthy Kansas City man, is to wed Count Lionel von Z—g, a member of the nobility.

The Cook Workers' Strike.

PATERSON, N. J., March 3.—The weavers in Hamedi & Meyer's, the Ponser company's and the Parker & Ribbon company's works quit work and joined the strikers. This makes the strike pretty general.

Oklahoma City Elects a Postmaster.

OKLAHOMA CITY, O. T., March 3.—An election for postmaster was held here. Seven hundred votes were cast, of which J. Flattery received 317 and was elected. There were six candidates.

SENT FOR ROSEBERY.

He May Be Summoned to the Premiership.

GLADSTONE REFUSED A PEERAGE.

The Queen Offered Him "his Title and Expressed Her Regrets When He Told Her of His Intention to Resign—Lobouchere Declares War on the Lords.

LONDON, March 3.—By command of the queen Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone are at Windsor castle to remain as her guests today. At noon a privy council will be held at Windsor castle, when Mr. Gladstone will tender his resignation of the premiership.

The Earl of Kimberley, lord president of the council; Earl Spencer, first lord of the admiralty, and the other ministers, with the exception of Lord Rosebery, will be present.

In his consultation with the queen Mr. Gladstone explained fully to her majesty the reasons for his retirement.

The queen expressed her regrets that the country should lose his services and offered him a peerage.

This Mr. Gladstone declined to accept.

Mr. Gladstone recommended that Lord Rosebery be appointed as his successor. A telegram was sent later to Lord Rosebery, who is at Epsom, summoning him to Windsor for 5 o'clock this afternoon.

It is understood that he will accept the premiership, but that there will be only two other changes in the cabinet.

Wants No Peer For Premier.

Mr. Henry Labouchere, in an interview, was asked what he would do if Lord Rosebery became premier. In reply Mr. Labouchere said that if the Conservatives moved a want of confidence in such a government he would not support the government, and he thought that at least 30 members were in full sympathy with his view of the situation, and that if they were driven to extremes they would even overturn a government headed by a peer.

It is learned upon good authority that Mr. Gladstone will not accept any position in the cabinet to be reorganized administration. The general feeling in the Liberal clubs is that if Mr. Gladstone was to remain a member of the cabinet it would hamper his successors and take away their freedom of action, though it is understood that he has intimated his desire to give his successors counsel and co-operation whenever required.

In an editorial The Standard says: "Neither dignity nor grace has been consulted in the arrangements for the close of Mr. Gladstone's career. Up to the last moment those persons possessing a primary claim on his confidence were quite obviously under a false impression as to his intentions. The autocratic obstinacy which attempted to cram into one year legislation that should have occupied two culminates in a deplorable scene of confusion, recrimination and frantic haste."

The Parnellite members regard the retirement of Mr. Gladstone as a betrayal of the Irish cause and are inclined to oppose any ministry of which Mr. Gladstone is not a member.

Gladstone Margaret and Rosebery.

The Times says: "It is unusual for the queen to seek advice from a retiring premier, but it, out of compliment to Mr. Gladstone's long and faithful service, she should ask his opinion, it is likely that he would name Lord Rosebery as the man best able to hold the cabinet and party together. Her majesty's choice appears to lie between Sir William Harcourt, the Earl of Kimberley and Lord Rosebery."

The Standard says: "It is understood that Mr. Gladstone will retain his seat in parliament. It is regarded as certain that the Earl of Kimberley will have the foreign office, while Mr. John Morley will succeed him as secretary for India."

All the ministers, with the possible exception of Sir William Harcourt, are willing to serve under Lord Rosebery. Most of them feel strongly that this will be the best arrangement. It is not certain that they would all accept Sir William Harcourt as premier. The Earl of Kimberley might conciliate everybody.

A feeling exists that if the premier is to be a peer—which is undesirable, but probably inevitable—the choice should fall upon Lord Rosebery. If it does, he will not hold the foreign portfolio, and Mr. John Morley will leave the Irish office for a more dignified position.

Business In Pittsburg Picks Up.

PITTSBURG, March 3.—If reports from the sheriff's office are an infallible, business in Pittsburg has improved considerably within the last week or two. For a time executions were being issued at a very rapid rate, and stores were being closed one after another. Within 10 day he has not closed a single store.

A Sandwich Counterfeit Coin.

ST. LOUIS, March 3.—A very dangerous counterfeit 45 gold piece is in circulation here. The gold, consists of three pieces soldered together. The outer pieces are of pure gold and are the obverse and reverse faces of the coin. The middle plate is of base metal.

Permit For an Orderly Meeting.

BOSTON, March 3.—Mayor Matthews granted a permit to the socialists to hold a public meeting of the unemployed on Boston Common next Monday. A permit was issued for "one orderly meeting."

Beautiful Penitente's Suicide.

KUTTAWA, Ky., March 3.—James Oliver of Lamasco, Ky., killed himself because a few of his friends joked him concerning an examination into his right to draw a pension.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

Washington Children's Homes.

In Washington there are always many pastimes and entertainments planned for the enjoyment of the children. And there will be more than ever before on account of the exhibition of baby young boys and girls. A favorite Washington diversion for the children is the fancy dress party and the public where the children go and dance many dances. Little Frances Cleveland le most charming accomplished little dancer and assumes all the little figures of the fancy dances. There was a little New Orleans girl in Washington who brought north many pretty ideas, and who with half a dozen others was dressed usually as they beaux—"bean belles" they were called—to supply the demand for young men, sadly needed in Washington as elsewhere. She was little Zoe Peiser, and this is her picture, taken in one of the pretty costumes she wore.

The Used Undressed.

My uncle [illegible] ver and I were out in the garden one day catching a little toad, and my uncle took it very, very gently scratched [illegible] side of the toad and then the other. [illegible] evidently enjoyed it, for he would [illegible] slowly from side to side and blink [illegible] contentedly.

I was so interested that when they went in I took the toad and did as my uncle had done. If, the [illegible], he rolls from side to side as I took him, what would he do if I put a twig down his back? I did so, and I sure do you think happened? His skin, it was thin and dirty, parted in a neat little seam, showing a bright new coat below, and then my quiet little toad showed his knowledge, for he gently and carefully pulled off his outer skin, taking it off the long [illegible] legs first, and then blinking it over his eyes, till—where had it gone? He had [illegible] in a ball and swallowed it!—Philadelphia Press.

Dead Dogs.

Have you ever heard of it? If you have, do you suppose he has ever heard of the queen of England's dogs?

Queen Victoria has 55 pet dogs. They live in the grandest style that was ever known. Their dining room is handsomely carpeted and ornamented with the portraits of their celebrated ancestors in oil and water colors. Some of the pictures are adorned with tufts of the hair which belonged to the departed pets of her majesty. The dogs are proud of their portrait gallery, and they despise all the low breed cars of creation. How nice it must be to be a queen's dog! Perhaps if your dog does not know of the luxury of this royal family of dogs, you would better not tell him, or he might follow the example of the famous pussy cat who went to London to see the queen.—Exchange.

Knowing Boys.

Six things a boy ought to know:

That a quiet voice, courtesy and kind acts are as essential to the part in the world of a gentleman as of a gentlewoman.

That roughness, blustering and even foolhardiness are not manliness. The most firm and courageous men have usually been the most gentle.

That muscular strength is not health.

That a brain crammed only with facts is not necessarily a wise one.

That the labor impossible to the boy of 14 will be easy to the man of 20.

That the best capital for a boy is not money, but a love of work, simple tastes and a heart loyal to his friends and his God.—Exchange.

The Sponge.

The sponge is an animal. It will shrink from the hand which tries to seize it, and if viewed under a lens may be seen constantly drawing in water through the innumerable canals which form its digestive organs, and having consumed the minute animalcules in the fluid ejecting it again through some other channel.

Normandy Kites.

A form of sport very popular in Normandy is that of flying kites, which are, some of them, of very large dimensions. At a competition on the heights of St. Catherine, the famous kite rose to the height of 8,500 feet and would have soared higher but for lack of string.—Boston Globe.

Boston's Wealthy Women.

One of the wealthiest women in Boston is undoubtedly the widow of the late Augustus Hemenway, as she was the chief heir to an estate valued at $22,000,000. Mrs. Quincy A. Shaw, daughter of Professor Louis Agassiz, has a private fortune which enables her to dispense a royal bounty. Her kindergarten work alone is said to cost her about $30,000 a year. Mrs. Sears, the wife of J. Montgomery Sears and daughter of Charles F. Choate of, Southboro, also has a worthy fortune in her own name. Mrs. S. D. Warren of Mount Vernon street is credited with at least $3,000,000. She owns the Androscggin mills and a great deal of other property. Mrs. Alphonse Hardy is worth nearly $1,000,000. She is very fond of flowers, cultivating them with great success. A superb chrysanthemum is named for her. Mrs. W. H. Slocum, daughter of Moses Williams, is worth $800,000, and Miss Elizabeth Brigham enjoys a share in the use of her late brother's large estate, which, when the last legatee shall have died, will endow a hospital to bearing by the name of its founder. There is a long list of women who pay taxes on sums ranging from $100,000 to $500,000 or more. —Boston Commonwealth.

About Women's Arms.

An English sculptor has been interviewed about women's arms and admits much difficulty in securing a perfect model. He sums up the points of such an arm as follows: "The arm should be fully two heads long from the top extension at the shoulder to the wrist, the upper arm large and round, a dimpled elbow, the forearm not too fat, the whole diminishing in long, graceful curves to a well rounded wrist. A woman's arm is rounder and tapers more gracefully than a man's, owing to the deltoid muscle coming lower down the arm, and all the muscles having a longer and more gradual curve."

And he says further that women should know how to move their arms.

"There is as much power of expression in the arm as in the face. Sarah Bernhardt is only one of many instances, especially among the French, Italian and Spanish women. Her arms are certainly not things of beauty on account of their shape, but they are decidedly so in their movements. She knows how to manage them, and the result is charming."

To Stretch a Chicken.

Chickens are not cheap, but there are more ways to make one bird go round a big family than the average housekeeper appreciates. For instance, buy a fat pullet, cut it up in joints and make four parts of the breast and either stew or pan bake it. To accompany pots boil apples, purslain, potatoes, turnips, peas or beans, oyster plant or eggs. With the basting water make a moderate gravy, thickened to taste. Put the chicken in the center of a big platter, with toast under each piece, scatter celery tips or sprigs of parsley over it, and lay on the fruit and vegetables in tidy lots round the edge. As the children say, this "is awful good" any day in the year.—New York World.

Dentistry and Corsets.

One of the most successful dental surgeons in New York, who has a large "ladies' practice," delicately suggests to his nervous patients, when there is nerve rupling we go to be done, that the easiest fitting garments that can be worn will increase the powers of endurance. Some of the baneful things he has to contend with in the especial grandparents' new, rich stores, high to choking collars, and, worst of all, corsets so tight fitting that the patient, upon having high steam breathing, is in danger of suffocating when the elastic cloth goes out to protect the enamored tooth preparatory to filling.—New York Recorder.

Tight Clothing and Wrinkles.

If women will dress up in nerve rasping, pain racking, death bruising shoes, gloves, corsets and clothes, they must expect the Nibs to have them their share. Suffering is aging. A New York chiropodist says, "I have seen ladies in evening dress age in an hour from the agony of ankle inflicted by a pair of tight shoes." A tight shoe is a mural as well as a physical loss, because it cripples the working power of the brain by paralyzing the mind over convulsions of the body by reason of its discomfort. Not only pretty complexions, but good digestion and natural respiration, are destroyed by tight corsets and bodices.

Three Talented Women.

It is a little curious that three daughters of famous writers should be very skilful with the pencil rather than the pen, though one—Miss Mildred Howells—seems to possess the double talent. The other two—Miss Allegra Eggleston and Miss Jessamy Harte—are pronouncedly successful in their illustrative work and are winning famed a high kind with their pencils. Miss Eggleston is considerably the senior of Miss Harte, and her work has longer been recognized, but Miss Harte's is so full of promise that its wide and increasing acceptance is assured.—Exchange.

Steam on Windows.

To prevent steam on windows, advises an authority, rub them with glycerin. When glass windows are clean, take a pad of cotton rag, soaked in glycerin, and rub them all over inside. Then take a piece of clean dry rag or cotton flannel, and lightly polish the whole window until the glycerin is invisible, but not all entirely rubbed away. Do it when the glass is fairly warm and dry. The operation is rather a long one, but the reward is shining windows, no gathering of steam and a much longer period of cleanliness before another washing is needed.—Exchange.

Wretchedness of Homeless Women.

A woman advanced in life without a home and without occupation is a picture without a frame. A home of her very own is what every woman craves whose impulses have not been vitiated by a false motive in life. Despite the multiplication of boarding houses and the allurements of private apartments in well conducted flats, love of home is as inherent in woman's nature as the instinct of nest building in bird nature. It is all the better if there is a congenial husband to share it, but home and happiness for a woman are inseparable.—New York Advertiser.

A Man and His Wife.

A man and his wife stood on the Brooklyn bridge. He was a philosopher and a talker. She was a woman of action. A dog was hauling a long line of barges up the river.

"Look there, my dear," said he. "Such is life. The tug is like the man working and toiling, while the barges, like the women, are"——

His wife gave him no time to finish the sentence.

"I know," she said; "the tug does all the blowing, and the barges bear all the burden."—Exchange.

A SPENDTHRIFT'S REMORSE.

Mrs. Ireland Passed the Exposure of Her Forgeries and Killed Herself.

CINCINNATI, March 3.—The suicide of Alice Zellew Ireland in her bedroom in an elegant home on Walnut hills was sensational in the extreme. She was a bride of six weeks. Her family was one of the wealthiest and most highly respected in the city. The first intimation her husband had of suicidal intent was Thursday, when Mrs. Dunham, a neighbor, came hurriedly down to the city and told her husband that she had received a note from Mrs. Ireland, with some clothing, telling her she did not need them any more.

Mrs. Dunham sought Mr. Ireland, and they went immediately to the house. It was locked securely. They broke in and found Mrs. Ireland's room locked. Breaking in, they found her unconscious on the bed and the gas turned on. When she was revived, she upbraided them, saying she would do it all over again. Mr. and Mrs. Dunham remained all night, and Mrs. Ireland promised to make no other attempt on her life.

While at breakfast the next day a pistol shot was heard. Mr. Ireland rushed to her room and found her in a swoon. She had evidently hoped to muffle the sound. She was unconscious and died in a few minutes. Her letters left a statement made by her mother, but it is apparent that she was suffering from a mental disorder not even known to her husband.

Their married life was very happy. The dead woman's mother gives a clew to the tragedy by saying that her daughter was a phenomenal spendthrift and that recently she (the mother) had paid a note of $500 which had been negotiated by Mrs. Ireland. The mother had not told her daughter that she had taken care of the forged paper. Dread of exposure is supposed to have driven her to desperation.

Bad Mine Accident.

KANSAS CITY, March 3.—Two men were instantly killed, two fatally burned and five others dangerously hurt in an explosion at the Kansas City Clay and Coal company's mine, near Leeds. The mine had been in an unsafe condition for some time and had been condemned by the state mine inspector. The fans were out of repair and stopped frequently and were stopped for half an hour before the explosion. A great amount of gas accumulated in the meantime, and it is supposed that the explosion was caused by one of the miners going into the chamber that was filled with the deadly gas. There were 115 men in the mine at the time, and it is a miracle that so few were killed and injured, as they were all working in the same level.

Gentzel Drove Her to Suicide.

POMEROY, O., March 3.—Mrs. Joseph Matthews of Syracuse recently died suddenly. She was given a large dose of medicine by her mother as liver medicine. Owing to the daughter's marriage against her parents' wishes the story was circulated that the mother had poisoned her daughter. The mother is Mrs. Thomas H. Holmes, wife of a prominent merchant. She brooded until she took the same dose and will die.

Rescuers Blocked by Solid Rock.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., March 3.—Pritchard, Bella, Balko and Nick ulinec, the four entombed miners in O. T. Williams & Son's slate quarry at Williamsport, are still buried in the tunnel where the cave-in occurred. The rescuing party has reached a solid wall of rock, which it will have to break through, and progress is necessarily slow.

Missed the Point.

The other day I was told of a little girl who attended a distribution of prizes given by the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. She had won, you must know, a book as a reward for writing the best essay on the subject given, and, with the other successful children, was undergoing a viva voce examination.

"Well, my dear," said the gentleman who had given away the prizes, "can you tell me why it is cruel to dock horses' tails and trim dogs' ears?"

"Because," answered the little girl, "what God had joined together let no man put asunder."—Leisure Hour.

CARD PLAYERS RAIDED.

ANOTHER HAUL MADE BY MARSHAL PANGBORN.

Jacob Bergen, the Proprietor, Held for the Grand Jury, Under $200 Bail.—The Others Fined $5 Each.

Saturday Night Mrs. Jacob Bergen, colored, applied to Marshal Wilson for lodging for the night, saying that her husband had denied her admittance to her home. The Bergens lived on Race street in the same building with William Jackson, who was spread out long ago for elbowing and playing in his place.

Mrs. Bergen told Marshal Pangborn that her husband had been allowing gambling at the house and that even when she was denied admittance she was sure there was card playing going on.

Chief Marshal Pangborn, Marshal Wilson and Special Marshal Moore, between two and three o'clock Sunday morning, made a visit on Bergen's place and arrested John Stevens and Charles Heslick, (white), and Jacob Bergen and Henry Vanderveer, (colored).

Stevens and Herlick gave bail to appear for a hearing this morning. Bergen and Vanderveer were locked up.

This morning Bergen was arraigned for keeping a disorderly house. He was held in the sum of $200 to appear before the Grand Jury.

Stevens, Herlick and Vanderveer were each fined $5 under the disorderly act.

Marshal Pangborn says he heard one of the men say "well, I owe you a quarter." But as he saw no money he couldn't press the charge of gambling.

PERSONAL.

Mr. George Cook spent Sunday at Mamaroneck, N. Y.

Miss Mamie Benigar of this city visited her sister in New York yesterday.

Mr. Thomas S. Armstrong of Duer street is confined to the house by illness.

The Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards preached in the Seventh Day Baptist church Saturday morning.

John Barron, of Brooklyn, returned Saturday from a visit to Mr. T. Meadow of Stebbins place.

Mr. J. B. Drayton, of Franklin place, gave a card party Saturday night to about thirty friends.

Mr. Richard Maney of Jutland spent Sunday with friends on Columbia avenue, North Plainfield.

Carl Peterson of Watchung avenue is recovering from a ten days' illness, which threatened pneumonia.

Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Ponton of Rockview avenue came back from their Winter quarters in New York City.

Mr. Rowland M. Stover of East Ninth street was able to be out Saturday after a severe attack of heart trouble.

The Rev. Benjamin Hand, pastor of the First Church of Christ of this city, preached in New York yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Potter and Mr. and Mrs. David E. Ellsworth, of West Seventh street, left yesterday for a trip South.

Mrs. F. A. Dunham of Madison avenue was taken sick Saturday with a severe cold. It is feared it will terminate in pneumonia.

Messrs. John Apgar and F. H. Glee have bought a lot on Dunellen avenue, Dunellen, of Mr. C. H. Hand, for $625, and propose to build.

Wednesday night there will be a birthday party at the home of Miss Kittie Fry on Plainfield avenue in honor of the birthdays of Miss Fry and Miss Sutton.

Instead of returning home from Georgia Saturday night as he originally intended, Mr. Charles A. Reed, of the borough, has extended his trip to Florida. He was accompanied by Mr. A. D. Thompson.

The marriage of F. H. Robinson, formerly of Congress, but recently returned and Miss Nellie McGuire, of South Second street, will take place on Friday evening, March 9, at the bride's residence.

The condition of Mrs. Edward Hooley of Central avenue was reported by her husband last evening as no better. She is suffering from a complication of diseases and on Saturday and Sunday consultations were held between two of the most eminent physicians. Her condition on Sunday was far worse than on the preceding day. Her friends are anxious awaiting a report for the better.

Lawyer David Jacques, of New York, married Miss Bessie Hartshorn Saturday at the country home of her father George Hartshorn, between this city and Rahway. The wedding was attended by guests from New York, Philadelphia, Plainfield, Elizabeth and Rahway. The marriage was by the Quaker rites. Mayor Daly, of Rahway, officiated. The bridegroom is seventy-three years old, and the bride thirty-five. The Hartshorn mansion was elaborately decorated. A wedding breakfast was served after the ceremony.

North Plainfield has lost another old resident in the death of Mr. John Allen, which occurred at his home on Somerset street yesterday. Mr. Allen had been a resident of the borough for about 40 years and had seen many changes in his vicinity since his removal here. He owned considerable property along Somerset street, but has sold the most of it. He was 76 years of age. He was sick only since Tuesday with pneumonia. A wife and two children—a son and daughter—survive him. The son is Mr. Ereanous Allen and the daughter is Mrs. Walter Mundy. The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

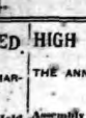
HIGH SCHOOL LYCEUM.

THE ANNUAL MEETING HELD SATURDAY NIGHT.

Assembly Hall Filled With the Lyceum's Friends.—An Essay on "Bernard Palissy."—An Able Discussion on Literature and Science.



ASSEMBLY Hall was crowded Saturday night at the annual meeting of the High School Lyceum.

On the platform besides the Lyceum officers and those who were down on the programme to take part, was the symphony Orchestra with Prof. P. L. Conde as leader. During the evening the orchestra rendered some very fine selections in a most pleasing manner.

The first number on the programme was a selection by the Lyceum Quartette, which is composed of S. W. Mark, T. D. Blair, Edward Clark and H. B. Drake. The singers evoked prolonged applause. Next the president of the Lyceum, Albert Waltmann, made a short address, setting forth in a very brief manner the objects of the Lyceum, its prime object being to acquaint its members with parliamentary rulings and debates.

The next number on the programme was a selection by the Symphony orchestra. The piece was well executed that the audience compelled the orchestra to respond with an encore.

In an essay on "Bernard Palliss," Champlain L. Riley told of how the famous potter and religious reformer had first experimented and discovered the enamel. Palliss was born in North France, and as a child he early developed a strong love for nature. This afterwards aided him very much in his original designs of pottery. While yet young he fell in love and married. For three years he experimented in pottery. Then he had to go to work to earn money for his increasing family. Fortunately he secured a good government appointment as surveyor. As soon as he had accumulated a small sum of money Palliss again began his experimenting to make white enamel. After many failures he was successful. His ware was very unique, because the designs were taken from nature, and his work was used more for ornament than anything else.

Palliss was a Huguenot and because of his vigorous expression of his views he was seized and placed in prison, where he died after four years' confinement.

Then the Lyceum Quartette favored the audience and sang so well that all joined so heartily in the well-merited applause that the quartette had to respond with another selection.

A very able discussion followed upon the topic "The Influence of Literature and Science Upon Civilization."

The cause of literature had an able champion in the person of John C. Whitling. He argued for literature in a masterly manner, and if his subject did not win the decision of the committee was no fault of his.

C. Minturn Smith took up the cudgel for science, and none of the principal scientific advantages of the day were overlooked by this young man, but all received their fair share of his arguments. Science lost nothing but gained much by having this young orator to plead in its behalf.

Miss Gilbert, Prof. Maxson and the Rev. Mr. Goodrich, as the committee to decide which had the most influence upon civilization—literature or science—gave a verdict in favor of science. The committee, however, through their spokesman, Mayor Gilbert, stated that it was not through the argument of literature's champion that literature lost, but because the odds were against him at the outset. As science is knowledge, and knowledge is the father of literature there was no possible chance for literature to win.

The balance of the programme consisted of a selection by the orchestra, declamation, "The Secret of the Murderer," by Fred W. Goddard; and a selection by the Lyceum Quartette.

GROCER BRAIDER ASSIGNS.

His Liabilities Will Probable Amount to $8,500.

Mr. Benjamin S. Braider, the grocer of Somerset street, this morning made an assignment. His principal creditors are Diamond & Co., of New York, C. B. Clifton of this city, and Stout, Spencer & Co. of New York. Mr. Vincent W. Nash is the assignee. Mr. Braider's liabilities, it is thought, will amount to about $3,500.

AN OFFICE TO LET.

THE DEMOCRATS WANT A CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR.

No Special Qualifications Needed.—They will Accept Anyone Generous Enough to be Sacrificed.—Anything that's a Man will do.—A Chance no one Wants.

Mayor Saunders, Councilman Keal and the irrepressible "Dare" Carney, comprising a committee to fill vacancies on the Democratic ticket for the borough of North Plainfield are having a hard time of it.

Mr. McCutchen told the Mayor before the primary was held that he would not accept the nomination for Mayor if tendered him. The Democrats, not knowing him as well as they ought to, evidently did not consider him a man of his word, but they are wiser now. They insisted on nominating him, and he insists on keeping his word, as they have no candidate willing to be sacrificed.

The committee went around the borough Saturday night in search of a candidate. They were meandering along stony brook, and heading in their distress as if they were going to take to the woods, when the resourceful Mayor bethought himself of the genial Col Wilson and straightway laid sails to Castle Twain, where the Colonel is as beautifully entrenched.

"Bow-wow" went the big dog, eying the Mayor askance, and, of course, the Mayor was too polite not to bow in return.

He and his fellows finally effected an entrance, and endeavored to pursuade the colonel to surrender himself and his belongings to their wishes. It was hard to resist the Mayor's persuasive eloquence, but the Colonel once led a forlorn hope at Gettysburg. He did not want any Mayor's place at second hand, and in fact did not hanker after it at first hand this year. He is disgusted with the prate and its doings. He has said so and that he is so much disgusted that he is going to even vote the Republican ticket. He has declared himself like a large number of the better class of Democrats generally as determined to vote the Republican ball into power as quickly as possible to bring back the good times we all had under Republican rule, which the Democrats destroyed. He, finally, so as not to wound the feelings of his would-be captors, consented to consider the terms of surrender over night, although those who know him know that his mind was already made up. The committee since their visit have received his letter declining the honor, and now they are at sea floundering about for anybody willing to run, even if only a figure-head.

A DOG IN CHURCH.

The Service at the First Presbyterian Church Interrupted.

Last evening at the First Presbyterian Church, the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Herring, was compelled to stop in his sermon to reprimand several boys who were making a disgraceful racket in the balcony.

Just before that while the choir was singing a slight commotion was caused by the barking of a dog, which some boys had secreted in the balcony.

The dog was out out out and then the boys continued so noisy that a reprimand seemed necessary.

A Five-Year-Old Boy Thrown From a Wagon.

Five year old Willie Kip of Somerset street was thrown out of a wagon at the corner of Somerset and Race streets this noon. Although the horse was on a run the driver checked it just in time to save the little boy from being run over. His head was directly in front of the wheel.

Made of Wood from the Holy Land.

Mr. Alex Ayers of this city, has just completed a pretty and unique fishing rod. It is made of bathabia wood from the Holy Land. The wood is hard as steel. It is so hard that a sharp knife or razor will not make a dent in it. It is made in sections so that it can be taken apart and carried around in the pocket.

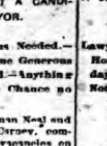
THE LAW AT DUNELLEN

A JUSTICE ATTEMPTS TO HOLD COURT ON A HOLIDAY.

Lawyer Hetfield Declared Justice Hoff had no Power to Sit on "Saturday Afternoon and Therefore Could Not Hold the Defendants.



DESPITE the fact that Dunellen had a decided holiday appearance Saturday afternoon in Chief Justice of the Peace forgot that Saturday afternoons are legal holidays, and that, in consequence, he had no right to try a civil suit after twelve o'clock on that day.

Maier's hall contained a holiday crowd also, for never before was there such a gathering in a afternoon at Dunellen's main hall. That's why the place looked as if it was observing a holiday.

The cause of that gathering was plainly interesting to a majority of the borough's fair. The trial had been announced to take place of Detective Corsa of the Central Railroad Company, against William and Michael Gallagher. The charge was disorderly conduct, but it was understood that it is for trespassing on the railroad. Mr. Hetfield of this city appeared for the defendants and Mr. Barkalow for Mr. Corsa.

Mr Hetfield first moved to dismiss the proceedings on the ground that the complaints had been frequently drawn, and did not specify the charge. The complaints charged the defendants with being "disorderly persons" but did not state in what particular manner they had been disorderly.

Justice Hoff said he had shown the complaints to a Plainfield lawyer, who had told him the complaints were all right.

Mr. Hetfield again moved to dismiss the proceedings on the grounds that the Justice had no jurisdiction and could not try a civil case on Saturday afternoon, because it was a legal holiday.

In support of his motion Mr. Hetfield told of Plainfield cases that had been adjourned, when almost finished, as soon as the twelve o'clock whistle blew.

Justice Hoff: "Do you mean to tell me that I have no right to try a man in Dunellen on Saturday afternoon, when there is a crime committed?"

Lawyer Hetfield: "Oh yes, if a man commits a crime you can arrest him and try him any day, but that comes under the criminal law and not under the disorderly act as the case does."

Justice Hoff seemed of the opinion that he had a right to try the case, but said he was there to act according to law and he didn't want to do any thing that was not in law.

Lawyer Barkalow and Detective Corsa, who arrested the men, then held a conference, and as a result the former stated to the Justice that if the court decided that it could not legally try the case, he was willing to submit, and have it come up again.

After sitting in a thoughtful attitude a few minutes Justice Hoff said: "Well, if it is your wish not to push the charge, why, of course, we won't go on with it."

Both lawyers:—"That is not the point. The point is are you willing to go on and try this case, it being a legal holiday."

Justice Hoff did not say whether he could try the case or not, and Detective Corsa, when the court started to talk, when Lawyer Hetfield arose and objected, stating that Mr. Corsa had a lawyer to do the talking. Justice Hoff did not stop Mr. Corsa until Mr. Hetfield said he would demand the same rights for his client when Mr. Corsa was through. Then the Justice made his first ruling and silenced Mr. Corsa.

Then occurred the most exciting part of the play. The Justice Hoff would make no decision. Lawyer Hetfield did. He arose and declared that it being a legal holiday the Justice had no power in the matter. On making the case returnable on a holiday he had made the whole proceedings void; and having no power to sit the Justice could not hold the defendants in court; and he advised his clients to get up and leave the room.

Then pandemonium was let loose. The defendants arose to carry out his advice and everybody yelled, (but Justice Hoff and the prosecution). Amid it all three cheers were given for Lawyer Hetfield.

It is understood that new complaints are to be made out and Justice Hoff will be asked to make new warrants.

The case is arousing wide-spread interest as it means much to about 100 persons who have been, it is charged, in the habit of stealing coal from the railroad.

The two Gallaghers are making it a test case.

The railroad company has suffered serious loss and is determined to stop the depredations.

Still a Bone of Contention.

[Sunday World.]

The Plainfield Post mastership is still a bone of contention among the Democrats of that city, and Congressman Dunn is as silent as a sphinx on the subject. Rowland M. Stover has worried himself sick over the matter, the strain on his nervous system being too much. There are several candidates, one of the latest being Assistant County Clerk Elmore D. Moffett. He says that he will not stand in Mr. Stover's path, but if the latter can't have the place then Mr. Moffett wants to be considered in the race.

To Talk from New York to London.

The New York World of yesterday contained a column article regarding the probability of there being established a telephone system between New York and London. It says that the experiments were made at Plainfield, N. J. A fine wire composed of steel and copper was laid without any insulation on it for a mile and a half through the water, mud and slush of the county road. When that length had been stretched out a common ordinary telephone receiver was placed at each end of the line and whispers were distinctly head by the men at each end.

A heavy truck loaded with stone ran across the wire, but the wire was merely pushed deeper into the mud, and the talking still went on.

A remarkable fact about this line is that only one wire is used. The earth takes the place of the other wire. The fact that part of the line ran through a brook seemed to make no difference in its workings; hence the inference of its working across the ocean.

To Hold a Fair in Central Hall.

FROM OVER THE STATE.

ITEMS GLEANED FROM OUR NEW JERSEY EXCHANGES.

Clippings of Interest of the Happenings in Various Cities and Towns—Brief, but Newsy.

The executors of the estate of the late George R. McKenzie, formerly president of the Singer Sewing Machine Company, have filed a bill in chancery for the partition of his large estate.

The Rev. Cornelius Woelfkin, pastor of the North Baptist church, Jersey City, has a call to a congregation in the City of churches. The pastor's present charge does not want him to leave. He is very popular.

The Rev. Robert A. Tufft, a former pastor of the Congregational Church at Elizabethport, was ordained to the deaconate at the Episcopal church in St. John's church, Elizabeth yesterday morning. He will take charge of the Linden Episcopal church.

Thieves cut the wires of the burglar alarm and stole 200 fancy breeding fowl from the henhouse of John Correga of Iselin, Sunday.

James McIntrath, who was locked up last Friday night in the Hudson County Jail, charged with attempting to bribe Foreman Larkins of the petit jury which tried the replevin suit of Christian Feigenspan against Mark Flemming, was released on bail yesterday.

THE FRANKLIN PARK TRAGEDY.

More Excitement Caused by a Remark of the Motion of Henry Moore.

A remark of the mother of Henry Baker or "Parson," in regard to the tragedy at Franklin Park has started a fresh excitement that may end in trouble.

She declared that a trial of Moore Deacon should be held for the killing of her son and Willard Thompson. The little gathering of farmers to whom the remark was addressed were at once indignant.

They told Mrs. Baker that had Baker and Thompson lived after the murder of Mrs. Moore Baker and her infant daughter they would have been lynched. The spirit over the crime which has been manifested by some of the colored people may result in something more than the bitter feeling which at present exists.

Twelve years ago there was a race war at Franklin Park caused by the incitivities and gross lawlessness of the colored farm laborers. Since yesterday over a score of the old colored men have left their places fearing trouble.

Moore Baker, who avenged the murder of his wife and child by killing the two murderers, is still confined to his bed under a strong guard. He was delirious again last night. The doctors now say that it will be a wonder if he comes out of the affair in his right mind.

SAYS SHE DIDN'T.

Mrs. Lowe Claims She Never was the Wife of George Luckey.

Mrs. William E. Lowe of Scotch Plains, who was Miss Mary McMahon of Norwalk, Conn., is the defendant in an action brought by Thomas E. Lowe, hotel keeper of Morristown, before the Surrogate's Court of Union County.

Mrs. Lowe was married to William E. Lowe, formerly Bill Clerk of the New Jersey Senate, who died on January 1. She applied for letters of administration on his estate, which is said to be very valuable.

Her husband's brother, Thomas E. Lowe of Morristown, claims that the marriage was not legal, and produces reports to show that Miss McMahon was married to George Luckey in 1889, and that they had one child. A caveat was filed against granting the administration papers, and several hearings have been held before Herbert W. Knight, Master in Chancery.

Mrs. Lowe denies having married Luckey. The hearing has been adjourned to Union County.

—As the congregation from St. Joseph's Church was wending its way homeward last evening, considerable excitement was occasioned a number of them by a young man passing a girl backwards through the crowd as they were in front of Boyce's Hotel, on Somerset street. People were pushed in all directions.

QUEEN HAS NO REGRETS

She Expresses None In Announcing Gladstone's Retirement.

ROSEBERY FORMING HIS CABINET.

The New Premier Began Work on Sunday and Is Still Hard at It—Radicals Will Resent the Choosing of a Peer For the Place. Messages of Congratulation and Regret.

LONDON, March 5.—The manner in which the queen announces the retirement of Mr. Gladstone to the people will prove interesting to Americans. It is contained in the court circular and is written by a court official. Every word of this circular is generally submitted to the queen in advance. The announcement is dated Windsor castle, March 3, and begins thus: "The queen, accompanied by her royal highness, the Princess Beatrice, drove out yesterday afternoon."

Then follows a list of the arrivals at the castle, headed by the names of the children of the Duchess of Albany, Prince and Princess Henry of Battenberg, the Hon. Thomas F. Bayard, American ambassador to the Court of St. James, and the French ambassador, ending with the names of Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone. It then goes on to enumerate all those who attended her majesty's dinner, Mr. Gladstone's name coming first. Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone come last. This is followed by the information that the queen and Princess Beatrice went out Sunday morning, and then comes the fact that the queen consulted council at 1:30. Immediately following the announcement among the council, comes the announcement that the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone had an audience with the queen and tendered his resignation, which was graciously accepted by her majesty.

The Queen's Announcement.

It adds that the queen has summoned Earl Rosebery, K. G., secretary of state for foreign affairs, and offered him the post of first lord of the treasury by the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone, M. P., and that Earl Rosebery has accepted her majesty's offer. Mr. Gladstone's note is a letter to Earl Rosebery congratulating him upon his accession to the premiership. In his letter Mr. Gladstone promised to aid the new prime minister whenever his assistance was asked. It is understood that Earl Rosebery's communication to Sir William Vernon Harcourt has resulted in the latter consenting to retain his position as chancellor of the exchequer and to his accepting the government leadership in the house of commons.

Mr. Herbert Asquith, the home secretary, and Sir Henry Fowler, first lord of the admiralty, visited the new premier and remained for some time. Afterward Lord Rosebery called upon the Earl of Kimberley and offered to him the post of foreign secretary. He made vacant by his promotion to the position of prime minister. Sir William Vernon Harcourt had a long interview with Lord Rosebery. The new prime minister has appointed Mr. Munroe Ferguson his political private secretary.

Lord Rosebery is the recipient of many congratulatory letters and dispatches. Among those who telegraphed to him were the Prince and Princess of Wales. A large number of persons left their cards at Lord Rosebery's city residence, 38 Berkeley square.

Hundreds of letters and telegrams expressing regret because of his retirement from office were received by Mr. Gladstone. The ex-prime minister attended church twice. He looked remarkably well.

Mrs. Gladstone has not yet entirely recovered from her recent indisposition. A physician called twice at Downing street to attend Mrs. Gladstone. Mr. Gladstone was present to Mr. Gladstone an address in recognition of the great services that he has rendered to the Irish cause.

The speech from the throne proroguing parliament was signed by the queen. It is neither long nor significant. The speech is the last official document prepared by Mr. Gladstone. It briefly refers to the protracted and laborious character of the session. It is stated that Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone will go on Tuesday to Brighton and that they will spend Easter at Hawarden castle.

Rosebery's First Cabinet Meeting.

Prime Minister Rosebery held his first cabinet council at his residence. All the ministers were present except Mr. Asquith and Mr. Henry Fowler, the president of the local government board, who, however, will retain their offices. The council was in session for only a short time. Upon its conclusion Lord Rosebery sent a message to the queen, submitting. It is understood, the names of the members of the new cabinet. Lord Rosebery will be given an audience by the queen at Buckingham palace at 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The Irish Independent of Dublin, which is a Parnellite organ, today contains an article saying that as Mr. Gladstone has now retired it will be necessary that full and complete assurances be obtained from Lord Rosebery that the government's home rule policy shall be continued. It adds that only on condition that Lord Rosebery in the fullest sense adheres to this policy and gives guarantees that a home rule bill will be passed within a practicable period of time can the Parnellites continue to support the Liberal government. On this point, the paper declares, there must be no weakness or hesitation. Lord Rosebery must show his colors immediately.

Interviews with leading members of the house of commons show that while a section of the Radicals continue to strongly resent the selection of Lord Rosebery instead of Sir William Vernon Harcourt as Mr. Gladstone's successor there is a large preponderance of Liberals in favor loyally accepting Lord Rosebery. Mr. Henry Labouchere continues to lead the irreconcilables. He insists that they will soon find an opportunity to oppose, and move an amendment in the house of commons against the selection of Lord Rosebery as prime minister.

The Queen's Scant Courtesy.

The Chronicle says: "One of the most significant events of yesterday may possibly have escaped public attention. On that day the great steward of our empire places his resignation after 60 years of service in the royal archives at Windsor. That resignation was recorded by the queen in the court circular in the formal phrase habitual to the resignation of a prime minister. It was received with a few words of regret or thanks and far less of personal sorrow than was displayed when Lord Salisbury, a statesman who, compared with Mr. Gladstone, is a mere youngling in the great business of government, relinquished office after vainly attempting to secure Ireland. The queen notified the public of the fact of Lord Salisbury's resignation by stating that she accepted that resignation with much regret. The phrase was an extraordinary one. We are inclined to think that it was unprecedented in the queen's reign, if not in the whole Guelph period.

"Her majesty, we gather, does not view with regret the departure from her council of the mightiest of living Englishmen, the heroic figure of his age and the statesman of whom our children's children will speak when we are in the dust, and there would be, we suppose, reason above all others why the nation expected some touch of personal feeling from the queen when she bade farewell to her illustrious servant. His silence of all others has been the safeguard of the English monarchy and its preserver at once against its unwise friends and open foes. Again and again has Mr. Gladstone held the bridge against the Radicals when the smallest outwork of privilege or endowment attached to the royal house was attacked, and now he goes, this mightiest of all figures of the Victorian age, unthanked and dismissed with the phrase that covered the retreat of the feeblest of his predecessors."

TALMAGE WILL STAY.

Now That the Tabernacle Is Free From Debt He Will Not Resign.

BROOKLYN, March 5.—The formal announcement that Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage would remain as pastor of the Brooklyn Tabernacle was made at the morning service in the church by the pastor. He also said that during his absence in Australia and India this summer the pulpit will be filled by some of the most distinguished evangelical preachers in the United States and Europe. Dr. Talmage's letter to the congregation follows in part:

DEAR BRETHREN—Your urgent letter is at hand. I had fully resolved to resign my pastorate only because 19 years of Brooklyn pastorates will soon have passed, but because of the financial entanglement resulting from a series of disasters to the Tabernacle, Monday bank, insurance company or worldly institution. Now by the blessing of God on your magnificent liberality I am out of all embarrassment and I believe has seen the last crisis. Persuaded by what you say in your letter of yesterday, and by the Holy Spirit in my heart and after seeking divine direction, I now and here declare my intention to remain pastor.

What I have suffered at the anticipation of parting from this noble and devoted flock and from my beloved associates from this hour city, in whose affairs I have always been deeply interested, no one can estimate. And now with more fondness and affectionate expectation than I ever had at any previous point in my ministry I join you in a new campaign for God and the world's betterment. Yours, T. DEWITT TALMAGE.

Oswego's Municipal Fight.

OSWEGO, N. Y., March 5.—In all the 46 years that have elapsed since Oswego became a city there has been no such political tangle as that which voters will unravel tomorrow, when municipal officers will be elected. The mayoralty constitutes the storm center, and at the outset of the canvass there were four candidates, each struggling to win by a plurality over every. Here are the names and the factional complexion of each of the four men: W. J. Bulger, Cleveland Democrat; Michael McGowan, Hill Democrat; John D. Higgins, Platt Republican, and Frank Schilling, anti-Platt Republican. Schilling, however, has withdrawn.

No Crape on Old Glory.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., March 5.—The Lithuanians and Polanders of Luzerne county held a mass meeting here and condemned the Russian outrages recently perpetrated their countryman and coreligionists in a Russian town. There was a parade before the meeting, and the American flag, draped in mourning, was carried in the procession. Objection was raised to this, and at the request of the police authorities the emblem of grief was removed from Old Glory.

Hideous Cross on the Church Door.

ELLSWORTH, Me., March 5.—The whole city is in great excitement over an insult offered Rev. T. F. Butler, pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic church. When Father Butler went to the church to hold services, he found a hideous affair at the door. It was a cross covered with excreta, covered with tar and feathers and with a placard reading, "Butler's doctrine, heathenism, atheism and infidelism." A skull was at the top.

All Quiet at Eagle.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 5.—Affairs at Eagle and Montgomery are growing more complicated, though there has been no fresh violence of any kind. The trouble seems threatened with difficulty in executing the warrants obtained for the arrest of the miners engaged in the attack on Grant's miners Tuesday. The authorities fear that an attempt will be made to rescue the prisoners on their way to the county seat.

The Baker Funeral.

FRANKLIN PARK, N. J., March 5.—The final scenes in the Franklin Park tragedy were enacted when Mrs. Moore Baker and her little girl Gertrude, the murdered mother and daughter, were laid at rest. Services were conducted in the Dutch Reformed church. Hundreds of villagers and residents of the surrounding country gathered to witness the ceremonies.

Wilson Slightly Improved.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 5.—William G. Wilson, son of Congressman Wilson, passed through here on his way to Guadalajara, Mexico, to the bedside of his father. While here Mr. Wilson received a telegram informing him that his father's condition is slightly improved. He will be removed to the United States as soon as he is able to stand the journey.

Baron Wood Out With the Ice.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., March 5.—Heavy rains caused the Cedar river to rise between three and four feet within a few hours, carrying the ice out in the river. About 30 feet of the dam was carried out with the ice.

Only Church In Town Burned.

SOUTH HADLEY, Mass., March 5.—The Congregational church of this town, a fine brick structure costing $30,000 and the only church in town, was entirely destroyed by fire.

Heavy Rainstorm In Minnesota.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 5.—Minnesota was visited by one of the worst thunder and rainstorms ever known in this section at this time of the year.

The Britannia Wins a Race.

MARSEILLES, March 5.—The yacht Britannia, owned by the Prince of Wales, won a race for 2,000 metres on this port.

Lots of Rain and Wind.

OMAHA, March 5.—A small over Nebraska last night, heavy showers, accompanied by high winds.

TARIFF BILL NOT READY

Its Completion Is Now Promised For Tuesday Morning.

DULL WEEK AHEAD FOR THE HOUSE

The Senate Will Put In a Few More Days In Waiting For the Tariff Bill—The Opposing Combination Is Strong and Active. The Iron Schedule Uncertain.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—There will be a lull in the house for several weeks after the excitement that has existed there since the holidays. It is the intention of the house managers to push the consideration of the appropriation bills to the exclusion of everything else during the next few days.

Two days, probably three, will be taken to complete the consideration of the pension appropriation bill, which has been under discussion for the past two days. After it is disposed of the District of Columbia and consular and diplomatic bills will consume the balance of the week. When these are disposed of, the election cases will be taken up, and then the house will return to the other appropriation bills.

Senate to Wait For the Tariff Bill.

The senate has also little prospect to regard legislation during the past two or three weeks that the calendar has been changed only in a very slight degree, and the special orders under some time since, except in the case of a few speeches, are still undisposed of. The printing bill, the Reuben Hitch bill and the McCorkhill bill all hold their places, whence they can be called up in order, but they are subject to displacement if any question of more pressing importance should be presented, even though informally.

If the tariff bill should not be reported during the week, it is still likely to be referred and speeches made upon it. It is the subject which is uppermost in the minds of all senators and is liable to appear suddenly in some shape.

There probably will also be a few more speeches on the Hawaiian question. Senator Caffery has not yet made his speech on the subject, of which he gave notice some time since, and there are also other senators who probably will wish to be heard if opportunity offers. For the rest, and if no other general subject should present itself, the senate may be expected to take up the calendar and dispose of as many of the minor bills as possible.

The Democratic members of the senate committee on finance find it necessary to take at least one more day to consider the tariff bill before presenting it to the full committee. They had been very anxious to complete the bill Saturday, so as to be able to lay it before the full committee today, and they did not relax in this purpose until they had exhausted all possibility of their work, but they found that it had been necessary to give so much time to the senators who wanted to be heard on the various schedules that they had comparatively little time for consultation.

Consequently they were unable to send the bill to the printer, as they intended, this until today, when they promise to complete the bill in time to have it printed for presentation on Tuesday morning.

The committee have progressed so far and have heard the dissatisfied senators so fully that they feel confident now of being able to carry out this programme, although there is considerable detail work still to be done.

Opposition Is Active.

While some of the schedules of the bill have been agreed to for the time being by the committee, the work is not considered finally concluded upon any of them, and important changes are liable to be made up to the last moment before the meeting of the committee. For this reason members of the committee are unwilling to give out any of the rates fixed. They also refuse to confirm any figures published, and while they do not say that the rate of 40 cents per ton on iron ore and coal is erroneous they assert that whatever figures they may have agreed to on these articles are still subject to change, and that as it is with these articles so it is with the entire list.

The contest between the members of the committee and the discontented element has been very sharp. Senators Hill, Gorman, Brice, White, Caffery and Smith and possibly two or three other senators constitute a very compact organization, and they constitute an influence which the committee is finding it difficult to resist. These senators are in favor of material consultation. Still members of the committee do not believe that the opposition of the senators will go to the extent of opposing the bill by voting against it. Should it, as it has been from the start, the most disturbing element with which the committee will have to contend. There is no fact by far greater trouble in fixing a rate satisfactory to the refiners than to the planters.

The Republican members of the committee have changed their line of tactics, waiting for an explanation in committee of the changes made, and they will indict upon explicit and comprehensive statements.

Not to Become a Justice Today.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—Senator White has fully recovered from his recent indisposition, but he will not take the oath of office as justice of the supreme court today. Senator White said: "There is no necessity for my taking it once. I do not intend to resign until the evening of taking my place on the bench, when I shall telegraph my resignation to the governor. I shall defer taking the oath for several days."

Our Diplomats Come Cheap.

WASHINGTON, March 5.—The diplomatic and consular service of the United States costs the country but half a million a year. Attention will be called to this fact by Representative McCreary of Kentucky, the chairman of the house committee on foreign affairs, in his report on the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill, which will be presented to the house today.

Was Carnegie Swindled?

PITTSBURG, March 5.—A morning paper prints a story to the effect that the damages or fine laid on the Carnegie Steel company by the treasury department for certain poor steel plates furnished was the result of a conspiracy in which the victim was the company, and the conspirators were four former employes.

Dynamite Plot Discovered.

PROVIDENCE, March 5.—Fifty dynamite cartridges were found in the new Kent & Stanley building, with fuses attached in such a manner that when the engines started they would have exploded and wrecked the structure.

Steamboats Sunk by an Ice Gorge.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., March 5.—An ice gorge in the Missouri river gave way unexpectedly, and two steamboats were caught in it and sunk.

EDITOR BAILEY DEAD.

He Was Known to Fame as the Danbury News Man.

DANBURY, Conn., March 5.—James Montgomery Bailey, the famous Danbury News man and originator of American domestic humor, died suddenly at his home here. He had been ailing for two weeks with pneumonia and bronchitis, but his illness was not considered dangerous. The announcement of his death has cast a gloom over the city, as he was its most popular and beloved citizen.

Mr. Bailey was born at Albany on Sept. 26, 1841, moved to Danbury in 1860 and worked at the carpenter trade. At the outbreak of the war he enlisted in the Seventeenth Connecticut volunteers and served through the war. At the battle of Gettysburg he was captured and sent to Belle Isle prison for two months. After the war he brought out the Danbury Times and in 1870 bought out The Jeffersonian. This consolidation made the Danbury News. It was then that he began the humorous writings that made his paper and himself famous.

He published several books—"Life in Danbury in '73," the "Danbury News Man's Almanac," "Yes, All I Do It," "Mr. Phillips' Genesee," "The Danbury Boom" and "England Through a Back Window." In 1866 he married Miss Catherine Stewart, who survives him.

Although owner of one of the best paying newspaper plants in Connecticut, Mr. Bailey died a comparatively poor man. Outside of his expenses he gave all his income to charity. His love for dumb beasts was as marked as his charity.

MADE CROKER ANGRY.

He Says if Dunphy Makes Charges He Will Have Him Arrested.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 5.—Richard Croker, the Tammany chief, was very wrathy when a reporter showed him published dispatches stating that Congressman Dunphy, in his letter of resignation, arraigned him as the instigator, promoter, rewarder and upholder of fraudulent voting and election crimes in New York.

Mr. Croker, when asked for a statement in answer to Mr. Dunphy's charges, said: "If Dunphy made these charges against me, I will have him arrested. I never encouraged fraudulent voting, and if any one in New York violates the election laws Tammany Hall will prosecute them. I do not care to make any answer to Dunphy's charges until I have seen his letter. He had better be attending to his affairs in the Second district. If Dunphy thinks Tammany is going to places and losing strength, he will be taught differently this fall. I will meet all his charges then and do not care to further discuss the matter until I have seen Dunphy's letter." Hon. Bourke Cockran of New York will arrive here this week.

Whipped a Woman Twice.

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn., March 5.—Mrs. Ellen Beire attempted to assassinate G. O. Boyd, a colored lawyer of white reputation. Boyd had some trouble with the woman, visited her dressmaking establishment and administered a severe whipping. The woman was removed, and Boyd whipped her a second time. Securing a revolver, she fired at him twice as he was leaving her place, but missed him. Before she could carry out her threat of murder she was arrested.

Deadly Political Row.

KOSCIUSKO, Miss., March 5.—S. A. Jackson, a member of the state legislature and one of the best known Democratic politicians in the state, was shot and instantly killed, and Samuel Russell and William Sanders, two bystanders, were fatally wounded here by the Rev. W. P. Bailie, also a member of the legislature and one of the leaders of the Populist party in Mississippi. Russell died soon after, and Sanders cannot live. It was a political row.

Engineer Was Asleep.

WISAMAC, Ind., March 5.—A perishable freight train flying along at lightning speed crashed into the rear end of another freight at the Pan Handle crossing here. Bruce Ide, the engineer, was asleep. The engine left the track after crashing through the caboose and ran ten feet, turning a complete somersault. The engineer will die. Fifty freight cars were almost completely demolished.

Socialists on Boston Common.

BOSTON, March 5.—Several thousand people assembled upon Boston Common in response to an appeal from the leaders of the unemployed. Morrison I. Swift was the chairman, and speeches were made by Mrs. Harding, David Taylor, Herbert Casson, Mrs. Merryfield and Swift. Every speaker advocated the principles of state socialism.

Dull Week Ahead For Albany.

ALBANY, March 5.—The legislative week that opens tonight has no promise in it of anything of a startling nature, although there are pending some bills of general interest. The majority of the political measures are either in the hands of the governor or are laws upon the statute books.

A Mysterious Murder.

OMAHA, March 5.—Gould Still, night operator for the Fremont, Elkhorn and Missouri Valley railroad at Hay Springs, Neb., was shot and killed by some unknown person. If robbery was the object it was a failure, for not a cent was secured.

Smallpox Death in New Haven.

NEW HAVEN, March 5.—Joseph H. Johnson of Meriden, who was under treatment with smallpox at the Winchrop House on Friday, is dead.

GAVE A PASSION PLAY.

Startling Innovation In a Church on Long Island.

ACTED THE SACRED TRAGEDY.

An Audience of the Clergymen's Guild Pay Anthony Schmitt Represented Christ and Mary Reilly the Blessed Virgin—The Performance In Aid of a Catholic Church.

WESTFIELD, N. Y., March 3.—A representation of the passion, crucifixion, death, burial and resurrection of Christ was given in pantomime in St. Mary's hall here last night. About 300 spectators, mostly women and young girls, witnessed the production. Father T. A. Schumack of College Point and a number of other clergymen occupied front seats. The entertainment was intended as a benefit for Father Peter Dauffenbach, who has charge of that parish. He is expected home from the Holy Land shortly, and his parishioners, by way of a surprise, intend redecorating the church and purchase one of the pronoun.

Anthony Schmitt, who impersonated Christ, had charge of the production. He was assisted to some extent by the Sisters of St. Mary connected with the parish. The remainder of the cast was made up of young women from the choir and members of the church.

Miss Mary Kelly impersonated the Virgin Mary, Miss Nellie Downing took the part of Mary Magdalen, Miss Katie Murphy that of Veronica, Miss Annie Hoch that of St. John the Evangelist, and Miss Barbara Becker was one of the angels that watched at the tomb.

Scenes of the Play.

Every seat in the hall was occupied, and when the curtain rose on the first scene of Christ in the garden a deep hush pervaded the place. But the solemnity of the scenes soon were off, and spectators, anxious to obtain good views, stood on seats and looked over the heads of the gathering. A calcium light in the rear of the hall was used to throw colored lights on the different scenes.

The garden scene depicted Christ in the agonies of prayer, while asleep near him lay his disciples—Peter, Judas and John. It concluded with the presence of an angel, who hands a chalice to Christ.

The betrayal of Christ by Judas is presented in the next scene. Christ is surrounded away between soldiers, while Peter vainly tries to assist his master. Then followed the scene before Pilate and the scourging and crowning of Christ with thorns.

Christ's condemnation came next, and he was led forth by the throng. In the cross bearing scene Simon the cyrenean is burden a third time Simon of Cyrenea an to his assistance.

On the way Christ meets his mother and Veronica hands Jesus her veil, on which tradition says he left the imprint of his countenance.

The awful scene of the crucifixion was then produced. Schmitt, as Christ, was led in and divested of his garments down to the almost flesh tight suit of gauze he wore next to his skin.

The cross was lying prone, and he was bound to it in that position. The curtain fell and rose again in a few moments. In the interval the cross had been raised to an upright position with its clinging victim, who writhed in the throes of death.

The Death of Christ.

At the foot of the cross a tableau stood the mother of Jesus, Roman soldiers and others representing characters in the divine tragedy. Miniature earthquakes and peals of thunder were produced in the rear of the stage as Christ died.

The scenes that then followed close on each other were the taking of Christ down from the cross, the anointing of his body and the anointing of his wounds by Mary Magdalen, who, with her hair down her shoulders and a silver urn in each hand, reproduced that scene. The burial followed, with Nicodemus and Joseph among the throng that bore the body to the sepulcher.

With the ascension of Christ in the rear of the hall the audience was orderly throughout the entertainment. Twenty-five cents admission was charged, and although an attempt had been made to advertise the production persons living at considerable distances went to see it. There were spectators present from Astoria, Newtown, Long Island City, Jamaica and other places. It appears that the entertainment was conceived by Schmitt, who has seen the "Passion Play" performed in Europe. Those who took part in the performance had been rehearsing for about two weeks. It is not known whether an attempt will be made to repeat the play.

Big Ed Hennessy Caught.

DENVER, March 5.—Big Ed Hennessy, a notorious character who walked out of the courtroom in Chicago about a year ago when awaiting his turn to be sentenced, was arrested in this city. During the World's fair Hennessy, disguised, completely disguised as a countryman, was director of a bunko steering brigade.

Important Miner Workers' Convention.

PITTSBURG, March 5.—A joint convention of railroad and river coal miners of this district will be held here today, when the officers of the United Mine Workers of America will probably again be urged to call a general strike. This would affect between 80,000 and 100,000 miners.

A Short Strike.

NEW LONDON, March 5.—Eight freight handlers employed on the Central Vermont road's steamboat wharf here went on strike against a reduction of wages. They were called back, however, on a promise that old rates would be maintained.

Motormen on Strike.

CLEVELAND, March 5.—All the employees of the electric railways of Youngstown struck at noon on the charge of the engineer of the power house, who refused to accept a reduction in wages.

Disaster In a Mexican Mine.

ESCALON, Mexico, March 5.—Advices were received here that a premature explosion occurred in one of the mines of Sierra Mojada. Three of the miners were killed and several injured.

HOT SPRINGS, March 5.—Ed. Williams, the veteran baseball player, died at Mountain Valley, near this city.

ON TO WASHINGTON.

General Coxey's Army Will Be Composed Largely of Tramps.

TOPEKA, March 5.—There will be a big delegation from Kansas to join General Coxey when he starts on his grand march with the unemployed to Washington. Already the movement is taking root in several of the large manufacturing towns where many men are out of employment. The class that proposes to take the trip to Washington are generally tramps who have left the state of late. They preferred Lewelling's famous trains circular and who are not citizens of Kansas.

This element wants to organize and move in a body to Missouri river, so as to reach that place by the latter part of April. The leaders of the proposed march are opposed to walking. They say they can just as well ride.

They argue that if 40 or 50 go together in squads they can take possession of cars, and no train crew will be large enough to dislodge them.

They further believe that they have everything to gain and nothing to lose by joining the Ohio army in its march to the capital. They would be assured of something to eat, because they would travel in such numbers as to force compliance with their demands. A grand many organizations have been made to G. Vincent of Perry, O. T., who is organizing an excursion to go to Washington. Vincent is a prominent Populist and is figuring on running a train of 15 coaches through to Washington from Arkansas City.

AN INTERNATIONAL MATCH.

Miss Elverson's Engagement to the French Ambassador Announced.

PHILADELPHIA, March 5.—The engagement is announced of Miss Eleanor Louise Elverson of this city to M. Jules Pitzmotre, French ambassador to the United States. Miss Elverson is the only daughter of James Elverson, publisher of the Philadelphia Inquirer, Golden Days and Saturday Night.

The wedding will take place Tuesday in Easter week and will be a private affair, only members of the two families being present. The ceremony will be performed by Cardinal Gibbons.

The embassy has just taken new quarters on H street in Washington, and the ambassador will live in the style which European diplomatic etiquette requires of the position.

The Long Search at the Gaylord Mine.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., March 5.—It is three weeks today since the ill fated 13 men entered the Gaylord mine at Plymouth. The search for their bodies was commenced a few hours after the big cave-in took place. It was then predicted by the best judges that it would take at least three weeks before the rescuing party could reach the men, as they were known to be at work and where they met their death in all probability. The three weeks have expired, and still there is no trace of the missing ones. It is now generally believed that it will take at least eight days more before any of the bodies are recovered.

Wiman Engages a Canadian Lawyer.

MONTREAL, March 5.—James N. Greenshields, Q. C., of this city, one of Canada's best known criminal lawyers, has been retained by Erastus Wiman to assist in his defense at the coming trial of the forgery charges against him in New York. Mr. Greenshields has taken part in many of Canada's most noted criminal trials, one of these being the trial of Louis Riel, the instigator of the northwest rebellion, who was found guilty of high treason and executed.

White City on Fire Again.

CHICAGO, March 5.—Another attempt to destroy the World's fair buildings by fire was made and proved ineffectual only because of the timely appearance of a Columbian guard who turned in an alarm. The flames have screened the body of what he has been seen loitering about the place for the last two weeks, and the officers think they have in him one of an organized gang of men that is responsible for the numerous unaccountable fires of Jackson park.

Used a Bicycle to Catch a Thief.

BOSTON, March 5.—The novel sight of a policeman weighing nearly 250 pounds chasing a thief upon a bicycle was witnessed by hundreds of people returning from church on Sunday afternoon. The man's weight, he could not cover the ground quickly enough to make a capture, and therefore a man and a bicycle he borrowed in front of a house. Overtaking his man and succeeded in running his man to earth in Franklin street after a chase of fully a mile.

Georgetown's Murder Mystery.

GEORGETOWN, Mass., March 5.—The identity of the Georgetown victim is still an unsolved problem, and the body will have to be buried today. Mrs. Holcombe of Winchester, whose husband's name is on the back strap of the vest found upon the victim, states that she gave the vest to a tramp last November, as he was without that garment, and it was very cold.

French Viscount Arrested.

QUEBEC, March 5.—Viscount de Villeneuve, a French nobleman who recently made a stir in leading French society circles in Montreal, was arrested at the request of the French government on a charge of extensive forgeries alleged to have been committed in France in 1892.

Deaf Mute Won a Prize Fight.

CHICAGO, March 5.—Mike Rowan, a deaf mute from Ottawa, Ills., and Billy Ecker of this city fought to a finish. The men met in a 4-round fight with four ounce gloves. Ecker was knocked out in the third round. The fight was a desperate one.

WATCHUNG PARK PROPERTY!

Handsomely situated

BUILDING LOTS

now offered for sale.

This Property is in the heart of the recently opened residence section of the city, being within a few minutes' walk of the Central Railroad station.

The New Watchung Park, with its new streets and avenues, will be among the handsomest residence sections in this pretty suburban place.

Only High Grade Residences will be erected. The neighborhood will be restricted, making it as desirable as any in Plainfield.

All Modern Improvements will be in force by early Spring. The work of macadamizing the streets is now being pushed rapidly.

Electric Cars Pass the property. Electric light, gas and city water will be introduced as soon as the Spring months are passed.

Scores of Beautiful Homes now fronting on Sandford and Westervelt avenues have been located on the old Crescents' ball field.

Just as Property Has Been Jumped in Sandford and Westervelt avenues, so will they also increase rapidly in Watchung Park. Those who buy now will reap the benefit of an early investment.

The Lots Are About 125x150 feet in size, and the map of the property, printed in these columns every Wednesday and Saturday, will give the public necessary information as to their position.

For further information regarding prices and terms, large copies of the map, etc., address or call upon A. D. THOMPSON, 147 North avenue, opposite Railroad Station, Plainfield, N. J.

WOMAN AND HOME.

A CLEVER LITTLE WOMAN SHOWS A WAY TO WIN A MAN'S HEART.

That Fright "Thank You"—English Home Management—Helen Gould's Charities. The Love Story of Ellie—The Strain of School—Children Need Companions.

"I suppose," said a clever little woman, "that I got to go to the theater more than my womankind of my acquaintance, means a big count. You see, it's this way: One night Jack promised me to go to the play, and to dine as I accepted, for I dearly love the play. After the theater was over John was starving—no tonight for the restaurant. "No, John," said I firmly; "we can't afford it. The play was treat enough. Let's be sensible. We had a good dinner, and we are not starving."

"Oh, hang the expense!" said Mr. John. We might as well round off with a bit of supper." But I wouldn't. As John says, 'I stood pat.' We went on home, for when a man is hungry he doesn't think much of the virtue of economy. In fact, he said by my pigheadedness I'd spoiled all the evening, and he'd "be dog spitzified"—whatever that may mean—if he'd take me out again in a hurry. I kept my temper, as I was grateful for having seen so beautiful a play, and said nothing.

"Well, when we got home, John threw the bedroom door open with a bang, and there in the middle of the floor was my cooking stove, in its dainty a lunch as one could wish. We had had a leg of mutton for dinner, and I had shredded some of it, chopped up a couple of shallots fine and added two cold potatoes cut into dice, and stirred the whole with mayonnaise sauce after Catharine Cole's prize recipe. Then there were a few olives and some dainty slices of bread and butter, all on a white cloth, with tables drawn up, and as soon as we had lit, John was simply delighted. Since then he often asks me to go to the theater, for he says he can satisfy me for a supper that tastes better than any hot bird and cold bottle that he can get in a down town."

"What else can you have for those suppers?" inquired a curious wife, who had never had the very thought of playing hostess for her husband.

"Well, one night I made before starting —and I never can know what we are going to have—nice dish of oyster soup. I sent for 15 cents' worth of oysters and 5 cents' worth of milk. I took the juice of the oysters, scalded it, added the hot milk and finally plumped the oysters in. I had seasoned it with plenty of butter, pepper and salt. Then I poured it all into a yellow bowl and set it away. That night when we got home I doused it all into a saucepan and had it on the upper grate fire, put some broken crackers in the bowl and poured it over them. It made a tip top supper for four people, who, in going to the theater, would have had their palate ment with nothing. It has been long maintained by our foreign critics that the English language lacks flexibility, nice

...dence of meaning, the quality of expression, compared to other tongues. But after careful observation at home and abroad I am satisfied that the lack of expression is rather in the English speaker than in the language.

There are an infinite number of shades of which this little "Thank you" is susceptible, as any one about town knows. It may be uttered in such a way as to cause the blood to tingle with indignation. It can be said with such grace and sweetness that the recipient will carry the memory of it as the memory of some delicious perfume or beautiful picture or symphonies strain of music—all through the long day of business cares. For such a reward as this thousands of men have suffered uncomplainingly, have endured the tortures of the inquisition, have fought, bled and died upon the battlefield.

It would seem a very simple thing, but the graces and politeness are to have accurate knowledge of the character of the women of that time. As it is impossible for the fountain to rise higher than its source, so is it impossible for men to rise higher than their mothers, their sweethearts, wives and sisters.—New York Herald.

English Home Management.

An English periodical, Woman, gives, in an article to young housekeepers, a daily time table for the arrangement of the servants' duties in a household consisting of husband and wife, in which two servants are kept. A specimen is submitted:

6:40 a. m.—Light kitchen fire, fill kettles, etc. Brush up dining room and lay fire. Sweep hall, paths and steps.

7:30—Kitchen breakfast.

8—Clean grates and boots.

8:15—Prepare dining room breakfast.

8:45—Send up breakfast. Wash kitchen, wipe larder and sink.

9:30—Clear dining room breakfast. Wash up breakfast things.

10—Take orders for the day. Clean knives. 11 to 12—See table of special duties.

12 to 1 p. m.—Prepare luncheon for 1 o'clock.

1:30—Kitchen dinner.

2—Wash up. Tidy kitchen.

3:15 to 4:15—See table of special duties.

4:30—Kitchen tea.

5—Prepare for dinner.

7:30—Dish up dinner.

8—Wash up dinner dishes and all saucepans, etc., used in the preparation of dinner.

9—Kitchen supper.

10—Go to bed.

The "special duties" refer to sundry occupations, such as her own mending, cleaning servants' rooms, etc., to be done on different days.

Now, has the millennium come over in London, or is this only a case of boiling the cat? It would be the very exceptional American cook who would thus go through her day with one eye on the clock. The table is interesting besides as showing the difference in work in English and American households.

Helen Gould's Charities.

Miss Helen Gould, if she lives long enough, and if she does not marry and get a husband and family to spend her money, will go upon record as the most charitable woman in the world. As a young woman she is already earnest that title, and if there are any among the elder ones to compete with it, besides circumstances have favored those of their girls have grown great during the years they have been giving.

Miss Gould keeps no account of her gifts. But works secretly, as if afraid to let her right hand know what her left is doing. It is difficult to find out all the charities of a young woman who works so secretly. One knows of them only as they come accidentally to light—sometimes the little, sometimes the large—or are told by grateful persons who are benefited.

There is a story, but it comes from a good source, that Miss Gould is sometimes driven to economizing even with her $15,000,000 and her $3,000 a month. She gives away such colossal sums that occasionally she has to choose between this thing and that.

On one afternoon every week Miss Gould orders out her carriage and directs the driver to take her to a certain dry goods store, where she alights and buys flannels, dress goods, trimmed hats and hosiery and bed linen. On other days she orders supplies of simple household remedies, which are a necessity to do without, for wide distribution. These trips cost her many hundreds of dollars, for a very large sum is required to cover them.—New York Press.

The Love That Kills.

It is not enough that wives must feel that they have the lowest their husbands, writes Edward W. Bok in The Ladies' Home Journal. They should know it not be told of it. Thoughtlessness and a misunderstanding of the nature of women are at the bottom of all this unexpressed love. The love that kills. It should reach expression. It should be given voice and as often and as warmly as the heart dictates. A good wife can stand a tremendous quantity of love—all that any man can give her. The danger lies rather in not giving enough than in giving too much.

To be not an unmanly thing for a man to love his wife, although one might readily believe so from the way some men go about it. Neither is it sickly, maudlin nor sentimental for him to show it. But even if it were all these and more, what of it? Who has a prior claim to a husband's love, and who a better right to know it? What is it that men do for their wives that is at all an equivalent for what wives do for their husbands? Provide for them? That's a duty and nothing more. In some things it is well that we should go a little farther than the duty line. The more human it can remain lovers the better it will be for the wives of our land. It is the expressed love of a husband that makes a wife radiantly happy, and nothing else can take its place.

The Strain of School on American Girls.

Dr. Mitchell deliberately maintains that, for all the best purposes of female society, it would be better that American girls were not educated at all until they are 17 than that they were overwrought as they are at present. They study seven or eight hours a day when two or three would be sufficient to keep their intelligence in training, and all for what? To spend their after years on a sofa or in a sickroom and to be a burden instead of a help to those who are dearest to them.

It is a tremendous saying, from one speaking with authority, that as much domestic unhappiness is caused in America by nervousness among women as by drunkenness among men. Yet such is Dr. Weir Mitchell's verdict. He holds that every girl ought to be examined as to her nervous temperament when about to go to school, and at frequent intervals afterward, that lessons, exercise and whole some meals ought to be insisted upon, and that studies ought to be compulsorily diminished, or discontinued altogether, the moment the well known signs of overstrain appear.

If girls are maintained in normal nervous equilibrium until they are 17, they may study almost as hard as they please afterward without imperiling their woman's life. But let there be no mistake about it. Overwork and unsound food may keep from 8 or 9 to 17 mean ruin and wretchedness from 17 till early death.—McClure's Magazine.

Children Need Companions.

Any observing parent will testify that, on more than one occasion, his child has come to him with a new interest in a thought or theme, inspired by she words or example of a young companion, to the surprise of the parent—who had before sought in vain to excite an interest in that very direction. All that the parent had said on the subject had been of no value in comparison with that which had been said or done by the child's companion, as another self.

Again, there are few parents who have not found to their regret that their child has received lessons and impulses directly opposed to all the parental counsel and purposes through a brief and comparatively unnoticed companionship that ought to have been guarded against. And these are but illustrations of the instructive and swaying power of child companionship. Such a power as this ought not to be ignored or slighted by any parent who would do most and best for his child's wise training.—Sunday School Times.

Acting as an Occupation.

Mme. Jane Hading, that beautiful and conscientious artiste, does not believe in pursuing art for gain. She is not rich and never expects to be, although she puts a high market value on her talent and is indefatigable in her work. Annie Pixley was worth $240,000 when she died. She had been on the stage about 20 years. She not only made money, but she made good investments, lived well, supported an entire family, stepfather and husband included, educated half a dozen step-sisters and gave a great deal to the common cause—humanity. The first thing she did when success came was to study. She was a child when she went on the stage, and contact with the world enabled her to appreciate her defects. She took up English and etiquette first. She studied grammar, physiology and literature, and later music and French. Annie Pixley was a self made woman, and her life, if it is ever written, will show what a girl can do who has pluck and ambition.—Exchange.

Mantel Decoration.

For the decoration of a mantel the following scheme has been recommended: First cover the wood or marble with heavy tinfoil. Take light green and smilax and lay over the edge so that it drops about 18 inches. Trim this even at the ends with a pair of shears. Then several pans of thrifty lycopodium—the new golden variety is very handsome for the purpose—turn the plants out of the pots and place them on the tinfoil, which cover entirely. Fit the plants together so that there will be one solid bed of lycopodium. On this flowers are held in vases may be stood. The bed of moss alone is very effective. If sprinkled often, it will remain beautiful a long time. This is a very pretty way to

A Matter of MOONSHINE!

When people advertise bargains did you ever stop to think that the bargains they speak of may be for the seller and not for the buyer? Many of the great offerings are but a delusive mixture of moonshine, and it may do for once, but folks are not bankrupting after it for a steady diet.

HERE'S SOLID WORTH.

GINGHAMS, MUSLINS AND INDIGO PRINTS—No change in the prices Ginghams, 4½c., "Print of the Loom" and "Londale," 7c., Indigo Blue Prints, 5½c.

A SNAP—Men in New York said: "Here are 100 dozen Towels, will take so much for them." "Will give you so much, as we want to sell them for 9c.," said we. We got the lot, and they are yours for 9c. each.

BLUE MARGUERITE, 'TIS CALLED—If you want to see something nice, new and pretty, look in our House Furnishing show window, to-night. You will surely want it.

TURKISH TOWELS—Turks did not make them. Made over in the town of Philadelphia, and made to sell for 25c; but you buy them for 16c.

DRESS GOODS—If you want a good Dress for a little money, come and see us. Never have we offered such values. We are selling Black Dress Goods at special low prices, just to introduce our black goods department.

American Women.

Of all the gifts which mankind has lavished upon women, one of the most characteristic is adaptability. Few women in Europe possess in the same degree as the American woman the faculty of identifying themselves with their medium of changing country, climate and surroundings with so wonderful suppleness. More perfectly than others, she accommodates herself to circumstances while she preserves her individuality in a strange surrounding. Wherever we meet the American woman—and we meet her everywhere, in the ranks of the English peerage and of the highest European aristocracy as well as in more modest conditions—we are struck with that marvelous adaptability in which wise men see the signs of the superiority of a race or of a species.—Popular Science Monthly.

Sleeping Arrangements.

A French doctor says that we have been sleeping in the wrong position indefinitely. The pillow belongs properly under the feet and not under the head. To people who, under the head he low the brain is not properly "irrigated with blood."

When he goes on to show how the right habit may be gradually acquired, six weeks being a good limit for making the change without discomfort. Discard the pillow first for a few nights, then do without the bolster too. There will still be a slight rise in the mattress, which soon must be eliminated and a level position secured. Finally, put the pillow at the foot of the bed, and there you are.

One of his arguments is that if nature had intended the head to be raised in occupying a recumbent position the human body would have been differently formed.

Leather Caps Condemned.

For several seasons past there has been a rage among small boys for russet leather Tam O'Shanters. These caps are both English and everlasting. They come in black as well as brown leather, to match the leggings worn with kilts and little breeches, and come the latest. The combination is pretty enough, but the caps have been condemned by the medical profession and the professional nursery maid as injurious. Aside from a tendency to precipitate a race of bald headed babies, the head is heated to a degree to which no defense an organ on a child's brain should not be exposed. Life is hard enough for the modern man without aiming a leather Tam O'Shanter at the handicap his childhood.—New York Commercial.

Apple Meringue Pudding.

Two cupfuls of stewed apples—stewed evaporated apples will do—one-half cupful of sugar, 3 eggs, the yolks and whites separate, a teaspoonful bitter almond, a teaspoonful of cinnamon and nutmeg, mixed. If the apples are not hot, heat them, add sugar and spice and butter and the yolks of eggs slowly. Beat well and pour into a buttered baking dish. Bake in quick oven 10 minutes. Meanwhile beat the whites of the 3 eggs to a stiff froth, add 2 tablespoonfuls of sugar and beat again with egg beater, add teaspoonful of bitter almond, draw pudding to oven door, spread quickly with meringue, bake a delicate brown. Serve hot or cold with cream.—New York World.

Dignity and Pleasure of Work.

Unless a woman has a family to rear or property enough to make her independent the power of earning a livelihood is essential to her dignity. If she is making a home and rearing children, she is doing the noblest kind of work. To think for one moment that she is being supported does her position grant injustice. But to the childless or homeless women, of whatever age, a life of inactivity brings melancholy, discontent and premature decay. There is nothing, after disease, disgrace and hopeless poverty, so fatal to the enjoyment of life as a want of occupation for the lack of it worthy outlet for the faculties.—Detroit News.

Queer Mourning.

Some people have queer ideas about wearing mourning. When crape is worn, there should not be a suspicion of any trimming about the dress, except folds of the same material or crape. To use cut jet is atrocious, and even dull jet is in bad taste. A recent widow, done up in yards of crape and "bombazine," within shelf crease yet in it, stuck to her diamonds, wearing two carat stones in her ears and five of the same kind at her throat. Through the folds of her enveloping veil they shone like glow worms. Grief like that is a shrieking sham.—New York Telegram.

Personal Neatness Is Captivating.

There is a personal cleanliness that, with taste in dress and grace of manner, rivals and often outshines beauty. Trifles, like glossy hair, white teeth, well kept hands, a smooth skin, neatness of boots, sweet breath, fresh linen and spotless garments, go a long way toward making up the sum of personal attractiveness. All clean people are charming, but charming people are never more charming than when they are radiant with good grooming. It is some sense, but a great deal of trouble, to be habitually and exquisitely neat. It pays, though, immensely.—Health Journal.

The crown princess of Roumania inherits the taste of her grandmother, the late empress of Russia, for perfumes, bottles. She already possesses a large collection of these articles, though it does not yet represent the value of that left by her ancestor—$25,000.

To cleanse glass bottles that have held oil, place ashes in each bottle and immerse in cold water; then heat the water gradually until it boils. After boiling an hour let them remain till cold. Then wash the bottles in soapsuds and rinse in clear water.

Dip the clothes brush in the yolk of an egg, so that the bristles are quite wetted. Allow it to dry and then use. This treatment has, it is said, the effect to make the brushing especially effective.

To clean silk, sponge it with equal parts of black tea and vinegar. Shake until nearly dry and then press with an iron that is half hot.

Gray is a solid, cheerless color that no woman should ever wear unless she has rosy cheeks on her face or is going to her death.

Milk in boiling always forms a peculiar acid, so a pinch of soda should be added when beginning to cook.

Boston has so many women's clubs that their notices fill three columns of short paragraphs.

Identity.

The great chandeliers shed a blaze of glory over fair women and brave men. Soft music and the perfume of rare flowers pleased the senses.

It was a function.

Two women had entered the room unnoticed.

The tall creature with a thin nose bent low her head and whispered to the fat vision with a double chin:

"Show me the man you love so distractedly."

A pair of baby blue eyes scanned the guests eagerly.

"There he is. The tall man by the mantel."

Two haughty lips parted with a gasp of astonishment.

"Why, I had always heard that your fiance is short."

Two cheeks of damask flushed faintly.

"He is."

The music rose in riotous cadence, and presently the dance began.—Detroit News-Tribune.

CITY COMMON COUNCIL.

THE REGULAR MEETING FOR MARCH.

Petitions Presented.—Smalley Bros. Given the Contract for Crushed Stone and Mr. J. A. Thickstun's Bid Accepted for Stone Crosswalks.—Other Business.

The City Common Council met in regular session last night. President Sea, and Councilmen Bird, Dumont, Erickson, Fisk, Frazee, Frost, Gioss, Millington, Stockton and Woodhull were present.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Petitions were read for crosswalks at Second and Richmond streets; East Third and Washington streets; East Fifth and Sycamore streets. The petitions were referred to the Police Committee. The Plainfield Beef Company asked for permission to build an extension to their building on East Third street. Referred to the Committee on Fire and Buildings.

Loomis and Rice petitioned for permission to move a two-story frame building from East Second street to the corner of East Second and Church streets. Referred to the Committee on Fire and Buildings with power.

The petition of Mr. Charles Giese for permission to erect two two-story frame dwellings on Elm place, was referred to the Committee on Fire and Buildings.

Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., petitioned Council to appropriate the sum of $100 to be used by the Post in the observance of Decoration Day. The petition was referred to the Finance Committee.

Mr. J. H. Boutty petitioned Council for the placing of a fire hydrant at the corner of Plainfield and Sherman avenues. Referred to the Committee on Fire, Water and Buildings.

A communication was received from Mayor Gilbert appointing Messrs. Henry B. Pugh, William W. Robinson and Dennis Carney special policemen.

The monthly reports of the Collector of Taxes and the City Treasurer were read and filed.

Mr. Dumont, of the Finance Committee, reported that during the past month notes amounting to $9,000 had been paid.

He also reported back the petition of Winfield Scott Post for an appropriation of $100 for Decoration Day expenses with a recommendation that in view of the financial depression of the city the committee did not feel that the city could afford to make an appropriation.

Mr. Frazee thought that if an appropriation of $100 could not be made that the city should give some amount, say $50.

Mr. Dumont stated that he did not think they had a right to make any appropriation with the city in its present shape. "If the debts were paid," he said, "there would not be a dollar of city money."

The recommendation offered by Mr. Dumont was adopted.

A resolution, offered by Mr. Dumont was adopted, authorizing the City Judge to issue warrants to Delinquent Tax Collector Nash to arrest delinquent tax payers.

Mr. Dumont, of the Finance Committee, requested that the chairman of each committee furnish him with a statement of the amount of money needed by each committee for the year.

"The Magic City" at White's dry goods store, No. 1, 3c.

Mr. Fisk, of the Street Committee, reported that bids for the laying of crosswalks had been received by the committee from J. A. Thickstun, Joseph T. Vail and Mr. Nevius. As Mr. Thickstun was the lowest bidder the contract was given to him. His prices were: For two foot walk 35 cents per foot and for double crosswalks 20 cents per lineal foot.

A. I. and N. B. Smalley received the contract for furnishing crushed stone to the city for the coming year at the following prices: No. 2½, 40 cents; No. 1½, 50 cents; and dust $1.

Mr. Fisk reported that only one bid had been received for the macadamizing of Grand avenue from Front to Fourth streets, and that was from Smalley Bros., agreeing to do the work for $728. As this exceeded the amount it was proposed to expend on this work, the matter was laid on the table until the Street Commissioner could go over it and estimate the cost.

Several bids were received from Hose Companies agreeing to furnish 2,000 feet of hose to the city at many prices. The bids were referred to the Committee on Fire, Water and Buildings.

An ordinance was presented by Mr. Fisk amending the ordinance relating to the granting of licenses by the city to sell liquor. The ordinance was passed on its first and second readings and ordered engrossed and advertised.

Mr. Dumont referred back the bonds of Delinquent Tax Collector Nash and Street Commissioner Meeker, and they were ordered recorded.

Council then adjourned for two weeks.

A HARD FIRE TO FIGHT.

Between the Walls of a Madison Avenue House—That Balky Truck Horse Causes Serious Delay.

Between five and six o'clock yesterday afternoon a house on Madison avenue occupied by a family named Adams was discovered to be on fire.

The fire department turned out in response to an alarm, and after a hard fight succeeded in extinguishing the flames.

The fire was a hard one to get at as it was in between the walls.

It is thought it started from a defective flue.

The damage to the building is estimated at about $200. The goods were also damaged to a considerable extent, but $300 will probably cover the loss.

The black horse used to the Hook and Ladder truck again delayed the truck by balking.

Mr. Rickerts' team had to be secured to draw the truck to the fire. Before the truck arrived, in consequence of the balky horse's capers, ladders had to be procured from Spicer and Hubbard's mill.

MR. H. O. HANCE ACCEPTS

HE AGREES TO RUN FOR MAYOR ON THE DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

But the Time for Filing His Acceptance Has Passed, and he Cannot Legally Run.

Samuel St. J. McCutcheon declined to accept the nomination of mayor of the borough, as stated in yesterday's News. His letter of declination to the committee was as follows:

NORTH PLAINFIELD, March 1, 1894.

Mr. Wm. L. Saunders and others, Committee:

GENTLEMEN:—You have been kind enough to inform me that I have received the nomination for Mayor of North Plainfield by the forces of Democratic voters of the Borough.

While I do offer no formal answer to conceal the gratification I feel at being so honored,

I have given the matter the careful consideration it demands and conclude that it is my duty to decline the nomination.

I am already engaged in responsible public service in a department of municipal life as important as any other; in it, my two years experience has fitted me, better perhaps than for the duties of the position; I have two years of an unexpired term before me, and I should be doing less than my duty, if I retired, now, from as office to which I have been appointed.

S. St. J. McCUTCHEON.

Lawyer H. O Hance, of Grandview avenue, last night, after much persuasion and pleading consented to accept the nomination.

Mr. Hance cannot legally run for the office, as the law states that a candidate's acceptance must be filed with the clerk of the municipality eight days before the day of election. As Mr. Hance did not accept the nomination until last night the time for filing his acceptance had passed, and it is now too late.

The portion of the law covering the subject may be found on page 38 of the supplement to the Ballot Reform Law, and is as follows:

* * * all other certificates and petitions shall be filed with the Clerks of the respective municipalities wherein the candidates nominated are to be chosen, at least eight days before the election whereat they are to be voted for * * * *

LUNCH BOX SOCIABLE.

A Pleasant Time Enjoyed by the Ladies of the Relief Corps.

The young ladies of the Woman's Relief Corps held a lunch box sociable in Winfield Scott Post rooms last night. The sociable was gotten up for the purpose of giving the ladies of the corps a sociable time, after the hard work of preparing for the Second New Jersey Cavalry Association re-union, which the ladies looked after so well.

Mrs. Leland, the Misses Graves, the Misses Westphal, and Mrs Nash comprised the Committee of Arrangements. Mrs. Cox and Mrs. Radin rendered great assistance to the committee.

In the contest hunt Frank Jones won the prize, a sugar sifter. He found 68 peanuts.

Much amusement was occasioned by a donkey party. Mrs. Edward Morse received first prize, a teapot, and Mr. W. B. Correll the booby prize, a "jumping jack."

Then lunch boxes were auctioned off. Each box contained a card bearing the name of the lady who prepared it, and the purchaser had to eat lunch with the one who had prepared it.

THE NETHERWOOD ROUTE.

The Streets it is Proposed to Run the Street Railway on.

Messrs. Moffett & Runyon, for the Plainfield Street Railway Company have been at work for some time securing the consents of a majority of the property owners along the proposed extension of the street railway to Netherwood.

The route proposed is as follows: Watchung avenue to Fifth street, to Richmond street, to Putnam avenue, to Woodland avenue, to De Grande avenue, to Belvidere avenue.

All the necessary signers have been secured for all the route with the exception of about 250 feet on Fifth street. As soon as this is secured a franchise will be asked for.

Dance of the Aetna Social Club.

The Aetna Social Club gave its first social dance in Red Men's Hall last night. About fifty couples were present. The committee of arrangements comprised Messrs. C. Ball, C. A. Stutevant and F. Crandell.

The six months' interest to March 11th on the Bryant building of Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, amounting to $280 75, was ordered paid. The report of Collector Johnson of taxes, received, showing collection for February amounting to $990.88 was read and accepted.

The Secretary reported in hand first for February of the premises corner Sixth street and Central avenue. It was ordered deposited in the bank.

Superintendent of Schools Maxson stated that the birds in the museum, High School, were being injured by an insect that caused the feathers to drop out, and suggested that they be properly treated to save them. He was authorized to have the work done at 25 expense not exceeding $10.

The opinion of Mr. Craig A. Marsh was read in regard to the responsibility of the Board in the loss of the coat that was recently stolen from the cloak room.

He held that the Board cannot be held responsible nor have they the right to use any school monies to replace articles stolen from the schools.

The question of appointment of a special truant officer was brought up by a communication received from Mr. Riley and after thorough discussion, and referring to the school laws on this subject, the matter was left with the Committee on Teachers, with power.

Superintendent of Schools Maxson made a report of the crowded condition of the lowest grade class rooms at the Washington and Franklin school, and suggested that the classes be divided, one half to attend in the forenoon and one half in the afternoon. He was authorized to make the changes he had suggested.

The question of building a High school was brought up, and thoroughly discussed. A resolution was passed empowering the president of the Board to appoint a committee of three to look into the matter and obtain plans for such a building.

The president appointed as such committee Messrs. Leonard N. Lovell, E. L. Fisch and F. C. Lounsbury.

The Committee on printing the annual report in book form reported progress.

The Committee on Resolutions adopted by the Board on the death of George H. Babcock, reported that the same had been executed and presented them at the meeting for examination by the Board. The committee was discharged after having presented them to Mrs. Babcock. Adjourned.

Some time during last night thieves effected an entrance into Charles Sohr's barber shop, on Watchung avenue through a rear window.

Three razors, two boxes of cigars and $1.50 in money were taken.

Resolution of Condolence.

At a regular meeting of Columbian Lodge, No. 53, A. O. U. W., held March 2 the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Whereas, It has pleased the Almighty Creator and Preserver of the universe, in His all-wise and unerring providence to transform from mortality to immortality, our beloved brother, Charles J. Leggett.

Resolved, That we brothers of Columbia Lodge, No. 53, A. O. U. W., bow in submission to the divine will, and while we deplore the untimely end of our worthy brother, one whose benevolence, amiability and kindness of heart Christian character had endeared him to us all.

Resolved, That we tender our sincere sympathy to his bereaved family and the assurance of our (material) interest in their welfare, trusting that in this great trial they will receive the consolation that comes from on high, which alone can enable us to say "Thy will, not mine, be done."

Resolved, That these resolutions be entered upon the minutes of the regular meeting of this lodge, and a copy presented to the family of our departed brother.

A Matter of MOONSHINE!

When people advertise bargains did you ever stop to think that the bargains they speak of may be for the seller and not for the buyer? Many of the great offerers are but a delusive mixture of moonshine, and it may do for once, but folks are not bamboozling after it for a steady diet.

Suing for 25 Cents.

The summons in a civil suit was served yesterday on Constable William Walters of Perth Amboy to recover the sum of 25 cents.

The plaintiff is George Comings, a livery stable man, who was impaneled on a jury on Saturday by the Constable. After the jury was discharged and the fees paid Cumings says that Constable Walters gave him a medal instead of the regulation 25 cents prescribed by law. Walters denied giving Cumings the medal, and suit was begun by the latter to obtain his 25 cents from the constable.

While riding on the top of a freight car on the Pennsylvania Railroad yesterday, John Woesner, a brakeman, was struck on the head by the spout of a water tank, knocked from the car and injured so badly by the car wheels that he died in a few hours in St. Michael's Hospital.

Postmaster Dreher of Chatham, who was found guilty of selling liquor without a license in his drug store, was this morning fined $50 and costs for violating the liquor law. Dreher was appointed postmaster of Chatham by President Cleveland on Jan. 14.

Chancellor McGill in Jersey City referred yesterday to Vice-Chancellor Pitney the divorce suit instituted by Albin E. Berry against his wife Annie. Berry is an official in Woodbridge and names D. I. Carpenter of that place as co-respondent.

Katherine Haas of 520 Springfield avenue, Newark, was badly burned yesterday by coal oil which dropped from a stove and set fire to her clothing. There is a slight chance of her recovery.

CORRESPONDENCE.

West Second Street Mud.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—If the members of the City Council would take a walk on West Second street from New street to Liberty street, perhaps they would feel like reconsidering their vote to have no more streets macadamized. Last Summer the street was graded. Then the dressing of crushed stone was carted away, leaving only the mud. In a street where there is so much travel the authorities ought to give at least as good a road as we had last year.

A RESIDENT.

The Council does not intend to spend any more money on the streets this year than is absolutely necessary, in order not to have to undo the work in case it is decided to go ahead with the building of a system of sewerage. Of course it would not be wise to macadamize a street only to tear it all up again for sewer pipes. Better lay the latter first. There has certainly been a great deal of money wasted on the streets in years gone, and very little to show for it.—[Ed.]

Believes in the Ticket.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—The Republicans of the borough displayed their good judgment when they selected such men as Needham, Peck, Valiant and Lounsberry, to represent them in the Council. Not one of these men is in any way connected with clique, faction or ring that the enemy may be said to contain. They stand as honest, upright citizens, with only one aim in view, and that is, when elected, by the people, irrespective of party, to work for the welfare of the borough of North Plainfield, the place they feel proud to call their home.

OUR BABY COUSIN.

Have you seen our baby cousin?
Don't you think she looks a pet?
Can you guess her name, I wonder—
Is she May, or Margaret?

Is she Dorothy, or Daisy,
Winifred, or Kate, or Jess?
Never mind, dears, I will tell you—
For I see you cannot guess.

Little baby's name is Gladys,
And she's quite a pet of ours.
Here comes Ethel, bringing baby
Such a lovely bunch of flowers.

Sweet it is to take dear dolly
For an airing in the sun;
But our baby cousin's dearer
Than our dollies every one!

Hints for Boys.

A gentleman advertised for a boy to assist him in his office, and nearly fifty applicants presented themselves before him. Out of the whole number he selected one and discharged the rest.

"I should like to know," said a friend, "on what ground you selected that boy, without even a single recommendation?"

"You are mistaken," said the gentleman; "he has a great many. He wiped his feet when he came in, and closed the door after him, showing that he was careful; gave up his seat to that lame old man, showing that he was kind and thoughtful; he took off his cap when he came in, and answered my questions promptly and respectfully, showing that he was polite and gentlemanly; he picked up a book, which I had purposely laid upon the floor, and replaced it on the table, while all the rest stepped over it or shoved it aside; and he waited quietly for his turn, instead of pushing or crowding, showing that he was honest and orderly. When I talked with him I noticed that his clothes were carefully brushed, his hair in nice order, and his teeth as white as milk; and when he wrote his name I noticed that his fingernails were clean, instead of being tipped with jet, like that handsome little fellow's in the blue jacket. Don't you call those things letters of recommendation? Why, I would give more for what I can tell about a boy by using my eyes ten minutes than all the letters of recommendation he can give me."

Lullaby.

Little white butterflies close their wings—
Lullaby-baby-bye!
Out in the meadow the cricket sings—
Lullaby-baby-bye!
Beyond the far-off hills of brown
The crescent moon has climbed down;
Close, sleepy little eyes of brown—
Lullaby-baby-bye!

Little white stars from the dark'ning blue—
Lullaby-baby-bye!
On ladders of silver come down to you—
Lullaby-baby-bye!
The wind in the tree-tops softly sighs;
The moon flowers open in mute surprise;
But closed are the curtains of baby's eyes—
Lullaby-baby-bye!

TARIFF COMPLICATIONS

Finance Committee Finds the Situation Very Complex.

THE BILL ONCE MORE DELAYED.

Opposing Senators Have Been Partly Placated by Concessions, but the Sugar Men Are Hard to Suit.—Debate on the Pension Appropriation Bill in the House.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The Wilson tariff bill has been the subject of an earnest consultation among the senators. It has reached a certain stage of completeness, and yet, like a complicated piece of machinery, it may be thrown out of gear by one single article or wheel. In the tariff bill that article is sugar, and it was against this that if a definite agreement could be reached on this article it would then be possible to agree upon everything else, and the bill could be reported without delay.

It is understood that by mutual concessions and frequent consultations the democratic members of the finance committee and the members of the finance committee and the objecting senators have found a middle ground, they yet remains the matter of detail and the difficulties surrounding an agreement upon this are the greatest that the tariff makers have to contend with. The democratic members have a plan which does not meet with favor by the refiners. The plan of the refiners is objectionable to the Louisiana senators. A suggestion has been made that an ad valorem tax be laid, and the refiners have said to the committee that this would afford them no protection. Some senators, looking toward compromise, have said that if an ad valorem rate is not just to refiners a differential one be made in their favor. This is strenuously resisted by those who claim that an ad valorem rate would afford them a just protection, as the higher price of the refined sugar would necessitate a greater tax when imported than the raw sugars.

Like a wheel within a wheel, it appears also that the proposition for an increased tax on whisky is mixed up with the proposed duty on sugar.

If the latter is agreed to, the necessity for an increased whisky tax disappears. For this reason the democratic leaders insisting upon increases in the whisky tax are not favorable to a sugar tax.

One of the senators who was openly opposed to the Wilson bill as it was amended by the senate subcommittee and who was active in the caucus said that the outcome was a matter of considerable doubt.

Situation Is Delicate.

"Had the bill made equal reductions," he said, "and had no attempt been made to give some manufacturing interests an advantage, we could not complain. But when it was proposed to protect the Louisiana sugar men we could not sit still and see interests in our states suffer. This led to the caucus, and it was there shown how unjust it would be to make the bill protective in one locality alone. It was that the concessions which have been made will be agreed to and that the treasury department will find them satisfactory, and yet use little fault may result in undoing all that has been done and the Wilson bill be reported very much in the form it came over."

"Then there would be a fight in the senate?"

"Yes, and the biggest that has occurred for years. But the whole matter is one of a delicate sense that a rejection by the senate of one of the points in dispute might kick it all over. Besides the house may also kick over what the senate does. We hope, however, that we are going to reach an adjustment which will settle the matter."

It is understood that the committee had also been giving attention to the tobacco schedule in the internal revenue bill during the past few days, and that the internal revenue commissioner was before them to make suggestions concerning rates and the method of collecting this as well as other taxes in this part of the bill.

The committee is having trouble to satisfy the manufacturers with the rate of this tax, as they are urging that if there is to be an increase it should be placed at 12 cents, because their machinery, which is expensive, is made to produce packages corresponding with the present 8 cent tax.

It is stated that the committee has increased this tax to 10 cents.

Senators Jones, McPherson and Vest continued their work on the Wilson bill at the capitol until late last night, but did not get the bill in shape to suit them and stopped with the intention of resuming the work this morning. They announced at the conclusion of the meeting that the bill would not be in shape to be reported to the full committee today. It has been found that some of the amendments made are not consistent with the main portions of the bill, and many corrections have been found necessary at the last hour. This work, time consuming much of the time of the committee, as well as that which it is necessary to give to the fixing of rates on the disputed items.

In House and Senate.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The senate held a short session, and but little business of importance was transacted. A brief debate on silver was precipitated by the intention expressed by the vice president to refer the Hiscad seigniorage bill, which had just been received from the house, to the finance committee.

Mr. Stewart of Nevada opposed this disposition of the bill and asked that it be allowed to lie on the table subject to being called up at any time. This was finally ordered. Mr. Stewart at the same time offered a free silver amendment to the bill.

The only other event of interest was the offering by Mr. Morgan of a resolution looking to the appointment of a tariff commission, which he offered as an amendment to the tariff bill. A number of bills of minor importance were passed. The McFarlane bill to relieve Ozora Stranahan, dar, but went over on objection from Mr. Morrill.

The senate spent about an hour in executive session, a part of which time was consumed in discussing the fitness of George Treadell to be commissioner of the District of Columbia. His connection with the trolley railroad system of this city was made the basis of some criticism of the appointment, but he was confirmed without division.

Several of the Illinois nominations were also confirmed, the only one of the more important which was not acted upon being that of D. P. Phelps to be subtreasurer of Chicago. It is understood that Mr. Phelps desires time for the arrangement of his private business affairs before assuming his nomination has not yet been considered.

The debate on the pension appropriation bill continued all day in the house, and at times considerable spirit was displayed. The principal speakers were Messrs. Dolliver, Hepburn, Enloe and Cannon. It is expected that the debate will be concluded today.

War Claim Denied.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The court of claims rendered a decision on the claim of Charles H. Armstrong and 158 others for $75,308. The decision was against the claimants. It appears from the record in the case that the claim was for expenses incurred and paid for services and labor furnished in 1863 in fortifying the city of Pittsburg against the threatened attack of General Lee's army on its Gettysburg campaign. It is alleged by the claimants that the labor furnished at that time was at the urgent request of General Brooks, who was then in command of the Department of the Monongahela, and that full compensation was promised by him. Word had come to General Brooks from the authorities in Washington that Lee's army was moving north toward Pittsburg, and at the same time came an order to put the city in a state of defense.

A Miss Riverson's Engagement.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The announcement of the betrothal of Miss Eleanor Lonise Riverson of Philadelphia to M. Jules Cambon, the distinguished statesman and plenipotentiary to this country from France, was received in official, diplomatic and fashionable circles as an event of international interest. No announcement of similar import which has transpired in Washington polite life since the announcement of the engagement of Miss Frances Folsom of New York to President Cleveland has been so favorably received. The bride-elect is of the highest type of young American womanhood, for she is not only beautiful, but rarely gifted.

Aluminium Boats For the Navy.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The plan to use aluminium boats in the Wellman arctic expedition has attracted considerable attention in this city. Superintendent Kimball of the life saving service is much interested in these boats, and the navy department is considering the possibility of boats of this material becoming valuable additions to the equipment of the new men-of-war.

Breckinridge-Pollard Trial.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Next Thursday morning has been the date fixed upon for the beginning of the suit brought against Representative W. C. P. Breckinridge of Kentucky by Madeleine V. Pollard for breach of promise and seduction. The case will be tried before Judge Bradley of the circuit court.

Fourth Class Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—The fourth class postmasters appointed were:

Connecticut—Torrington, H. J. Hamilston. New Jersey—Black Hills, C. H. Clayton.
New York—Green Ridge, William Moore; Rector, Mrs. Addie Sheldon; Weltonville, F. M. Graves.
Pennsylvania—Holmes, C. W. Hill.

Three Girls Insane.

SANBORN, N. Y., March 6.—The three youngest daughters of Joseph Sherk, a highly respected citizen of this place, were all taken violently insane Saturday morning and have continued so to this time. The young women were found naked and raving insanely in a piece of woods. The cause of their mania is unknown.

Drunk and Loaded With Dynamite.

LAWRENCE, Mass., March 6.—Thomas Downs, a farmer belonging in West Roxford, created a stampede in police headquarters here when he was brought in drunk. When he was searched, half a dozen large dynamite cartridges were found in his pockets.

To Insure Against Strikes.

PROVIDENCE, March 6.—A very novel insurance scheme has just been inaugurated in connection with the Industrial alliance at Olneyville. Each member contributes anywhere from 5 to 25 cents a week, and this insures a loss from loss in case of fire, breakage or strike.

Baseball Season Begun.

PHILADELPHIA, March 6.—The first outdoor game of baseball of the season was played between two nines made up of the candidates for the Philadelphia Pennsylvania baseball team. Five innings were played, the 'varsity team winning by a score of 7 to 5.

Connecticut Farmer Shot.

NEW LONDON, Conn., March 6.—Ezekiel C. Turner, a farmer residing in North Stonington, was shot and mortally wounded by Michael McGowan, who, with two others, was refused a drink of cider by Turner.

Mr. Sweeney Is Deputy Collector.

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., March 6.—M. B. Sweeney of this place received notification of his appointment by Internal Revenue Collector Wilkins, to be deputy collector of the 30th district, comprising the northern New York district to be deputy collector.

An Expensive Political Bonfire.

PORTLAND, Me., March 6.—Fire at Cape Elizabeth burned two buildings and destroyed $10,000 worth of property. The fire started from a bonfire in the street celebrating the Republican victory.

Mexican War Veteran Dead.

LAUREL, Del., March 6.—Captain Jacob Owens, a veteran of the Mexican war, who is said to have fired the last gun in the battle of Vera Cruz, died at his home in Bethel.

Robertson on Trial.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., March 6.—The trial of Daniel M. Robertson for the murder of his wife, whom he killed in September last, began in the superior court here.

Hanged Himself In His Cell.

SYRACUSE, March 6.—A convict named Jesse Wade committed suicide in Auburn state prison by hanging himself by a silk handkerchief from his cell door.

Unsuccessful Burglars.

KINGSTON, N. Y., March 6.—An unsuccessful attempt was made to rob the post-office at Clintondale, Ulster county.

The Deadly Electric Car.

SCRANTON, Pa., March 6.—Willis Loftus, the 4-year-old son of Patrick Loftus of this city, was killed by an electric car.

Smallpox In New York State.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., March 6.—There are 20 cases of smallpox at Red Hook, this county.

There's nothing SO GOOD as Cottolene

The new vegetable shortening. Wherever introduced, it drives lard from the kitchen, and indigestion from the household. It has been tried by every test, and has met every requirement. It has as much superior to lard as the electric light is to the tallow-dip. The only question now is, will you give your family the benefits which its use bestows?

There's nothing LIKE Cottolene

In composition, in healthfulness, in flavor, or in economy. Its success has called out a lot of imitations and counterfeits made for the sole purpose of selling in the place and on the merits of Cottolene. Avoid them all. They are made to sell and they are a sell. Get the genuine COTTOLENE.

MINERS HAD DYNAMITE.

Strikers at Eagle Intended to Blow Up the Troops.

CONFESSION OF ONE CONSPIRATOR.

Many Dynamite Cartridges Were Distributed Among the Rioters and a Plan Laid Which Would Have Resulted In Several Deaths Had It Not Miscarried.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 6.—Governor McCorkle received a telegram from Major Banks, commanding at Eagle, stating that a man had been arrested at Montgomery with dynamite cartridges on his person. The man was brought to this city. He said he was engaged in the attack on Wyant's tipple, and attended all the meetings and knew all their plans. From his confession the following story is obtained:

Sunday night the governor received incendiary statements from a man purporting to be acting as mayor of Montgomery. They were to the effect that the military posse of the sheriff had no right to accompany him only within the corporate limits of the town of Montgomery. This course would nullify the power of the sheriff of the county, and no notice was taken of the statements. Things have developed showing that there was a deep seated plan arranged to violate the law. The authorities now know its exact inwardness.

Carefully Planned Outrage.

The riot at Acme was carefully planned and was only frustrated by the action of the authorities. The strikers took to Acme 27 large dynamite cartridges to blow up the works and to destroy the store, their purpose being to loot it. At their meetings the arrangements was made, with the connivance of certain people, to arrest Wyant, bring him to Montgomery and turn him over to the mob of miners. His life would not have been worth a penny.

In addition to this a dastardly and horrible outrage was to be perpetrated. When the soldiers came accompanying the sheriff in making his arrests the murderer, the dynamite cartridges, already fused with percussion caps, were to be lighted with lighted cigars and thrown among the troops and posse, maiming and killing the men before thereof. This plan was almost carried out. Dynamite cartridges were distributed, one of which is in the possession of the governor. They were to bring Wyant to this place, where his life was to be taken, and then the riot was to be made down the railroad.

As it happened, however, only a small part of this programme was carried out. Wyant was arrested by the warrant sworn out before Squire Adkins, whose son was one of the ringleaders in the strike and for whom a warrant has been issued for murder. But when the four constables, one of whom had said that he would bring Wyant down to Montgomery or kill him, attempted to take Wyant to Montgomery, he resisted and told him that he was perfectly willing to go to Fayetteville, where he could have some sort of a show, but he did not propose to be taken to Montgomery for the purpose of being killed by a mob.

Plot to Kill Wyant.

It was carefully and certainly ascertained before morning that if he should be taken to Fayetteville he would in all probability be killed on the way, and ascertaining that fact he called on the military for protection, and when the constables undertook to take him one of them was arrested for murder, and a platoon of soldiers took Wyant to Fayetteville, where he would have his preliminary trial.

It was ascertained that the road was picketed by the men who had been in this strike, and if it had not been for the protection of the military his life would have been taken.

The authorities have gone to the bottom of the whole matter. They have obtained that the original facts were about true. The attack on Wyant was prearranged, and the next morning it was intended to take Edgewater, the Acme mine. This was frustrated by the prompt action of the governor in having the military on hand.

There is a vast deal of excitement, and since the dastardly and outrageous attempt to kill by dynamite the soldiers and posse accompanying the sheriff in making the arrests there is a deep seated feeling of indignation both at the men who were actually engaged in this and at the authorities and citizens at Montgomery, who have been siding and abetting these outrages. Vigorous measures have been taken to arrest the men engaged in this dastardly business, and the principal leaders in this dreadful attempt will be soon taken.

The strikers stated in their meeting that if any more arrests were made the jail at Fayetteville would be broken and the prisoners released. There is great apprehension that it will be attempted, and it is understood that the governor will have a company of troops there to see that this is not done.

It looks now as if there is going to be great trouble. The vigorous measures of the authorities in arresting these people seems to have had its effect in stopping contemplated outrages, but it is impossible to tell exactly what will be the outcome.

Dentist's Assistant Burned.

Bishop of Tacoma Dead.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., March 6.—Rev. John A. Paddock, bishop of Tacoma, died at Miramar.

CAUGHT AT LAST.

Embezzler Whitaker Evaded Arrest For Almost Three Years.

BUFFALO, March 6.—Henry C. Wiltshaw, alias Harry C. Watkins, was arrested here by United States Marshal Wathe on a warrant charging him with having appropriated to his own use various sums of money when he acted as individual bookkeeper for the United States National bank in New York three years ago. Wiltshaw left the employ of the bank in August, 1891, and his stealings were discovered a month later.

On Sept. 1, 1891, an indictment was found against him by the United States grand jury of the court of the southern district of New York. A warrant for his arrest was placed in the hands of United States Marshal Jacobus of that district, but despite all efforts of the marshal, who was assisted by Inspector Byrnes, Wiltshaw successfully evaded all efforts to locate and arrest him. A few weeks ago the assistance of the Pinkertons was asked.

Wiltshaw came to Buffalo about 18 months ago and registered at the Genesee hotel, where he has since resided. He made the acquaintance of some prominent men who lived there and soon went into the business. He acted as a capper for a Washington street room until the law closed the poolroom up. Then he went into a bucket shop and worked there for a time. He was as much of a rounder as a Buffalo man can be with the opportunities at his disposal. He lived high, and, it is said, he gambled extensively. He will be removed to New York.

MAYOR ON HIS MUSCLE.

A Big Row on In Denver's Municipal Circles.

DENVER, March 6.—The city hall was thrown into the greatest excitement over a row between Mayor Van Horn and Street Commissioner Thomas Foulkes, which resulted in the mayor bodily throwing the commissioner out of his office and ordering him to never enter it again until he could obey orders.

The trouble was over the discharge of Street Sprinkler Van Court by Foulkes, the former being a friend of the mayor. The mayor claims that Van Court is a competent officer and has been discharged upon demands from the American Protective association. The mayor was at one time a member of this association, but was expelled because he married a Catholic to the position of inspector of police, and this trouble seems to be a continuation of this affair. The mayor appears to have the best of the fight and will undoubtedly reappoint Van Court.

Thieves Disguised as Negroes.

STROUDSBURG, Pa., March 6.—Two men went to the house of John Vallersham, in Middlesmithfield township, about 10 miles from this place, and demanded his money. Both men appeared to be negroes. Valler shamp refused to give up his money when one of the thieves shot him. During the fight Vallershamp tore the shirt from one of the thieves and was surprised to find that his body was white and that he had blackened his face to disguise himself. The men escaped after the shooting.

The Centerboarder Won.

NEW LONDON, Conn., March 6.—Two of the largest boats in the coastwise fleet emulated an exciting race from Philadelphia at this port. They were the Mary L. Hazlett, of this port and the Stella B. Kaplan of Orient, N. Y. The race was to test the merits of the keel and centerboard built vessels, and the Randall, which is a centerboard vessel, reached this port first, about 10 minutes in the lead.

Miners Preparing For a Grand Struggle.

MASSILLON, O., March 6.—The national executive board of the United Mine Workers of America issued a circular to which all miners now on strike are advised to return to work and to prepare for a general strike for 10 per cent higher wages and the improved condition it as an early a date as the national convention, which meets in April, may determine.

Big Counsel Fees Awarded.

WILMINGTON, Del., March 6.—Judges Dallas and Wales of the United States circuit court awarded $40,000 attorneys' fees to Wilson & Wallace of New York, Ambassador Thomas F. Bayard, Senator George Gray and William C. Spurance of this city in their cases against Wackenshaw & Bolght of New York city.

Naval Battle Expected at Rio.

RIO JANEIRO, March 6.—Extensive signaling with searchlights indicates that many ships are lying outside the harbor. It is thought that the government fleet has at last arrived and that it will enter the harbor today at an early hour. In that event an early battle between the opposing fleets is looked for.

Western Massachusetts Goes Dry.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 6.—About 20 towns in the four western counties of Massachusetts held their annual town meetings. No towns had a clean sweep in the vote on the liquor question.

THEY HAZED A VISITOR.

Young New York Lawyer Handled Roughly.

WAYLAID BY MASKED STUDENTS.

John W. Hutchinson, Jr., Visits His Alma Mater, and They Remembered Him—His Mustache Is Partly Shaved Off, and He Is Dragged In the Mud.

SWARTHMORE, Pa., March 6.—A score of Swarthmore college students caught John W. Hutchinson, Jr., a young New York lawyer, as he was leaving the campus and hazed him unmercifully. One side of his mustache was shaved off, and he was dragged by the feet through the mud.

Mr. Hutchinson was a student here four or five years ago and was track manager of the Athletic association. There was some misunderstanding, it appears, concerning the cost of improvements entailed on future classes, and he had not been back until last Sunday. Then he called upon a sister who is a student at the college. The young lawyer's coming was noised about, and the boys plotted what they termed a practical joke.

Met by a Masked Gang.

Mr. Hutchinson left the college parlor about 9 o'clock and started down the long slope toward the railroad station. He had not gone far when he was stopped by a crowd of at least 20 students. Half a dozen of them wore masks and acted as leaders.

They seized Hutchinson, threw him down, and while several held him one student took a pair of scissors from his pocket and snipped off one side of Hutchinson's mustache. Then that side of his lip was shaved. The other side was not touched. Hutchinson then thought he could go in peace. But the college boy thirst for fun had only just been whetted. Two men seized the lawyer by his legs and started on a gallop down the hill.

Mr. Hutchinson's back glided over the muddy ground. His clothes were besmeared from his head to his feet. When he had been dragged for a long distance, the students released their hold and fled. The victim of the hazers went to Media as quickly as he could get there and procured new clothes. The students returned within the walls of their prim Quaker college. Monday morning Mr. Hutchinson had a warrant sworn out for the arrest of Students Kayler, Andrews, Mauley, Webb and Hodge. He said they wore masks, but he knew them.

Constable McKnift came here during the day to arrest the young men, and the New Yorker accompanied him. The president announced all the male students of the college before him.

Would Not Apologize.

"Will you apologize?" asked President de Garmo.

"No; never, never!" was the cry that came back from 50 throats. "We will go before a magistrate before we apologize," they cried.

The president then told Hutchinson that it would be unwise for him to push the case against the hazers. He said that any number of students would testify that the five whom he had named in the warrant were innocent. They said they were only spectators.

Young Hutchinson is a lawyer in the office of Elihu Root in New York city. Mr. Hutchinson, after having interviewed also some of the older heads, consented to withdraw his charges upon the consideration that the misunderstanding about some improvements should be satisfactorily explained to the college by them and that he should be made welcome to the college hereafter.

Seven Hundred Men Quit Work.

LEBANON, Pa., March 6.—About 700 men employed in the Pennsylvania belt and nut works, the Lebanon rolling mills, the West Lebanon rolling mill and the East Lebanon rolling mill struck for higher wages and improved condition it as an early a date as the national convention, which meets in April, may determine.

Double Tragedy In Brooklyn.

BROOKLYN, March 6.—Fritz Nolte, a Swede, aged 40 years, who was a sailor on a tramp steamer plying between New York and Rotterdam, killed himself after having shot Clara Freund, who is not yet 15 years of age, because, it is said, he feared she would reveal his relations with her.

For Keyport

FOR THE BUSY HOUSEKEEPER

HELPFUL HINTS THAT SHE CANNOT FIND ELSEWHERE.

The Experiences of Other Practical Women Secured that We May Benefit Thereby—Recipes for an Easter Sunday Menu.

Live as near the top of the house as you can. It is the most healthful place in the whole building. There is more air, a freer circulation and less of the unwholesome dust of the street. People often wonder at the ragged health enjoyed by servants despite their constant and wearing duties. It is to a great extent owing to the fact that they sleep in a purer atmosphere than any other occupant of the house. The attic, generally devoted to storage and servants' rooms, is far more valuable than the second floor bedrooms pre-empted by the heads of the family. There are certain physicians who insist on their clients being taken up or up stairs at the beginning of an illness.

GOOD THINGS FOR EASTER.

You Can Reach the Heart of Man Through His Stomach.

Below are offered a few suggestions for Easter:

EGG BREAD.

To two eggs, well beaten, add one teaspoon sugar, one tablespoon lard, one-half teaspoon salt, one pint corn-meal in which has been thoroughly mixed one heaping teaspoon baking powder. Mix to a thick batter with sweet milk and pour in well-greased pan to bake.

BAKED OMELET.

Six eggs, one teaspoon corn-starch, one-half teaspoon salt, one cup sweet milk, one teaspoon butter; beat yolks with corn-starch, add salt, butter and milk, and lastly, the whites, beaten separately. Have frying-pan (this is best) hot and well greased, pour into it and set in oven. It will take in a few minutes, and should be slipped on a hot plate and served immediately. If desired sprinkle handful of sugar over it, on which pour about four tablespoons rum, apply match, and serve while blazing.

PICKLED EGGS.

Boil eggs hard; peel them, stick several cloves in them and drop them into a quart of vinegar that is boiling, with one cup of sugar, a few sticks of cinnamon, a little allspice and mace. These should be handed round, also stuffed eggs, in little rustic baskets with a napkin spread in the bottom.

EGGS AND TOMATOES.

Slice firm tomatoes, dip into beaten egg that has been seasoned with salt and pepper, then into cracker dust, and fry to a golden brown. Butter and serve hot.

YELLOW CAKE.

Make a gold cake from yolks of eggs in layers, and for filling use this: Grate one large tart apple, one lemon, grated and squeezed, one egg and one cup sugar. Let this boil for five minutes, stirring constantly, spread between layers and on top. Make icing from yolks instead of whites, and cover cake entirely. This is equally nice and quite artistic.

FOOD FIRST.

Make custard of one quart of milk, yolks of five eggs, sugar and delicate flavoring. When done and cold, pour over a can of shredded pineapple and shaved cocoanut, then drop over the top a spoonful of the white that has been beaten with sugar, and flavored with strawberry or almond.—Margaret Andrews Oldham.

How Tea Should be Made.

Tea should always be made, as everybody knows nowadays, with boiling water, and steeped, not boiled. It is not necessary only that it should be water in an actual state of ebullition, but that it shall be water at its first boiling—water that had never been boiled before.

No metal teapot, not even one of silver, is fit to make boiling water in. Nothing is better than the purest china with a big hole in one end. A few old thin comforters were in the bottom, and five dollies were sitting on them in a row. Beth had put them there to punish them. "They fit so, I had to," she told mamma, but now she took them out.

"I think it'd a great deal better for little children to have their own way," she said. "And as my mamma thinks different from that, I'll get in here my own self."

She climbed in, and in some way, bang! came down the heavy cover. Still, after a little, she decided it was not so bad, for she could breathe nicely through the hole in the end.

Mamma sang the lunch bell, but as no Beth came, she climbed the stairs to see what had become of her. All around the room she looked, and then she saw an arm-string a-sticking out of the old trunk, so she opened it quickly.

"Well, well, dear little lady Genevra, here you are," she said.

Beth opened her eyes, put her arms up to be taken out, and said, "No, I wasn't a lady, mamma. I was just a mad girl. And, mamma, one dompham good made me sick, and just exposing I hed eated six!"

"You said some were for the dollies," said mamma.

"Well, I did try to purtend so, 'cause I was so greedy, but I thinked it all straight in the trunk. 'For I went to sleep, and—I'm sorry, mamma, real."—L. E. Chittenden, in Youth's Companion.

A Boy's Idea of Breath.

A little boy in a Staffordshire school recently handed in to the teacher his following composition on "Our breath":

"Our breath is made of air. If it were not for our breath we would die. The breath keeps growing through our liver, our lights and our lungs. Boys shut up in a room all day should not breathe; they should wait until they get out of doors. Air is a room he carboniede in it, and carbonicide is poisoner than mad dogs.

"Once some men was shut up in a black hole in India. A carbonicide got into that there hole, and afore morning nearly every one of them was dead. Girls have corsets which squeese their diagrams too much. Girls cannot run and holler like boys 'cause their diagrams are squeesed. If I was a girl I would just run and holler so my diagram would grow. That's all on breath."—From The Million.

What "Somebody" Did.

Little Miss Dot at the window stood,
Watching the clear, cold night.
And the great big moon in the western sky,
Where it shone so long and bright.

But a cloud swept over the yellow face,
And she said, with a frown and a pout,
"I wanted to look at that lovely moon,
But somebody's blown it out."

BETH IN THE TRUNK.

Story of a Little Girl Who Wanted to Have Her Own Way.

Beth wanted six warm doughnuts, to have a tea-party with her dollies, and mamma thought one was enough.

"You don't andystand, mamma," she said. "I won't wanting 'em for me, but five for the dollies and one for me."

"Ah! but I know how the dollies eat theirs, dear, and it won't do," answered mamma.

So Beth stuck her lips out and walked up-stairs to the attic, where, in one corner, was a great trunk with a big hole in one end. A few old thin comforters were in the bottom, and five dollies were sitting on them in a row. Beth had put them there to punish them. "They fit so, I had to," she told mamma, but now she took them out.

"I think it'd a great deal better for little children to have their own way," she said. "And as my mamma thinks different from that, I'll get in here my own self."

MILLER'S POLICY.

The Senator Explains His Attitude Toward the Republican Senate.

TRENTON, March 6.—When the Democratic senate met Senator Miller of Cape May, who last week left that body and announced it as being under the control of the race tracks, was in his seat and answered the roll call. When asked if he was going to return to that body, Senator Miller denied that he had ever severed his connection with the senate. He was a Democrat, he said, and did not intend to sell out his party.

He would never go over to the Republican senate and had never said he would. He reaffirmed his statement of last week that rather than have the race track laws continue in force, if the Republicans would come over to the Democrats before adjournment he would vote to seat them in order to repeal those laws.

The Republican senate, which held a short session, ordered a number of bills to a third reading and passed bills repealing the acts relative to the election of school trustees in third class cities and appropriating $5,000 for the current expenses of the bureau of vital statistics.

When senate bill No. 1, providing for a change in the execution of laws, came before the house, Mr. Flynn announced that the Democrats did not recognize the senate which passed the bill and would take no part in its passage by the house. The bill was passed under a suspension of the rules, the Democrats refusing to vote.

General Early's Funeral.

LYNCHBURG, Va., March 6.—The funeral of General John Anderson Early took place from St. Paul's church. The procession was an imposing one and was witnessed by the thousands of people who lined the thoroughfare along the entire route. Hundreds of old veterans who served under the dead general during the war were present from all sections of the state and marched on foot in the procession. Many distinguished Confederates were among the honorary pallbearers.

The President Returns.

NORFOLK, March 6.—The steamer Violet, with the presidential party aboard, arrived here. Mr. Cleveland stated that his trip had been a very enjoyable one and the sport fine. The Violet coaled at the navy yard and resumed her trip to Washington. In an interview the president stated that he killed about 30 ducks and 20 geese and swan. The reporters who interviewed the president went down the river on the tug David B. Hill.

Chicago Druggists Must Look Out.

CHICAGO, March 6.—The Woman's Christian Temperance union of this city has begun a crusade against druggists who indulge in the illegal sale of intoxicants and stimulants of all descriptions. Visits are to be made to drug stores, and if possible purchases of morphine, laudanum, chloroform, cocaine, chloral and other drugs will be made without a physician's prescription. Arrest and prosecution will follow.

Pittsburg's Nun Teachers.

PITTSBURG, March 6.—State Councilor W. T. Kerr of the O. U. A. M. authorized the statement that he has definitely decided to make a legal test case of the right of the nuns to wear their religious habit while acting as public schoolteachers. "I have received a partial opinion from my counsel," he said, "and they agree with me that the nuns have no legal right to wear the garb of their order in the schools."

SORRY HE SHOWED THEM

THE LAWYERS WANT TO LEVY ON HIS DOGS NOW.

They Expect to Bring the Rules of the Westminster Kennel Club's Bench Show Into Court to Prove that Photographer Wright Owns Animals Worth $2,000.

(From the New York Evening Sun.)

Charles L. Wright, of Leland avenue, Plainfield, N. J., and in business on Fourteenth street, New York, may have cause to regret that he exhibited his three English setters and two English pointers at the Bench Show in Madison Square Garden.

He was delighted when his magnificent setter "Roselly Dow," which was entered in Class 45, carried off the second prize, but it was that which attracted his creditors' attention to the fact that he owned five dogs valued at $2,000 and now endangers his ownership to the dogs.

Lawyer William George Oppenheim, 45 Park row, made an application to Justice Fitzsimmons in City Court Chambers, to have Wright declared the legal owner of the dogs and have them turned over to Winfield Walters, a civil engineer with office in Vandam street.

Walters has a judgment against Wright for $325 for work done for him.

This judgment was obtained in the City Court, and a few days ago Wright was subjected to an examination in supplementary proceedings and testified in what Lawyer Oppenheim declared in court to-day to be "remarkable and peculiar sort of statements."

As a result of this examination a receiver was appointed to take charge of Wright's property, but it was not until his dog took a prize that it became known that he had animals valued by him at $2,000.

The lawyer took up the question of the dogs and asked Justice Colon to declare them the property of Wright and subject for his debts. He read from the rules of the Dog Show, which provided that none but the legal owner of the dogs can enter them, and said he would prove by the officers of the Dog Show that Wright had said that the dogs were his and made an affidavit to that effect. Justice Colon reserved his decision.

THIEVES IN A CHURCH.

The First Presbyterian Church Entered Last Night.

Thieves entered the First Presbyterian church last night and stole the machine used for lighting the large chandeliers in the church. It cost about $100.

Entrance was gained through the Sunday-School building in the rear. A small pane of glass was broken in one of the windows, and the left a space large enough for a person to run his hand through and push back the fasteners.

The pastor's study was entered and every thing in the room turned topsy turvy.

A contribution box in which money was dropped for special offerings was broken open and its contents taken. A pair of kid gloves belonging to Mr. Herring were taken.

Reception of the Mistletoe Club

The Mistletoe Club held a reception at the home of Miss May Thompson, on Farrington avenue, last night.

Those present were: Miss Lena Livezey, Miss Nora Williams, Miss Carrie Kellogg, Miss Lilla Livezey, Miss Clara Williams, Miss Bertha Wheeler, Miss Stella Shotwell, Miss Allie Loomis, Miss Florence Smith, Miss Mardie Thompson, Miss Jessie Thompson, of this city, and Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Dunning and Miss Lida Stelle, of Bound Brook, and Messrs. Galbraith and Jellema, of New York, Hugh V. Bache, of Bound Brook, Sidney Tilsworth, Percy Tomlinson, Henry Eaton, George W. DeMeza, Frank Richards, Frank and Arthur Vail, Carl Pfender and Charles J. McNabb, of this city, and M. M. Hodge, of Finderne.

Miss Hellen Hasbrouck presided at the piano.

A Contest for "Old One Horn."

Plainfield Engine Company No. 2, held a meeting last night and decided to offer their old "one horn cannon" to the most popular Grand Army Post in the State. A driver's uniform will be offered for the most popular driver in the five departments. F. B. Randolph and David Allen will contest for a rubber coat and boots. A prize of a rubber coat and boots is to be presented to the member selling the most tickets.

To At end a Reception at Jersey City.

The regular monthly meeting of the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum was held last night. One new member was elected. An invitation was received and accepted from St. Joseph's Lyceum of Jersey City to attend a reception at their club house on Tuesday evening, March 27. This is the same club that was so elaborately entertained by the Plainfield Lyceum recently.

FREE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

THE REGULAR MEETING HELD LAST EVENING.

The Leasing of the Babcock House was Reported by the Treasurer.—A Letter of Thanks Received from the McAll Auxiliary.

A regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Free Public Library was held last evening. There were present Messrs. A. C. Baldwin, M. W. Tyler, J. B. Damon, Evarts Tracey, Rowland Cox and William M. Stillman.

The minutes of the meeting of February 6, were read and approved.

The following bills were ordered paid:

Miss Adams	$50.00
Miss Davis	25.00
Wm. H. Williams	12.75
Samuel H. Allen	11.61
Electric Light Co.	15.40
Boice, Runyon & Co.	69.65

The report of the Treasurer in the matter of leasing the Babcock house was accepted and approved, and the matter of dealing hereafter with this account was, on motion, left to the President and Treasurer, with power.

A communication from Mrs. E. D. Sykes was referred to the Library Committee.

A letter of thanks from the McAll Auxiliary, thanking the Board for the use of the Library room, was ordered filed.

The report of the Librarian for February was read and ordered placed on file.

The matter of repairs to the basement was left to the Executive Committee with power.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Brewster and family moved to Hopewell yesterday.

Barney Geehan moved from West Front street to Second street.

Mr. H. H. Brokaw, of Duer street, has returned from Troy, N. Y.

Mr. J. F. Schroeder of Grove street is soon to move to Watchung avenue.

Mr. Feytel of West Front street intends to move to New York some time this month.

Miss Jennie Voorhees of Brooklyn, formerly of this city, is visiting friends in Plainfield.

Mrs. Theodore Van Ness of West Front street is convalescent after a severe attack of the grip.

Miss Jennie Schroeder of Grove street has returned home after a visit with friends in Brooklyn.

Justice of the Peace William Newcorn has received notification from Gov. Werts of his appointment as a notary public.

Miss Emma Coombs has returned to Bordentown, after a few days visit with Miss Carrie Coombs of Linden avenue.

A children's party is being held at the home of Mrs. Robert Rushmore, corner of Grant avenue and West Fourth street this afternoon.

Mr. Paul Simmons, formerly a resident of East Third street, but for the past year a resident of Belleville, will return to Plainfield the latter part of this month.

Dr. W. R. Richards, Pastor of the Crescent avenue church, will deliver a lecture Thursday evening at eight o'clock in the Park avenue Baptist church. His subject will be "Mexico." There will be no admission fee and all are welcome.

Mr. F. W. Grant of Grove street, has presented to the Free Public Library the following books on theological subjects of which he is the author:—"Atonement," "Facts and theories as to a future state," "Genesis in the light of the new testament," "Numerical structure of scripture," "Revelation of Christ."

Mr. Cheeswright, organist and choirmaster at Holy Crosschurch, has resigned that position to accept a similar one at Trinity church, New Haven, Conn. Mr. Cheeswright was the successful one out of about 160 applicants and his friends will congratulating him as the position is considered one of the best outside of New York city. He will take charge April 8. Probably Mr. Cheeswright's last organ recital here will be given to-morrow in the church at three o'clock.

The death occurred last night at Mr. Michael Schlereth, in his 64th year, at his home on Chatham street, North Plainfield. Mr. Schlereth was for 18 or 20 years a cutter in C. Schepflin & Co.'s clothing establishment on West Front street. He moved here from Somerville about 25 years ago. He was a quiet, peace-loving citizen with no desire for public life, but his whole self was absorbed in his home. For the past five years failing health compelled him to give up his position in Schepflin's, and since then his chief delight has been to work in his garden in Summer time, of which he had one of the best kept in the borough. Many friends will mourn his loss. He leaves a wife and three sons—Otto, George and Robert. The former is the only one that is married. He lives in Bayonne. The other two live home and are engaged in the upholstering business. The funeral services will be held Friday afternoon, at two o'clock, at the German Reformed church on Craig place.

The Park Club to Bowl with the County Club.

The first game this year between the Park Club and the Union County Country Club will be rolled to-night, on the alleys of the Country Club.

THE McALL AUXILIARY.

THE ANNUAL MEETING HELD AT THE LIBRARY YESTERDAY.

The Eighth Year of the Auxiliary's Existence. — The Yearly Meetings Held Regularly and Well Attended.

To THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—Following is the yearly report of the McAll Auxiliary Secretary:

Our McAll year, the eighth of its existence has drawn to a close, a year of renewed zeal and love for the great work. At an annual meeting held the seventh of last month, after listening to a letter, the only one written to us, as annauxiliary, by the late Dr. McAll. We greatly appreciated the kindness then in sending us a personal greeting when his time was so fully occupied and he in such feeble health; now we value the letter more than we can say. It was among the last words of Dr. McAll.

We can always feel that each one of us, individually, received a personal word, from the heart that beat with love for his Saviour's brethren and now is still. Let us conformed his request to labor for the work. Our society in terms the death of one of its faithful managers, Mrs. James Perine Page, who was called home last April. Appropriate resolutions were adopted and sent to Mr. Page also entered upon the minutes of the May meeting.

Our meetings during the year have been regularly held and well attended, with devotional exercises and the report of the Missionary and Secretary, interesting letters written by the missionaries connected therewith in the white fields of France have been read which we have found not only interesting, inspiriting and helpful but also stimulatives to do what we could to the men and women who have given their lives to the evangelization of France.

We have 207 annual subscribers, 21 life members, one being added during the year. $320.51 has been raised for the work, $95 additional has been contributed to the Memorial Fund by several of the ladies.

One of our managers, Miss Tweedy, visited Paris in the Spring. She brought us a delightful report of her visits to two of the mission-halls and her impressions of the work and the people. A pleasing memory is here of meeting and speaking with Dr. McAll. Several of our members were able to attend the convention of the National Association held in Albany last April, and brought home to the less fortunate ones glowing accounts of the meeting, which were inspiring. We were all delighted to learn that our Mrs. Lawrence Myers had been elected a Vice President of the National Association.

We held a public meeting at Mrs. Herrings on the afternoon of May 23rd when we had the great pleasure of meeting Mrs. Li Gay of Paris again. She spoke to us earnestly of her work in the Mission, that of the mothers meeting. It was very satisfying to hear a detailed description of those gatherings, where old women and young meet informally and hear of the master and his love for them, bringing peace and rest to many of their lives of poverty and want. Miss Lent of the New York Auxiliary, spoke pleasantly and encouragingly of their work, and of her acquaintance Dr. McAll.

A number of our members held a reading Circle at Bound Brook in connection with the earnest hope of being able to found an auxiliary there. The attempt as far as we can see was not successful but the seed sown in his name may sometime bear the fruit. Two of the churches, the Crescent Avenue and the Trinity Reformed have aided us with a collection for which we are deeply grateful. Our new work at Limoges is well established under the guidance of the earnest christian Mr. Boyer, the work is divided into three parts among three Pastors, the children and the soldiers.

The work among the adults is progressing well. The meetings show a large increase in attendance. Many times the hall has been full, the people are eager for the good tidings. They call it there the "Evangelical" school open with an attendance of 5 now has 25, the Thursday school has 15, the children are attentive and willing to learn. Mr. Boyer is encouraged with his work among the children. He has succeeded in getting all the protestant soldiers together and has placed a room at their disposal to be used for meetings, and for reading. Just as who heard Mr. Greiz's remarks on the subject learned how necessary it is that they live a life in full keeping with it and to spend their idle hours. The call is for more helps, and for more halls, books, maps, papers etc.

On the 21st of last month (February) Mr. Boyer began a meeting in the chapel of the Crescent avenue Presbyterian church, which was of unusual interest to us all, as we were much fortunate in having with us the Rev. Chas. E. Greig of Paris. The subject was the character of the late Dr. McAll as director of the mission, a most zealous devoted Christian gentleman. The meeting was opened by a duet sung by Mrs. J. K. Myers and Miss Smillie, "The Lord is My Shepherd." Mr. Schauffler read a selection of scripture, Dean Redman offered prayer. Dr. Richards with a few appropriate remarks, introduced Mr. Greig. We all enjoyed and were benefitted by every word of his address. He told us fully of the work of Dr. McAll among the soldiers, of Limoges work and of Mr. Boyer and answered numerous questions. At the close of Mr. McGee's address Mr. Greig's spontaneous tribute to her character and ability in the work was touching in the extreme. The good greatly, as it was through her efforts that our Auxiliary was formed. The meeting was closed by all wishing him God speed on his home journey.

Though the years work and interest there has been the ever present minor tone of sorrow. I feel that I am unable to express the gratitude of the Auxiliary while less that the McAll Mission has sustained through the death of Robert W. McAll. His life was as quietly on the 11th of last May. It is not necessary to dwell upon the life of one of the days of the venerable man of God as it is familiar to us all. There is so much in the consecrated life, and death, for each of us to learn from one of us. In one of the many French tributes paid at that time occurred the following lines: We feel not only a great gratitude to you and God who gave you to us, but we feel also that your work is not finished, that it follows you and will survive you and that there is but one thing to do you honor, that of devoting ourselves to its continuance."

May we prayfully lay this to our hearts and leave it there in the jewels that make up his crown.

In closing the report of our year we would again thank the trustees of the Library for their continued courtesy in allowing us the use of the this cheery room and also the medals given for their kindness in printing all notices free of charge.

LIZZIE ATWOOD STILLMAN,
Secretary.

TWO DAYS WITHOUT FOOD.

A Distressing Case of Poverty at Westfield.

A court of inquiry was held at Westfield *yesterday afternoon in the case of Rich*ard Smith, a poor person living near Pierson, at the request of J. W. Cox, Westfield's overseer of the poor. Smith is a man nearly eighty years old, who has lived alone for several years in a small shanty on the Silver's place. This winter his condition has been particularly distressing. He is suffering from dropsy, which renders him almost helpless. During the winter he was wholly dependent upon the neighbors for food and attention, and at times he suffered greatly, not through indifference on the part of the neighbors, but because there was no system about their help. A Mr. Caffrey called at the house one day last week and found that the man had lain on his bed, a bundle of rags, for two days without so much as a drink of water. Smith has a wife and daughter living in Rahway, but it is said that they abandoned him several years ago on account of his growing infirmities and left him to shift for himself. Yesterday was the first time that the case has been formally brought to the attention of Overseer Cox, and he so-ailed at once to Justice Collins to have the inquiry made.

HOWELL DIVISION FLOURISHING.

Two Members Taken in.—To Hold a Lunch-Box Sociable.

Howell Division, Sons of Temperance, held one of the best attended and most enthusiastic meetings in a long while, last night. Visitors were present from New Providence and Summit. The Division is in better standing than it has been for years. New members were taken in.

After the business had been transacted there was a general social time.

"Bob" Mattox recited in his usual excellent manner, as did also Bertha Clum, and "Try" Matty. Sylvester Scribner read a comical sketch, Lew Mattox sang. But it remained for Miss Bell Scott, of Summit, to charm the audience by her beautiful rendition of "Beautiful Gates Ajar."

It was voted to hold a lunch-box social next Tuesday night in the Division rooms.

THEY KNOW A FEW THINGS ABOUT WHIST.

The Park Club Defeats the Elizabeth Athletic Club by 37 Points.

Last evening the Elizabeth Athletic Club sent up some jolly good fellows to learn how to play whist at the Park Club.

The Park Club members know a thing or two about that game and when the visitors only had a small weight—as far as the score is concerned—to take home. They got just three points. The Park Club team had forty points.

Messrs. McCutcheon, Townsend, Drayton, Blank, Day, Lyman, Tilney, Leonard, Rogers, Howell, Daniels and Matthews represented the Park Club.

Six tables were in use.

WILLIAM FRIES' AFFLICTION.

Not Only Paralyzed but he is Unable to Speak.

Yesterday William Fries of North Plainfield was able to sit up awhile for the first time since a few weeks ago, when he had a paralytic stroke. He has lost the use of one of his legs and one arm, in fact his entire right side is paralyzed. To add to his affliction he has lost the power of speech, his tongue he cannot move.

He is unable to move only as his wife or sons move him.

A BRANCH SOUP KITCHEN.

Opened by the W. C. T. U. in the Thompson Building.

The committee having the affairs of the soup kitchen in charge desire to give public acknowledgement of the very generous donations of provisions and money received that have enabled them to make the undertaking the success it has proved to be. Very acceptable indeed have been the unsolicited gifts of money because of the interest shown in the enterprise and faith in the projectors. The demand for the soup has been sufficient to convince us that we have met a needed want, and that it has reached those who need and appreciate it. Soup tickets good for one or two quarts can be purchased for distribution. We are glad to say that no advantage have been taken on account of the extremely low price and our willingness to sell to purchasers without question. Again expressing our thanks to all donators, especially the grocers and butchers, and asking a continued interest and support in the soup kitchen, for a branch has been opened in the Thompson building, Second street and Muhlenberg place.

JERSEY LAWMAKERS.

Morris Won't Recognize Republican Senate Bills—Bills of Local Interest in the House.

TRENTON, N. J., March 6.—The Joint Commission on Passed Bills went to Gov. Werts with the Custodian of Laws bill, passed by the House and the Republican Senate, and the Governor declined to receive it for the same reasons that have actuated him in refusing to receive any bills acted upon by the Republican Senate.

The session of the Republican Senate was opened this morning with a prayer by the Rev. A. L. Brand of this city, who prayed that Providence would influence the Supreme Court to decide in favor of the "constitutionality of this Senate." This body, he said, represented the moral element of the State, and he prayed that the Power on high would lend its strength to continue in its course and lead it to victory.

The Senate passed the bill repealing the Newark and New Jersey Board of Works act; also the bill repealing the Six Dollar Tax Search act; also allowing fishing with seines in Barnegat Bay during certain periods of the year.

The Republican Senate adjourned for the week.

Only Senators Hinchliff and Perkins of the Democratic Senate were present to-day, and they adjourned until Friday morning.

The first business of the House to-day was to grant chairman Storrs and his committee to investigate the election of Assemblyman Thompson the right to sit during sessions of the House.

The bill providing that all schoolhouses in the State shall have flags and flag-staffs, and that the flag shall be raised every school day in the year, came up on second reading, when Mr. Wilson submitted an amendment making it discretionary with the school trustees as to when the flag shall be raised.

Mr. Storrs thought that the flags over the public schools should be nailed to the pole and never be lowered until worn out.

Mr. Salinger said that the flag scheme was a good one, but he thought the scholars should be furnished with free text books rather than with flags. Schoolbooks treating on the history of America would teach patriotism fully as well as the display of "Old Glory." The amendment was lost and was then ordered to third reading.

The following bill was passed.

House bill 89, requiring all dogs to be registered with the Township, county or city clerk and wear a collar with the registered number inscribed thereon.

Bills were introduced in the House providing for a 2¢ gas rate in first class cities and adding to the duties of the inspector of workshops the duties of inspector of mines.

The House adjourned until to-morrow morning.

JERSEY CENTRAL REPORT.

A Slight Decrease in the Net Surplus Revenue Last Year.

The report of the business of the Jersey Central Railroad for the year ending December 31, 1893, has just been issued in pamphlet form. It shows that the net surplus revenues of the company over all operating expenses, taxes and fixed charges amounted to $2,138,788, as against $2,230,300 for the preceding year. Dividends were charged against the business of the year at the rate of seven per cent. per annum.

The gross earnings last year were $6,647,966, the largest in the history of the road. The operating expenses and taxes amounted to $3,117,653, and the net earnings were $3,530,964. The mileage operated by the company has not changed materially since the preceding report.

Of the $20,000,000 authorized capital stock of the company there is now outstanding $23,497,400, an increase during the past year of $23,500, which amount was issued to provide for the floating indebtedness. The total outstanding funded indebtedness of the company is now $27,638,500, and was increased during the year by the issue of $2,000,000 general mortgage bonds, and reduced by a conversion into stock of $29,000 convertible debenture bonds, and $11,462.11 real estate mortgage bonds paid off; a net increase in the funded indebtedness of $1,959,577.89, which is represented by increase of property, equipment and securities owned, and reduction of floating indebtedness.

President J. Rogers Maxwell remarks that the results of the year ought to be satisfactory to the stockholders, in view of the severe shrinkage in business, which has necessarily affected the business of all railroads.

MURDER AT THE POLLS.

ONE DEAD AND THREE OTHERS SHOT

Malloy, the Regular Democratic Candidate, Was Elected Mayor—The Town Election Throughout New York State—Home Rule Politicians Gains In Many Instances.

TROY, N. Y., March 7.—The local election fight in Troy is the most bitter and was one of the severest struggles witnessed in years. The excitement throughout the city was intense. The adherents of both factions of the Democratic party contested every inch of ground for the mayoralty. Hand to hand fights took place all over the city.

Murder was also added to the horrors of the event. This sad occurrence took place in the Third district of the Thirteenth ward. It was at 12 o'clock. A number of strange men entered the polling place at that hour.

One insisted on voting. His name was Jeremiah Cleary. Another of the party was Bat Shea, a well known local character. Cleary's vote was challenged by the Republican inspectors. The men went from the place.

Row Ended Fatally.

A heated argument which had been begun within was continued on the outside. A gang of fifteen men gathered without. It included, in addition to Shea and Cleary, Robert and John Ross, brothers and active Republicans, also A. Schoonhagh, a Murphy man, and John Rowland, a supporter of the Whelan faction of the ward. The Ross boys are supporters of Whelan, the independent Democratic and Republican candidate for mayor.

In the midst of the argument clubs and revolvers were drawn and the desperate encounter ensued. Robert Ross fell to the ground with a bullet in his brain. He died almost instantly.

His brother William was shot in the neck below the left ear, and Bat Shea received a scalp wound. All three were shot in the back of the head. The police arrived in large numbers at the conclusion of the murderous occurence, but the principals had been spirited away. Neither Shea nor John Ross is thought to be mortally wounded. Ross, the murdered man, is 30 years old and is unmarried.

No one seems to know just who fired the shot that killed Ross. Chief Detective Markham said that as far as the police could learn Rowland fired four shots, and they think he is the man who did the killing. Rowland gave himself up to the police. He was held on the charge of murder.

Judge Forsman of the supreme court refused bail for him.

John Ross made a statement, in which he accuses Shea of firing the shot that killed his brother. He says he saw him fire it.

Elias D. Haynes, a stone cutter, was arrested immediately after the occurrence. He was about to hit a spectator of the affair with a wrench. The greatest consternation reigned in the vicinity of the affair. It is said that more arrests will be made of those thought to be implicated.

Mayor Whelan in a Wrangle.

Mayor Whelan, the Independent Democratic and Republican candidate for mayor, had all but a fist encounter with Edmund Stanton, a leading Murphy supporter of the Fourth ward. This is Whelan's ward. Prior to this election Stanton had been a Cleveland man. In the local contest he has taken the side of Murphy. Whelan objected to permitting some men to vote. Harsh words ensued between the two men, and it is said that one was about to strike the other when friends parried them.

It is charged that the city was full of repeaters. The Republicans charge that the Murphy inspectors stuffed the ballot boxes in the interest of Murphy, their candidate, and that repeaters in his interest roamed in the town.

In the second district of the Fourth ward the Republican watchers were ejected by the police for protesting against certain voters. John Bartlett, a respectable citizen, claims that a ballot voted on his name before his eyes and that he was powerless to stop him. Such occurrences are more frequent in the city.

McGough was shot in the back and is very badly hurt. He insists that John Ross and Rowland started the shooting.

John Ryan, a bystander, was shot in the head. It was murder—deliberate murder—and it was premeditated. Only about an hour and a half before the fatal affair Ryan met brother William full in the face. I dragged William away and told him to take the blow and say nothing, as the blow would be paid in full in a little while. At the time that they would start in and use their guns."

Mayor Whelan said: "It is only the natural result of the determination of the Murphy heelers to carry the election by fair means or foul. It is a stain on the city."

Senator Edward Murphy said, "It is a most deplorable affair, and I am greatly grieved at it."

Third Victim Dying.

It has been ascertained that another man was mortally wounded in the Thirteenth ward tragedy. John McGough, one of the alleged gang of repeaters who participated in the bloody riot, was found at his home suffering from the effects of a bullet wound in his abdomen. The bullet had penetrated the kidneys and the physicians say he cannot recover.

He is insensible now, but before he became unconscious he stated that he did not have a revolver and did not do any of the shooting. He says that he felt the bullet and started to go home. He fell by the gateway in front of his house, and by friends.

The election was a quiet one with the exception of the fatal fight in the Thirteenth ward. The vote polled was as heavy as that cast for the presidential year. With a few districts missing the vote for mayor shows that Malloy, the regular Democrat, has defeated Whelan, the Independent, by 1,400 votes.

The Town Elections.

Oswego—The vote on mayor became mixed, and it will require an official count to determine who voted. The excitement was intense. Police guarded the city clerk's office and one polling place. Cleveland Democrats elect 3 aldermen, Platt Republicans, 2, and Platts, 2. In the city the Cleveland Democrats elect 3 supervisors, and the Platt Republicans elected 6. In the county Democrats and 16 Platt Republicans are elected.

Saratoga County—Saratoga county went Republican by increased majorities. The board of supervisors will stand 17 Republicans and 3 Democrats. At the town election the entire Republican ticket was elected.

Dutchess County—The town elections in Dutchess county showed great Republican gains. The Republicans carried 18 towns and the Democrats 4. The board of supervisors stands 29 Republicans to 7 Democrats.

Ithaca—The city election resulted in a decided victory for the Republicans.

Rochester—The following are the results of the charter election in Rochester: George W. Aldridge, Republican, for mayor, elected by a plurality of 2,732. John H. Selcroth, Republican, for member of executive board, plurality, 1,697. George D. Cumming, Republican, for municipal court judge; plurality, 574. The common council will be 19 Republicans to 9 Democrats—a Democratic gain of 3. In the board of supervisors the same proportion is returned as last year—Republicans, 23; Democrats, 14.

Greene County—The Democrats elected Supervisors in Greene county and the Republicans 5.

Clinton County—The elections throughout Clinton county for supervisors resulted in the election of 9 Republicans and 5 Democrats.

Lansingburg—Lansingburg elected the entire Republican ticket by over 1,200 majority.

Auburn—The result of the charter election was a sweeping Republican victory. The new board of supervisors will consist of 24 Republicans and 9 Democrats.

Monroe County—With two towns to hear from the county board of supervisors will stand: Republicans, 21; Democrats, 6.

Rensselaer County—The board of supervisors will stand 19 Republicans and 12 Democrats.

Wayne County—Fifteen Republican supervisors were elected. There were large Republican gains in every town.

Watertown—Edward Mallory, Republican, for mayor, was elected by 200 majority. Four Republican supervisors were elected.

Governor Flower Grieved.

ALBANY, March 7.—When Governor Flower received his first news of the shooting at Troy, he expressed himself as deeply grieved at the result. He said he was surprised that at a simple municipal election such a thing should occur. There is no opinion to express except that I am sure that the affair happened in a bad state."

Lieutenant Governor Sheehan said: "It is a very deplorable thing, and I hardly know what to say. There can be nothing but regret over it."

Among the senators and assemblymen the news of the killing spread rapidly, and there were many opinions expressed as to what action should be taken. It is expected that the matter will be alluded to in both houses of the legislature today.

Another Election Row.

NYACK, N. Y., March 7.—A stabbing affray over a political discussion occurred at Piermont. With this exception the elections passed off peaceably.

Movements of Ocean Steamships.

NEW YORK, March 7.—The following steamships are due today: Edam, Rotterdam; Rhynland, Rotterdam; Syracuse, Liverpool; California, Gibraltar; Cretic, Dundee; Chester, Southampton; Stuvia, Hamburg; Manitoba, Glasgow; Ethiopia, Glasgow; Belgenland, Antwerp; Pomone, Gibraltar; The following steamships sail today: Teutonic, Liverpool; New York, Southampton; Waesland, Antwerp.

Weavers Win a Suit.

FALL RIVER, Mass., March 7.—The local weavers' union has won its suit against the Hargraves mills, which is all important, as it affects every weaver in the city and State. By this decision in the district court Judge McDonough says that a weaver must be paid for all cuts woven by him or her unless it can be positively proved that the cuts were spotted by carelessness or intention.

Cataract on One of Gladstone's Eyes.

LONDON, March 7.—The Telegraph says "Mr. Gladstone has placed himself in the hands of Sir James Paget, the famous surgeon, and the oculist Nettleschiff. We regret to say that there is undoubtedly a cataract forming on one of his eyes, with the prospect of similar trouble with the other, but nothing that is not likely to yield to ordinary treatment."

Lowell's Council In an Uproar.

LOWELL, Mass., March 7.—The police were called into a common council meeting last night to quell a disturbance of its members. The row was incident to a member deserting his party, which elected Captain George R. Davis, brother-in-law to Mayor Pickman, chief of police as successor to the late Chief Howard over Deputy James A. McQuade.

Crokey on a Ranch.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 7.—A dispatch from Kerrville, on the line of the San Antonio and Aransas Pass railroad, 75 miles north of here, states that Richard Croker and family arrived there last night en route to the ranch of John A. Morris. Hon. Bourke Cockran of New York has not yet arrived.

Wreckage From the Kearsarge.

COLON, March 7.—Two British schooners, loaded with arms and stores recovered from the wreck of the United States cruiser Kearsarge, have left the scene of the wreck for the island of Grand Cayman. It is not known what disposition they will make of their cargo.

Madden Charged With Murder.

HUDSON, N. Y., March 7.—The coroner's inquest into the death of Maurice Murphy, a New Yorker, whose dead body was found near Hudson several weeks ago, rendered a verdict charging Bartholomew Madden, boss under street, with the murder of Murphy.

Bodies of Two Victims Recovered.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., March 7.—The rescuing party at work in Oliver T. Williams & Sons' slate quarry in Williamsburg, where the tunnel caved in last Thursday, came upon the bodies of Foreman Griffiths, C. Pritchard and one Hungarian.

Richest Woman In Boston Dead.

BOSTON, March 7.—Mrs. Mary Hemenway, the widow of Augustus Hemenway, died at her Chestnut street residence after a long illness, aged 65. She was the richest woman in Boston, possessing a fortune estimated at $15,000,000.

Actor Charles Coghlan Ill.

PITTSBURG, March 7.—Charles F. Coghlan, the actor, who was billed to appear at the Duquesne theater this week, is ill at the Seventy Seventh. He is said to be suffering from nervous prostration, overwork and worry.

SICKLES ON PENSIONS.

He Roundly Criticised the Policy of Commissioner Lochren.

THE TARIFF BILL THREATENED.

Sugar Refiners and Sugar Producers Are Hard to Satisfy, and the Finance Committee Can Count Only on a Narrow Margin Caucus to Strengthen Rules a Fizzle.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—It is believed by some members of the senate finance committee that the bill will be presented to the full committee on Thursday. They will not say so positively, as the same men have previously been of the opinion that the bill might be presented today. Each time they have been disappointed and so will not promise anything definitely.

It is more apparent than ever that the present difference in the committee is over the sugar schedule, and that the contest is between the refiners on one hand and the producers on the other. If these differences could be adjusted, the bill could be reported at once.

It is believed that the representatives of each interest feel that they are strong enough to defeat the bill unless their terms are accepted in full, and have no pretty plain terms so told members of the committee.

The committee, when pressed by these various interests, has indicated that the men who represent them, failing to agree, may be made responsible for the defeat of the bill when it comes before the senate. The committee recognizes the narrow margin with it has in the senate, and not being sure of a single vote of the Populist senators they fear that two Democratic senators would be able to defeat the bill. Bearing this in mind, there have been many and important concessions made to these interests, but the latter refuse to protect in their different states. In this the committee has gone much farther than it felt was Democratic doctrine and has based its concessions upon the granting of a bill of some kind, even if it was far above duties which the committee would desire, would be a step in the direction of tariff reduction, to be followed by further reductions when they were not dependent upon such a narrow majority.

General Sickles Scores Lochren.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The debate on the pension appropriation bill was continued in the house, the feature of the day being General Sickles' speech criticising the action of Commissioner Lochren.

Mr. Sickles had read an extract from Mr. Cleveland's letter of acceptance of the presidential nomination, saying that the debt due the defenders of the Union should be unquestionably discharged. Upon that pledge to the soldiers the Democratic party stood and won the political victory. The pension system commanded the approval of all patriots and all sections. Justice to the Union soldiers was the one thing upon which all were united. This country paid out last year a larger sum in pensions than any other country had ever paid.

The criticism of the pension laws was not that they were not supported by all parties, but was in the administration of those laws in the pension bureau. The secretary of the interior should exercise a watchful and patient supervision of that bureau, and the president of the United States should see to it that there was a fulfillment of the patriotic and wise sentiments enunciated in his letter of acceptance.

He was not able to agree with the commissioner of pensions either in his interpretation of the law or his manner of treating the legislation of congress. The commissioner had characterized the act of Dec. 28, 1893, in which congress declared a pension to be a "vested right," as "inaccurate and inappropriate." That was not a decorous way of treating an act of congress, and his superior officer should have returned it to him with the admonition to treat congress with more respect. [Republican applause.] Indeed, he continued, Commissioner Lochren was as defective in his law as in his manner. [Renewed Republican applause.] He had only to go to his law dictionary to find what was a right and what a vested right. A right was a well founded claim; a vested right, a right to present enjoyment. The pension act of 1890 was a beneficent law. Yet an army of 12,000 men had been deprived of that enjoyment by an official of the government.

Mr. Sickles read from the law to show that in suspending these pensions the commissioner had been guilty of a misdemeanor. He heartily indorsed the declaratory statute of Dec. 28, 1893, and insisted that it ought to stand.

An argument was reached whereby the debate on the bill will close at 3 o'clock this afternoon. Before the debate began the resolution for the investigation of Judge Jenkins' action in issuing an injunction against the Northern Pacific railroad was taken up and passed.

Senate Senators Explain.

A somewhat amusing episode enlivened the senate proceedings, inaugurated by Senator Berry's personal explanation. A New York newspaper had included him in a group of portraits of nine Democratic senators whom it charged with being obstructionists to the tariff bill. Mr. Berry denied that he had ever been anything but an earnest advocate of the bill and in all occasions had urged its speedy report to the senate without modification. His explanation was followed by explanations from Senators Faulkner, Call, McLaurin and Morgan, which led to much amusement in the senate chamber.

The main incident of the day centered about the discussion as to the disposal of the Bland bill. Mr. Stewart gave notice that on Monday at 2 o'clock he would move to take it up and make it the business before the senate until disposed of. Mr. Teller also spoke on the same subject. After a brief executive session the senate adjourned.

House Caucus a Fizzle.

WASHINGTON, March 7.—The Democratic house caucus called to consider the advisability of strengthening the rules failed to secure a quorum, and the 58 Democrats present adjourned without reaching a conclusion. Two months were spent in general discussion. Speaker Crisp left early in the evening and was followed by others, who recognized that nothing would be accomplished. When the meeting broke up, it was the general understanding that the effort to strengthen the rules and compel the attendance of a quorum had come to an end for the present.

SOLD BLOODY RELICS.

Moore Baker Bargains With Dime Museum Agents.

WANTED THE NEGROES' HEADS TOO.

The Man Whose Wife and Child Were So Horribly Murdered Sells Two $500 Suits Furnishings of the Room Where the Tragedy Took Place.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., March 7.—Moore Baker, the slayer of the negroes Willard Thompson and Henry Pierson, who murdered his wife and child, has sold the proprietors of a museum in New York the furniture of the little bed chamber in the Moore cottage at Franklin Park, where the double murder took place in the early morning of March 1.

Baker, who, it was feared, would commit suicide soon after the crime, looked well when the writer met him in New Brunswick. He was on his way to have his picture taken, the first since boyhood, in accordance with an agreement he had made with the museum manager.

Persuaded to Sell.

Baker was busy when the museum agents arrived at Franklin Park, and they were told to wait until some visitors had gone, when he would talk with them. Baker was somewhat surprised when he learned that they wanted to buy the bed room furnishings. He had intended to burn all the articles that were in the room where the murders occurred, but the New York men persuaded him to sell them.

The price agreed on is said to be $500. Somewhat to the surprise of the museum agents, he suggested that they should leave the house where he met them and go over to the house where the crime was committed. He took them to the house, unlocked the front door and led the way to the bed chamber in and near which four lives were taken within a few minutes.

He sat on the edge of the bed and related the whole tragedy from the time that he was awakened by his wife's screams. Then he helped take down the bed, gathered up the fragments of the broken pitcher, roused up his own night dress and the bed clothes and turned them all over to the museum men. They also secured the baby's crib, the ax and the shotgun.

As all the pictures of the principals that could be secured in the vicinity had already been secured, the museum men could not get any in Franklin Park, and when they drove into town they hunted up some people who had photographs. When the owners learned who wanted them, they immediately put up the price to such a stiff figure that the exhibitors went away without any. They left for New York with all the articles.

Wanted the Negroes' Heads.

They said they would have the scene on exhibition by next Sunday. The figures would be reproduced in wax and the whole thing made as realistic as possible. Other museum proprietors were in Franklin Park. They offered $1,000 each for the heads of the buried negroes. This was refused by Baker Van Dorn of the poor farm. He could not lawfully make any such disposition of the bodies.

Mr. Baker was asked why he had sold the things.

"Well," he replied, "I might as well have the money as burn the stuff."

"Did you consult your relatives?" asked the reporter.

"I did not. The property was all mine. Why should I? I did not give them my wife's right name," he added, "although they offered a big price."

Will Be Work For Six Thousand.

GREENSBURG, Pa., March 7.—Information from a prominent official of the H. C. Frick Coke company is to the effect that within two weeks nearly every coke oven in the Connellsville region will be fired up. The move will cover at least 90 per cent of all the ovens in the region—more, it can be said, than have been in operation for three years past. At the very lowest estimate 6,000 men who are now idle will be given employment.

Father Saved His Sons.

GREENSBURG, Pa., March 7.—Buried under a heavy fall of coal for five hours was the experience of George and Henry Mc-Kenzie. The young men and their father work the Keenan coal mine near here. The father worked for an hour to rescue his sons, but his strength failed him, and he crawled to the entry and summoned help. Both young men were almost dying when rescued.

Bourke Cockran In Texas.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 7.—Hon. Bourke Cockran of New York arrived here and will remain a few days. He is on his way to Mexico. When asked in regard to the rumored conference that is to be held here between himself, Croker, Coudert and Gilroy, he laughed and said that their all being here at the same time was merely a coincidence.

Two Killed In a Runaway Accident.

CHILLICOTHE, O., March 7.—Mr. Lutz of Oakland started to drive a young woman domestic to her home. Lutz left the horse for a moment to get a lap robe. While he was gone the horse ran away. The girl was thrown out, and instantly killed, and Lutz, who attempted to stop the frightened animal, was trampled to death.

Wilson Rapidly Recovering.

CITY OF MEXICO, March 7.—A dispatch from Guadalajara says that Congressman William L. Wilson is on a well stocking on still up for three hours. It is expected that he will be able to come to this city in about 10 days. When he arrives here, a reception will be given him by the government.

Train Robbers Frightened Off.

ST. LOUIS, March 7.—Three men made an attempt to hold up a New Orleans passenger train on the Mobile and Ohio railroad near Bowden, Miss., Monday, four miles from East St. Louis. The robbers were frightened away, however, before they accomplished their purpose.

Cheered by News From Guttenburg.

PHILADELPHIA, March 7.—The report that the Guttenburg track would be reopened March 19 has awakened interest among the track followers in this city, who, since the closing of the Gloucester track, have been a very disconsolate lot.

Ice Going Out of the Hudson.

CATSKILL, N. Y., March 7.—The ice in the Hudson at this point is breaking up and in two days will have disappeared if the present mild weather continues. It will be the earliest reopening of navigation in a number of years.

Guerrero Lost a Walking Match.

BOSTON, March 7.—Tom McCarty beat Sue Guerrero in a 10 mile walking match at the Casino.

VESTIBULE TRAIN WRECKED.

Empty Sleeper Smashes Into a Tower Containing Four Men.

COLUMBUS, O., March 7.—The Pennsylvania railroad special No. 2 met with an accident at the Reed avenue crossing about two miles east of the city. This is the solid vestibuled limited and carries passengers from Cincinnati, St. Louis and the west to New York. It is generally well crowded with passengers.

There is a target tower located at Reed avenue, which is two stories high and from which the interlocking switch apparatus is operated. The train had just passed the tower at a rate estimated to be about 30 miles an hour when the last sleeper jumped the track and was thrown against the target, being practically smashed into kindling wood. The force and weight of the sleeper leaving the track pulled the other cars off, and the whole train was derailed, but none of the cars turned over.

At the time the train passed the tower the crew of a yard engine were in the tower waiting to begin work. The fireman of this crew, John McCormick, was badly hurt. Fireman James Jenkins and Yard Master Bert Woodward were also badly injured. Bert Cooper, telegraph operator, and M. L. Wilson, car inspector, were badly hurt, and C. H. H. Bell, brakeman, was injured. They are all of Columbus.

A telegraph pole standing near the tower was broken off by the force of the sleeper when it jumped the track, and one end of it ran through the sleeper. This aided in the destruction of the sleeper and placed the passengers in a most perilous position. The car was well filled, and only a few had retired for the night. The greatest excitement prevailed. The passengers were imprisoned in the car, and the work of rescue was inaugurated.

Assistance was promptly called from the Panhandle yards near by, and the police patrols and ambulances responded and aided in the rescue. Later information from the scene of the wreck is that all have been taken out of the sleeper, and it has not been discovered that any passengers were seriously injured, although many of them have suffered cuts, bruises and severe shocks.

FOUR MINERS KILLED.

There Was a Slide of Rock, Followed by an Explosion.

SCRANTON, Pa., March 7.—Four men met a shocking death by a fall of rock and an explosion of gas at the Richmond mine, in the southern portion of this city. The accident was caused by a slide of rock near the bottom of the shaft and the explosion of a gas blower, into which one of the miners ran with his naked lamp in his attempt to escape the danger from the rock.

The victims of the accident are: Richard Hughes, crushed to death; Thomas Hollwell, burned; James Northey and Albert Richards, crushed.

Four other men who were in the mine at the time of the accident made their escape by running to the foot of the shaft, where they were hoisted to the top. The accident happened near the foot of the shaft, about 325 feet below the surface.

Mrs. Lease's Fame Brings Fortune.

WICHITA, Kan., March 7.—Mrs. Lease, the reform agitator and orator, received word from Dundalk, Ireland, that by a will made by an aunt of hers 19 years ago she is heiress to a large fortune, which has been accumulating at interest ever since. The Irish relatives did not know what had become of the Clines, one of whom Mrs. Lease is, till her fame spread over the continent.

Tent King's Band at Work.

WATONGA, Kan., March 7.—Four masked men and a woman, disguised, and another man who is supposed to be the notorious Tom King raided the Traders' store at Cantonment and made the proprietor and five clerks line up at the point of revolvers. They robbed every one of them and then took the money in the safe.

Joint Forestry Meeting.

ALBANY, March 7.—There was begun in the assembly chamber this afternoon a joint meeting of the American Forestry association, the New York State Forestry association, the Adirondack Park association and the various local forestry associations of the state of New York.

Sale of the Standard Cement Company.

BUFFALO, March 7.—The plant and lands of the Standard Cement company at Akron, N. Y., were sold in the vestibule of the city hall by the receiver to satisfy creditors.

Playing Poet.

"It seems strange," said Georgie de Blink, "That a poem's but paper and ink;
Now I've had them both here
For an hour, and it's queer,
But there's something still lacking, I think."

A Puzzler.

"Paw," said little Tommy Figg, "I heard Mr. Watts say that great men's sons never did any good. I ain't a great man's son, am I?" Up to a late hour Mr Figg's mind had not found a sufficiently diplomatic answer.—Indianapolis Journal.

Wise Bertha.

Bertha—Grandma, is oor teef good?
Grandma—No, darling; I've got some sore, unfortunately.
Bertha—Then I'll give oo my nuts to mind till I come back.

He Never Had a Mother.

Little Girl—That great, big, dirty, old tramp is a big, big story teller. His old hat pie was so good as his mother used to make.
Mamma—Don't you think that likely?
Little Girl—Of course not. He never had any mother.

Vegetable Poetry.

Potatoes come from far Virginia;
Parsley was sent as from Sardinia;
French beans, low growing on the earth,
To distant Inglis trace their birth;
The sage comes from Spain, they say,
That climb upon the garden wall—
A cheerful sight to all around—
In South America are found
The onions traveled here from Spain;
The leek from Switzerland we gain,
Garlic from Sicily obtain,
Spinach in far Syria grows,
Two hundred years ago or more,
Recall the artichoke sent o'er,
And southern Europe's sun-clad shore
Sent cresses on us beaux.
When Elizabeth was reigning here,
Peas came from Holland and were dear.
The south of Europe sent to Britain
The beans, but some from Egypt came.
The radishes both this and stout,
Natives of China are, no doubt;
But long ere records end or tale
With celery so crisp and pale.
Are products of our own fair land.
And cabbages, a goodly tribe.
Which other pens might well describe—
Are also ours I understand.

Watchung Park Property!

Handsomely Situated BUILDING LOTS Now Offered For Sale.

This Property is in the heart of the recently opened residence section of the city, being within a few minutes' walk of the Central Railroad station. The New Watchung Park, with its new streets and avenues, will be among the handsomest residence sections in this pretty suburban place.

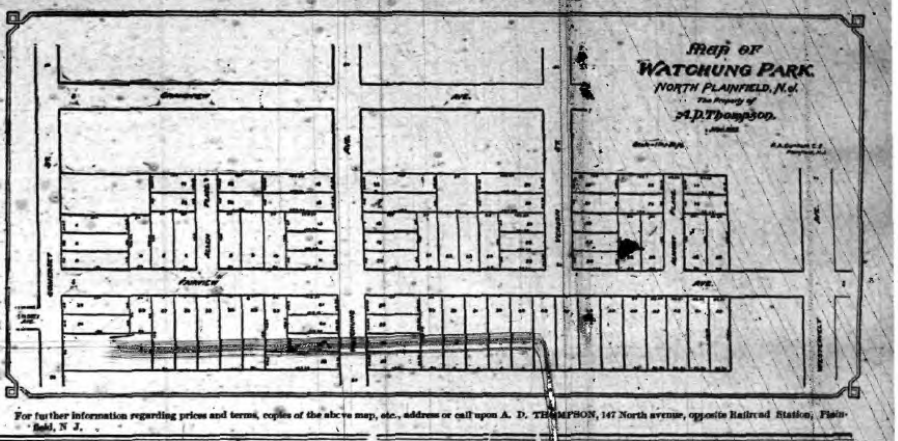
Only High Grade Residences will be erected. The neighborhood will be restricted, making it as desirable as any in Plainfield.

All Modern Improvements will be in force by early Spring. The water, the macadamizing of the streets is now being pushed rapidly. Electric Cars Pass the property. Electric light, natural city water will be introduced as soon as the System is completed.

Scores of Beautiful Homes now fronting on Sandford and Westervelt avenues have been located on the old Cannonball Ball Field.

Just as Property Values jumped in Sandford and Westervelt avenues, so will they also increase rapidly in Watchung Park. Those who buy now will reap the benefit of an early investment.

The Lots Are About 50x150 feet in size, and the printed map of the property will give the public necessary information as to their location.



For further information regarding prices and terms, copies of the above map, etc., address or call upon A. D. THOMPSON, 147 North avenue, opposite Railroad Station, Plainfield, N. J.

SHADOWS ON THE WALL.

An Amusement That is Older Than America.

"Hand shadows" may be shown on a wall or on an ordinary piece of sheeting but a better plan is for the operator to stand behind a screen. For this purpose an ordinary folding linen hoop, about five or six feet high, will answer well. These are generally in three sections, which fold on canvas hinges. Strain a piece of calico about one and one-half yards square across the upper part of the middle section. Drape the rest of the linen hoops, and your screen is ready for use. A candle should be placed a few feet behind the center of the calico, and all other lights should be removed or turned down.

THE DONKEY.

A very little practice will enable you to open and close the mouth and wag the ears of this donkey.

The hands, when at work between the calico and the candle, will throw shadows on the former, and these will be seen by the spectators on the other side, while the operator behind the screen will be out of sight. If the calico is wetted the shadows will be more distinct. In some shadows, hats and other accessories are used. These may be cut out of cardboard or stiff brown paper.

A RABBIT.

For the rabbit you should keep the four legs moving. Be careful to keep the lower part of the arms behind the draped portion of the screen.

APRON STRINGS.

Boys Should be Proud of the Tie that Binds Them to Their Mother.

"I promised my mother I would be home at 6 o'clock."

"But what harm will an hour more do?"

"It will make my mother worry, and I shall break my word."

"Before I'd be tied to a woman's apron-strings."

"My mother doesn't wear aprons," said the first speaker, with a laugh, "except in the kitchen sometimes, and I don't know as I ever noticed any strings."

"You know what I mean. Can't you stay and see the game finished?"

"I could stay, but I will not. I made a promise to my mother, and I am going to keep it."

A Matter of MOONSHINE!

When people advertise bargains did you ever stop to think that the bargains they speak of may be for the seller and not for the buyer? Many of the gross offerings are but a delusive mixture of moonshine, and it may do for once, but folks are not hankering after it for a steady diet.

HERE'S SOLID WORTH.

SWISS GINGHAMS—The prettiest lot of Ginghams ever brought to this town. They are worth 25c of any one's money, but 12½c. is all we ask.

WHITE, of Plainfield.

MILLINERY, DRY GOODS, MATTINGS AND HOUSE FURNISHINGS.

"Good boy!" said a hoarse voice, just back of the two boys.

They turned to see an old man, poorly clad and very feeble.

"Abraham Lincoln once told a young man," the stranger resumed, "to cut the acquaintance of every person who talked slightingly of his mother's apron-strings, and it is a very safe thing to do, as I know by experience. It was just such talk that brought me to ruin and disgrace, for I was ashamed not to do as other boys did, and when they made fun of mother I laughed too—God forgive me! There came a time when it was too late"—and now there were tears in the old eyes—"when I would gladly have been made a prisoner, tied by those same apron-strings, in a dark room with bread and water for my fare. Always keep your engagement with your mother. Never disappoint her if you can possibly help it, and when advised to cut loose from her apron-strings, cut the adviser and take a tighter clutch of the apron-strings. This will bring joy and long life to your mother, the best friend you have in the world, and will insure you a noble future, for it is impossible for a good son to be a bad man."

It was an excellent sign that both boys listened attentively, and both said "thank you," at the conclusion of the stranger's lecture, and both left the ball grounds together, silent and thoughtful. At last the apron-string critic remarked, with a tear drawn by sight:

"That old man has made me goose-flesh all over.

"O, Dick," said his companion, "just think what lovely mothers we have both got!"

"Yes; and if anything were to happen to them, and we hadn't done right! You'll never hear apron-strings cut of my mouth again."—Harper's Young People.

Hunkum Hill.

I used to gaze on Hunkum Hill
And think it very high,
And one of Nature's mighty props
That helped uphold the sky.
One day I toddled up its side
And stood upon its top,
And then I learned the sky must rest
Upon some other prop.

And so I've kept on climbing hill
From busy day to day,
But from the topmost peaks I find
The sky is far away.
In spite of many tumbles, still
This sermon I would preach.
Life's greatest fun is grasping for
The things we cannot reach.
—Sam Walter Foss, in Yankee Blade.

Lord Bute.

The biggest dog in the world is a St. Bernard, called Lord Bute. He arrived in this country from England. He is thirty-six inches high at the shoulder, and weighs 247 pounds.

Lord Bute has made himself famous in England for another reason besides his size. He has traveled all over England collecting money for charitable purposes. On his collar was fastened a little barrel to hold his collections. He has contributed thousands of dollars to charitable societies by his fame as a tremendous big fellow and an earnest worker for people not so well off as himself.

A camel is able to travel twenty days without water, but when it does drink it takes a draught of fifty gallons.

BRIGHT SAYINGS OF LITTLE TOTS.

DIDN'T CARE FOR OATS AND HAY.

"I wish I was a horse," said Wally, as he watched his father's horse prancing around the field. Then he added, "Except at dinner-time."

WHAT SHE WOULD DO.

"I know what I'd do if I was an angel," said little Polly. "I'd take my wings and fly back home an' live in our old canary cage, and make mamma think I was a birdie."

NOT A PLAIN TALKER.

"Can your little brother talk, Dorothy?"

"Yeth; but nobody but the dollith can underthtand what he thayth."—Harper's Young People.

WHAT HE SAID.

Little Dot—I saw Uncle Toby in church, Mamma—Did you? What did he have to say?

Little Dot—He said: "Amen."

NOT MUCH DIFFERENCE.

Little Boy—I wish I had a rabbit.

Mr. Fourthfloor—What would you do with a rabbit in a flat?

Little Boy—Well, I guess a rabbit could get along 'bout as well as I can.

GRANDMA'S LIKES.

Little Boy—I guess grandma likes August.

Papa—Because it's so warm?

Little Boy—No, 'cause it hasn't any Fourth of July.

A PLAN THAT FAILED.

Mamma—How did you get scratched so?

Little Daughter—I was putting dolly's shoes an' stockin's on the kitty.

"What for?"

"So she couldn't scwatch."

Bob and the Wonderful Conch Shell.

Little Bob is fond of fairy tales, and he likes to make them up for himself. The most wonderful things happen to him, if all he tells is true.

One day his papa brought him home a conch shell, which, when he held it to his ear, seemed to be filled with a roaring sound, as of the dashing of the waves on the sea-shore, and recognized the sound at once.

"It's just like the roar of the ocean, isn't it Bob?" said his father, as the little fellow held the shell to his ear.

"Exactly," said Bob; and then a smile spread over his face. "And, papa," he added, "I can hear a little boy's nurse telling the little boy to stop pouring sand down her neck."

At another time, during Bob's stay at the sea-shore, some one asked him if he had ever seen any sand-piddlers, meaning, of course, those singular little creatures that burrow in the sand, and make such an ado when they happen to be uncovered.

"Oh yes," replied Bob. "I've seen lots of sand-fiddlers. One of 'em came and sat down by me to-day, and played half a dozen tunes for me."

"Do they play anything besides the fiddle, Bob?" asked his papa.

"Yes," said Bob; "they play hop, skip, and jump."—Harper's Young People.

The New Baby.

Out on the door-step, the windiest morning,
Bright baby for the little head's only adorning.
His eyes ablaze with excitement and joy—
The wee little will-o'-the-wisp of a boy!
I was going by as straight as you chance,
When he hailed me with this astonishing news:

"O, sir, did you hear 'bout our baby upstairs,
A-thout any teeths and just two or free hairs?
Her eyes are shut so you can't look froo,
But I opened, and that one was blue.
She's only just Her, till we name her a name,
'Cause, don't you see, mister, she's only just came?
She's most too teenty to tickle and touch
But I appreciate her very much.
Her nose is pug—but it might be pugger,
If you'll 'muse me now, I'll go in and hug her."

—Annie Hamilton Donnell, in Youth's Companion.

Singing Sands.

Singing sands are found in many parts of the United States, but squeaking sands are not so common. There is only one place in the country where the squeaking sand is found, and that is a small plain in South Colorado. The singing sand emits a musical sound only when dry, and loses the property on being dampened. The squeaking sand, on the other hand, is silent when dry, and squeaks best and loudest when moistened. The sound it gives forth is by no means loud, but somewhat resembles the squeaking of an arm-chair. It sounds when rubbed between the fingers, or when placed in a small bag and violently struck, but the cause of the sound is a mystery.

CLAY A HARD LOSER.

Pulled a Revolver and Made a Scene In a Broker's Office.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 7.—A scene of the wildest excitement and terror was enacted in the rooms of the Commerce and Commission company, on the first floor of the Guaranty Building and Loan company's building, when Attorney B. B. Clay, who has been operating somewhat extensively, became greatly excited and pulled a revolver upon Manager Clarke.

It was then the latter worked was closing and the last reports were being received. Mr. Clarke was seated at his desk, and his assistant, Mr. Littlefield, was seated near him. Clay had been treading the market, buying and selling first in one department and then in another, and things did not go to suit him. He believed that he was losing heavily. Just before the market closed sugar went up 13 points, and this seems to be the feather which broke the camel's back, for Clay became suddenly enraged, and drawing a loaded revolver he rushed up to Manager Clarke and demanded a settlement of the money which he thought due him from the transactions.

Mr. Clarke informed Clay that he was entitled to no money, whereupon Clay cocked the gun and went a step nearer Clarke. The latter became thoroughly frightened and suddenly darted into the vault and slammed the door behind him. Clay did not offer to shoot at Littlefield, and after some further parley he left the place and was not seen afterward. The police were notified and are investigating the affair.

DETERMINED TO DIE.

Philadelphia Woman's Desperate Efforts to Drown Herself In Fairmount Park.

PHILADELPHIA, March 7. — Mrs. Ella Brown of 3431 Spring Garden street, this city, made a desperate attempt at suicide in Fairmount park. In company with two other ladies she was riding along the Wissahickon drive, which runs along a deep creek. At a point near Maple spring she asked the coachman to stop the horses for a minute.

The request was granted, and almost instantly Mrs. Brown jumped from the carriage and leaped over the railing into the creek, the water of which at that point is about nine feet deep. Park Guard Robert Dean rushed to the scene and jumped into the water, but the woman resisted his attempts to rescue her, and a fierce struggle in the water ensued. The guard finally managed to get her to the bank.

The woman, evidently more desperate than ever, made another rush for the water as soon as the guard released his hold, but she was stopped by the coachman. Later she was removed to the hospital. She would give no reason for her attempt at self destruction.

Gatling Gun Trained on Strikers.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 7.—The governor says there is no apprehension of any further trouble among the Kanawha miners. The officers are continually making arrests, and the troubles are all well in hand. The preliminary examination of the Wyant strikers is now in progress at Greenville. It will probably consume several days. The Wyants are out on bail. The gatling gun which was taken to Eagle has been placed in position there, and it is thought that it will have a good effect in quieting the strikers. It is to plain view of the railroad, and the great crowds of striking miners that pass on every freight train look at it as long as it is in view.

Burglars Chloroform Three Families.

JEFFERSONVILLE, Ind., March 7.—There was a wholesale chloroforming of residents by burglars in this city. The entire family of Frank Briggs were put under the influence, and the house was ransacked. A large amount of money was taken by the burglars. The home of William Dutch was then visited, and the family were chloroformed. Next the burglars visited Frank Bayer's home. Here they chloroformed the entire family, but secured no plunder.

International Steam Yacht Race.

PHILADELPHIA, March 7.—McBride Brothers of this city, the owners of the fast steam yacht Yankee Doodle, announced that they would accept the challenge of the Kingdom company, owners of the Irish steam launch Hibernia, to match their boat against the Yankee Doodle or any other boat in the United States for £1,000 a side. According to the dispatches the Hibernia is reported to be the fastest boat on the other side of the Atlantic.

Jesse Pomeroy Still at It.

BOSTON, March 7.—Jesse Pomeroy, the famous boy murderer, who is serving a life sentence in the Charlestown state prison, has been caught in another attempt to escape. It was discovered that he had been removing the mortar and stones in the back of his cell. He had proceeded with the work so far that he would have gained his liberty in a short time.

Assistant Cashier Was the Robber.

DENVER, Col., March 7.—O. C. Gregory, assistant cashier of the Dexter Savings bank, has confessed to Detective Baker of Detroit that he himself stole $3,200 from the vault of the bank last Thursday and that his story of being attacked and slugged by masked robbers was purely fiction.

Severe Storm In Missouri.

BUTLER, Mo., March 7.—A severe storm passed over this section. A few miles southeast it was almost of cyclonic energy, doing considerable damage. The house of Roger Smith was totally demolished, and he and his wife and two daughters were all injured.

Rocther Not a Candidate.

PROVIDENCE, March 7.—William G. Rocther has notified the Republican state central committee that he is not a candidate for senatorial honors. This assures the nomination of ex-Governor George Peabody Wetmore.

Fatal Boiler Explosion.

PITTSBURGH, March 7.—The boiler of a mail engine at the Forest Oil company's well, Laurel Hill, exploded, instantly killing Edward Neeley, the engineer. Neeley's body was blown 150 feet over a tree.

Revolution In Costa Rica.

LONDON, March 7.—A dispatch received here from Panama says that a revolution has broken out in Costa Rica. But, it adds, so far the rebels have not been successful.

Woman's Land Syndicate In Trouble.

CHICAGO, March 7.—A receiver for the Woman's land syndicate is asked. Allegations of fraud and deception are made.

Bishop Coxe Still After Satolli.

BUFFALO, March 7.—Bishop Coxe has written another open letter to Mgr. Satolli.

Tariff Reform.

TO THE WORKING-MEN.

Our industry is now in a very bad state,
What are all our rulers about?
Why don't the workingmen take it in hand,
And help vote the Democrats out?

With their "Government" and "Tariff Reform,"
They promised us everything well,
Now, they are in power,—we sorely find out,
Their promise was only a sell!

CHORUS:

Let us shoulder to shoulder, stand up line upon line,
We can all the Democrats fix sure,
For too many rich men have had their own way,
Those—who don't care a job for the poor.

They have been in power now, exactly a year,
And had lots of time, I am sure,
To do something more for the good of the land,
Not forgetting the starving poor.
Now what do they care for the poor workingmans
Why all they want is his vote:
Remember my friends, there are true, honest hearts
Under many an old ragged coat!

Just look at our "Factories" here now, to-day,
Then cast your thoughts back for a year,
And then ask yourselves, which is the best party is,
I think the proof now plain and clear.
Now look at the work we had one year ago,
We then had enough and to spare,
But now we have, and lots of the times once again,
For now its all trouble and care.

And Wilson says now—that he has a new bill,
to knock the McKinley bill out,
Why don't they then pass it,—and let us all see
And not have us wasting in doubt?
Now Mr. McKinley has never shot down a bill,
Or sat down a working-man's pay,
But it Wilson's bill is as good as he claims,
Why then pass it, without delay.

CHORUS:

Then throw out ben Harrison, one year ago,
And said thick, much trouble now ends;
I will ask you my friends to answer yourselves,
Now what is your answer, my friends?
Why Harrison fought and bled for this land,
And what all did Cleveland then do?
Why he got a big thistle tuck in his place,
Was that being loyal and true?

CHORUS:

There's a day when we decorate, you all know,
The graves of the gray and the blue,
And says, where was Harrison that day, my friends,
Oh was he not with us there too?

While Cleveland went fishing down at the bay
We have no question about,
Why nothing at all as you plainly see,
A nice pan on whom to depend.

O. F. HAYNES.

Demanding Free School Books.

At the school meeting in North Plainfield this year the question of furnishing school books free to the children, as it is done in other places will be brought up, and will probably be favored.

The people are complaining that the present system is unjust where different kinds of books are used in different townships. For instance a family living in Dunellen and moving to Plainfield or North Plainfield find the books they had already bought are worthless. Then even the books in use are suddenly changed. There is no reason in this, when it is found that the change is for the better.

Some consider that the books should be selected by a State Board made up of the superintendents in each school district, thereby securing uniformity throughout the state and secure economy.

Most of the parents, it is maintained, find the furnishing of school books rather burdensome, and believe changes in books are often made without much regard for the interests of either the pupil or the parent.

At all events the indications are that there will be a big turn out at the next annual meeting to be called within a few weeks.

Consumption Cured.

I commenced drinking Salem's Miracle Elixir when very low with consumption, the physicians telling my friends almost daily and pronouncing my case beyond hope or help. I am now a well man. OBLIE SANDERS, Marion, Ohio.

PENSION BILL PASSED.

Was Carried Through the House Without Division.

IT APPROPRIATES $151,000,000.

General Henderson and Ex-Speaker Grow Make Stirring Speeches—Sugiebarge Bill Almost Slipped Through the Senate Unnoticed—The Blanchard Affair.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—An exciting and interesting debate was precipitated in the senate by Mr. Harris' motion for the second reading of the sugiebarge bill. This was opposed by Mr. Sherman, who moved its reference to the finance committee, and in the course of a strong speech in opposition to the bill he said that its object was to divert a trust fund from its legitimate purposes, a thing which in Ohio would be a penitentiary offense. His motion was defeated, however, and the bill was taken up as unfinished business, and will come before any one was aware of what had happened it passed its third reading and was on the point of passing the senate.

Then the opponents recovered from their surprise and endeavored to prevent its passage, and on request of Senator Sherman it went over.

In the morning hour Mr. Morgan introduced a resolution calling on the president for information as to the occupancy of Bluefields, Nicaragua, by the British. This was agreed to.

The house bill appropriating $45,000 for saving the Kearsarge was also passed, as was the bill authorizing General O. O. Howard to accept from the French government the decoration of commander of the Legion of Honor.

Pension Bill Passed.

After five days of debate the pension appropriation bill, carrying $151,000,000, was passed without division.

Throughout the debate there had been no criticism of the amount carried by the bill, debate being on the one hand confined to an assault on the manner in which the present administration of pensions had administered the office and his alleged unauthorized suspension of pensions, and on the other to a defense of the attempt of the commissioner to purge the rolls of those who were not entitled to a place upon them.

There were several very spirited speeches —those by General Henderson of Iowa, Mr. O'Neil in closing the debate and ex-Speaker Grow.

Mr. O'Neil of Massachusetts, who was in charge of the bill, closed the debate. No amendments looking to an increase of the appropriation bill were suggested, he said. The debate had been largely for political effect. The Republicans, as they saw the field of pensions was soon to be reached, realized that their stock in trade would cease when they could no longer go before the country crying out that they had increased the amount of pensions. Concluding Mr. O'Neil warned the Republicans that they were in a poor business when they sought to discredit General Black and Commissioner Lochren in the eyes of the old soldiers. Neither could they discredit the president with the American people. They had altogether too high an honesty, his pluck and his courage. [Applause.]

Eloquence From Henderson and Grow.

General Henderson of Iowa, who has been ill for some time, next got the floor. Several weeks ago he had submitted to another amputation of his limb. He had been pained beyond measure, he said, to find that upon a bill which was inspired with such patriotic heart this house was so divided as if it was a war measure. General Black, who deserved every generous word that had been spoken concerning him, had stood here with a bouquet of rhetoric for the soldier in one hand and a dagger to strike him to the soul in the other.

"Oh, my countrymen," said General Henderson, addressing the Democratic side, "he who wore stars upon his shoulders in the cause of the Union can more narm to his old comrades than all those who fought under the Confederate flag.

"Mark the contrast presented by that other distinguished soldier, General Sickles [Republican applause], who, fearing not thunder of the executive or the cruel peril of peonage, now stands for the soldiers with whom he fought. Scars are honorable, but they must not be used as a cloak from behind which to strike equally honorable men. This debate shall not close without my crying 'Shame, shame!' at the soldier who sought to discredit his comrades in arms."

Grow Defends Pensioners.

Mr. Grow of Pennsylvania offered the last amendment providing that no pension on account of disability in the service should be less than $6 per month. While this amendment as a text he made a brief speech in favor of the pensioners, and his patriotism and glowed with the fire of eloquence. He wanted the benefit received by the veterans dignified in battle to be of a substantial character during the remainder of their pilgrimage through life. It would be but a few years before the last of the survivors of the mighty conflict would sleep in the narrow chamber of the dead. The blessings that had come from that cruel strife had been enjoyed by conqueror and conquered alike. The members listened to Mr. Grow's words with close attention, and a burst of applause from both sides of the house greeted his conclusion.

All the amendments to the bill save one —that of Mr. Pickler, to make the reports of the examining surgeons upon the inspection of the applicant or his attorneys were defeated. They all fell under points of order that they were not germane. The one that attracted most attention was that of Mr. Enloe—to repeal a portion of the provision included in the act of last December to prevent the suspension of any pension except on 30 days' notice, so as to permit the suspension in case of plain prima facie evidence that the pensioner had procured his pension by forgery, perjury or other palpable fraud.

This amendment was offered at the suggestion of Commissioner Lochren himself, who, under the opinion of the attorney general, declared that if the act of last December stood over $300,000 would have to be paid out to suspended pensioners who were proved beyond all question not to be longer entitled to the pensions they had been drawing. Mr. Outhwaite, the chairman of the committee of the whole, however, ruled the amendment out on Mr. Martin's point of order that it was not germane.

The New Louisiana Senator.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Representative Blanchard's associates in the house heard with much satisfaction of his elevation to the senate. Speaker Crisp expressed regret that the house was to lose such a valuable and hard working member.

It is noticed that Representative Catchings of Mississippi will succeed Mr. Blanchard as chairman of the important ways and means committee. Mr. Catchings has been on the committee ever since he entered congress—10 years ago—and is next in order to Mr. Blanchard. Wood resolutions have that Mr. Blanchard was on his way to Washington. Mr. Blanchard had expected the senatorial appointment from the time Senator White's resignation to the bench was announced. He did not disguise his hope and expectation, but at once set about making an active canvass for the place. Mr. Blanchard's position on silver and silver will give additional interest to his entrance to the senate. He voted for the Wilson bill, despite the fact that it bore heavily against the sugar interests of his state.

He worked diligently to change the sugar schedule, but failing in this he would not follow the course of some of his Louisiana associates in voting against the entire bill. On silver Mr. Blanchard has always acted with the conservative free silver men, so that he will undoubtedly ally himself with that element in the senate.

The English at Bluefields.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The resolution of inquiry concerning the British at Bluefields introduced in the senate by Mr. Morgan was the result of the discussion of this subject by the senate foreign relations committee. There is an apprehension in the minds of senators that the English government is making an effort to obtain a footing on the eastern coast of the isthmus in violation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, and the action of the committee is directed toward securing whatever information the state department may have on the subject. It is understood that the people especially jealous of any movement on the part of a foreign government which might affect the Nicaraguan canal, and probably nothing could happen to give more greater concern than for England to secure a foothold in that region.

Postmasters Nominated.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The president sent the following nominations to the senate:

Postmasters—Charles J. Porter, Bethel, Conn.; Bridget Lane, Summit, N. J.; Henry C. Dater, Haines Falls, N. Y.; Harry J. Newton, Clifton Springs, N. Y.; William H. Cotter, Union Springs, N. Y.; Norman A. Seymour, Mount Morris, N. Y.; George Rogue, Millerton, N. Y.; William M. Bullis, Sherburne, N. Y.; John T. Gallup, Greenport, N. Y.; Henry Hollingsworth, N. Y.; Norman W. Hoes, Geneseo, N. Y.; T. M. Davis, Alfred Center, N. Y.; Philip Jaeggin, Belmont, N. Y.; Philip Juergens, Hamburg, N. Y.; Clinton J. Gitt, Hanover, Pa.; Robert M. Elliott, Gettysburg, Pa.; John E. Adams, Franklin, Pa.

Fourth Class Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The following fourth class postmasters were appointed:

New Jersey—Stirling, P. O. Reilly.

New York—John Gay, Gouverneur, A. A. McMillen; Grant Neck, G. W. Hayden; Union Mountain, P. J. Mullin; Moores, H. S. Haff; Roslyn, J. K. Dayton.

Pennsylvania—Malvern, Alfred Elliott; Mercerville, A. H. Trostman; Meadow, Mrs. S. J. Sherman; Somerville, H. F. Drucken Miller; Tamasend, Mrs. S. R. Bower.

Benham Transfers His Flag.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Admiral Benham has cabled the navy department from Rio that he has transferred his flag from the New York to the San Francisco. The New York has been lying in Rio harbor about two weeks, and it is her turn to go outside for fresh air.

During Jewelry Thieves.

WICHITA, Kan., March 8.—Two men entered Pierce's jewelry store on Douglas avenue, and holding the proprietor up they proceeded to help themselves to diamonds and gold watches. A watchmaker who was working unnoticed behind a high showcase coolly stole up to the front door and locked it and then turned on the burglars with a pistol. The flight of the two warned the robbers, and finding the door locked they escaped with the booty by jumping through a plate glass window. One of the robbers was captured.

Held Up a Saloon.

ST. LOUIS, March 8.—A bold holding occurred in a saloon in one of the principal streets of St. Louis. Three men appeared in the saloon of John Carroll and Pat Hartigan at 1626 South Broadway. One man carried a gun and wore a mask. He ordered the crowd of men present to hold up their hands while his two companions relieved them of three gold watches and $175 in money. Before the crowd could recover from their surprise the daring thieves had escaped.

Old Time Stage Robbers at Work.

MILTON, Cal., March 8.—The Angeles camp stage from this place was held up by masked men three miles from Elkhorn station. The treasure box was gifted of its contents, and passengers were relieved of their valuables. An extra stage and single rig were also stopped and the passengers relieved of their valuables. Officers have started for the scene of the robbery.

Unsettled Tariff Rifts an Industry.

CHICAGO, March 8.—Count Lubienski, who was going to plant a Polish colony of sugar beet farmers in Antelope county, Neb., has given up the enterprise. He said in an interview that the unfriendly tone of the Wilson bill toward sugar made it impossible for him to interest capital in the beet sugar refineries.

Domino Game Ends in Murder.

HALLETTSVILLE, Tex., March 8.—Frank Bartek of the New Orleans Brewing association went to Whiting and while there engaged in a game of dominoes with William Isleib. The game wound up in a row. Bartek slashed Isleib with a knife, and the latter shot and killed Bartek.

VIENNA, March 8.—The emperor of Germany decided to accompany the emperor to Abazia. The imperial couple will go by way of Venice and will probably start on the 15th.

FUN ON A MODERN ARK.

Tauric's Animal Passengers Most Unruly Lot.

WILD SCENES ON DECK IN A STORM.

The Elephant Drank Whisky Until He Was Dizzy, She Served Half Got Loose, and the Ape Eater Tried to Make a Meal of His Keeper—The Trip Was Lively.

NEW YORK, March 8.—It must be said that the conduct of the 250 passengers of the Tauric was simply beastly, and the officers of the steamer were glad when the whole crowd were trundled away to Brooklyn in the wagons shortly after the vessel reached her pier here.

Jolly, the elephant, the only one of the lot who was a favorite with every body, disgraced himself shortly after he disembarked by stealing hay, frightening a driver and causing homeward bound Brooklynites to stand aghast. On the way here one of the lot, an ant eater, wounded his keeper and killed the giant rat. The lions tried to break loose from their cages, and the hyenas kept the whole ship awake by their ill timed mirth. The sacred bull forgot his dignity in high kicking, and Jolly drank beer and whisky until, like the elephant in the circus, he went round and rolled when he got on shore.

A Thieving Elephant.

It is not often that a hay wagon is looted on the high seas, but Senator Morgan is so and right before the eyes of a stalwart and unusually undaunted policeman, but the latter was powerless to help matters.

The way the menagerie acted on the trip over here on the Tauric was most censurable. Old Neptune went out on a frolic Friday night, and the animals in the 13 big yellow wagons lashed to the Tauric's main deck joined in. The freighter staggered along in the choppy waves, with her head away over to one side.

The lions and tigers roared, the hyenas laughed with ribald glee, and the dissolute panthers in the hold trumpeted for another bottle.

The Tauric was more than half seas over herself when the storm struck her. She rolled and pitched until the officers and crew feared that the big cages would go crashing over the decks and release their jungle bred occupants.

The wagon containing the Numidian lions began to sway in the gale and to turn in its lashings. The prisoners within roared and dashed their bodies against the iron barred pen until it seemed a question of only a few minutes before it would break adrift. The captain had almost decided to leave to out to sea in the big box of living freight overboard when there came a lull in the storm, and the crew were able to strengthen the lashings.

Sacred Bull on a Rampage.

The sacred bull took advantage of the turmoil and tried to slip away unobserved. His conduct was the height of cool cheek and his wagon, and through the opening he wandered out into the storm.

The bull was not content to browse on the green hillocks of water astern when a sailor threw a rope over his head and drew him back. He limped painfully to his cage, for he had sprained one of his second ankles.

Jolly was securely boarded up in the hold. He trumpeted all day and all that night. The keepers feared that he would catch cold and gave him more whisky. He became frolicsome, and there was many a tar who had his black eye given him by the animal's trunk, moved his big head in a lively manner and crowned his derivative by chasing his keeper's hat.

The big ant eater and the giant rat dwelt together in amity in one of the cages until Alexis Canot, animal tamer and lion trainer, started to clean out their cage on Tuesday morning. Then the ant eater's large. The ant eater was hungry. There was a scuffle over the dry hay in the cage, and the ant eater dug his teeth into the calf of Canot's leg.

The taste of blood maddened him. He fastened his fangs deeper in the yielding flesh, and man and beast struggled and fought over the floor of the cage. The attendants heard the screaming of the trainer and hurried to the cage, the sides of which and the straw on the floor were spattered with blood, and young Canot had almost fainted. Manager Frank Hall seized a pitchfork and drove the ant eater into the animal again and again before he could break its hold.

Canot was taken to a hospital upon the arrival of the steamer in port. The animals have all been safely landed in Brooklyn.

Liquor Spotters Hooted About Town.

MANCHESTER, N. H., March 8.—The two agents for the New Hampshire Law and Order league, who precipitated the riot in Concord a few days ago, received a warm reception in this city. Everywhere they went a crowd of over 100 men and boys followed them about the city and hissed them. The Law and Order men made no attempt to secure rooms, but kept well to be closely watched until they leave the city.

Want to Lynch the Lynchers.

RICHMOND, March 8.—News has just been received that 75 of the friends of Slaughter, the man who was lynched a fortnight ago at Sparta, N. C., are looking for the 15 men who executed him. The men who lynched Slaughter are dodging about in the country to avoid the vengeance of the thoroughly aroused friends of their victim.

Sale of The Commercial Gazette Denied.

CINCINNATI, March 8.—Referring to the rumors about Perry and Fletcher Heath securing a controlling interest in that paper, The Commercial Gazette today published a denial. Proctor & Morgan still hold the majority stock.

Charged With Robbing the Dead.

COLUMBUS, O., March 8.—Dr. James A. Park, agent for Company Herbert, is in custody, charged with having appropriated a diamond pin, the property of Henry Clark, a New York traveling man, who dropped dead at the Develdeer House.

MINERS SUBDUED.

Troops and Gatling Gun Recalled From Kaglo.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 8.—Major Banks, commanding three companies at Eagle, telegraphed the governor that a portion of the troops should be removed. They will be recalled today. The gatling gun which mounted there has been sent back here for repairs.

Pink Brown, who furnished the dynamite to the strikers, was arrested near Montgomery and taken to Fayetteville. He said two of the strikers tried to induce him to let them have dynamite. He is not himself a miner, but has lost an arm while using dynamite to kill fish.

There have been 35 strikers arrested, and many warrants are still unserved.—Absentee Sheriff Cunningham is going east, and there was a meeting somewhere last night. These meetings are all secret and back in the mountains away from the railroad.

The sheriff received a letter, signed by a citizen of Montgomery, threatening to make it hot for the editor if the paper published anything more concerning the plot of the miners to have Wyant arrested and brought to Montgomery for trial, when he and his guard were to be dynamited. Six gas coal mines have resumed.

GLADSTONE'S CONDITION.

The Ex-Premier Is Ill In Bed With an Inflamed Throat.

LONDON, March 8.—The following bulletin was issued by Mr. Gladstone's physicians:

"Mr. Gladstone is suffering from a troublesome cough, due to a catarrhal inflammation of the throat. His temperature, however, is only slightly above normal, and his strength is good. He remains in bed."

Mr. Gladstone was in a cheerful mood during the day and was able to dictate replies to many of the letters he received inquiring about his condition and expressing sympathy.

It is probable that Mr. Herbert Gladstone will take the agricultural portfolio and the Right Hon. James Bryce the post of first commissioner of public works, to which office Mr. Herbert Gladstone has been appointed.

Bomb Was Filled With Lead.

LONDON, March 8.—The alleged bomb found in how street turned out to have been harmless. The tin canister discovered by the police only contained a blank cartridge covered over with a quantity of sand and having a fuse attached to it. Though the police officials have been finally compelled to admit that they have not discovered a dynamite plot, they still insist that such a plot may be in existence and express the belief that the tin box and cartridge found were intended as a threat upon the part of anarchists, who took this means of informing the police of their danger.

Blanchard Appointed Senator.

NEW ORLEANS, March 8.—Governor Foster received the resignation of United States Senator E. C. White, to take effect on Monday, March 12. The governor accepted the same and appointed Hon. Newton C. Blanchard, who, by reason of his long service in Washington, is one of the best known public men in the state. Congressman Blanchard is now in the fourteenth year of his service in the lower branch in the national assembly. Mr. Blanchard will take his senator until the legislature has filled the vacancy caused by the resignation of Judge White.

Tammany Leaders Meet In Texas.

SAN ANTONIO, TEX., March 8.—Shortly after his arrival here Hon. Bourke Cockran of New York called upon Frederic Coudert at the residence of Lieutenant Ballinger at Fort Sam Houston, and the two distinguished Democratic statesmen had a close consultation for about two hours. Both gentlemen, when questioned, claimed that the meeting was merely a social one and that politics was not discussed. Mr. Coudert has left for New York. Richard Croker and party are still at the ranch of John A. Morris. Mayor Gilroy has not yet arrived.

Politicians on the Inside as Usual.

SPRINGFIELD, O., March 8.—President C. O. Wildallen of the American Protective association claims that cliques called "inner circles" have been formed by politicians in the American Protective association in Cincinnati, Cleveland and Toledo for controlling them for political purposes. He will order an investigation.

The Cost Engages Trainer Murphy.

PETALUMA, Cal., March 8.—Thomas Murphy, the well known trainer and driver of trotting horses, has been appointed manager of the racing stables of the czar of Russia and Colonel Overholser, the assistant trainer, he will leave San Francisco on the 15th for New York and go thence to St. Petersburg.

Colonel Moonlight's Wife Dead.

LEAVENWORTH, Kan., March 8.—Mrs. Flora, wife of ex-Governor and ex-Colonel Moonlight, minister to Bolivia, died at her home in this city after one day's illness. Colonel Moonlight has been telegraphed at New York. He expected to take a steamer for Bolivia on Saturday.

Move Spring Elections.

ALBANY, March 8.—The entire Republican ticket was elected at Green Island. The Democrats carried West Troy. Hoslic elected the entire Republican ticket. The Rensselaer county board of supervisors will stand 17 Republicans, 12 Democrats, a Republican gain of 6.

TARIFF BILL FINISHED.

The Committee Concludes Its Tedious Task at Last.

WILL SOON REACH THE SENATE.

The Completed Measure Submitted to the Full Committee This Forenoon—The Perplexing Sugar Tax Muddle Was Finally Settled—Whisky Tax Unaltered.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—Senator Voorhees, as chairman of the senate committee on finance, ordered the issuance of a call for a meeting of the full committee today at 11 o'clock. He said the meeting was for the purpose of considering the tariff bill, which would then be submitted. He at the same time reiterated the statements made on the floor of the senate, that the committee would be given a few days to consider the bill as a whole, and that after it should be reported to the senate at least a week of additional time would be permitted for the preparation of speeches before there would be an effort to have the bill taken up in the senate.

The call for the meeting of the committee was the culmination of events of the day connected with the tariff, which were of more than usual interest, not the least important of which was the statements of Senators Voorhees and McPherson on the floor of the senate. Considerable comment was made upon that of Mr. McPherson to the effect that he had been alone responsible for the delay in reporting the bill, because of his opposition to the general reduction of duty rates as fixed by the committee.

The promise of Senator Voorhees to bring in the bill within so short a time was gratefully received by all his party associates, as even those who are classed as opposed to the bill wanted to have the suspense ended, while the Republicans have all along been anxious to know what the bill contains and prefer that the delay shall be after it is laid before them instead of before it is made public.

Opposition to the Last.

The Democratic majority of the finance committee held meetings at irregular intervals during the day, and when not in formal session they were generally engaged in conference among themselves and with other senators. Much of the day was given up by the individual senators of the committee to conferring with the senators who are understood to desire changes made in the bill.

During the afternoon Senators Hill, Gorman, Smith, Caffery and Brice were admitted in a body to the committee room for a general exchange of views upon the portions of the bill in which they object. It is understood that they presented vigorous opposition to portions of the bill.

It is generally understood that up to the last the contention over sugar prevented any agreement, and even at the time the Democratic members of the finance committee finally decided upon a body in order to make their final decision the sugar men, both producers and refiners, were dissatisfied as to their future action. The refiners still claimed protection for raw sugar to the extent allowed in the bill as it was reported from the ways and means committee, which was 40 per cent, and the producers declared that they could not get along with less than 1½ cents per pound.

The concessions which the committee will allow to the sugar men will provide for sufficient revenue to permit the tax on whisky to remain at what it was passed by the house—45 cents.

It is the general opinion that the discussion of the seigniorage bill will not be prolonged. As a majority of the Democratic members of the committee are friendly to the measure, they are congratulating themselves today that they allowed the Republicans who are opposed to the seigniorage bill to put themselves into an awkward position.

Senator Voorhees says that the remainder of the week will be devoted to the consideration of the tariff bill in full committee, but the Republican members of the committee say they will ask for not less than two weeks and possibly three.

Sugar Tax Fixed.

Senator Vest was the last of the members of the finance committee to leave the committee room. His work on the bill had been completed an hour before, and he remained only to give the bill as a whole a final inspection before the last proof should go to the printer.

The sugar schedule was the last thing to receive the attention of the committee, and the work was brought to a close by placing the figure at 1 cent a pound, or about that figure, on sugar showing 80 degrees fineness, according to the polariscopic test, and increasing the amount gradually with the increase of the purity of the article. It is known that the increase does not reach ¼ cent, but it cannot be stated definitely just what it is.

It is learned from another source than that quoted—to the effect that the tax on whisky will remain the same as now existed in the Wilson bill—that the whisky tax will probably be increased to $1.10 per gallon and the bonded period extended to five years. This is done, it is said, to accommodate the bourbon and rye distillers, who have pleaded for an extension of the bonded period regardless of the amount of the tax, and the tax is increased in order to grant the extension of time without decreasing the immediate revenue to be derived from it.

RIOTOUS STUDENTS.

Zola's Successful Rival Unpopular in the Latin Quarter.

PARIS, March 8.—The lecture of M. Ferdinand Brunetiere at the Sorbonne was listened to without any disturbance, though in view of the riotous demonstration of Wednesday last some trouble was anticipated. M. Brunetiere will be remembered as the new member of the French academy who defeated M. Emile Zola recently in the contest for the seat made vacant by the death of John Emile Lemoinne.

Although the students behaved themselves during the lecture, after M. Brunetiere had closed his remarks the medical and science students made an attack upon the literary students, and several sharp conflicts followed. Finally the medical students crossed the bridges and made a manifestation in front of the offices of The Figaro, one of the most important newspapers in this city, edited by M. Francis Magnard as editor.

The students' demonstration in front of The Figaro offices was caused by the fact that M. Magnard had allowed the publication of an article favorable to M. Brunetiere.

For a time it looked as if the students would make an attack upon The Figaro offices, but a strong force of police was hurried to the spot, and the students were driven back to the Latin quarter, where they caused a great deal of disturbance.

Arctic Explorers Talk.

PHILADELPHIA, March 8.—The monthly meeting of the Geographical club of Philadelphia was remarkable from the fact that addresses were made by two men who are completing arrangements for polar explorations, and a letter was read from another who will make an exploration of Labrador. Mr. F. A. Cook, who outlined the plans he had made for his proposed antarctic expedition. Walter Wellman, who will sail for Europe next Wednesday to prepare for his arctic expedition, gave an interesting talk on the preparations he had already made. Professor Hite of the University of Pennsylvania stated in a letter to the club that he would start with a party of 10 on June 25 for an exploration of Labrador.

New Building Collapsed.

STONEHAM, Mass., March 8.—A new three story front and two story rear building in process of construction collapsed, fatally injuring one man and seriously bruising others. The front and rear walls of the building were of wood and the side walls of brick, and it was one of the walls that fell out, thus precipitating the front wall into the street. Mr. N. Load was passing at the time and was crushed under the falling wall and so badly injured that he died a few minutes after being extricated. One woman whose name was not learned was injured so badly that she will probably die, and several others were more or less seriously injured.

His Hazing Was Mild.

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., March 8.—The report that Vernon Vandusen of Mayville, N. Y., was dying from the effects of a hazing given him by sophomore college students is ridiculed here. The sophomores did enter the room and politely but firmly requested him to dance, sing and lecture for them, and as they were about to leave they thought best to give him a cold bath, so they placed him in a bowl of water. Vandusen took the affair in good part, and nothing more was thought of the matter. When he left college, he was in good health.

Preliminary Trial of the Indiana.

DELAWARE BREAKWATER, Del., March 7. The battleship Indiana got under way shortly after the breakwater after a most successful preliminary trial. She was given a hard run of four hours over the course usually chosen by the cruisers for their builders' trials. Three trips were made over this course. The first, under natural draft, was accomplished at a speed of 15-10 knots; the second, under half forced draft, in a trifle less than 15 knots, and the third, under forced draft, at 15 25-100 knots. The guaranteed speed of the Indiana is 15 knots.

Pay a Labor Party In Boston.

BOSTON, March 8.—Delegates from all the labor organizations in Boston gathered for the purpose of forming a brand new political party in the interest of the workingmen. After a long session of four hours a committee was appointed to draft a platform to be submitted to a subsequent meeting.

WATCHUNG PARK PROPERTY!

Handsomely situated

now offered for sale.

This Property is in the heart of the recently opened residence section of the city, being within a few minutes' walk of the Central Railroad station.

The New Watchung Park Road, with its new streets as it crosses, will be among the handsomest residence sections in this pretty suburban place.

Only High Grade Residences will be erected. The neighborhood will be restricted, making it as exclusive as any in Plainfield.

All Modern Improvements will be in force by early Spring. The work of macadamizing the streets is now being pushed rapidly.

Electric Cars From the new city. Electric light, gas and city water will be introduced as soon in the Spring as they are needed.

Several new houses are now building on Sheridan and Westervelt avenues have been located on the old Francis' ball field.

Just as Property Values jumped in Sandford and Westervelt avenues, so will they also increase rapidly in Watchung Park. Those who buy now will reap the benefit of an early investment.

The Lots Are About 50x150 feet in size, and the map of the property, printed in these columns every Wednesday and Saturday, will give the public necessary information as to their location.

For further information regarding prices and terms, large copies of the map, etc., address or call upon A. D. THOMPSON, 167 North avenue, opp. site Railroad Station, Plainfield, N. J.

THE TRENTON MUDDLE.

Quo Warranto Proceedings In Progress Before the Supreme Court.

TRENTON, March 9.—The argument in the quo warranto proceedings in the senate muddle began before the full bench of the supreme court. There was a large crowd in the courtroom. Chief Justice Beasley presided. R. V. Lindabury opened the argument on the part of the governor as relator.

He said that the witnesses practically agreed upon the essential facts in the case. He had stated at length these facts as brought out in the testimony and took up nearly his entire time in discussing jurisdiction of the court to entertain the proceedings. He contended that there was no whether the office of president of the senate was a public office within the meaning of the act.

Hon. Garland Parker followed Mr. Lindabury on the part of Mr. Rogers of the Republican senate. He called attention to the fact that members of the senate were judges of the election and should decide the qualifications of their own members.

After recess Mr. Parker concluded his argument for the senate, and then Samuel H. Gray began the argument on behalf of Mr. Rogers. He was not nearly through when the court adjourned. Counsel have been allowed 24 hours in which to prepare their arguments. If they find today that they cannot complete them, the court will probably adjourn until Monday.

Garland Parker, in his introduction said:

"As human nature is weak and self-distrust is always a duty, in this struggle we who argue the questions which arise and those upon whom the responsibility has fallen to aid in their rightful adjustment, should, and I doubt not, will arm themselves against themselves, so that the decision, whatever it may be, whether of court or legislature, may be right."

The argument of Mr. Parker was on these points:

1. The Senate is not a continuous body, in the sense of a body continuing from session to session.

2. If it be a continuing body in any sense, its members possess no power to act upon the right of their followers in organization.

3. If any practice has obtained in the Senate of passing upon credentials of Senators elect, it has no warrant of law and is not obligatory. On the contrary, it is a breach of the Constitution.

4. The Constitution and the statutes rule, and under these the method of organization effected by the eleven Senators who elected Mr. Rogers is the legal and proper one.

5. The action of Messrs. Stokes, Skirm, Hoffman, and Smith, when they entered the Senate chamber and found their fellows there, was not an action which conveyed a quorum of a Senate.

6. The action of the pretended assemblage as made and carried out was no more than changing the locality of the Senate; or, at least, it created a de facto Senate, even if irregular, though it was not, there being at that time no rules to break.

7. The adjudication of other courts sustains these positions.

Samuel H. Gray, for Senator Rogers, argued that the court had no jurisdiction against the continuous sessions theory, and in support of the contention that every member is entitled to be seated on his certificate of election, which the law makes prima facie evidence of the right. Mr. Gray had not finished when the court adjourned. He will continue to-morrow morning.

DURING Mr. Parker's argument Chief Justice Beasley interrupted him to suggest that it was strange on both merits of the case, whereas the question before the court was whether or not a writ of inquiry should issue. The Court and counsel discussed informally the situation, and it was agreed to permit the case to be fully argued now. During the discussion Mr. Parker said the writ could not issue against Senator Adrain, as he was simply acting as temporary President or Chairman, having never been elected President of the Senate and having never taken the oath prescribed by the Constitution.

NORTH PLAINFIELD'S NEXT MAYOR.

Mr. Needham an Abler Official Than any Named This Year.

(Dunmore Gazette.)

The election of a Republican Mayor in North Plainfield Tuesday is assured by the withdrawal of Samuel St. John McCutcheon, the regular Democratic nominee, from the contest. Mr. McCutcheon secured the members of his party before the convention was offered him that he would not run, but they blindly mistook his positive assurances, and now learn with chagrin that he meant what he said. Mr. McCutcheon is New York born, although has also been of School Commissioner, and refuses to display his talents in the Mayor's chair.

The Democrats are, therefore, prevented from a nominee for the office upon the regular Democratic ticket, because all the regular nominations should have been filled with the County Clerk by last Saturday night. They may use posters for the purpose of electing another man, but on the Australian ballot system candidate, they will not, in all probability, attempt to elect a Mayor. Henry E. Needham, the Republican nominee for the office, is popular with his party, and an abler official than many a good term has proved his efficiency in the Common Council, and his election will be welcomed by the better element in the Democratic party, as well as by the Republicans.

Rosedale or the Ride Ball.

What is likely to prove one of the most interesting theatrical events of the season will be the rival of "Rosedale or the Ride Ball," at the Star Theatre, New York City, on Monday, March 12, by the Stock Company of the Boston Grand Opera House. The play was first produced at Wallack's, now the Star Theatre, on September 4, 1882, and proved to be such a success that it had an uninterrupted run of one hundred and twenty-five performances. Since then the public have not had an opportunity of seeing the play, so the revival should attract many thousands to this popular theatre.

It may be interesting to know that the only members of the original cast living at the present moment, are Mrs. John Hoey and Mr. W. H. Pope.

Manager Draper of the Boston Grand Opera House, intends sparing no expense in making this a most magnificent reproduction. The scenery has been especially painted, the costumes, accessories, grey and superb. An auxiliary chorus of fifty men and women will appear in the ball-room scene and that of the Gypsy's Camp. Altogether 300 people will take part in the production.

What Hicks Predicts.

Hicks predicts a storm period from March 7th to 11th, followed by a cold wave. Another storm of marked energy is predicted within 36 hours of 25 p. m. on the 24th, followed by a blizzardous cold wave. This will probably cover St. Patrick's Day, when the mercury rarely fails to drop to a low figure. Severe sleet storms are due from the 28th to 31st, and the month will end in general cold.

Nominations in Cranford.

The Republicans of Cranford Township held their primaries last night and placed the following ticket in the field: For Freeholder, G. W. Littell; Assessor, Edward S. Jones; Collector, Theodore A. Crane; Chairman Town Committee, Edmund B. Horton.

—Mr. R. C. Rand says that there is a lot of fun for the children in a bottle of Etchene, and would be pleased to have the public call and look at it.

BENHAM STICKS TO RIO.

Rebels Take Advantage of the Absence of Other Foreign Admirals.

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 9.—American Admiral Benham continues to be the only commandants remains on duty in the harbor here. The German squadron has gone to Montevideo to escape the fevers, and the warships of the British and other powers except the United States are cruising outside to escape the contagion of yellow fever.

The starving insurgents stole from the side of the steamer Catanda a lighter flying the German flag and freighted with bacon and machine oil belonging to Levering & Co. of Baltimore.

The firm's agents here appealed to Admiral Benham to recover the stolen goods. But the American commander said he could only protect property under the American flag.

The rebel warship Victoria, a converted merchantman, fired upon the English tug Isabel, shooting away the British ensign, and then lowered and took away one boat. The English people here are highly indignant, but are helpless, for all their warships are outside.

The tug's owners have cabled their grievance to England, and the German residents have wired to Montevideo to have their squadron returned to protect them. All is reported quiet here. The new American consul here, Mr. Lewis, is said to be performing his duties satisfactorily to all concerned.

- WAITE IS DEFIED.

The Denver Police Force Massed to Keep Out New Officials.

DENVER, March 9.—The city police are massed at the city hall under orders from Police Commissioners Orr and Martin, upon whom Governor Waite served notice of removal, to prevent their successors, Dennis Mullins and S. D. Barnes, just appointed, from taking possession of the city hall. It is believed the governor intended to call out the militia if necessary to install the new commissioners in office.

Wells, Taylor & Taylor, counsel for Orr and Martin, secured from Judge Graham a temporary writ of injunction restraining Governor Waite from calling out the militia, and restraining Mayor Van Horn from arming a posse of men to assist in forcing Commissioners Orr and Martin out of their offices and restraining the governor's new appointees from taking their seats.

Writs were served on all the interested parties. The governor was wild with rage. He had arranged, it is said, to pounce down on the headquarters last night and forcibly take possession. "These men have got to go," he said.

At the city hall, where there is no outward sign of concern, the force is in readiness and well prepared to resist any attack which the conspirators may make. Chief Kellogg is in charge. Sheriff Burchinell has a large force of deputies, who will assist in preventing the new commissioners from taking forcible possession.

ANIMAL NOTELETS.

A jet black swan was killed on the California coast last week.

A breed of wild pigs has been discovered in Queensland which climbs trees.

A farmer on the shores of Lake Ontario has a mare and colt that chew tobacco with great relish.

An Arkansas pig has a scent equal to a dog's. His wonderful instinct saved his owner's child from drowning the other day.

A Pennsylvanian was cured of the effects of a snake bite by the application of a galvanic battery to the nape of his neck and the apex of his heart.

A blacksnake five and a half feet long, in Dannemora, in a fight with a rattler, two and a half feet long, swallowed the latter. He died from the effects of his dose, as did also the rattler.

A Georgian discovered that a chicken snake had taken three of his young chicks. He killed the snake, recovered the chicks, placed them under the hen and now they bid fair to make good broilers in time.

TARIFF BILL AMENDED.

Senate Made Important Changes In the Wilson Bill.

PLENTY OF REVENUE PROVIDED.

The Sugar Men Are Disposed to Accept the Concession—Coal and Iron Are Taken From the List and Raw Wool Left On—Whisky and Cigarette Tax Raised.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The proceedings of the senate committee on finance to revise the tariff bill as amended by the Democratic majority of that committee were in the main informal. Copies of the bill were handed to all the members, and the Republicans, who had not had a previous opportunity to see it, glanced through it hastily.

There was some discussion of time for consideration of the bill by the full committee, the Republican members saying they would desire a reasonable period, and the Democratic members expressed themselves as willing to grant that without cavil. Finally next at 10:30 a. m. was set for the next meeting, when the Republicans, having had an opportunity to examine the details of the bill, will probably be able to say what time they will require. It is considered probable that they will ask for an entire week after the next meeting day and possibly more.

Senator Jones's Sad Deficiency.

The Democratic members of the committee do not express themselves at this time as disposed to press for action which may be considered speedy. They also say that whatever delay may occur hereafter will be chargeable to the Republicans, and they must assume the responsibility.

Senator Jones of Arkansas, chairman of the tariff subcommittee, when asked for a statement, giving an estimate of the probable amount of income to be derived from the bill and for an explanation of other features, said that an official statement based upon estimates made by the treasury department would be given out within a day or two. He was of opinion that it would be shown that the bill would produce a sum of about $170,000,000 or $180,000,000 without taking into account the increased amount which would be the result of the reductions made in tariff rates. This would be in excess of the requirements of the government, which, he said, are about $448,000,000, not including the sum necessary for the sinking fund or made necessary by the current bond issue.

From this amount can be substracted about $15,000,000 now paid on account of the sugar bounty, which would, if these estimates are correct, give a surplus of from $87,000,000 to $47,000,000 under the operations of the proposed law.

Senator Jones explained, said the senator, "the reductions which have been made have been t... in the interest of securing revenue." He added, "Where it can be shown, as it can be in this instance, that the surplus, if there shall be a surplus, is the result of increasing the tax upon luxury and unclothed articles and where it is accompanied by a general reduction in customs duties, I do not believe that the public will make any serious objection to the excess of the treasury's contents."

Opinions of the Bill.

Senator Caffery, who with his late colleague Senator White, has led the fight for a sugar duty, expressed himself as satisfied in a modified degree with the action of the committee.

Senator Vance, who was a leading spirit in the movement for a caucus, is not altogether satisfied with the bill, but will no doubt support it in the senate after trying to have it amended in some particulars.

"Those of us," said the Ohio senator, "who are anxious to see a bill pass which will relieve the country are greatly encouraged, though the bill is not out of the woods yet. We have hopes of it passing, and it is possible that it will be found to be better next week certainly in more favorable form for becoming a law than it was a few weeks ago."

Senator Gorman of the house said: "The bill is much worse than it was when it left the house, and it is much more important for the interest of the country that it should be beaten. The poor little plea on which Mr. Wilson thought to justify his action has disappeared. Free raw material for New England has vanished."

Principal Features of the Bill.

The chief features upon which public interest centered were the provisions in regard to the tariff on sugar, iron ore, lead, and the manufactures, cotton manufactures and the internal revenue taxes on whisky and tobacco.

The sugar provision is as follows: All sugars, tank bottoms, sirups of cane juice or of beet juice, melada, concentrated melada, concrete and concentrated molasses, not above the polariscope test nor above 80 degrees shall pay a duty of 1 cent per pound, and for every additional degree or fraction of a degree above 80 and not above 90 degrees shown by the polariscope test shall pay one one-hundredth of 1 cent per pound additional, and above 90 and not above 96 degrees for every additional degree or fraction of a degree shown by the polariscope test, shall pay a duty of 3-100 of a cent per pound additional, and above 96 degrees by polariscope test shall pay a duty of 1 4-10 cents per pound; molasses testing not above 56 degrees by the polariscope shall pay a duty of 2 cents per gallon; molasses testing above 56 degrees shall pay a duty of 4 cents per gallon.

Iron ore, including manganiferous iron ore, also the dross or residuum from burnt pyrites, 40 cents a ton.

Coal is taken from the free list and made dutiable also at 40 cents a ton and coke at 15 cents.

Lead ore, which in the Wilson bill was 15 per cent ad valorem, lead ore and lead dross three-fourths of 1 cent per pound, provided that silver ore and all other ores containing lead shall pay a duty of three-fourths of 1 cent per pound on the lead contained therein, according to sample and assay at the port of entry.

Raw wool is made on the free list exactly as in the Wilson bill, the provision to go into effect Aug. 2.

The whisky tax is raised to $1.10. The bonded period on whisky is extended five years—that is, from three to eight years.

Cigars are to pay $6 a thousand; cigarettes weighing not more than three pounds to the thousand, $6 a thousand; cigarettes weighing more than three pounds to the thousand, $12 a thousand. Cigarettes, in addition to the above, shall pay a tax of 50 cents per thousand. The tax on manufactured tobacco, snuff and cavendish is increased 4 cents per pound.

The income tax provision is as follows: A tax of 2 per cent on the amount of income received by any person from salaries, rents, profits, etc., exceeding $4,000 during the year for which the income is computed, and a like tax upon the income of all persons carrying on business in the United States, whether such income is derived from business or from investments or from salaries, fees or compensation for official services of any person exceeding the officers of the United States, and a like tax upon the gains or profits of all persons from sales of stocks, bonds or exchanges or dealings in the business of buying and selling stocks, bonds, exchanges or privileges, whether such persons are known as brokers or bankers or not, and a like tax upon the gains or profits of all persons from dealings in futures, whether such persons are known as commission merchants or not.

The provision for the collection of the income tax is the same as in the Wilson bill, except that the duty of collecting the income tax is imposed upon the collector of internal revenue instead of the collector of customs division of the treasury department and abolishing the offices of commissioner and assistant commissioner of customs now named after some debate, and the remainder of the day was devoted to a discussion of the District of Columbia appropriation bill.

This bill was the signal for the regular annual assault upon the system in vogue here of having the general government pay half the expenses of the District. This year Mr. Dockery, a member of Missouri is at the head of the movement.

After the disposal of some unimportant morning business the senate took up the sejeniorage bill, which was debated by Senators Sherman, Lodge and Higgins. The bill went over without action until today, when a vote will be taken. The senate adjourned after a brief executive session.

Pollard-Breckinridge Case.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—Although the beginning of the already celebrated lawsuit of Miss Madeline Pollard against Congressman William C. P. Breckinridge of Kentucky for $50,000 damages for breach of promise and seduction was prosaic in its details, it had power to attract a crowd of sensation seekers to the criminal court room and to tongue-wag throughout the entire city wagging in speculation.

Unfounded rumors of compromise had floated about for days, so that the atmosphere of court circles was surcharged with expectation, but the trial will proceed without delay. There was a brief session of one hour, in which some preliminary legal points over the admissibility of certain depositions were exchanged. A jury was selected without difficulty, and the court adjourned to meet today mainly that Attorney General Ben Butterworth, who had joined the legal forces of Colonel Breckinridge on short notice, to acquaint himself with the details of the case.

Postmasters Nominated.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—The president sent the following nominations to the senate:

SHOWMEN IN JAIL.

An Alleged Magician and His Manager Arrested and Mobbed.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., May 9.—Two showmen—Professor Albert Nickel, an alleged magician of Philadelphia, and his so called manager, Alexander Wilson, of Pittsburg—came to grief in this city and are now under arrest, charged with fraud and cruelty to children. They advertised to give lunch and Judy show and a sleight of hand performance, the admission to be 5 cents each for school children. Each and every admission ticket was to entitle the holder to a free gift.

They hired a hall which had 250 seats, and into this ever such children as packed it. So dense was the crowd that the windows could not be opened for fear the children would fall out, and the room soon became but little endurable even. There were no lady attendants, as had been advertised, and several children fainted. Fifty or more were crying and screaming at the top of their voices through fear and discomfort, and a panic seemed inevitable.

Mayor Richardson was notified, and after a score or more of angry parents had invaded the hall and made open threats of violence to the showmen the mayor commanded the latter to close the show and disperse the children.

By this time the children were in a terrible state, dripping with perspiration and sickened by the breath poisoned air of the packed room. When an attempt was made to get them out, several fainted, and it was fully an hour before the crowd was out of the hall.

COUGHLIN GOES FREE.

The Ex-Detective Acquitted of the Murder of Dr. Cronin.

WAS FOR FOUR YEARS A PRISONER.

After a Second Trial, Which Lasted Four Months and Was Full of Sensations, the Accused Man Is Liberated—Excitement In the Courtroom.

CHICAGO, March 9.—Daniel Coughlin, the ex-detective, charged with complicity in the murder of Dr. Cronin, has been acquitted. This was his second trial, and it has lasted for several weeks. Much of the time has been spent in a tedious rehearsal of evidence, but as a whole the case has been full of sensations. The courtroom was crowded when the verdict was rendered. As the jury filed into court Coughlin, who sat just in front of the jury seats, turned deadly pale, and then with apparent effort straightened up in his seat.

DANIEL COUGHLIN.

"Has the jury reached a verdict?" asked the court.

"We have," responded Juror Holsman, who had been made foreman. The fateful document was handed to the clerk, and he read in clear tones:

"We, the jury, find the defendant, Daniel Coughlin, not guilty."

As his words were heard a great shout went up from the crowd in the courtroom. Hats were thrown high into the air, handkerchiefs were waved, cheer after cheer broke upon the still and stately courtroom, and a mad rush was made for the door by those anxious to tell the news to the crowds without. Judge Tuthill, his face aflame at the breach of court etiquette, demanded silence, and bailiffs vigorously pounded for order, but it took a considerable time for the enthusiasm of the crowd to subside.

When the Verdict Was Given.

There was tremendous excitement when the verdict was announced.

Coughlin himself seemed stunned. Then he arose from his seat, pushed back the crowd and exclaimed; "Boys, justice has come at last."

Parents for a moment to wring the hand of his father, Coughlin jumped into the jury box and thanked each man, the tears streaming in his face. There was a pathetic meeting with his wife, and then with much difficulty Coughlin and family escaped the thousands that surrounded the courthouse, and they were all driven to the home that the ex-detective had left four years ago.

The jury's verdict ended a trial of four months' duration. A conviction had long been thought probable and a disagreement more than likely, but acquittal was not expected even by Coughlin's friends.

The verdict practically declares Burke and O'Sullivan, who died in prison, innocent men. They and Coughlin were sent to Joliet for life and the survivor got a new trial.

The Object.

The details of the alleged conspiracy, the consummation of which was the murder of Dr. Patrick Henry Cronin, are known almost everywhere. On the evening of May 4, 1889, Dr. Cronin left his office in the Windsor theater building on the errand of mercy that proved a lure to his death. That the physician was actually lured to what was not known till May 22, when his body was found in the catch basin on Evanston avenue and North Fifty-ninth street. That same day Captain Schuettler heard of the Carlson cottage.

By his command Detectives Hyatt and Lorch were put in charge of the place, and presently they were convinced that Big Dan had been seen there a short time before the murder in company with John P. Kunze, Patrick Cooney (alias George the Dane) and Iremon O'Sullivan. The following day, May 24, 1889, Coughlin was arrested.

The chief evidence against the ex-detective was the admitted fact that he hired the white horse and the buggy in which Cronin was supposed to have been driven to the Carlson cottage. Coughlin did not take the stand in his own defense, but his counsel, while admitting the hiring of the horse, said that the rig had been procured for a friend who was in the city on a visit.

TROY PROTESTS.

Delegation Must Meeting, the Sequel of the Election Day Worden.

TROY, N. Y., March 9.—The mass meeting of Troy's citizens at the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church was one of the most memorable gatherings in the history of Troy.

The meeting was called that citizens might give expressions to their indignation at the crimes of last Tuesday, and that they might formulate plans for the punishment of not only the murderer of Robert Rose, but the men who are primarily responsible for the outrages perpetrated on that day, and also to pave the way for a complete and permanent suppression of the infamous tactics which, it is charged, are practiced on every election day in this city.

Three thousand people of all political beliefs crowded into the sacred edifice long before the meeting was called to order. Outside the crowd was so dense that a passageway could not be made. The street from Fulton to Grand was packed with citizens who could not gain admittance. Meanwhile the crowd outside the church became clamorous for an entrance, although there was not room for another soul. Not less than 500 women were present, and they lifted up their voices and joined in the applause of the sentiments of the patriotic addresses of the speakers.

One of the most stirring speeches was made by General Woodford. He was outspoken in his denunciation of the infamous crimes in Troy and assured the people of his sympathy, encouragement and aid.

At the conclusion of the addresses Rev. Dr. Haynes offered a resolution which called for the appointment of 100 citizens to wait upon Governor Flower and ask him to name a date for the holding of a special term of court, to designate a special and unbiased judge to preside and to call upon the attorney general to prosecute the cases.

The resolution was unanimously adopted and the committee named. The committee will appear before the governor today. Resolutions of condolence and sympathy on the death of Robert Rose were also adopted and sent to the family of the deceased. The meeting then adjourned.

RIOTOUS SILK WEAVERS.

Two Thousand Strikers Mobbed a Deserter In Paterson, N. J.

PATERSON, N. J., March 9.—The long drawn out strike of silk weavers took a serious turn. The strikers commenced to riot, and one of the men—Frank Newkirk was severely injured after acting on strike, was severely injured.

Two thousand strikers were waiting for him when the mills closed. When Newkirk appeared, he was hooted and jeered. He started to run, and the mob followed. Newkirk was knocked down and assaulted with fists and stones. Policemen went to Newkirk's rescue, and by the free use of their clubs they fought their way to his side. It was a difficult matter to force a way through the crowd, and the officers and Newkirk were frequently struck. When the trio were finally clear of the crowd they made a stand and began stoning them. On the way to the police station assistance was received from other officers, and the crowd was beaten back.

On arriving at the police station it was found that Newkirk was badly bruised and cut. His scalp was laid open in several places. The policemen were slightly hurt.

Before leaving the mill Newkirk armed himself with an iron bar, and after he had been kicked while lying on the sidewalk he managed to regain his feet, he then laid about him with the iron, and several of the rioters were injured. They were hurried home by their friends.

Henry Grimshaw, a young man who continues to work in Bamford Brothers' mill, came near sharing the treatment accorded Newkirk. While practicing on the green over 1,000 strikers assembled in front of the church and waited for him to come out. A police officer entered the church, and while several others made preparations in the lobby as though they intended to escort Grimshaw he took the young man out the back door, where a carriage was waiting to drive him to his home.

Three Killed by a Boiler Explosion.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., March 9.—The boiler of a locomotive on the Lehigh Valley railroad exploded at Tannery, killing three men. Patrick Dugnan, the night engineer in charge, entered his engine at Tannery and went into the telegraph office for orders. During his absence the locomotive was blown to pieces. Three men who were on the engine were killed. Their names are as follows: John Lennay, fireman; Edward Fox, brakeman; John Hart, brakeman. All were new hands, having taken the places of brotherhood men in the late strike. The cause of the explosion was low water in the boiler.

Historic Present For Cardinal Gibbons.

BALTIMORE, March 9.—General Bradley T. ANARCHISTS IN ROME.

A Bomb That Was Meant For Italian Deputies.

EIGHT PERSONS WERE INJURED.

An Explosion Just Outside the Chamber of Deputies Which Would Have Been More Serious but For a Mere Chance—A Man With a Tin Box.

ROME, March 9.—A terrible explosion, said to be the work of anarchists, occurred here on the Piazza di Monte Citorio, next which stands the chamber of deputies. A sitting of the chamber had just been concluded, and the bomb or infernal machine was exploded almost in front of the building, where the pavement was torn up.

The explosion shattered all the windows in the chamber of deputies and shivered almost all the windows of the houses in the vicinity of the Piazza di Monte Citorio.

Though the sitting of the chamber was over, a few of the deputies were still in the lobby when the explosion occurred.

So great were the crowds which were attracted to the spot after the explosion that a strong force of military in addition to the police was called upon to disperse the people who were pressing down all the streets leading to the Piazza di Monte Citorio. The police arrested four men, and among those taken into custody was a wounded man, who is believed to be the person who exploded the bomb. The pavement around the spot where the bomb exploded is torn up and spattered with blood.

Eight Persons Injured.

Eight persons were wounded by the explosion, including one woman. Six of the wounded are in the hospital. Three of them are in a serious condition, and one of them is reported to be dying.

A mason of the name of Polidori, who was slightly wounded, was put through a course of questions by the police and afterward placed under arrest. The police believe him to be the man who threw the explosive.

The public prosecutor has opened an inquiry into the outrage. President Biancheri, who was in the chamber of deputies at the time of the explosion, sent a doctor to attend the wounded.

The Tribuna suggests that the explosion was intended as a warning to the deputies in view of the impending discussion on the demand for the prosecution of the socialist deputy, De Felice, on the charge of inciting the revolution in Sicily.

Great excitement continues throughout the city, and everywhere the latest bomb outrage is being discussed. An immense throng still hovers in the vicinity of the Piazza di Monte Citorio, and the police and military have their hands full in restraining them from crowding into the square.

From later information it is believed that the explosive was contained in a tin box that had been concealed in a tall hat worn by the man who threw it.

The wounded man whom the police suspect of having been the author of the outrage says that an unknown man handed him a small box as he was crossing the piazza. He declares that he is innocent of the crime.

The people in the piazza fled in great panic when the explosion occurred. The pavement near the spot where the bomb struck is literally strewn with broken glass. Houses in the vicinity much crockery and glassware was shattered.

Bomb Meant For the Deputies.

It is believed that the purpose of the perpetrator was to have the bomb explode at the hour the debate in the chamber was expected to end and the deputies and ministers would be trooping out. It is probable that a massacre was frustrated by a simple incident which is regarded as almost providential. Premier Crispi's speech was delayed by the influence of the chamber to postpone his reply to questions under discussion on the ground that his voice had failed him, and so the sitting of the chamber was adjourned earlier than was expected.

The force of the explosion made a breach in the external masonry of the chamber of Deputies. The exceptional superstitions recently adopted by the authorities probably prevented the miscreant from entering the chamber and causing a repetition of the Vaillant outrage in the French chamber.

The behavior of the soldiers and police was cool and fearless. The Piazza di Monte Citorio is spattered with blood as far as the central obelisk. The seriously wounded include a soldier of the Seventh regiment, wounded in the head, chest and arms. Mosticri, a employee of the ministry of public works, leg shattered and had to be amputated; a man named Bardi, injured in the arms and legs. Three suspects have been arrested who refused to give their identity or any account of themselves.

Spanish Cabinet Resigns.

MADRID, March 9.—The cabinet has resigned, and the queen regent has charged Premier Sagasta with the work of reconstructing a new ministry. The cabinet resigned after an excited sitting and several hours, which revealed the fact that a serious divergence of opinion existed among the members on the proposed economic and colonial reforms.

Fire On the Steamer Paris.

LONDON, March 9.—There was a fire on the American line steamer Paris, which is lying in the repairing dock at Birkenhead. It started in the shaft covering and spread to the second saloon. A high deck of damage was done to the saloon and cabin fittings before the flames were quenched.

NATURE'S TOOLS AND WEAPONS.

The Fly Has a Saw, the Caterpillar Bottom Drawer, and the Spider Uses a Bucket.

The wonders of the miniature world that surrounds us are an unwieldy book to a large proportion of the human race. Only those who study with the microscope can have any conception of the field there is for research and how fascinating that field is. Thanks to the more modern methods of education, the rising generation have some introduction to this field in their common school education, and the increasing interest in the microscope shows that this introduction is bearing fruit. The insect world possesses great attraction to the microscopist, as it is here that he finds many curious things entertain him. Here he finds that nature has provided many of the insects with tools and weapons more delicate than human skill can produce, and he also sees how far behind man is in the manufacture of some of the everyday implements.

The saw, for instance, he finds was invented long before it was made of steel and iron, and the common fly carries one about with him, and one far more delicate than man can make even at the present day. Another saw which rivals the one of the fly in delicacy is furnished not by an insect, but by the little hermit crab that occupies about the rock pools on the seashore.

But nature as often provides a weapon as she gives a tool. All know about the sharp potated sting of the bee, and while the majority have perhaps felt it very few know how it looks. A good sharp one from a honeybee is a little less than one-eighth of an inch long. Connecting with these stings in the bee is a tube which runs to the reservoir of poison. The small orifice from which this poison issues is near the point. Another feature of this sting is the fact that along its surface are minute barbs turning backward from the point. These points cause the sting to work farther into flesh and are what causes the sting to be so difficult to remove.

This feature is better illustrated by the stinging hairs of the caterpillar, Empretia stimulea. It will be readily understood how these hairs would work into a wound after they once got a start. They are barbed arrows, and the sensation of them crowding into the flesh at every movement is not pleasant.

The sting of the mosquito has none of these barbs, but when magnified it is a villainous looking affair. No wonder, with such a sharp tool as this, that my lady mosquito (the male has no sting) can so most diver blood after alighting on an unsuspecting victim.

A Matter of MOONSHINE!

When people advertise bargains did you ever stop to think that the bargains they speak of may be for the seller and not for the buyer? Many of the great offerings are but a delusive mixture of moonshine, and it may do for some, but folks are not bothering after it for a steady diet.

HERE'S SOLID WORTH.

GINGHAMS, MUSLINS AND INDIGO PRINTS—No charge in the prices Ginghams, 4½c., "Fruit of the Loom" and "Lonsdale," 7c., Indigo Blue Prints, 4½c.

A SNAP—Men in New York said: "Here are 100 dozen Towels, will take so much for them." "Will give you so much, as we want to sell them for 5c.," said we. We got the lot, and they are yours for 5c. each.

BLUE MARGUERITES, TIN CALLED—If you want to see something nice, new and pretty, look in our House Furnishing show window, to-night. You will surely want it.

TURKISH TOWELS—Turks did not make them. Made over in the town of Philadelphia, and made to sell for 25c., but you buy them for 16c.

DRESS GOODS—If you want a good Dress for a little money, come and see us. Never have we offered such values. We are selling black Dress Goods at special low prices, just to introduce our black goods department.

HOSIERY—You buy your Hosiery here, don't you? We buy it from the man who makes it. Every pair is dyed by Hermsdorf, and we guarantee the wearing qualities. If they don't wear well, bring them back and get your money. That's the way we sell Hosiery.

LACES AND EMBROIDERIES—If you want the latest novelties in Laces and Embroideries, White Goods for them. Every pair is a sure winner, and the prices you will say are very reasonable.

SCOTCH GINGHAMS—The prettiest lot of Ginghams ever brought to this town. They are worth 10c. of any one's money, but 7½c. is all we ask.

the fock. Each fock is supplied with one of these combs, but they vary in shape in the different species of spiders. They enable the spider to cling to his web and doubtless are used in its construction.

The above curious things revealed by the microscope are mentioned by the New York Herald as samples of the wonderful things with which the small world round us is teeming.

Safety In Speed on Railways.

An English exchange says: Another striking proof has recently been added to the already long list of accidents which make it certain that there is safety in extreme speed on railways. The Great Western express, one of the fastest trains in the kingdom, came upon the trunk of a tree 50 feet long which had slid down from the embankment. A timid engine driver, seeing such a formidable obstacle as a trunk 5 feet 6 inches in circumference before him, might have shut off steam and put on the brakes, when a catastrophe would have been inevitable. Fortunately they do not employ timid drivers on the Great Western, and the engine, at a speed of 60 miles an hour, cut clean through the trunk with no worse results than a slight jarring to the passengers and some damage to the engine guards and steam pipe.

The Best Time to Wind a Watch.

The slight variation in the running of fine watches is thus accounted for by some persons: During the night your watch is quiet, as it were—that is, hangs in your vest without motion, or touch. If you don't wind it up at night, the mainspring is then relaxed instead of being in that condition during the day. By winding it in the morning the mainspring is coiling closely and tight all day. It keeps the movement steady at a time when you are handling it, running about the city tending to your daily affairs.

Electric Fighting Men.

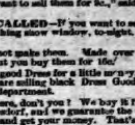
A foreign journal tells that an electrician has offered to the Spanish government for 5,000,000 pesetas his invention of "an automaton soldier made of forged iron, capable of firing 60 shots a minute at the enemy," the machine being manipulated electrically. In the place where the soldier's brains ought to be the automaton is stuffed with dynamite, so that his capture would cost a severe "blowing up" in the event of his being taken prisoner.

An Easy Test For Diamonds.

Make a small dot on paper; then look at it through a diamond. If you can see but one dot, you can depend upon it that the stone is genuine. But if the mark is scattered or shows more than one you will be perfectly safe in refusing to pay 10 cents for a stone that may be offered you as $500. This test is mentioned for what it may be worth.

Fits and Spectacles.

Dr. Knapp of New York, an authority on the subject, is reported as saying that nine cases out of ten epilepsy in fits can be cured by the use of spectacles.



A STRANGE BELIEF.

The Production of Bees From Dead Oxen Accepted by Early Naturalists.

It was believed in antiquity, says Popular Science News, that the honey bee was often spontaneously generated in carcasses and principally in those of oxen, and the first explanation was given to this kind of production. It is not mentioned by Aristotle, and Celsus says briefly that the race of bees will never perish, and that it is therefore useless to look for them in the entrails of oxen, but skepticism on this subject is the exception.

Melanchthon regarded the production of bees from dead oxen as a divine provision. Rucellai described it in verse, the naturalists Aldrovandi and Moufet accepted it, and the learned Bochart did not doubt its truth.

There was a foundation for this strange belief in the fact that a very common fly (scientifically Eristalis tenax, popularly the drone fly) lays its eggs upon carcasses, in which the larvæ grow and finally change into a swarm of flies, which, in their shape, hairy clothing and color look exactly like bees, although they belong to a totally different order of insects.

Stories About Stonewall Jackson.

In an article in The Century on "The Real Stonewall Jackson" occurs the following:

A letter writer from Rio Grande said of General Jackson after Dallas, Pine Mountain Alto and Resaca, "We call him old Rough and Ready." No one in the army had ever heard it before, but it struck the popular fancy, and in the less of thousands of votes for the presidency, and it has gone down to history.

In a similar manner a letter writer from the field of the first Manassas gave Jackson the cognomen of Stonewall and told a very pretty story about General Lee pointing to the "stone wall" where stands Jackson like a stone wall." Not only was the tale a sheer fabrication, but the name was the least suited to Jackson, who was ever in motion, swooping like an eagle on his prey. But the name spread like wildfire and has reached the uttermost limits of the globe. The story of how Jackson told the Yankee gunner at Port Republic to point the other way is very romantic, but is also false. So is the pretty incident of his standing sentinel for his weary brigade is touching, but is monstrously absurd and reflects but little credit on Jackson as a soldier. The efficient guarding of a whole brigade in the presence of an enemy requires more than the vigilance of one man, even though that man were Jackson himself, yet the grotesque story has been often repeated by press and pulpit.

What Electricity Is.

Here is the answer of Professor Galileo Ferraris, a genial Italian scientist, to a young lady who propounded to him the question, "What is electricity?" "Well, well has demonstrated that luminous vibrations can be nothing else than periodic variations of electro-magnetic forces. Hertz, in proving by experiments that electro-magnetic oscillations are propagated like light, has given an experimental basis to the theory of Maxwell. This gave birth to the idea that the luminiferous ether and the seat of electric and magnetic force are one and the same thing.

"This being established, I can now, my dear young lady, reply to the question you put to me. What is electricity? It is not only the formidable agent which now and then shatters our ears in a terrifying manner with the crash of its thunder, but it is also the life giving agent which sends from heaven to earth, with the light and the heat, the magic of colors and the breath of life. It is that which makes your heart beat to the palpitations of the outside world; it is that which has the power to make you shudder with the enchantment of a look and the grace of a smile."

A Jinged Myths Defended.

A recent writer maintains that Shakespeare repeated not a myth, but truth, in speaking of the poison which the toad distills. Midsummer madness and moon madness are recognized as facts by the latest science. And if no man ever saw in life the lind worm and the griffin of Teutonic legend we need only to look into a paleontological museum to find their prototypes.

Herodotus, with his story of a race of dwarfs in the region of the mountains of the Moon and near the sources of the Nile, was the very prince of liars until Mr. Stanley rediscovered those very dwarfs in that very region and Emin Pasha sent some living specimens back to civilization.

The German Empire.

The empire of Germany was ended in 1804, when the Emperor Francis II., grand duke of Austria and king of Hungary, assumed the title of Francis I, emperor of Austria. Between 1804 and 1871 there was no empire of Germany. On Jan. 1, 1871, the second German empire was founded by the Germans, who made the king of Prussia German emperor. The crown of the original empire had gone to Austria 67 years before, and it belonged there. The new empire had to get its own crown, says an exchange, in concluding this short summary of historic events.

A Remarkable Horseback Ride.

One of the most remarkable rides on horseback ever performed is undoubtedly that of the well known Danish archæologist and linguist, Dr. Ostrup—who has just completed a journey on horseback between Damascus and Denmark, a distance, it is computed, of some 5,000 miles. The ride was performed on one horse, a pure Arab, chosen and purchased by the savant himself, which he personally tended and groomed throughout the entire journey. On reaching Copenhagen the animal had not "turned a hair."

Durability of Brick.

Philadelphia is a brick city and well illustrates the durability of brick as a building material. There are brick houses apparently as good as new in Philadelphia which were built in 1760.

The Old, Old Song.

When all the world is young, lad,
And all the trees are green,
And every face a welcome has,
And every lass a queen,
Then hey for the boot and horse, lad,
And round the world away:
Young blood will have its course, lad,
And every dog his day.

When all the world is old, lad,
And all the trees are brown,
And all the sport is stale, lad,
And all the wheels run down,
Creep home and take thy place there,
The spent and maimed among
God grant you find one face there
You loved when all was young.

THE CARE OF BLANKETS.

The Usual Ways Condemned, and Improved Ones Suggested.

"But few housekeepers know how to take care of their blankets," the opinion of a writer in Good Housekeeping, who gives her views on this subject as follows: To have a woman in, once in six months or once a year, to get every blanket in the house washed, to return them to the beds, have shrunken, discolored coverings, with hair the wool taken out of them—that is the usual way.

Don't wash your blankets. Air them frequently. When a guest leaves the guest chamber and before the next arrives, let the blankets hang in sun and air for at least 24 hours. While Tommy and Johnny are on their vacation, are that the microorganisms collected in their beds are scattered to the four winds of heaven. Then when the time comes that the blankets begin to show symptoms of wanting a wash send them to be cleaned. Once a year or even less will be sufficient for this. It will not cost more than the soap and fire, to say nothing of the scolding, temper and general derangement which Mrs. Flinn would bring into your unoffending household.

In a large hospital, celebrated for its management, the five year old blankets were placed beside the new ones, and the writer was unable to tell the difference, and remember the wear and tear of a hospital is very many times that of a private house. Among some tidy housekeepers a habit prevails of carefully folding the coverlet each night and leaving the blankets exposed to the air. This is decidedly wrong. The surface of the coverlet is generally composed of some closely woven, shiny material, which will not prove a convenient resting place for dust. A blanket is exactly the opposite and should therefore be carefully protected by being tucked snugly in between sheet and coverlet, well out of sight—a blessing in disguise by night and day.

An Artistic Bookcase.

This bookcase, originally illustrated and described by Art Amateur, is fitted into a corner of the parlor. It is of oak, but little of the wood appears. The height is well calculated for convenience, and the open space between the base and the floor prevents any hidden accumulation of dust. The shelves and their contents are usually protected by light curtains weighted at the lower end, so that they cannot be blown about by any light breath of air. They are greenish gray, embroidered with sprays of yellow roses. The corner of such a bookcase, which cannot be utilized for books, may with the two spaces near it, be thrown open to hold a large vase, or the corner may be cut off, and the space occupied by the corner of the case and the two divisions next it may be filled with pentagonal drawers to contain coins or other small objects.

Cream Chocolates and Fig Paste.

Put the white of an egg and an equal quantity of cold water into a bowl, flavor with vanilla and beat until frothy. Sift in sufficient confectioners' XXX sugar to make a stiff paste, work all together until smooth, form into small balls, lay on greased paper and set in a cool, dry place for two or three hours. Put half a pound of chocolate into a small tin saucepan and set in warm water to melt. Put one ball at a time on the end of a fork, dip into the melted chocolate until well covered, drain and slip onto greased paper. Stand in a cool place over night.

Harper's Bazar, in which the above is given, tells also how to make that dainty and inexpensive candy, fig paste: Chop into bits and boil a pound of figs, when soft, strain and press through a sieve; return to the water in which they were boiled, and which should be reduced to a cupful stir in 3 pounds of granulated sugar and cook down slowly until a thick paste is formed. Pour in pans lined with paper; let cool; turn out on the paper and cut into sections. Dust with powdered sugar.

A Fine House Plant.

The hoya—better known as the wax plant—is named by The Housekeeper as one of the best of all house plants, because it will flourish in rooms where few other plants will do well. Its thick, leathery leaves endurable it to stand dust, dry air and heat, and we have but few plants of easier cultivation. Give it a rich soil, not too large a pot, plenty of water during the growing season—that is, enough to keep the soil moist all through, but never wet—a warm place to stand in, and it will flourish for years, its only enemy being the mealy bug. When it once gets to blooming, it will give annually a fine crop of flowers, to become a season covering a period of some months. If grown on a trellis, it should be given a sunny place, as the leaves are heavy, and one of the ordinary sort will not afford the plant the support it requires.

English Muffins.

For muffins make a dough of somewhat soft consistency with warm milk, allowing to every quart of milk 1½ ounces of yeast, which should first be mixed with the milk. Add the beaten whites of 2 eggs and cover the dough closely before the fire to rise. When ready, drop the quantity of dough required for one muffin upon a well floured board, and form it into a shape by turning it round with the hand; then slide it upon the hot griddle. To make and bake muffins well is no easy task, and great care should be taken. Time, 20 to 30 minutes to bake.

Cranberry Pie.

Pick over and wash the cranberries, put them in a porcelain kettle with a very little water and cook until tender. Then press them through a strainer and add sugar to make them very sweet. Line a plate with a rich paste, fill with the cranberry, put on crosspars of paste and a strip on the edge and bake.

Fish Rechauffe.

Use any fish, boiled or fried, left from dinner. Pick into pieces, and to 3 pounds of fish add one-fourth of a pound of butter melted in a pint of cream, a little mustard, salt, pepper and flour. Put into a baking dish, lined with mashed potatoes, and bake.

Train Wrecked by a Landslide.

ROANOKE, Va., March 9.—South bound vestibuled train No. 5 on the Shenandoah division of the Norfolk and Western railroad was wrecked between Natural Bridge and Buchanan. Engineer Jacob Hardy was instantly killed, and Fireman Will Noftsinger was badly injured. The disaster was caused by a landslide from the bluffs along the James 60 the tracks and occurred almost exactly 10 miles north of Buchanan.

Express Held Up and Robbed.

CINCINNATI, March 9.—The morning express on the College Hill railroad was held up at Spring Grove by two men, who robbed every passenger on the train and escaped. The robbery occurred in a populous part of the city.

Boundless Goes Lame.

LITTLE ROCK, March 9.—Boundless, the American derby winner, went lame in his exercise and will be shipped to Fields farm, near Lexington, Ky., and placed in the stud. Some say that Boundless will never race again.

WOMAN'S HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The Annual Meeting and Election of Officers.

The Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Crescent Avenue church, held its annual meeting in the parlors of the church yesterday afternoon.

The following officers were elected: President—Mrs. I. C. Pierson.
Vice President—Mrs. S. H. Struthers.
Treasurer—Mrs. J. K. Myers.
Secretary—Miss M. W. Ketcham.

An address was made by Miss Hotchkin, who had been a teacher at Harlan Court House, Kentucky. Her subject was "The Mountain Whites of the South."

At the conclusion of the meeting tea was served by a committee of young ladies of the church.

BREVITIES.

—The Woman's Relief Corps held a meeting last night.

—St. Joseph's Catholic church in the Second ward is to hold a fair after Lent.

—The Plainfield Water Supply Company is extending its pipe up Lafayette place.

—The Bible training classes of the Y. M. C. A. will meet this evening at eight o'clock, and to-morrow at 2.15 a. m. Visitors will be welcome.

—Policeman Charles Giese this morning gave out the contract for two new houses on Elmwood place. The work of erection is to begin at once.

—Charles Smith, of this city, and Aaron Woodruff, of Elizabeth, will shoot a live pigeon match, 100 birds each, for $100 a side, on Al. Heritage's grounds, in Marion, Thursday afternoon, March 22d.

—Mr. L. W. Randolph, the druggist believes, evidently, in giving his customers the best of everything. He has secured the sale agency in this vicinity for Whitman's marsh-mallows and has his first supply of these dainties on hand now. Have you a sweet tooth?

—Arnold, the butcher, had such a throng of customers in his shop on Liberty street to-day that purchasers had to actually force their way in. Mr. Arnold's advertisement in THE NEWS reads that he sells only the best meats at cheapest prices. That is what draws the trade.

—Letter Carrier Mullen who received his appointment papers as regular carrier yesterday, is taking Mr. Stephens' route instead of Mr. Weaver's as stated. Mr. Mullen was appointed in place of Mr. Weaver, recalled, but a change was made and Mr. Stephens was placed on Mr. Weaver's route.

North Plainfield's Election.

The election for borough and township officers for North Plainfield Next Tuesday should call out a large vote and result in a sweeping Republican majority. Democrats say they are glad of the opportunity to show even in this slight way by their vote their protest against the condition of affairs brought about by the Democrat party, where ever it is in control.

That this feeling is general throughout the country is shown by the tidal wave at the recent local elections in New York, and, elsewhere. The whole country is crying for relief.

Leading Democrats have informed THE NEWS that they propose to vote the Republican ticket to the borough for the first time, and that they will vote the Democratic ticket "never, forever, more."

So mote it be, but just the same let no good Republican neglect to vote. Neglect on that day cannot be remedied for a year.

CHURCH TROUBLES.

PROPOSE TO FORM A NEW PARISH.

Bishop Scarborough is Said to Have Given His Consent.

The members of Holy Cross church who left that organization in a body last September on account of dissatisfaction with the rector for discharging W. H. Milner, the former organist and choirmaster, have decided to form a new parish in North Plainfield. They have been negotiating with the trustees of St. Peter's German Lutheran church of of Grove street, for the use of their building and have at last succeeded in completing the contract.

The agreement is that the Episcopalians engage the building for one year for church and Sunday school purposes, for which they are to pay $600, the trustees of St. Peters to furnish the services of sexton and organist and to light and heat the building.

The consent of Bishop Scarborough is said to have been obtained and the Episcopalians expect to soon take possession.

ANOTHER EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Westfield Parishioners Tired of Waiting for Rector Jennings to Vacate.

Rector J. B. Jennings, of the Episcopal church, Westfield, whose case was appealed from church to civil courts with the result that it was decided favorably to him by the State Supreme Court, is called upon to face a new situation. His old parishioners have waited long for a settlement of the case and are determined to start a new parish, and with that end in view have issued a notice calling a meeting of all Episcopalians residing in Westfield and vicinity for the purpose of forming a new parish. The meeting will be held next week and is called in accordance with title 3, canon 4 of the Constitution of the Protestant Episcopal church in the diocese of New Jersey.

NUPTIALS.

McInnes—Robinson.

At 7.30 o'clock on Thursday evening Miss Nellie McInnes, daughter of Mr. John McInnes of South Second street, and Mr. Fred. E. Robinson of Thompsonville, Conn., were made man and wife at the home of the bride's parents. The Rev. G. Kennedy Newell, pastor of Hope chapel, tied the nuptial knot.

David McInnes, brother of the bride, acted as best man. The bridesmaids were the Misses Marguerite and Christians McInnes, sisters of the bride.

The bride was attired in a neat fitting gray travelling dress.

The happy couple have gone to Thompsonville, Conn., where they will make their home with the groom's mother.

CUT TWO FINGERS TO THE BONE.

Mr. George Leland Meets With a Slight Accident.

Yesterday afternoon as Mr. George Leland was driving back to his store, on Central avenue, after attending to a plumbing job, one of the traces of the harness broke. To fix it so he could reach the shop he pulled out his pocketknife and started to cut a new hole in the leather. As he drew the keen blade across the leather it slipped and cut across all four of the fingers on his left hand. Two of his fingers were gashed to the bone.

He hurried to a doctor's and had his wounds attended to.

NEWS FROM DUNELLEN.

WHAT IS BEING DONE IN THAT THRIVING BOROUGH.

Not Enough Houses to Rent.—Social Events Coming.—Improvements Under Way.—New Business Arrivals.—Personals.

Mr. John Hunt's new residence is being painted by Mr. C. M. Huff.

Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Zonder and family will move to Brooklyn, N. Y., next Thursday.

Mr. Wm. Terry has returned home from a business trip to Philadelphia and Baltimore.

C. M. Huff expects to open a paint shop in the store formerly occupied by Mr. Baden the shoe-maker.

There seems to be a scarcity of houses in Dunellen this Spring, there being more applicants than there are vacant houses.

Mr. Sampson's house has a new Spring suit. The suit is of stylishly applied paint and was fitted by John Kinney, the painter.

The Social Club will hold its next dance at the residence of Mr. G. E. Lowrie next Thursday evening, March 15th. Music by Prof. O'Reilly.

Patrick McMahon, better known as "Red Pat" and a man called "Mike" were taken to New Brunswick yesterday by Constable Wardee for being drunk and disorderly.

One sign of spring is the number of bicycles seen on our streets during the last week. Strangers should take warning and keep off the side-walks. Fines will be imposed for disregarding the law.

The "Ladies Orchestra" propose holding a dance in Friendship Hall, New Market, in the early part of April. They will not give an entertainment as heretofore but spend the time in real genuine dancing.

The Junior Social Club held a social at the residence of Mr. Thomas last evening. There were about 30 persons present. Refreshments were served about half past two o'clock. Dancing was enjoyed then until 12 o'clock. Prof. James Johnson supplied the music.

PERSONAL.

Rev. Dr. J. P. Taylor preached in Holy Cross church last night.

Miss Katie Savoard of this city will reside after April 1 at White Plains, N. Y.

Mr. E. B. Clark of Waynewood place has purchased the Ames house on Crescent avenue.

Mr. William Wennas of North Plainfield will shortly remove with his family to Philadelphia.

The Rev. Dr. C. H. Barnes, pastor of the Methodist church, preached in the Seventh-Day Baptist church this morning.

Miss Peck, president of the W. C. T. U., will make an address at the East Third Street Mission to-morrow night on the subject: "Temperance and the Liquor Traffic."

The Rev. Dr. David H. Greer, rector of St. Bartholomew's Church, New York, will preach to-morrow evening in Grace Church, on East Seventh street. The sermon will be preceed by a choral service.

About the first of April Mrs. John C. Bailey of Maple avenue will move from North Plainfield to take up her residence with her daughter at Roselle. Her son Howard has accepted a position with his uncle as foreman of a large farm at Liberty Corner.

Messrs. John P. Munn and Wm. S. Tyler are the committee in charge of the concert to be given by the Amherst College Glee, Banjo and Mandolin Clubs at the Casino, Thursday evening, April 5. There is a long list of patronesses and the concert promises to be a society event. Although there is a number of the young people, by special invitation, will remain and have a dance. Further particulars about the concert will be duly advertised.

Major James S. Yard, the editor of the True American of Trenton, the state organ of the Democracy, is also editor and proprietor of the Monmouth Co. Democrat, and is undoubtedly the fore most Democratic editor of New Jersey. During a visit here of a brother, Mr. A. A. Yard, on Washington's birthday, at the re-union of the Second New Jersey Cavalry, in which he served during the way, he received a particularly cordial welcome, to show beside the regard for himself the great appreciation of the services of editor Yard. In the Senate Maddie the editor is against the Democrats trying to steal the Legislature. He told a friend recently that when he arose each day he never could tell but that before night he would be called before his Maker, and wished to go with a clean conscience, which he could not do were he to countenance any such wrongdoing as the Democrats are now guilty of. It is gratifying to him to see his course approved by such leaders as Democrats in the State. It is gratifying to those who are not Democrats to find even one-pure minded man in Sodom.

The New Club Car "Plainfield."

The new club car "Plainfield" made its first regular trip from this city to Jersey City yesterday morning. It was attached to the 7.58 train. It's a beauty.

—The Spring opening of White's Millinary department under the direction of Miss Daly takes place on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday, March 21, 15 and 17.

A LITTLE CHAT BY AN AUTHORITY ON THE SPRING STYLES.

The Creature Known as Man Might Just as Well Surrender Unconditionally—The Fair Maidens are Preparing for a Campaign to Begin on Easter.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—

Silk stuffs are stuck in vogue tam spring for gowns intended for afternoon receptions and other occasions of ceremony where full dress is not admissible. Moire leads in popularity, of course, both in the plain and striped varieties, while satin, peau de soie and bengaline are also worn, but plain grosgrain silk seems to have mostly disappeared from the fashionable wardrobe. Elaborate costumes made of fine woolen goods and trimmed with richer materials are also seen, crepons being still favorites. Some new repped goods are shown, covered with small, silk embroidered figures, but it is doubtful if they will be taken up very eagerly.

BROWN AND MAUVE PRINCESS COSTUME.

ly. There are a certain number of novelties put out every season that for some reason, good or bad, do not hit the fashionable fancy, and so the shelves of the shops are clogged with them.

There are occasionally, on the contrary, other novelties that at once spring so unexpectedly into popular favor that dealers find that their reunion to buying has resulted in their stock of the goods running out during the very height of the demand for it. As it takes about six weeks to order and obtain goods from manufacturers in the other hemisphere, establishments are often timid about sending for another lot, fearing that by the time the second consignment arrives the popularity of the material will have waned.

Pieces of different material from that of the gown are still seen, especially on elaborate toilets. Rich fabrics, of which a wide variety is shown this spring, are used for the purpose and are also employed for the berths or the front of the corsage and occasionally to form a panel in the skirt. Fine brocades and damasks are this utilized, and both plain and embroidered velvets, while the body of the gown is of silk or wool goods. A charming costume made of light mist tone drap de soie is cut in princess form and closes invisibly in front. The immense balloon sleeves, very tight below the elbow, are entirely outlined with black. A tiny capote of black velvet accompanies the gown and is trimmed with Parma violets. JUNIO CHOLLET.

GRADING THE ROCAP PROPERTY.

To be Laid Out in Building Lots and a New Street Cut Through.

Capt. William Hand has been given the contract for grading the old Rocap property, on West Front street, above Grant avenue. The high ground is to be cut down a few feet in depth, the earth from this cut being used to fill up the low ground between Grant avenue and the old Rocap house. The street is also to be cut down for the depth of a foot and a half, from the top of the hill for some distance toward Dunellen.

The work has been surveyed by Mr. F. A. Dunham's employees.

The old house is to be moved back for probably fifty feet, and entirely remodeled.

The property is to be cut up in building lots.

A new street is to be cut through, beginning at a point about half way between the Rocap house and the next house toward Dunellen. This street is to curve along the edge of the small belt of trees on the back part of the property and so out into Compton avenue.

YALE ALUMNI IN ORANGE.

Mr. McCutchen Responds to the Toast "Our Allied Associations."

The annual dinner of the Essex County Yale Alumni Association was held in Orange, last night. The assembly room was decorated with flowers and trophies of the victorious students in boat-racing. Opposite the door was the mammoth flag of the New York Yale Alumni Associations. John O. Heid was the toastmaster. Prof. W. H. Reynolds, of Yale University, responded to the toast "Yale." Hamilton Wallis responded to the toast "Girls," and Sandford E. Cobb to the toast "Yale Young Men." "Our Allied Associations" was responded to by W. St. J. McCutchen of North Plainfield. The quartette of Yale Glee Club gave musical selections.

Lamp Explosion.

A lamp exploded at the house of Mr. William Barlow, on Prospect place, North Plainfield, about six o'clock last evening. It was thrown into the street before any serious damage was done.

It is known that he had these bonds in his possession.

WILLIAM E. SMITH & CO. ASSIGN.

Mr. Smith is President of the South Plainfield Lactose Company.

William E. Smith, doing business as William E. Smith & Co., butter and cheese commission merchant, at No. 209 Greenwich street, New York, has made an assignment to Robert J. Dean, giving preferences for $16,000. Mr. Smith has been identified with the trade for many years, was for nineteen years of Smith and Underhill, who were succeeded in 1886 by William E. Smith & Co., of which firm Jarvis Carter, the "Co.," died in August, 1893. Mr. Smith is president of the American Lactose Company, manufacturing sugar of milk at South Plainfield, N. J., and at Leon, N. Y., with an office at No. 209 Greenwich street. This company was incorporated under New Jersey laws in November, 1893, with a capital stock of $250,000, and William E. Smith was considered as a capitalist of that concern. He was reputed to be worth $60,000. At the South's place of business it was said yesterday that no statement of his liabilities could be made at present, but his assets were much greater than his liabilities.

Several Plainfielders are interested in the South Plainfield factory.

TANTALIZING, AIN'T IT!

To go out our shopping, buy your goods, take them home and tell your friends what they cost, and then have them say they bought the same at White's, at a much lower price. Probably it's the old-fashioned way that some stores have of getting all they can for their goods, but it don't go this year. We are doing business on a different principle and we make it our business to quote the lowest prices.

AND IT PAYS.

THE SENATE DEADLOCK.

S. H. GREY GAVE THE COURT NEW LAW UPON SENATORIAL RIGHTS.

Adrain was no President—The situation, he said, is Fatal, to Unique, Scandalous and Outrageous.

The quo warranto proceedings before Court to determine which is the lawful Senate of New Jersey were resumed yesterday, at Trenton. Samuel H. Gray counsel for President Rogers of the Republican Senate, continuing his argument, Mr. Gray dwelt upon the right of persons holding Senatorial credentials to participate in the temporary organization of the body, and then attacked the theory of Attorney-General Stockton that the Senate is a continuous body.

Mr. Gray made the point that unless the person holding credentials are allowed to become members, their qualification and election cannot be judged. The power to judge goes only after the member has been seated. He referred to the act pointed out for the first time which affords a seat to every holder of a credential; and held that the power of exclusion was judicial, and was only acquired after organization, and that its jurisdiction was exclusive. If the Senate, as contended by the other side, were a continuous body, there would be no occasion for a temporary and permanent organization every year.

In conclusion, Mr. Grey held that Senator Adrain had no official relation, even to the eight Senators who chose him as their president. That the body organized by the Democrats was not the Senate was proved when Senator Voorhees defied the Sergeant-at-Arms of the body to compel him to take a seat. Had they been a Senate, its power would not have been defied. Counsel said Senator Adrain had never taken the oath as the Constitution provides. He succeeded to his office as the bishop succeeded to the Episcopacy. But he was chosen as a temporary officer. If the Senate is a continuous body why was this done? He was President of the Senate. Why again chosen?

THE DIOCESAN UNION.

A "Field Day" Decided Upon—Other Matters Discussed.

At the regular meeting of the Newark Diocesan Union of Catholic Young Men's Societies, held last Sunday afternoon at the rooms of St. Paul of the Cross Society, Jersey City Heights, the Union decided to hold a "field day." A resolution was adopted instructing President Fitzpatrick to appoint a committee at his convenience to arrange for it.

The Tournament Committee reported that the choice tournament was in progress, all the associations having teams in it. They also reported that the committee deemed it advisable to abandon the pool tournament for the present. The reports were accepted.

Messrs. J. J. Lynch, W. Kiely and D. Galbraith are the delegates from the C. Y. M. I. for this city to attend the Diocesan Union meeting.

FELL INTO A CISTERN.

Narrow Escape From Drowning of a Bernardsville Boy.

The four-year-old son of Thomas Hines, of Bernardsville, narrowly escaped being drowned on Wednesday night. The boy, who, while playing near his home, fell down a cistern fourteen feet in depth. The latter, who was only a few yards away, saw the boy fall and ran to the cistern and descended the cistern, and with great difficulty rescued the boy, who had a large cut on his forehead from which the blood was flowing freely. Medical aid was at once summoned and the child was restored to consciousness. He will recover.

Somerset Without a Presiding Justice.

Unless the Senate deadlock is broken before the middle of April, says the Philadelphia Record, Somerset county will be without any presiding Justice, unless some other member of the Supreme bench is sent to take the place of Justice Magie whose term expires next week. This is the first interruption as a member of the Supreme Court, since his appointment, in 1881, by Governor McClellan. He got $9,000 a year, or $750 a month. He is a Republican and the Democrats have not appointed. His circuit will not suffer at once, as court will not be held again in any of the three counties for some weeks. The ordinary business of the court, such as signing orders and issuing the writs, will be attended to by some other Justice for the present. The Chief Justice may designate some judge to do the work.

Samuel W. Reese for Freeholder.

The townroom at Westfield Thursday evening was not large enough to hold the crowd that attended the Republican primary. The meeting was harmonious. The nominations were made as follows: Samuel W. Reese for Freeholder; A. K. Gale, Collector; S. R. Gardiner, Town Committee. The appropriations named for running the township the coming year were as follows: Roads, $7,000; poor, $1,000; fire department, $800; township expenses, $1,300; street lighting, $2,100; water for fire purposes, $900.

Mr. Langer "Not in It."

To the Editor of The News:—At the Republican Primary I positively declined the nomination as Commissioner of Appeals. I saw my name in the report of the meeting, and I also saw a letter from Mr. Langer declining to run. I have not been notified committee to drop it. I see last night's News that my name is still on the ticket. I thank the citizens of the Borough for the honor and take this method of notifying them that I cannot serve if elected. James S. Lemore.

The Trans-Jersey Coaching Trips.

Philadelphia, March 10.—All the arrangements for the coaching run between Philadelphia and New York are now complete, and at 9 o'clock on May 2 the drag four in hands will make the initial run. Starts will be made simultaneously from the Hotel Waldorf, New York, and the Hotel Bellevue, this city, reaching Princeton together about noon, where luncheon will be served.

Canvasbacks Galore.

Paterson, N. J., March 10.—The real facts in the Great South bay are swarming with canvasback ducks every morning. This is their first appearance in these waters for several years. The battery shooters go out for the market and make a rich harvest by killing those high priced birds.

VILAS ON BLAND'S BILL.

He Says the Seigniorage Measure Has Dangerous Features.

SENATE TO VOTE ON IT NEXT WEEK.

Stewart Creates a Diversion in Ending to the Debate of Silver—House Considers District of Columbia Matters—Opponents of the Income Tax Urging an Active War.

Washington, March 10.—After clearing the calendar of a number of bills of minor interest the senate took up the seigniorage bill. After an agreement between Mr. Allison for the minority and Mr. Harris for the majority that a vote should be taken on the motion to recommit or the 2 o'clock session of Wednesday, and on the final passage of the bill at the same hour on Thursday, Mr. Vilas addressed the senate in opposition to the bill. His speech was of a fragmentary description, owing to numerous interruptions.

In speaking of the hopelessness of speaking on the silver question he said that one might as well attempt to expostulate with a prairie fire as to attempt to argue with those who were determined to pass this bill through. This bill, shortly stated, was simply a proposition to offer nearly 200,000,000 of silver certificates, and force them into circulation by the currency. In addition to the large amount already outstanding, and to substitute such a volume of silver certificates in place of the notes issued under the act of 1890, which were to all intents and purposes greenbacks.

Vilas and Stewart.

Many of the features of the bill, he continued, which appeared to one side to be particularly dangerous, appeared to the other to be its chief merit, and it certainly added to the alarm which he felt in regard to this legislation, its purposes and its consequences, to hear from able and intelligent men the expressed declaration of their understanding that it was a step—a long step—toward the substitution of the silver standard in this country for the gold standard—not the substitution of bimetallism, that fatuous will o' the wisp which is always sent floating before arguments which favored silver monometallism.

An animated colloquy ensued between Senators Vilas and Stewart, precipitated by Senator Vilas' prophecy of the dire misfortune of silver monometallism and Senator Stewart's reply that if it was so easy to explain how this country will be injured by manufacturing standard money out of silver.

"It would afford me great pleasure to instruct the senator on that subject," replied Mr. Vilas, "but for two reasons. The first is that it would divert me from my argument, and the second is that were I gifted with a tongue of an angel that infused with it I could do him no good whatever." [Laughter.]

Mr. Stewart retorted courteously that the senator from Wisconsin could not show any facts to prove that any injury which might come would not be a thousandfold counter balanced by the benefits which would flow from the striking of the shackles from the commerce of the country.

Mr. Vilas, in his reply, referred to the fixity of purpose of the senator from Nevada to overthrow all evils to the demonetization of silver.

"My fixity of purpose," retorted Mr. Stewart, "is not greater than my abhorrence of the crimes which have brought misery to the people—the crime of 1873 and the repeal of the Sherman law in the extra session. Fixity of purpose!" he exclaimed, "I was born to abhor crime in any form."

Continuing, Mr. Vilas said that he knew of no necessity for the passage of the bill. The secretary of the Treasury had asked for no such legislation, and indeed it was known that he opposed it.

Mr. Harris Asserts Himself.

Mr. Aldrich said: "While it is true that the secretary has not asked for this legislation, I understood from the attitude of the senator from Indiana (Voorhees) and the senator from Tennessee (Harris), both distinguished members of the finance committee and in favor of the bill, that the latter was a party on the part of the administration for the passage of this bill."

"Did the senator say that he understood from me that it was the request of the administration that the bill should be passed in order to enable the administration to perform its duty?" asked Mr. Harris impressively.

"I said that from the fact that the senator from Indiana and the senator from Tennessee are in favor of this bill I assumed that the administration desired it to be passed," responded Mr. Aldrich.

Mr. Harris said slowly and distinctly: "I have represented on this floor my own personal and individual views. I have no information from the head of the administration or any member of the administration fully as to what they wish or do not wish to be done to it. I am responsible for my own individual views and shall continue to represent them until the end of the contest."

The Executive Session.

Mr. Vilas, being permitted to continue, said that the secretary of the treasury, being charged with the conservation of the country and with its credit, could not help but view with alarm the progress of this bill, which was not introduced in the house and was not then being urged in the senate as a bill for the relief of the treasury. Mr. Vilas yielded to Mr. Harris for a motion to go into executive session, after which the senate adjourned until Monday.

The executive session of the senate was devoted to the consideration of nominations, but there was no objection except in the case of C. S. Parker, who had been appointed postmaster at Fullerton, Neb., and who was charged with having voted against the Democratic candidate for congress at the last election. Senator Allen stated the case in obedience to the instructions of a convention of citizens, but did not ask for a division of the senate on the vote, and Mr. Parker was confirmed.

The nomination of J. Marshall Wright to be naval officer at Philadelphia was not considered. Within the past day or two the Republican senators have received an anonymous letter from Allentown, Pa., where Wright lives, appealing to them to oppose confirmation on the ground that Wright had offered indignities to the memory of Abraham Lincoln.

The house devoted the entire day to the consideration of the District of Columbia appropriation bill. The only feature of interest was the wholesale charges of corruption made by Mr. Kilgore against the press of this city and the warm defense of the press by Mr. Blair.

The Breckinridge-Pollard Trial.

Washington, March 10.—There was enough of sensation and scandal in the trial of Madeline Pollard's breach of promise suit against Congressman Breckinridge of Kentucky to-day to win the most important in the fashionably arrayed assemblage audience which crowded the circuit court. Witnesses well known to all Washingtonians detailed the secret history of the life traveled by the snowy bearded congressman and the attractive young woman, who, seated only an arm's length apart, were magnets for the curiosity which always surrounds the personages of such a case.

Chief among them and most interesting was Mrs. Julia Blackburn, the widow of ex-Governor Luke P. Blackburn of Kentucky, under whose chaperonage Miss Pollard had been placed by Colonel Breckinridge and who showed herself quite as keen as Colonel Phil Thompson, the Kentucky ex-congressman, who tried unsuccessfully to better his client's case by an inquisitorial cross examination.

An effort at Colonel Breckinridge's first wife, Miss Mary Desha, also had something to say concerning a mysterious basket, the materiality of which was not made apparent. Another characteristic witness was the chief of the Washington police department. The eminently respectable and dignified family physician played a minor part in the testimony. There were letters read and telegrams and four mysterious books taken from a Cincinnati convent.

The Judge Jenkins Investigation.

Washington, March 10.—The congressional investigation into the course of United States Judge Jenkins in enjoining prominent labor leaders and Northern Pacific employes from coming to or taking part in a strike promises to have important developments. On the appointment of Representative Boatner of Louisiana of the committee to conduct the investigation he conferred with his associates on the committee, Messrs. Terry and Stone, and with Representative Culberson, who suggested the investigation, as to the plans on which the investigation should be conducted. It was decided to notify Judge Jenkins of the proposed investigation and leave it for him to suggest what course he desired to pursue, either appearing in person or by counsel. It was also decided to have all of the labor leaders and Northern Pacific employees who were named in the writs of injunction issued by Judge Jenkins.

To Wage War on the Income Tax.

Washington, March 10.—Undoubtedly there will be a determined effort when the tariff bill reaches the senate to have the income tax feature of the bill eliminated and it looks as if the Democratic senators who are not satisfied with the bill would make this portion of it their chief point of attack. Senator Hill will lead off in the assault upon the income tax in his forthcoming speech, and he probably will be supported by Senators Smith, Brice, Murphy and a few other Democratic senators, as well as by a majority of the Republican senators.

The opponents of the tax claim that the bill will provide sufficient revenue to meet the requirements of the government without the additional amount which the levy of income would give and that because of this fact there is no longer any excuse for it.

Postmasters Appointed.

Washington, March 10.—The following fourth class postmasters were appointed:

New York—Melrose, Job Doty; Warnerville, W. J. Holmes, Jr.; Winfield Junction, Samuel Conner.

Pennsylvania—Millport, A. L. Dunlap; Ratimel, A. Shaffer; Yak Ridge, Branch.

The following postmasters were appointed by the president:

Francis G. Beach, New Haven; Cornelius Casey, Bethany; Ira Bennett, Newfy; Wesely Williamsport, Pa.; James J. Finney, Tarentum, Pa.; James T. Coogan, Second Windsor Lock, Conn.; Theodore E. Dawes, Westfield, N. J.; Jonah T. Howe, Trumansburg, N. Y.; George F. Parker, Bolivar, N. Y.

Croker on a Ranch.

Kerrville, Tex., March 10.—Richard Croker of New York and his family are still enjoying life on the Morris ranch, twelve miles from this city. They are being highly pleased with ranch life. Mr. Croker has not been to town since he went to the ranch on Monday last. He has spent his time riding about with his host.

Weavers to Discuss a Strike.

New Bedford, Mass., March 10.—The Weavers' union of this city has called a general meeting for Tuesday evening to act upon the advisability of calling out all the weavers in the Wamsutta mills in the interest of the present strikers. Should the union decide to do this, 4,000 operatives will be out of work.

A Life Worth $30,000.

Monroe, La., March 10.—The case of Thomas and Mary Elizabeth Maguire versus the Vicksburg and Shreveport Railroad company in an action for damages for the killing of their son was tried a second time, and a verdict for $30,000 in favor of the plaintiffs was given.

Arranging to Resume.

Uniontown, Pa., March 10.—The stockholders of the Columbia iron and steel works, at the head of which are extensive tin plate interests to start the plant in the near future. The works have been idle for two years. They give employment to between 500 and 700 men.

Oil Train Wrecked.

Oil City, March 10.—A freight train of oil tank cars ran into a landslide at Walnut Bend, near here, and was badly wrecked. The oil ignited, and the cars were consumed. Fireman Martin was killed, and several of the crew were slightly injured.

A Woman Burglar Arrested.

Emporia, Kan., March 10.—Upon the information of a woman who overheard their plot the city police have arrested the last of a desperate gang of housebreakers, which includes a woman among their number.

Advocates Canadian Independence.

MR. EDISON'S LATEST.

It Is Called the Kinetoscope and Shows Moving Pictures.

IT IS A WONDERFUL SLOT MACHINE.

Combined With the Phonograph, Not Only the Voice but the Form, Features and Movements of Great Men May Be Shown to Posterity by This Machine.

NEW YORK, March 10.—Thomas A. Edison, the inventor, has consented to tell exactly what he has accomplished in reproducing the motions of an object by photography. This is the first direct announcement that the new kinetograph, as the photographic apparatus is called, has proved successful.

Everybody has seen the nickel-in-the-slot machines which contain phonographs and play any kind of tune previously sung into them. Mr. Edison has now ready for the market a similar machine containing the moving pictures, which is set a-going when a nickle is put into the slot. This machine he calls a kinetoscope. The kinetograph is the machine which takes the photographs and the kinetoscope the machine which displays them to the eye.

The Kinetoscope.

In the top of the kinetoscope, which is a polished oak box just like the phonograph machines, is a peephole about two inches long and half an inch broad covered with glass. The interior of the box is lighted by electricity and shows a picture about two inches broad and an inch high.

The kinetoscope in Mr. Edison's workshop, which was exhibited to a reporter, contains a picture of a barber shop. There is the barber about an inch in height standing at his chair and three victims waiting to be shaved. But waiting is not the correct word to use of this picture. One of the lilliputian actors rises and walks across the picture to the chair, sits down and is tilted back. The apron and towels are adjusted in a trice with no gentleness (it is a 5 cent shop), and the hand of the barber moves professionally over the patron's face and under his chin before the proper razor is chosen.

The razor is slapped vigorously over the strap a few times, and then begins a 5 cent shave that resembles the swing of a scythe in the hands of a farmer.

Mr. Edison regards the nickel-in-the-slot machine as a mere toy. This is not what he is after, although it is entertaining. He said:

"Some time ago it occurred to me that it might be possible to invent something that would do for the eye what the phonograph does for the ear—an instrument in fact that would faithfully record and reproduce practically all motion. I was familiar with the zoetrope, an instrument on which certain pictures were painted and which seemed to give the figures a sort of motion, and I was also much interested in the experiments of Muybridge, who photographed horses in motion by instantaneous photography and reproduced the movements, but all these were very crude and resulted in jerky motions.

"The eye is too quick for such photographs. I saw that to produce pure motion pictures must be taken with sufficient rapidity to record movements of less than an inch in any part of the body, a longer movement only producing a jar, which destroyed the illusion.

Story of the Invention.

"Then began a series of experiments in photographing moving objects, and we got our apparatus to take 25 different photographs in a second; but this was not sufficient. Finally I had the human retina was capable of taking about 45 or 46 photographs and communicating them to the brain.

"It was a difficult job—a mighty difficult job—to get a machine that would do the work. When we got the requisite number of pictures, we found they showed with a slight tremor when we put them in a kinetoscope. That was because they had not been focussed exactly the same.

"If one picture is a thousandth part of an inch out of the exact line of the preceding picture, the sensitive eye instantly notices a tremor of the picture, which effectually destroys the illusion. That is the whole story," continued the inventor. "The photographing machine was the difficult thing. The various devices for properly displaying the moving scenes is of secondary importance—a mere feat in simple mechanics which anybody can do. You have seen the slot-in-the-slot machine. Funny toy. But that is not what I am after. I am going to do what I set out to do.

What Will Be Done.

"My experiments with the kinetoscope have been directed toward this end: First, to mount the photographs on glass plates and throw the pictures by means of a magic lantern upon a screen. Then, instead of looking into a peephole, a large number of spectators might watch the moving pictures. Second, to combine the photograph with the kinetoscope so that while the figures had visible motion on the curtain their words might be heard plainly by the audience.

"I am prepared to announce that thitherto of pictures upon a screen has actually been accomplished in my laboratory and we have had the figures in motion there so that the eye could detect no change from one picture to another. There are various improvements yet to be made, however, before this form of the kinetoscope will be ready for the public.

"When these things are all accomplished, as they will be some time, it will be possible to catch every gesture of Chauncey M. Depew delivering an after dinner address and every inflection of his voice, and to exhibit both to admiring audiences 100 years after he is dead. It will be possible to see and hear grand opera by stereoptican.

"This has been largely a work of sentiment on my part. I do not believe there is much money in it. But I believe it is in the interest of science and history. A great man will never die if his pictures and speeches are saved by the kinetograph and phonograph."

Work For Thousands on the Canal.

BALTIMORE, March 10.—The Chesapeake and Ohio canal will resume operations for the season of 1894 on Monday next. This means employment for from 9,000 to 10,000 people in Allegheny and Washington counties.

Fatal Boiler Explosion.

PITTSBURG, March 10.—The boiler at Foley & Faller's machine shop on Smallman street exploded, killing Otto Keller, the engineer, and probably fatally injuring Frank Faller, a member of the firm.

An Increase of Wages.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., March 10.—The Adelaide mill of the Phoenix Silk Manufacturing company has increased the wages of weavers 10 per cent.

THE PATERSON STRIKE.

Strikers Have Some Fun With a Squad of Policemen.

PATERSON, N. J., March 10.—A big addition was made to the ranks of the striking ribbon weavers when 1,200 of the operatives in the Barbour flax spinning mills struck for an increase of 30 per cent. All the operatives in these mills did not leave their work, and at night the strikers assembled in front of the mill to induce the others to join the strike.

A squad of six policemen went to the mill to preserve order. When they approached the strikers, they were surrounded by a circle of persons who wept in the doffing department. The boys and girls joined hands and swung around the police in a circle singing:

Ring around a rosy;
A pocket full of posies,

The crowd laughed, and this made the policemen angry, and they charged the crowd of laughing strikers.

As soon as the latter saw that the police were in earnest they met the blue coats with handfuls of dirt, sand and small stones, and then they took to their heels. No arrests were made.

Nearly all of the Barbour strikers are women. The striking ribbon weavers again surrounded the mills where men are employed on their looms, but no violence was resorted to, and the police did not interfere.

MISSED THE TREASURE.

Spent Two Months Digging on the Wrong Island.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 10.—A Minneapolis man spent two months this winter searching for a pirate's buried treasure of gold and jewels in one of the West Indian islands. Captain Eric Hector McLeod, who commands a whaleback steamer between Duluth and Buffalo, claims to have learned from an old sea captain just before the latter's death of the exact location of a $5,000,000 treasure on one of the Spanish islands. He doubted the yarn, but finally went with a small party from New York in a steam yacht armed with a chart of the island.

He claimed to have found the gold, but it was impracticable to take it away, owing to the fact that Spanish soldiers were working on the island digging guano. A plan was formed to go back after the treasure at a more convenient time.

Meanwhile Captain McLeod came to Minneapolis to visit his sister and told the story of the treasure. He was careful, however, to name the wrong island, as in his story he said the treasure was on Mona Island, whereas the real place was 900 miles away. Among those who heard the story in Minneapolis was Henry Stone. He made the trip to Mona, but of course failed to find the treasure.

Died During a Fire.

WARSAW, Ky., March 10.—Fire destroyed the Crown flouring mills and granary, containing several thousand bushels of wheat in bulk. Mrs. E. A. Allen during the excitement was stricken with paralysis of the heart and died almost instantly.

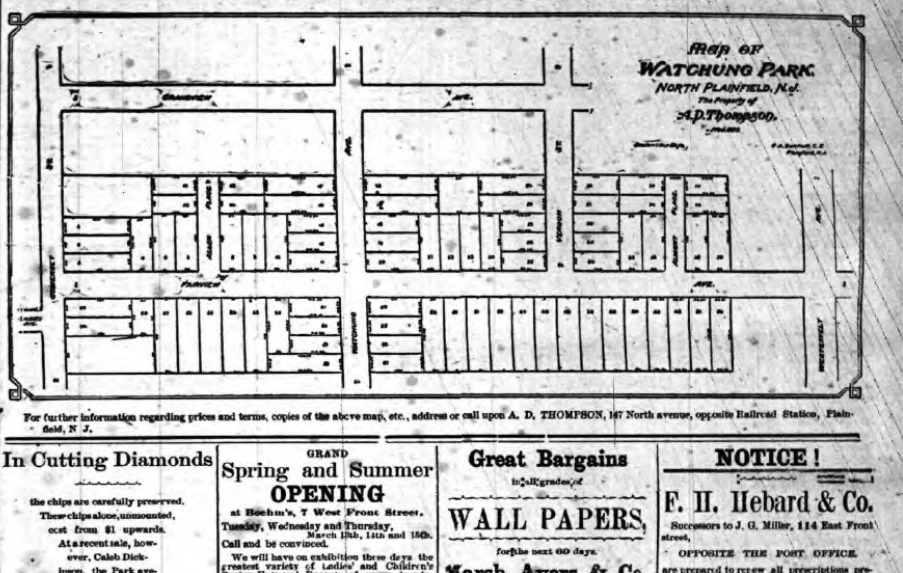
Watchung Park Property!

Handsomely Situated BUILDING LOTS Now Offered For Sale.

This Property is in the heart of the recently opened residence section of the city, being within a few minutes' walk of the Central Railroad station.
The New Watchung Park, with its new streets and avenues, will be among the handsomest residence sections in this pretty suburban place.
Only High Grade Residences will be erected. The neighborhood will be restricted, making it as desirable as any in Plainfield.
All Modern Improvements will be in force by early Spring. The work of macadamizing the streets is now being pushed rapidly.
Electric Cars Pass the property. Electric light, gas and city water will be introduced as soon in the Spring as they are needed.
Scores of Beautiful Homes now fronting on Sandford and Westervelt avenues have been located on the old Crescents' half field.
Fast as Property Values Jumped in Sandford and Westervelt avenues, so will they also increase rapidly in Watchung Park. Those who buy now will reap the benefit of an early investment.
The Lots Are About 50x150 feet in size, and the printed map of the property will give the public necessary information as to their location.



For further information regarding prices and terms, copies of the above map, etc., address or call upon A. D. THOMPSON, 167 North avenue, opposite Railroad Station, Plainfield, N. J.

A TENNESSEE WOMAN.

INTERESTING HOME LIFE OF ONE NOT UNKNOWN TO FAME.

Her Father, Whom She Calls "Daddy," Is Her Favorite Companion—A Writer of Romances Who Enjoys Real Life—Among the Miners—The Yellow Hammer's Nest.

A little slip of a woman with short, dark brown curly hair and kindly blue gray eyes, in whose depths meet and commingle merriment and pathos, with the soft, mellow, liquid voice of the southern gentlewoman and graceful little gestures all her own—such is Will Allen Dromgoole, the Tennessee novelist and writer of short stories.

The masculine character of her name has brought her almost as many amusing experiences as those of her distinguished compatriot, Charles Egbert Craddock, from whose name she comes. Before Miss Dromgoole began her literary career she was for eight years enrolling clerk of the Tennessee state senate. With the keenest appreciation of the situation, she tells how during one of her campaigns she wrote to a rough, old mountaineer politician, asking him to vote for her, and received a reply as follows:

DEAR WILL—No, I won't. I'll vote for no d——d name against a lot of women.

Miss Dromgoole has a unique home up in the Cumberland foothills, where she spends the time between April and November of each year. She calls it the Den, but the boys of the neighborhood have given it the fantastic title of the Yellow Hammer's Nest. It is a six room cottage, with a wide veranda, and completely overrun with wild roses, creepers and morning glories. Here the authoress lives with her father and chum, whom she affectionately calls daddy, a man 88 years old and who does not weight 100 pounds, but who walks 10 miles a day, fishing, hunting and climbing such inaccessible fastnesses that even the hardy mountaineers point out the cliffs with pride, saying, "That's what ole man Dromgoole climbs up."

The walls of the writer's sitting room are hung with the skins of animals, the spoils of her own and her father's rifles, and the portieres are of coon and fox skins, the bushy tails of which form an effective border. Over the mantel, above the great open fireplace, hang souvenirs of Miss Dromgoole's visits to the mines of her state, for there is not an iron or coal mine in that country which she has not ransacked. Especially does she know the convict camps by heart, from which she has drawn much of the material used in her touching stories. And along with an old Confederate flag, with a saber thrust in its folds, hang a miner's slouch hat, the lantern and pick.

About the ceiling is an artistic frieze of pipes and canes, collected and presented to the lady by her devoted mountaineer neighbors. In one corner stands Miss Dromgoole's rifle, Betsy, and on the rug before the big shaggy mastiff hound, Sancho Panza. At the first glance one would scarcely think it a woman's room, but the piano, the books, magazines and some feminine trifles give it the softening touch which decides the matter.

Th's fragile little woman, who looks as if a breath of wind might blow her away, is a famous hunter. She does not know the meaning of the word fear. When she goes forth to slay, she wears a costume of gray corduroy, which reaches to the top of the boy's boots she draws over her small feet.

On her curly hair she claps a soft gray slouch hat, and with her father—a mountaineer Nimrod—or a strapping daughter of the hills who picks her up in her arms and carries her over creeks and moreover, the authoress sets forth. Just before coming north Miss Dromgoole received a message from one of her hunting cronies to this effect:

DEAR MISS WILL—I've got a big b'arskin for ye.

P. S.—Take keer o' yo'self up dar 'mong dese Yankees. Dey ain't no great shakes.

In the disturbances between the convicts and the state Miss Dromgoole took an active part. Realizing with almost a journalistic instinct that there was material for her pen, she took Betsy and traveled to the camp of the military. Directly she was inside the lines she was arrested, as all strangers were and conducted to headquarters. When General Carnes learned her name and errand, he at once gave her a pass and the freedom of the camp. The field and staff officers gave her a royal banquet in an old freight car, with a bench for a table, tin vessels, knives, forks and spoons of pewter, her spoon being specially engraved and mounted now as one of her choicest souvenirs.

"I never enjoyed a dinner better," Miss Dromgoole declared in describing the feast. A day or so later the soldiers on Big mountain gave her a supper, at which it was necessary, in order not to attract the attention of the enemy's sharpshooters, to extinguish all the lights save one. They were all having great fun over their darkened repast when suddenly a bullet whizzed into the midst of the company, piercing the jaunty fatigue cap Miss Dromgoole wore.

"Did you faint?" I asked her, when she was telling me this weird experience.

"Not I. I screamed, of course, and then seized Betsy, for I was full of fight and wanted to kill somebody."

The devotion of Miss Dromgoole to her father is embodied in these verses, which Miss Dromgoole has written:

DADDY AND I.

Two rats old chums are daddy and I.
We spend our days together,
He on the side of the hearth,
I on the other.

Two dear old chums are daddy and I.
We spend our days together,
He on the one side of life,
I on the other.

Never a secret have daddy and I
That is not known to the other,
Never a day has been well spent
That is not spent together.

Death cannot harm us, daddy and I,
Nor lift us from each other,
For under the trees some quiet day
They will give us a side together.

Two rare old chums are daddy and I,
Jacket and sheet by nature,
He on the one side of life,
I on the other.

Bedspreads.

When one wishes to use a Marseilles bedspread on a bedstead of brass or white enamel, the edge of the spread may be finished by a frill of lawn or linen, or by a heavy knotted fringe. If one of the spreads is used that have two colors, as gold rose and white or yellow and white, a frill of white may be used. If a fringe cannot be found to match the colors, holes may be punched along the edges with a stiletto, and heavy cotton or linen of two colors passed through them and tied.—New York Telegram.

BUSINESS IMPROVES.
Confidence In the Future Is Lacking, However.
GOOD NEWS FROM IRON DISTRICTS.

There Is a Larger Demand For the Furnace Output Than For Three Months Previous. Woolen Manufacturers Are Increasing Production—Failures Are Fewer.

NEW YORK, March 10.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade, out today, says: Evidences of present improvement in business multiply, but confidence in future improvement does not seem to increase.

There is more business and a larger production by industries, for the season has arrived when greater activity is necessary if dealers' stocks are to be replenished, and those who cannot make calculations beyond a few months are the most anxious to crowd as much trade as they safely can into those months.

In some branches of distribution, however, there are indications of a diminishing demand for goods, and the evident preference for medium and low priced articles, with the known reduction in wages and family expenditures, lead many to feel somewhat less confident that business will soon recover its former volume. Undertakings reaching beyond a short time are not made with greater freedom, and in spite of a larger present demand prices of manufactured goods tend downward.

Iron and Steel.

The most distinct gain is in iron and steel manufacture. The output of pig iron on March 1 was 170,696 tons, having increased 10 per cent during the month, though it is still 37.8 per cent less than a year ago. It is also stated that some other furnaces have gone into blast since March 1 and that unsold stocks have made practically no increase in February, so that the actual consumption in all branches of the manufacture is at least 10 per cent greater than in November, December or January. Yet prices are lower, steel billets being $15.25 at Pittsburg and plates $1.15 at Philadelphia—the lowest ever known.

Some moderate but no important contracts are reported here, and at Philadelphia business in finished products is not as active as it was two or three weeks ago.

At Pittsburg markets are weaker in spite of fairly large orders for structural iron and encouraging conditions in the production of wire, rods and nails.

In textile manufactures and dry goods there are increased activity and replenishment of stocks, as is natural at this season. But the demand has far falls not much short of expectations, and its character indicates great economy in consumption. A reduction in Wamsutta sheetings and in Garner's fancy prints is to-day reported, indicating the judgment of leading concerns that markets require more stimulating than usual.

In woolens also manufacturers are increasing production, mainly in a tentative way or on orders which are little more than sufficient to test the market. But the sales of wool at three chief markets for the week have been 5,150,800 pounds, against 3,598,750 for the same week last year, and in the past five weeks the decrease has been only 12 per cent, which is a marked improvement, in part due to the fact that the mills having say orders are buying at once what wool they expect to need for months to come.

Speculation Active.

Speculation has been much more active, if not more healthy. The sudden rise in sugar certificates, followed by as sudden a fall, has not failed to impart a like influence to the stock market, and while the average of railroad stocks is 16 cents per share higher and of trusts 82 per share higher for the week, all improvements have been based mainly on reports about legislation which varied from hour to hour.

Failures are growing less important and somewhat fewer also. For the week ending March 1 the liabilities thus far reported were only $2,937,882, and for four weeks of February, $14,890,091, of which $6,793,615 were of manufacturing and $7,576,127 of trading concerns. The number of failures during the past week has been 268 in the United States, against 198 last year, and 40 in Canada, against 32 last year. Scarcely a single one is of importance, and it is gratifying that the consequences of the great reverses last year have been so far overcome.

Bomb Disturbed the Pope.

ROME, March 10.—King Humbert receives constant reports of the condition of persons injured by the bomb explosion near the chamber of deputies and also as to the investigations of the police into the authorship of the outrage. The pope was engaged in writing at the time of the explosion, but heard the noise, and looking up he inquired: "What's that? I fear some sinister event has happened."

Bomb Under the Bed.

PARIS, March 10.—An infernal machine exploded under the bed of a workman who had an apartment in a house in the Colombe quarter, causing much excitement. The workman and his landlady were arrested. The prisoners made conflicting explanations as to the presence of the bomb under the bed.

Boston to Honor Irving.

BOSTON, March 10.—Henry Irving concludes his American engagements in Boston on March 17 and sails from New York for England on Tuesday, March 20. A memorial is to be presented on the Tremont theater stage on March 17 after the play.

Shot at a Lecturer.

DALLAS, March 10.—Tom Duffy, who shot four times at American Protective Association Lecturer Hale, was arrested and arraigned before Judge Kelton on a charge of shooting with intent to kill. He was held.

Business Cares Affect a Millionaire's Mind.

NEW HAVEN, March 10.—The millionaire financier, Hoadley B. Ives, is suffering from aberration of the mind and is under police surveillance at his home. Business anxieties are supposed to have brought on the trouble.

Mitchell Homeward Bound.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 10.—Charley Mitchell and Billy Thompson both left Florida, Mitchell going to New York, where he will spend a week or so before leaving for Europe.

THE TROY TRAGEDY.

Theory That Religious Differences Had Something to Do With the Murder.

TROY, N. Y., March 10.—It is now alleged that the fracas resulting in the death of Robert Ross was the outcome of an American Protective association feud between him and Bat Shea, who is a Catholic, and Boland, who is excommunicated from the Catholic church and who only lately became a Republican and a member of the American Protective association. It is said that in the caucus a few weeks ago the dead man, Ross, had violent words with other members of his party over the question of indorsing Whelan, who is also a Catholic, and that in a fracas that occurred he was hurt.

Shea, who was interviewed at the jail, says: "Whoever fired that shot that killed Mr. Ross fired it from behind him and probably at me, for I was facing him when he fell. I did not shoot. After several shots were fired I felt a pain in my neck and dropped. I had my revolver in my hand."

Governor Flower summoned District Attorney Kelly of this place before him and conferred with him relative to the operations of the persons concerned in the election crimes committed here last Tuesday.

Governor Flower said he thought the district attorney ought to associate with him in these prosecutions the ablest lawyers in the city—men in whose honesty and fairness the people had perfect confidence. The district attorney expressed a willingness to do this, and the governor thereupon suggested the names of ex-Speaker Charles E. Patterson and Seymour Van Santvoord, both of Troy.

These names were satisfactory to the district attorney, and later in the day Messrs. Patterson and Van Santvoord were both telephoned for and held a long conference with the governor. Both gentlemen expressed some hesitation about undertaking so responsible a task, but when urged by the governor consented to act. Both gentlemen are Democrats and prominent members of the Troy bar.

Awarded the Double Dragoon.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 10.—The steamship Pacific, from Yokohama and Hong Kong, with advices to Feb. 24, arrived here. It is reported that Russia and China have come to a secret understanding regarding the Pamirs. According to a Shanghai paper Count Cassin, Russian minister at the Chinese capital, has received the highest decoration lying in the power of the emperor of China—namely, the almaug jung, or double dragoon, first division, first class. This honor is the highest ever conferred on a foreigner.

Governor McCorkle Denounced.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 10.—Perry, chairman of the executive committee of the United Mine Laborers, was at the state house and had a long conference with Governor McCorkle. There was a meeting at Montgomery of the striking miners. The miners are very much incensed against the governor for sending troops to Eagle, and one of the objects of the meeting was to denounce him.

DA GAMA LOSES HOPE.

Insurgent Brazilian Admiral Ready to Surrender to a Foreign Power.

RIO JANEIRO, March 10.—There are reasons to believe that Admiral da Gama considers the chances of success on the part of the insurgents almost hopeless and that he is seeking an opportunity to surrender to the foreign commanders. This is thought to be due to the failure of De Mello to reinforce him from the south and to the fear that he may be overwhelmed at any time by the arrival of the government fleet.

This fleet is now engaged in mysterious movements between this harbor and Cape Frio. In the daytime the vessels of the squadron are to be seen in the vicinity of Cape Frio, while at night they hover near the entrance to Rio harbor. It is thought the squadron is waiting for some vessel or vessels, but whether it expects to be reenforced or to intercept the enemy can only be conjectured."

The German admiral has demanded of the insurgent commander the payment of an indemnity for the seizure of a lighter which was flying the German flag and also for firing upon a German steam launch. The lighter at the time of seizure was lying alongside the German steamer Catania. Admiral da Gama has acceded to the demands of the German admiral.

An Unreasonable City Ordinance.

HAMMOND, Ind., March 10.—Judge Gillette gave out his decision in the famous suit of the city of Hammond against the Chicago and Erie company for violating a municipal speed ordinance prohibiting the moving of trains faster than six miles an hour within the city limits. The court held that the ordinance was unreasonable and found for the defendant.

West Grover's Death.

READING, Pa., March 10.—The coroner will probably hold an inquest today on the body of Went Grover, the Chicago insurance agent who died here from poisoning. Evidence came to light that Grover had taken the poison on account of family affairs and that as soon as he had secured a divorce in Chicago he was to have married a young Reading widow.

Rescue Work at the Gaylord Shaft.

PLYMOUTH, Pa., March 10.—Thirty-eight feet was cleared in the plane leading to the supposed position of the miners in the Gaylord shaft of the Kingston Coal company in the last 24 hours. The rescuing gangs are now within less than 100 feet of the place where the men were last seen and where they are still thought to be dead or alive. That the officials are reasonably sure that they are dead is shown by their action in ordering 13 coffins, which are now in readiness at an undertaker's down town.

FIRE IN A TAILOR SHOP.

Considerable Clothing Burned Besides Several Tables.

A tailoring shop on Pearl street, North Plainfield, was almost gutted on Saturday night by fire. Several tables and a quantity of clothing were burned as was also the woodwork of several sewing machines. The alarm was sounded at about eleven o'clock and notwithstanding the wrong district was blown the firemen made good time in answering the alarm and getting water on the flames.

The hall ling which is only a story and a half high was burning inside a considerable time before the flames were seen. The windows were all barricaded with heavy wooden shutters and this kept the light from being seen outside.

It is said the burned clothing belonged to the Blue Front clothing store, at Somerville.

There was, it is claimed, $250 worth of clothing in the shop. It was insured for only $75. Mr. Rullention of the Blue Front clothing store was in town to-day looking after his goods. He has placed the matter in the hands of Mr. William Newcorn for settlement, and authorized him to notify Samuel Fankenfelt, who had charge of the shop, that he would be held responsible for the goods.

There was a brick furnace in the shop used for heating irons. This had a fire in it and it is supposed the building caught fire from it.

TO DECEIVE VOTERS.

THE USUAL DEMOCRATIC MISREPRESENTATIONS.

To Try and Influence the Borough and Township Elections in North Plainfield To-Morrow,—A Shallow Trick.

At the February meeting of the Borough Council of North Plainfield a resolution was adopted that the annual report be published in pamphlet form and in each of the Plainfield papers, provided the expense in each case did not exceed $10 extra, that is, over the cost of the pamphlets.

There being an established legal rate all three local papers declined to publish the reports on any different terms.

The Council had placed the matter in the hands of Councilman Edwards. In response to his request THE NEWS offered to publish the report at the regular legal rate, and then make up the type—the setting of which was the chief expense—and print the pamphlets as they had been printed for years by both THE NEWS and Press, the whole expense being only a matter of $35.

Last year the Courier printed the reports in pamphlet form alone and the expense through Democratic bungling was $45, or 33 per cent more than the entire work, including the advertising, had been done for in previous years.

Mr. Edwards did not feel that the resolution as adopted justified him in taking advantage of this means of saving a little money for the borough, and he reported at the last meeting of Council that he could not get bids from THE NEWS or Press, and accepted one from the Courier to print the reports in pamphlet form for $35. This was more than 30 per cent in excess of what the reports (including the legal advertising) had cost when done in the more satisfactory way by THE NEWS or Press.

The law required that the reports should be prepared and published for the benefit of the taxpayers ten days before the date of election, but the copy was not furnished to the printer until about seven eight days before! It was impossible for him to get out the report in time under such circumstances, and although he had plenty of time to get it out a few days before election, he seems to have been unable to do so.

The Council has a Democrat President and a Democratic Clerk, and they are considered largely to blame if the reports are not in the hands of the voters before election day, as they ought to be, and that the cost is over 50 per cent more than it was when the Republicans were in majority.

The Press of Saturday issued a special edition by order of the Democratic powers that be in the borough to tell the voters of North Plainfield about the reports furnished by the Republicans, which is, as shown above, untrue.

It is understood that the active twisting the figures was from the pen of the only Borough Democrat capable of such a thing, and that he and his side considered it a good thing to delude the voters with. If they would falsify the facts by charging that the reports have been withheld by the Republicans, knowing these statements to be untrue, it is reasonable to infer that the statements about the balances need to be carefully looked into.

This much is certain: That the delay in putting the reports into the hands of the printer seems to have been with the purpose now made clear, and is, to say the least, suspicious. The blame is entirely with the Democrats. It is all the more reason why Republicans should have entire control to ascertain the object of the Democrats in violating the law by withholding the reports from the voters until this late day.

We thank our cotemporary, the Press, for surprising this on us on Saturday. It is decent journalism. It gives us time to reply, and the voters a fair chance to see both sides and act accordingly. We give the records, which show that our Democratic statesmen, including the irrepressible Dave, are resorting to trickery as usual to deceive the voters! We don't think they will be deceived.

There is only one candidate lawfully in the field for Mayor, the Democratic candidate not having been nominated and not accepting within the time allowed by law. A vote for him, therefore, will be only a vote thrown away.

—Voters, watch your tickets to morrow. Compare with that published in THE NEWS. Look out for tricks to deceive. A fair election will mean a complete Republican sweep.

Plainfield Lyceum Cyclers' Election.

At a meeting of the Plainfield Lyceum Cyclers the following officers were elected:

President—W. H. Feristel.
Secretary and Treasurer—J. C. Traynor.
Captain—J. J. Lynch.
Racing Committee—W. Kisly, J. Hibbits and J. J. Lynch.

Joel Coddington's Will Admitted to Probate.

Testimony was taken to-day in the Joel Coddington will case at Somerville. The witnesses were Mr. Jackson and Mr. Kirch. The will was admitted to probate after the signatures were proven. Mr. C. A. Reed represented the estate and Messrs. C. A. Marsh and W. K. McClure appeared for the caveators.

CORRESPONDENCE.

What Mr. Needham Says About the Borough Finances—A Complete Expose of the Press Story.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—In Saturday's Daily Press the claim is made that the healthful showing in the report of the North Plainfield Borough finances is the result of a local democratic administration of affairs. During the past year the Borough Council for part of the year was equally divided politically, the Mayor having the casting vote, and for the last six or seven months, there has been a clear Republican majority. It would, therefore, seem proper that the Republican members should, at the very least, share in whatever credit may be claimed for the showing that is made. By the statement as published in said paper there appears a surplus of $3,554.42.

It will be noticed, however, that included in this sum are the balances brought over from the preceding year amounting to $1,582 06. The difference between these two amounts, nearly $2,000, therefore represents the excess of receipts over the expenditures for the fiscal year now ended.

But why this large excess this present year. By reference to the annual borough report of last year, it will be found that when local affairs were entirely under Republican control the last dollar of the bonded indebtedness of the borough, amounting with interest to $1,025 was paid off. This year the receipts from liquor licenses were $1,832 50 an increase of $1,000 over the year previous.

These two items alone equal the increased surplus without taking into consideration the fact that there has been a large increase in receipts from taxes, the payment of several years back taxes on some large properties having swelled the collections from this source.

It is not altogether surprising that the writer of the article in the Press should have had a fit of hysterics at the discovery that there was any surplus whatever, when the party whose principles they so unwaveringly support is concerned, but a few comparisons of the borough accounts for the past seven years gives no justification whatever for the claim that is made that special credit is due the Democratic party in this connection.

Respectfully,
W. E. NEEDHAM,
Of Finance Committee.

—Voters, watch your tickets to-morrow. Compare with that published in THE NEWS. Look out for tricks to deceive. A fair election will mean a complete Republican sweep.

ROBBERS ON THE ROOF.

Before a Policeman Could Get to Them They Escaped.

About four o'clock Sunday morning an attempt was made by thieves to enter W. J. Ford's shoemaker shop, on North avenue, through the skylights. They were scared away before gaining entrance however. Policeman Frederickson heard them on the roof of the store which is only one story high, but before he could get around back they escaped. To get to the back of the building he had to go around to Second street. There he found that a ladder had been placed against the side of a barn. Climbing on top of the barn it was an easy matter to jump to the roof of Ford's store.

To Cut the Property up in Building Lots.

It is the intention of Loomis & Rice, who asked permission at the last Council meeting, to move the old West boarding house from its present location to the corner of East Second and Churchs treets, and to cut the old Embury property, which takes in that block bounded by Front, Church and Second streets, into building lots.

Organized a Cycling Department.

At a meeting Thursday afternoon of the Plainfield High School Athletic Association a cycling department was organized with A. Woltman, captain; E. I. Sergeant, first lieutenant; H. C. Wells, second lieutenant, and Volney Green color bearer.

To Wake up the Election Officers.

The fire alarm whistle of the borough will blow once, long and loud, to-morrow morning at five o'clock. That is to inform the election officers that is time to get up, as Mayor Purporovitz's idea. The election officers will please take notice—one whistle means "get up."

The Case Dismissed.

The case for assault brought by Sarah Noe, servant, against Mrs. Bullman, was dismissed by Justice Mosher, it being demonstrated that it had no foundation in fact and that it was a malicious attempt to cause Mrs. Bullman trouble.

FIRST EVENING DRESS.

AN EVENT LONG REMEMBERED.

Mothers and Young Girls Will be Interested in Reading What "Judic Chollet" Writes About the Subject.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—

The first evening dress of a young girl is a very important thing, at least to her, and should be chosen carefully with an eye to setting off her youthful freshness and the avoidance of an air of maturity. It is a great mistake to put young girls in thick silks and satins and smother the simplicity that is their chief charm under a load of expensive materials that they have neither the years nor experience to carry off well.

China silks, embroidered India mull, airy nets and all sheer, dainty fabrics are suitable and may be trimmed with silk or velvet ribbons and light lace. If jewels are worn, they should be of the simplest. The most fastidious taste dispenses with them entirely until the ingenue stage is passed. It is also much the best form to have the corsage cut only half low. An extremely pretty gown worn by a girl of 17 at a late wedding reception was made of plain white silk muslin, with a full waist gathered into a belt, the neck being cut down but two inches all around and shirred with a little heading. The puffed sleeves reached to the elbow, and a few sprays of smilax were the only adornment. This unusually simple attire gave the young girl, who, although pretty, was rather heavy, a delicacy and refinement of appearance which a more elaborate toilet, such as she will have to wear in two or three years, would have put out of the question.

The gown of which a sketch is given is not so plain as the one just mentioned, but is nevertheless simple and appropriate both for the average young girl. It is of embroidered silk muslin, pale green in tint, made over a silk lining of the same color. The full muslin skirt hangs over a bell skirt of the silk, around the bottom of which are set more green velvet rosettes at regular intervals. The full bodice is gathered in at the waist under a belt trimmed with velvet rosettes. The neck is cut square and is surrounded by a shirred ruffle of the muslin. The sleeves, which extend almost to the elbow, are very full, and over the upper half velvet straps are tacked, ending in bows and rosettes. White gloves are worn.

THE NEXT POSTMASTER.

A Report Yesterday that John M. Hetfield is the Man.

Yesterday there was a report around town that Elmore D. Moffett, Deputy County Clerk, had been to Washington with a petition accompanying his application that he be chosen postmaster of Plainfield to succeed the present excellent incumbent, Silas R. Pope, whose term has expired. The report continued to the effect that when Mr. Moffett presented his application to Congressman Dunn, the Congressman said: "You are too late, young man. I have handed in the name of John M. Hetfield, which will be acted on in the Senate Monday." (to-day.)

Mr. Moffett's hopes being dashed to pieces, he had no further use for Mr. Dunn and hurried home, which he reached Saturday night and is said to have told the story which spread rapidly yesterday to the dozen or so aspirants to the office. Some of them denounced the Democratic party in general and Mr. Dunn in particular and declared themselves done with Dunn and the party henceforth forevermore.

One told of a certified check for $1000 having been paid for the office. Mr. Dunn heard of this report some time ago, and promptly denied it. Those who scouted the idea, said that Mr. Hetfield's wife is a near relative of Gov. Werts, and that the nomination was made to oblige the Governor, who had requested it, the Governor being in a position to reciprocate, and this is thought more likely to be the truth.

However, if the nomination is as reported, it is a very decent one, although from a party standpoint, it gives disinterested to those who think it ought to go to the workers for the party's success, instead of to one whom they claim has taken so little interest in politics that he has not half of the time even voted.

Now, THE NEWS suggests that instead of saying so many unkind things the defeated aspirants congratulate the one who has won.

The person who acted for Mr. Hetfield in the matter is City Judge W. A. Coddington.

Mr. Hetfield is engaged in the coal business in the Fourth Ward.

He is a brother of Lawyer Hetfield, an ex-Councilman, and a son of ex Justice Hetfield, an old and highly respected citizen.

Disturbance at the Salvation Army.

A disturbance was caused in the Salvation Army hall on West Second street Saturday night by a young man whose name is unknown.

After entering the meeting he began talking in a loud tone which greatly annoyed those near him. He was told by the janitor of the building to keep quiet, but instead of doing so he became noisier still.

The janitor then proceeded to eject him, and with the aid of some bystanders he succeeded. Upon reaching the sidewalk he threatened to fight the janitor. Some one started for a policeman, and the fellow disappeared.

A SUDDEN END TO THEIR FUN.

A Broken Wheel Stops two Young Men in an Evening's Ride.

Charles Sommers and Joseph Ryan, two employees at the freight house, in this city, experienced an unpleasant ending of a drive about town Friday night. Both young men are lovers of horse flesh, and this was the cause of their trouble.

Early in the evening, they started out behind a gentle horse named Clipper, for a little drive around Plainfield.

After riding around for a half hour, they turned up North avenue toward Watchung avenue. The horse, which had heretofore been jogging along at a gentle pace, suddenly started ahead at about a four minute gait. The men let him speed along and turned into Watchung avenue in the direction of Second street. Here the trouble began. The horse wanted to stay in the car tracks but the driver didn't, and had to keep pulling on the left rein to try to get him out. The driver came out best road on Second street was reached. Here the left front wheel evidently did not relish the treatment it had been receiving and suddenly sank down to rest.

The young men did not expect this and soon found the carriage making rapid revolutions through the air, after which they landed in the mud.

They got up and went home none the worse for their evening's experience, with the exception of mud covered clothes.

A New $50,000 School Building.

The Plainfield Board of Education has invited Mr. Ansley, an architect of international fame, to prepare plans for a new school building, the location of which, is to be on the Wauwinet property, corner of Grant and Prospect streets, which the Board bought recently.

The building will be started as soon as satisfactory plans can be prepared, and will be the most complete and beautiful of any school building in the city, if not in the State, embracing all the improvements to date.

It is said that the money is already provided to pay for the structure.

Mr. Ansley has erected a house on Grove street, North Plainfield, where he and his family reside. He comes here from New York. He has a string of titles after his name, on account of his scientific attainments, that but few men in this world have been able to attain, and in some of which he has the distinction of being alone able to achieve the high honor.

Masonic Notes.

The title Worshipful Master was adopted in 1735. Previous to that time the presiding officer was known as Grand Master.

England has 80,000 Masons to 35,000,000 inhabitants. In the United States there are 700,000 to 65,000,000.

RAIDED A COCK FIGHT.

Three Detectives Had a Serious Time at Lake Mahopac.

BESIEGED ALL NIGHT BY A MOB.

They Succeeded In Arresting the Two Handlers, but the Rest of the Sports Fought Their Way Out—Several Birds Captured and Handed Over to Their Friends and the Birds—Many Broken Heads.

LAKE MAHOPAC, N. Y., March 12.—Ten battle scarred gamecocks, steel gaffed and ready for the fray, were expressed from this village last night for New York city Their two handlers were fined $10 apiece for cock fighting. About a quarter of the men of the town are nursing bruised heads and bodies today, and fully one-half are wearing looks of anxiety, the result of uncertainty regarding an armful of warrants which Justice Smith has granted. It is generally conceded that Lake Mahopac has lost all desire for engage in future recreation with fighting cocks.

This little place has long been famous as the center of a district of country cock fighters. Nearly every month, sees a contest between birds in one of the many roadhouses hereabout.

Detectives In Attendance.

A mill had been in course of preparation to take place early Sunday morning for several weeks. As usual the strictest secrecy was enjoined, but the plans in some mysterious way came to the ears of Warren L. Bennet, local agent for the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, whose headquarters are at 19 East Twenty-second street, New York. He sent three detectives up.

A weather beaten rookery of a roadhouse three miles west of the town had been selected as the scene of the battles. The pit had been improvised on the ground floor. The room was gayly lighted within, but windows and doors were carefully muffled and curtained. The spectators began to arrive about midnight, and before 1 o'clock half a hundred horses stood tied to the trees at the rear of the building. Their owners and friends were inside awaiting the call of time.

Little notice was taken of the three detectives as they pushed their way through the crowd and approached nearer to the pit. Attention was riveted on the birds. The three exponents of the law suddenly displayed their badges to the spectators. Two of the detectives handcuffed the two handlers, and Detective Lambert shouted:

"Gentlemen, consider yourselves all under arrest. The door is locked, and you cannot escape."

There was neither sound nor motion from the astonished company for a minute after the unexpected announcement. The surprise was complete and paralyzing. With the first silence there came a howl for liberty. Hasless and coatless, the terror stricken cock fighters ran about the room to evade arrest. Then through a window, without bothering to unstrain or pass, plunged one of the number.

It was the only means of escape, and before the officers of the law could grasp a single other man the fugitives had vanished through the four windows of the room. Three and four deep they piled pellmell on the ground outside, and started cutting themselves dashed off into the woods with bodies cut and bruised.

Recovering poise and courage at a distance from the house, a council of war was held. It had been discovered that the rousting had been caused by only three detectives and it was supposed in the fright of the moment there were at least a dozen. Then they set about to rescue the captured.

Bombarded the House.

They approached the roadhouse in a body and demanded the release of the captives by the detectives. The response was an emphatic refusal.

"You'll be sorry for all the worse for you," was shouted back, and a rush was made for the door.

The stout barrier yielded and went down, and the 100 men attempted to forcibly rescue the two men. The detectives drew their heavy clubs, and a fierce fight followed. It was short and decisive and resulted in a complete triumph for the detectives. With gashed and bruised heads the invaders were driven from the room. Then they gathered on the outside and held another conference. It was unanimously settled that discretion under the existing conditions was the better part of valor. Stones were gathered and hurled in numbers through the windows at those inside. The detectives huddled close to their prisoners in the pit and dodged the missiles as adroitly as possible. They were struck, however, several times.

The bombardment continued until dawn, and then when identification became insurmountable they drove away.

Justice Smith heard the cases, although there was difficulty in convincing him that a penalty was attached to cock fighting. The two prisoners and the birds were then trundled into town.

A great crowd gathered and filled the courtroom in the justice's house. The maximum fine for cock fighting is $1,000; the minimum, $50. Justice Smith thought that the latter amount, was amply sufficient, and the prisoners were discharged on payment of the amounts. Other arrests are expected.

Storekeeper Held Up and Shot.

SYRACUSE, March 12.—The village of East Syracuse was the scene of an attempted robbery and murder. While Charles P. Monahan was counting up his money preparatory to closing his grocery store two men entered. One of them, levelling a revolver at his head, demanded the money, about $600. Monahan refused, instinctively lifting his arm, which received the discharge from the bandit's weapon. The two men then escaped.

NEWS OF THE BRISCOE.

Her Crew Starving and Freezing on the Atlantic Ocean.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., March 12.—The British steamer Briscoe, which left Hamburg on Dec. 6, carrying a cargo of salt, lies in desperate straits 60 miles south of Cape Race. A lifeboat containing five men arrived at the Cape Race signal station and brought news of the disabled and long overdue steamer. It contained Mate Mackay and four of the crew, all of them nearly exhausted from cold.

According to their story they left the Briscoe last Friday afternoon, and after overcoming great obstacles they at last reached the signal station. On their long pull they had not a bite of food, were thirsty and suffered from the cold and exposure. All of them were living in a most pitiable condition. Mate Mackay says:

"In addition to our vessel being thoroughly crippled and waterlogged forward another misfortune came upon us, for we ran out of coal. Then we were compelled to use everything that would subserve the purpose of fuel to keep our fires going. On March 2 we were sighted by the British steamer Ulunda, from Halifax for London, which tried to tow us to port; but, the lines parting on the second day she was forced to abandon us after towing us 120 miles. Falling back upon our resources again, we resorted to the ship's timbers and wood for fuel, and in addition to this we now had to face starvation. Our supplies of food, which were but sufficient for an ordinary voyage and of which the men had been reduced to short allowance, were almost completely exhausted.

"So severe had been our demands upon the woodwork for fuel that that, too, was nearly gone, and we were reduced to the extremity of keeping but one fire burning in the galley to prevent the men from freezing to death."

The tug Ingraham and the coastwise steamer Virginia Lake, both carrying provisions to the famished crew, have started for the disabled Briscoe and will render all assistance possible. The Briscoe was due to arrive in New York on Feb. 17.

Mate Mackay also says that 65 men were left on board the Briscoe.

FIENDISH SPORT.

Branded a Drunken Man With a Redhot Poker For Fun.

CHICAGO, March 12.—Albert Barkowsky, 18 years old, and George Dunn, a bartender, were arrested for inflicting serious and painful wounds upon Thomas Davies, a porter in a barber shop, with a redhot poker. Davies went to the saloon owned by Barkowsky's father presently under the influence of liquor, and the injuries were inflicted by the prisoners.

Both of his eyebrows were burned away, and upon each cheek was an iron burned a track an inch long, and a similar mark was left behind each ear. On each wrist the skin was burned away for an inch and a half, while on each leg was the mark up for a distance of six inches the hot iron burned almost to the bone. In the region of the abdomen the flesh was severely burned, while many of his ribs were traced with the hot metal.

He will probably be crippled for life. The prisoners had no reason for their diabolical treatment of the unfortunate man except pure maliciousness.

Jones Will Mark the Way.

TOPEKA, March 12.—C. J. Jones, who is at the head of the construction company which has the contract to grade the first 100 miles of the so called Gulf and Interstate railroad, has gone to Port Bolivar, on Galveston bay opposite the city of Galveston, where he says he will commence work. Jones says he will "blaze the way" for the great Populist transportation project himself, making the entire journey from Galveston to Manitoba in a two wheeled cart drawn by a team of trained buffalos.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., March 12.—Grace Walter, a white woman, was induced to enter the house of Sarah Chester (colored). Sarah hit her over the head with a stove plate, fracturing the skull and knocking her right eye out. A wedding ring and a sum of money were taken from the injured woman, after which she was locked up in the house, where she was found 24 hours later in a dying condition. The Chester woman was sent to jail to await the result of her victim's injuries.

"Best Citizens" Indicted as White Cappers.

WARREN, Pa., March 12.—The trial of the case against the white cappers who took Frank Bright from his home recently at Kinzua and gave him a sound whipping was concluded last night by the jury rendering a verdict finding eight persons guilty as indicted. These persons include some of the "best citizens" of Warren. They are Dr. Stranahan, James Bardigan, Fletcher Newark, O. App, Leroy Strong, Charles Magrin and Joseph Lorelli.

Sunday School Superintendent Elopes.

LEBANON, Pa., March 12.—The police authorities have been asked to arrest John W. Beamesderfer, aged 28, and Cora Fickler, aged 14, with whom it is asserted Beamesderfer has eloped. Both parties lived in this city, where Beamesderfer acted as superintendent of the Allentown United Brethren Sunday school.

Anniversary of the Commune Observed.

CHICAGO, March 12.—Representatives of the united international groups of Chicago observed the twenty-third anniversary of the Paris Commune. The speeches were mild and pertained chiefly to existing labor troubles. The hall was profusely draped with red cloth.

A Disappearance Explained.

PAULSBORO, N. J., March 12.—The body of Charles J. Gant of Swedesboro, who disappeared in a mysterious manner from this place several weeks ago, was found by two boys in a creek two miles east of Blackwell. It is probably a case of suicide.

Salcili Blesses Some Pictures.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., March 12.—A set of 14 paintings, copied by Artaldo Dies of Rome from "The Stations of the Cross," by Overbeck, in the Vatican chapel, were blessed by Mgr. Satolli, the apostolic delegate, in St. Peter's church here.

THE BLAND BILL NEXT.

Senate Will Probably Decide Its Fate This Week.

FRIENDS EXPECT IT WILL PASS.

Appropriation Bills Still Hold the Attention of the House—Democratic Anxious to Take Up the Contested Election Cases. Thurston on the News From Hawaii.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Appropriation bills will continue to have the right of way in the house this week. The sundry civil bill, which will be the unfinished business when the house meets today, carries $23,256,263—$9,469,978 less than that of last year.

It will probably require four days to dispose of this bill. The two items that will provoke the most opposition are the appropriations for the geological and the coast and geodetic survey. After the sundry civil bill is disposed of either the military or consular and diplomatic appropriation bill will consume the balance of the week.

The members of the elections committee are very anxious to interrupt the consideration of the appropriation bills with the contested election cases, but the managers believe that the Republicans will demand a quorum to prevent a filibuster by the Democrats to unseat a Republican, and as many members are out of the city this might block progress in the house for a week. It has been deemed best, therefore, to push the appropriation bills upon which there is no political division as rapidly as possible and allow the struggle over partisan matters to trail along after.

The Senate Programme.

In accordance with the agreement entered into Friday the senate will devote the major portion of this week to the consideration of the Bland seigniorage bill, which is to be finally disposed of by vote at 2 o'clock Thursday if Senator Allison's motion to reconsider should fail of adoption, as it most likely will.

The agreement for the consideration of the seigniorage bill does not preclude the routine work of the senate, which is confined to the time before 2 o'clock in the day, and it is probable that many of the bills on the calendar upon which no division of sentiment is probable will be taken up and passed during this time and also after the seigniorage bill is disposed of on Thursday and the remaining days of the week, if the senate should not adjourn over. There are no announced speeches on the seigniorage bill. It is probable that there will be very little talk on the part of the friends of the bill, as they feel confident of its passage.

A Flag For the North Pole.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Mr. Walter Wellman, the Washington correspondent, who has organized an expedition at his own expense to solve the polar problem, leaves this city today for New York, from which city he and his companions sail on Wednesday for Europe. Mr. Wellman made most of his newspaper friends adieu at a special meeting of the National Capital Press club, called to express the esteem and good will of the club for the enterprise.

In the name of the club Mr. Wellman was presented with a handsome silk flag of the United States, which the club desired should sail to the top of the north pole or plant in the hole discovered. Mr. Wellman in a gracious speech accepted the burden placed upon him and said the flag should be planted at the highest northern point the expedition reached.

Minister Thurston Interdulcous.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—Minister Thurston, when seen concerning the reported startling situation on the Hawaiian Islands, said he had not received advices from his government concerning the present state of affairs and had gained information of them only from the newspapers. He was inclined to think the reports exaggerated, although it had been known for some time that the ex-queen was seeking recruits in British Columbia.

Mr. Thurston believes, however, that the provisional government has the administration of the government so well in hand that it has nothing to fear from the queen's followers. The report that troops were employed by the government would be in the queen's forces at a signal from her Mr. Thurston does not credit.

Tried to Blow Up an Infidel Paper.

TOPEKA, KANS., March 12.—An attempt was made to blow up the office of The Ironclad Age, an infidel paper published here, by turning on the natural gas and lighting it Sunday. The explosion was prevented, however, by the arrival of the editor of the paper. The paper is very bold in its denunciation of all forms of the Christian religion, and it is believed that the attempt to blow it up was caused by the bold stand it has taken in the matter.

Held Up a Gambling House.

COLORADO CITY, COLO., March 12.—Four masked and armed men entered the Oxford club, a gambling house, and robbed everybody in the place to throw up their hands. The robbers did not get much booty, as the game had been stopped and the bank roll locked in the safe. They escaped.

Big Raid on an Opium Den.

ST. LOUIS, March 12.—The police made a raid on a place said to be an opium and gambling joint kept by a Chinaman named Quong Son Wah. At least 70 Celestials were captured while in the act of playing poker, fantan and craps and "hitting the pipe."

Nineteen Delaware Ordained.

EASTON, Pa., March 12.—Bishop Andrews ordained 19 deacons elected by the Philadelphia Methodist Episcopal conference. Simple and impressive services were held in the opera house, which was crowded to the doors.

German Steamer Sunk.

AMSTERDAM, March 12.—The German steamer Lüning, bound from Deaatz to this port, has been sunk in collision with the steamer Lisselde. Three of the crew went down with her.

Banquet to General Harrison.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 12.—Ex-President Harrison was given a banquet at the Palace hotel by the trustees of the Leland Stanford, Jr., university.

Mill Strike at Lowell.

LOWELL, Mass., March 12.—The spinners and weavers in the Merrimac woolen mill [illegible] to strike today for the old rate [illegible].

No [illegible] House of Mechanics' Hall.

BOSTON, March 12.—The story that Mechanics' hall will be altered into an opera house is totally denied.

AWAITING THEIR DEAD.

Widows of the Gaylord Mine Victims Still at the Shaft's Mouth.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., March 12.—No trace of the 13 men who are entombed in the Gaylord mine at Plymouth has yet been discovered, although the work has gone steadily on during the entire day. The suspense endured by the relatives and friends of the unfortunates is hourly growing more terrible, not because they have any hope of ever again seeing the faces of those who are dear to them on earth, but because they fear that poor consolation of giving their dead a decent burial may be postponed so much longer that it may at last become an impossibility.

All day long, as on many previous days, the women have hung around the fatal pit waiting and watching. Every one who comes up from the depths below is eagerly, prayerfully questioned, but from all comes the same reply—no signs of the lost ones. Once during the day it was rumored that the local undertaker had been summoned and that one of the mutilated bodies had been found.

There was a rush for the mine, and Superintendent Edwards was besieged with questions. He could only contradict it and bid the anxious ones wait. It is thought by some of the miners that the point where the men were last seen has been passed and that the bodies lie in some of the numerous breasts opening from the main passageway and which have been passed without having been reopened.

HE SAW WATERSPOUTS.

The Captain of a British Steamer Spins a Yarn of the Sea.

NEW YORK, March 12.—The British steamer Castle Eden, Captain Crail, arrived here from West Indian ports. Captain Coull states that on March 9, at 4 p. m., near Cape Hatteras, he saw northeast, by north, 30 miles away, a fleet of from three large waterspouts, one of which presented a well defined and beautiful appearance, reaching from the sky to the water.

It looked like two large funnels, one inverted under the other. It circled close around the ship and caused much alarm about the vessel. The wind at the time was blowing a fresh southeast breeze, when it suddenly veered all around the compass and ended in a sudden squall from the northeast.

The waterspout finally burst about a quarter of a mile astern of the vessel, and striking the sea set in motion forces it churned the water into foam for a considerable distance. The other two waterspouts passed at quite a distance from the vessel, greatly to the relief of all on board.

M'KINLEY'S VIEWS.

He Makes Comments on the Revised Wilson Bill.

MASSILLON, O., March 12.—Governor McKinley attended the funeral here of James McLain, an old friend. He goes to Minneapolis on March 29 to address the state convention of Republican clubs.

"I have not seen anything but the brief newspaper reports of the senate tariff bill," said he, "but I should say that it demolished Mr. Wilson's theory very effectively. The increase of 4 miles from the free list of the Wilson bill to the dutiable list is certainly striking."

"But what of the usefulness of these changes from a practical standpoint?"

"They strike me as an aggravation. They are too inconsequential. The committee has done fairly well by sugar. The process is expensive, however. It provides revenue, but directly out of the pockets of the consumers. The bounty plan affords the same protection and at a far less cost."

A Coaching Accident.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 12.—At the Midwinter fair grounds a stage coach with 20 people on board overturned while going around a corner at a rapid rate. Fourteen persons were injured, of whom three women and three men were seriously hurt. The coach was one belonging to the '49 mining camp, and the entire party were employees of the camp.

Movements of Ocean Steamships.

NEW YORK, March 12.—The following steamships are due today: Siberian, Glasgow; Greece, London; Wells City, Swansea; Columbia, Colon; San Giorgio, Palermo; Kong Willehad, Bremen; Munkrift, Swansea; Alecto, London; Nomadic, Liverpool; Strathavon, Liverpool. The Trave sails today for Bremen.

Another Saratoga Track.

SARATOGA, March 12.—It is stated on good authority that another race track is to be built here, so that the season may be made 60 instead of 30 days. The present law allows associations but 30 days of racing, and as Jerry Wicks will probably all be closed it has been decided to open this one.

Troy's Committee of Safety Named.

TROY, N. Y., March 12.—The committee of safety to act in the matter of the election crimes of last Tuesday has been completed, but the names will not be announced until tonight, when the committee will meet and sign their acceptances of the trust.

Brooklyn Irishmen Protest.

BROOKLYN, March 12.—At a meeting of the Ancient Order of Hibernians resolutions were adopted protesting against the action of Mayor Schieren in refusing to allow the Irish flag to float on city hall on St. Patrick's day.

INVITED THE BRITISH IN.

An English Version of the Bluefields Incident.

MOSQUITOS ASKED FOR PROTECTION.

When the Nicaraguans Appeared in Force, the Natives Sent to the British Warship Tamar, but Bluefields Was Occupied Unopposed, but There Was No Fighting.

SAVANNAH, March 12.—The report of the landing of the British at Bluefields, in the Mosquito reservation, was confirmed by the arrival of the steamer Elliot, Captain A. Brown. The Elliot, which is a British steamer, left Bluefields on the morning of Sunday, March 4. She arrived there Feb. 27—just one day too late to witness the arrival of the Nicaraguans.

Captain Brown says the Nicaraguans entered Bluefields on Feb. 25 and 26. He did not know their exact numerical strength, but there were certainly over 400 or 500 of them at Bluefields when he arrived. They brought no cannon with them. They simply entered under arms and without any opposition on the part of the natives. They hoisted the Nicaraguan flag over the custom house and over the other public buildings. The flags remained up during the time the Elliot was in port. There was no fighting.

Mosquitos Terrified.

The Mosquitos were considerably terrified by the presence of so large an armed force, as they were practically without protection in the city. Captain Brown says the report that reached him here with regard to the name of the British warship there are in error. It is not the Cleopatra, he said, but the Tamar.

The Mosquitos, he states, feared they might be attacked by the Nicaraguans, appealed to the Tamar for protection. Thursday, March 1, the Tamar, without any authority from the British government, as they had not time to get any such authority, sent three boatloads of armed men ashore. Captain Brown did not know the exact number of men, but between 30 and 100 landed. They were armed with carbines and cutlasses. The men landed ashore in the steam launch of the Tamar and were carried with them two gatling guns and three fieldpieces. The British forces did not land at Bluefields, but at Bluefields bluff, about four or five miles northwest of the city.

There was some understanding between the Mosquito chief and the officer in charge of the Tamar, the chief asking that the men be landed for the safety and protection of his people. The British soldiers went into Bluefields from the bluff several times while Captain Brown was there. They could not go by land, but had to use the steam launch, in which they carried one of the gatling guns. There was no fight of any kind between March 1, the day the men landed, and March 4, the day the Elliot sailed. Captain Brown says there was little excitement among the people.

Nicaraguans Objected.

The Mosquitos were frightened when the Nicaraguans first entered, but after the landing of the British officers all excitement subsided, and the people seemed willing to rest easy and let things go as they were until the trouble with the Indians and the Nicaraguans is settled.

The Nicaraguans of course objected to the landing of the British troops and considered it in the light of an overt violation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty. Little attention was paid to this by the British. The Nicaraguans wanted them to stick to the terms of the treaty.

The Tamar sailed from Bluefields on Thursday night for Colon for the purpose of calling at England for stores. In the meantime the troops were left in camp at Bluefields bluff. The Tamar returned to Bluefields late Saturday night. Captain Brown says the difficulties in the way of correspondence with the English department of foreign affairs, as he was five or six miles away from Bluefields, and he did not get word of the arrival before Sunday morning, when the soldiers were still in camp at the bluff.

Was There Poison In the Orange?

DOVER, Del., March 12.—Walter McGinnis of this place was arrested on suspicion of poisoning Lulu Reed, a young lady who died here under peculiar circumstances several days ago. Miss Reed had not been feeling well, and McGinnis gave her an orange. Shortly after she ate the fruit she became ill and died in great agony. It was suspected that she was given poison in the fruit, and the body will be exhumed.

Reformed Bank Burglar In Trouble.

BOSTON, March 12.—Langdon W. Moore, the reformed bank burglar, is again in trouble. He got into a wrangle with his nephew, John W. Henry, at their home and snubbed him over the left ear with a jackknife. He immediately made his escape, and the police are on the lookout for him.

Stabbed to the Heart.

BALTIMORE, March 12.—William B. Lawrence, a stove molder at Perryville, was stabbed in the neck and heart and killed at Havre de Grace, Md., by William Boulden. The men had been drinking and quarreled over the Mitchell-Corbett prize fight.

A Hard Times Suicide.

BROOKLYN, March 12.—Conrad Bykeefer, a dealer in house furnishing goods, committed suicide by shooting himself in the mouth in a room over his store. Despondency on account of failing health and business reverses led to the suicide.

Southern Prison Needed.

MACON, March 12.—In their improvements to the United States court the grand jury made a recommendation that there should be a federal prison in the southern states. All government prisoners have now to be carried to Columbus, O.

Casey Found Guilty.

TROY, N. Y., March 12.—After deliberating 36 hours the jury in the case of Michelle La Casey, charged with the murder of Barber Rathbone at Stephentown, brought in a verdict of manslaughter in the second degree.

John S. Davidson Dead.

LANCASTER, Pa., March 12.—Jacob Smith put a bullet into his own brain because he had lost his sight. He will die.

THE PECK MURDER.

It Is Supposed That Robbery Was the Motive.

HARTFORD, March 12.—The dead body of Robert H. Peck was found in the ditch of a crossroad in West Hartford with a bullet hole near the left eye. Peck was an industrious young man of 34 and lived with his sister, Mrs. Peck Hoefler, in West Hartford. He went out from the city on the last car Saturday night, and had traveled a half mile on the bicycle he left in West Hartford when he met his murderer.

Two rough looking strangers who were seen to follow him are suspected of being the perpetrators. Pistol shots were heard, but being of frequent occurrence they caused no suspicion. Peck's pockets were found turned inside out, and his watch and ripped open. As it is known he had both money and robbery is the assigned cause.

The body had been dragged across the road and thrown into a ditch—a distance of 18 feet. Peck had been employed as a driver by Habenstein, the caterer, but for two weeks had been laid off and lived with his sister.

The suspected men boarded the car in the city and passed three men after leaving it. It is said that one of them was seen with Peck on Saturday, but the sheriffs have no definite clew to work upon. Deputy sheriffs, policemen and hundreds of citizens have been scouring the country. Two persons have arrested two men answering the description of the suspects. Both men are about 20 years old and evidently amateur criminals.

GOOD HEALTH

TOBACCO AS AN ANTISEPTIC.

Its Action on Cholera Organisms—No Immunity to Tobacco Manufactories.

Nature tells of some interesting investigations on the sanitary quality of chewing tobacco as affected by tobacco. Small pieces of linen soaked in cholera broth cultures were rolled up into various kinds of tobacco, and the latter were made into cigars. At the end of 24 hours only a few bacilli were found on the linen and none on the leaf. On sterile and dry tobacco leaves the bacilli disappeared in one-half to three hours after inoculation. On moist, unsterilized leaves they disappeared in from one to three days, but on moist and sterile leaves in from two to four days. When introduced into a 5 per cent tobacco infusion (10 grams of leaves to 200 grams of water), however, they retained their vitality up to 30 days, but in a more concentrated infusion (one gram of leaves to two grams of water) they succumbed in 36 hours. When enveloped in tobacco smoke, they were destroyed—in broth cultures as well as in sterilized and unsterilized saliva—in five minutes.

An Italian authority describes a series of experiments in which he prepared broth cultures of different pathogenic microbes and moulds and through them the smoke from various kinds of tobacco. Out of 25 separate investigations, in only three were the cholera organisms alive after 30 minutes' exposure to tobacco fumes. But the actual experience the apparent antiseptic properties of tobacco have not infrequently been met with. Thus, during the influenza epidemic in 1890, Wolff mentions the remarkable immunity from this disease which characterized the operatives in tobacco manufactories; while in Genoa, for example, out of 1,250 work people then engaged, not one was attacked, while in Rome the number was so insignificant that the works were never stopped, and no precautions were considered necessary.

Cod Liver Oil Germs.

According to The Medical Press, it seems that nothing has thoroughly than total abstention from food and drink can protect us from the inhibition of disease germs, in stomach as there is not an article of daily consumption which will not harbor or propagate the bacilli ... ater or less number. We cannot even ... cabbage or vegetable is the comfortable assurance that we are safe from infection, for it has recently been shown by Lominsky that the specific organisms of anthrax and typhoid and the Staphylococcus pyogenes can exist for more than 80 days and multiply in plant tissues. After all, is not the germ craze getting a little overdone? It is worth while to trouble ourselves about 100 or 1,000 bacilli in a cabbage when we know that we live from morning to night in a more or less thick fog of germs of all sorts?

What Doctors Say About Grip.

According to the New York Tribune, Dr. Klebs says that an influenza microbe "is always abundantly present in the bronchial secretions of patients" and "diminishes in number as the disease is abated." The germs are disseminated, according to Dr. Parsons, by bringing the affected and healthy together, as in public vehicles and places of meeting, and especially by the poison being present in common and vitiated air. Dr. Caldwell Smith says, "An individual is affected by breathing at once the vitiated air from a person suffering from the disease, and I believe this to be the only method of infection."

Thirst After Drinking Milk.

It is a mistake, says an exchange, to suppose that because milk is a liquid food it is at the same time a drink which is capable of satisfying the thirst of fever, whereas milk appeases hunger, it makes thirst more intense after it has remained some time in the stomach and digestion of it has begun. It is thirst which causes healthy, normal nourished infants to cry for long periods of time in many instances. There are many cases of indigestion due to weakness or insufficiency of the child's gastric juice which would be greatly benefited, or even cured, if the child were allowed a drink of good water.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS

ART FOR AMATEURS

A STUDY OF SCARLET POPPIES.

A Design Adapted to Decorative Use on Scarfs, Plaques, Frames, Etc.

This beautiful design of scarlet poppies is recommended by The Priscilla as suitable for a variety of uses such as on easel scarfs, tidies, plaques and mirror frames, and can be painted in parts on a much smaller scale for toilet sets, sachets, cushion covers and numerous other articles. The study is extremely artistic in composition and arrangement and must be treated simply and with a great deal of breadth.

To paint the study in oil colors, after drawing or transferring the design, the following directions are given: First lay in a background with cobalt a little vermilion and ocher; then lay the flowers in with a good sized, flat bristle brush, putting in the medium shade of scarlet. For this use scarlet lake and a little carmine or madder lake. In the light a little carmine and flake white are used, and for the dark parts or shadings use burnt carmine, being careful that no white is mixed with it. The centers use cobalt and a little chrome yellow, with burnt umber for the stamens.

In the stems and leaves a delicate gray green must be used, say cobalt, a little dark black, ocher and flake white. Lay in the medium tones first, working in the darks and lights with the first colors put upon the canvas. Work with a broad flat touch, making each stroke of the brush help in bringing out the form of the object painted.

The modeling of the flowers depends largely upon the way the brush is handled. Bunches of paint show little catch lights that could be a great deal when properly placed.

HOW TO MOUNT STAMPS.

Two Good Methods Illustrated and Described For Juvenile Collectors.

The famous advice as to how to cook a hare was first to catch it, and so it may be said that in stamp collecting one essential point is to secure stamps that are perfect and keep them from being damaged. It seems an easy matter after having secured an album to stick the stamps into it, yet much depends on how this is done, and young readers will therefore find valuable the following from Golden Days:

To begin with, any pieces of paper adhering to the backs of the stamps must not be roughly torn off, but should be carefully removed, and this is best effected by floating them face upward in water until the paper can be easily peeled away from the gum.

Care should always be taken that the ink of the stamp does not get wet, for, although many kinds may be plunged into water without injury, some, such as those of Russia, are printed in ink that will readily wash off.

When all pieces of paper have been removed and the stamps are quite dry, they are ready to be mounted in the album, and the best method of doing this is by what is known as the hinge system, Fig. 1.

A strip of thin paper, B C, an inch long and rather narrower than the stamp, A, has half its length gummed to the latter, and the other half, C, folded back and gummed to the album, thus forming a hinge.

The great advantage of this method is that the stamps can be easily removed from the album without the slightest injury to the latter or to the stamps. Moreover, those collectors who are interested in watermarks can easily examine them without detaching the stamps.

Thin pieces of paper for mounting in this way, ready gummed and cut to the proper size, may be obtained from most of the large stamp dealers.

In Fig. 2 is shown another method of mounting stamps, which, if preferred, may be adopted by those collectors who do not take notice of watermarks, and therefore have no necessity for examining the backs of their stamps.

The strip of paper in this case may be narrower than when used as a hinge, but it should be rather longer. The center, B, is gummed to the stamp, and the two ends, C C, to the album.

Mr. Pussy Cat's Wedding Day.

My wife and I, you see, we were
A pleased and yet a thoughtful pair,
We must not frown, we must not laugh,
We're sitting for our photograph.

For we are in our best array—

Today is in our wedding day—
And we shall eat this afternoon
Upon our little honeymoon.

WE'RE SITTING FOR OUR PHOTOGRAPHS.

All the next fortnight we shall be
In Farmer Jones' granary,
Where plump young rats do much abound
And where mice are to be found.

Oh, life will be a lovely dream
Among the dairy curds and cream!
We both shall grow so fine and fat,
Mr. and Mrs. Pussy Cat.

The Rabbit and His Overcoat.

The ease and regularity with which the wild animals and birds provide themselves with winter clothing often cause mankind to utter bitter complaints about the unfairness of Providence, who gives rabbits and foxes and owls new overcoats every winter and allows the lords of creation to shiver in straw hat and duster until they can earn money enough to go and purchase what they sadly need. The hair and fur and feathers of all animals and birds that live in this climate grow thicker and heavier at the approach of winter, but none of them, save the weasel and the hare and rabbit, so called, changes the color of its suit.

In the summer the rabbit's suit is dull brown, the color of the earth and dead leaves among which he lives, and when winter draws near a heavy coat of long white hair grows out beyond the summer suit, and by Dec. 1 bunny has a brand new overcoat that is warm and comfortable. While there can be no doubt that the color was selected to match the line of the snow that wraps the northern portion of the globe in winter, the rabbit could not now get an overcoat of any other color in case no snow fell, let him long for it ever so much.

The danger of wearing a white overcoat before the snow fell was well illustrated this season in eastern Maine. By the middle of November the rabbits began to bleach out along their backs and by Dec. 1 were white. As there was no snow on the ground at the time, their coats made them conspicuous marks for the small boy with a gun, and hundreds of rabbits perished just because their garment matched the snow and there was no snow to match their clothing.

When the snow came and the wood roads were white, the danger was past, and no doubt the rabbits felt thankful, according to the Bangor News, which is authority for the foregoing.

Sowing and Reaping.

"Sow an act, reap a habit; sow a habit, reap a character; sow a character, reap a destiny."

Be careful what you sow, boys!
For seeds will surely grow, boys!
If you plant but wrong,
By the wayside high,
You must reap the harvest
By and by,
And the boy who sows wild oats today
Must reap wild oats tomorrow.

TANTALIZING, AIN'T IT!

To go out out shopping, buy your goods, take them home and tell your friends what they cost, and then have them say they bought the same at White's, at a much lower price. Probably it's the old-fashioned way that some stores have of getting all they can for their goods, but it don't go this year. We are doing business on a different principle and we make it our business to quote the lowest prices.

AND IT PAYS.

MODES FROM PARIS.

Styles In Favor For Day and Visiting Dresses, Dinner and Evening Gowns.

Paris fashion writers report the use of soft woolen materials for day dresses and plain velvet for handsome visiting dress or evening wear, also Peluche, moire antik. Jet is much used for ornamenting these dresses, arranged either in separate motifs or waved bands with drops or pans pilles. The day dresses are made ball shape, but not so wide as formerly. The skirts are made plain, with perhaps a little trimming round the base, and the bodices much ornamented with large collars, berthas, revers, etc.; sleeves full at the top and tight from the elbow, as they have been for some time past. Dinner dresses are made rather long and half high, open in either a point or a small square.

The ball dresses are pretty, but nearly all are satin, silk peau de soie or moire; little light material worn at present. For dancing the skirts just clear the ground and are ornamented with bows of velvet, satin, etc. The bodices are cut square at the back and have rounded corners in front covered with flounces and berthas, often spangled with gold, silver or metallic shades. Sleeves are short puffs; the waists round for young girls and pointed for married women. The last new idea is to place on the left side of the low bodice a small crystal, paste or diamond buckle and bow, which serves to drape the spangled lace.

When youth is past, it becomes more difficult to cater to the exigencies of the toilet. A day gown, however, which shows that taste and style may be combined even in this case, is made in black merve, trimmed with rich embroidered velvet, having stars of jet laid upon this for the foot trimming. The front of the bodice displays a vest of this same velvet. You will note how prettily the moire crosses it with its bordering of jet stars. The cut of the basque is long at the sides and calculated to conceal any protuberance of figure incident to middle age. The sleeve is the newest Parisian cut, falling full from the shoulder to the elbow, narrowing and tight on the lower part of the arm and yet cut all in one. Seldom is a style more becoming than this.

A Japanese Tea Gown.

Quaint and appropriate is the introduction of the Japanese idea into the tea gown. A beautiful gown of this sort is made of a shaded silk toning from white to green, and it is embroidered all over with flowers and birds in tinsel embroidery. It is lined with silk and wadded, the tone of the lining being a delicate pink, and the sleeves be cut in true Japanese fashion. A pretty woman of a graceful figure habited in one of these robes can hardly display her charms to better advantage, and the garment has one special merit—it is exceedingly light, for the wadding is formed of waste silk.

A dove colored silk gown, quilted all over and lined with pink, displays handsome embroidery and is made with a wattean plait at the back, for the Japanese are quick in adapting ideas. The little quilted jackets are cut in the most perfect style, displaying a pretty spring in the basque, the sleeves standing up well on the shoulder. These are to be had in all kinds of light colors, made of Japanese silk crape and china silk, and nothing could be more comfortably luxurious for slipping on when tired or to serve as tea jackets.

Popular Fancies In Jewelry.

Carnelian sleeve buttons rimmed with gold are pretty.

Bracelets in lace work designs worked out in jewels are worn.

Queen chains of fine gold links connected by balls of coral or pearls are still worn.

Amethyst and topaz are as much used for seals and fob chains as the various sards.

A pearl necklace was seen with festoons, between each of which hung a carnelian heart.

Tortoise shell caskets for jewels are lined with satin, but the translucence of the shell is lost thereby.

Many men are showing silver handled scissors that shut up on themselves and may be carried in the pocket.

Yellow toned carnelian with a milky haze over it is pretty and becoming, especially when set with diamonds or pearls.—Jewelers' Circular.

A REPUBLICAN CALL.

National League Convention to Be Held In Chicago on June 26.

CHICAGO, March 12.—The official call for the annual convention of the National Republican league was issued from the national headquarters in this city today. The convention will be held in Denver on June 26 and will continue several days.

The date had been originally set for May, but the Denver people desired that it be postponed until the latter part of June in order that it might conclude its deliberations about the Fourth of July to allow the delegates to join in a monster celebration of the nation's birthday. The National league committee was favorable to the change. The ratio of representation will be six delegates at large from each state and territory, four from each congressional district and one from each college Republican club in the United States. The total representation will exceed 2,000 delegates.

The call reads in part as follows: "Dazzled by the glittering promises of Democracy and led astray by sophistry and hypocrisy, the voters of the country in 1892 decided upon a change of national administration. Democratic control and sectional rule are again complete in the national government, and starvation for labor and ruin for capital prevail as a result of the policies and influences that dominate the Democratic party.

"The hallucinations of 1892 are over. Facts have upset theories, and the people, weary of this tariff tinkering, bond issuing, debt increasing, treasury depleting, business paralyzing, wage reducing, queen restoring and un-American humanitarianism, turn instinctively to the party that saved the nation in a previous hour of peril and demonstrated masterly ability in giving the United States 30 years of prosperity, unparalleled in the history of nations."

MEETING OF THE C. O. A. A.

REPORTS HEARD FROM THE SEVERAL COMMITTEES.

Mr. Newell Says that Laudanum and Morphine Are Being Sold by Grocers.—This is a Violation of the Law, and the Matter is to Be Investigated.

The Citizens' Organized Aid Association met last night in the Crescent Avenue Church parlors. Col. Tyler presided.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved.

Mr. H. P. Reynolds, the treasurer, reported that the receipts of the association had been $401 of and the disbursements $173.85, leaving a balance on hand of $227 12.

He said that he had received sums ranging from $2 to $50 from members and that he had been puzzled to know whether to put the subscribers who gave $50 down as life members, or as only yearly subscribers and to consider all over $2 as a gift.

President Tyler stated that while it was very desirable that the association should increase its membership it was not for the purpose of accumulating a large sum of money as it was not the purpose of the Association to dispense charity, but to systematize the giving of charity by the several organizations. It was therefore very desirable that small amounts be given by many people.

Mr. Whiton, of the Finance Committee, said that it had been decided by the committee that unless otherwise stated by the donor in making the subscription only one annual subscription should be considered made, and notice should be sent to the members when this year expires.

Miss Leonard, the secretary, reported that Mr. E. W. Riley had consented to become a member of the Distributing Committee, and that Mrs. J. W. Yates, Mr. E. M. Cave, Mrs. Geo. Hillock and Mr. Johanna Fisher had become members of the organization.

As Mr. Robert Clarke declined to serve as a member of the Distributing Committee, a vacancy was declared in that committee. It was decided to wait until the next meeting to fill the vacancy.

Mrs. Tiffany, of the Committee on Co-Operation, reported that since the last meeting three more churches had been heard from, making a total of 24. The Salvation Army had also promised to co-operate, but as also the Y. M. C. A. Through the latter much good had been done by the soup tickets being given out by the Association. The committee was unable to make a satisfactory report in relation to the householder's duties. The committee recommended that the tickets be left at the houses. The report was accepted and the recommendation adopted.

Mr. Newell, of the Distributing Committee, reported that there had been 60 applicants for help since the February meeting. Of these 25 were given work on the road; four refused, and 31 had not received aid before. Altogether there had been 123 applications for aid, 93 were on the pay roll of the association on March 10. Dr. Hedges and other physicians, he said, had rendered valuable aid among many of the poor. 34 of the 10-week cards for work had run out, and 22 of these had been renewed. The committee had reported a house of ill-repute to the proper authorities.

Suggestions had also been made to the Board of Education that in view of the many boys playing truant from school, a truant officer be appointed. The committee had also deemed it wise to have a nurse employed by the association, but as the Kings' Daughters had taken the matter, it was left for the present.

Mr. Newell said that it had been brought to his notice that grocers had been selling laudanum and morphine to people in Plainfield, and he wanted to know what the law was regarding the matter.

Mr. Reynolds stated that it was unlawful for anyone, excepting a licensed pharmacist to sell any drugs, and as it was a direct violation of a State law that he himself had been the author of, it would be only very warm for the violation if direct evidence could be secured.

Mr. Newell further stated the trade of the grocers had been solicited by wholesale men, such as E. B Smith of Newark, who had notified the druggists to that effect. He cited two attempted suicides where laudanum procured at a grocery store had been taken.

Mrs. Kimball said that she knew of a case where 32 bottles had been secured by one family.

Mayor Gilbert said he would be glad to hear of any direct evidence against any person that was violating the law. He would put the law machine at work on it.

Mrs. Tiffany suggested that friendly visitors be appointed to visit the poor of the city regularly. The matter was left to the Distributing Committee.

President Tyler read a notice announcing that Miss Smith, general secretary of the Boston Society, would give a talk on "Practical Charity" at All Souls' church, Park avenue, on Thursday, March 22, at three p. m.

The meeting then adjourned.

"Joe" Miller Sued.

Mr. J. H. Tier, Jr., has brought suit in Justice Mosher's court against Joseph B. Miller, on contract. The case is set down for March 20th. Mr. Geo. DeMeza is counsel for the plaintiff.

Don't Forget to Vote.

MR. BACON'S MYSTERIOUS ENVELOPE.

And a Few Scattered Rumors About the New Postmaster, &c.

Mr. F. M. Bacon claims to have the name of the next postmaster in an envelope, which he reserves so lightly that he keeps it securely locked in the safe of Mr. Mallinson, of North avenue. A rumor has it that the candidate for the office, whose name is on that slip in that envelope has up $580, against 25 cents of his manager's, that he don't get it. Well, Mr. Bacon is his manager.

Its odd how rumors spread. The latest is that Mr. Coddington was head chief and manager for J. J. Flower and "Mickey" Keniry, Peter Miser and H. Jetfeld. But things get mixed sometimes, and the Senate will please hurry up that name or that portion of Plainfield's population that is chasing that Post-Office hoe will be as queasy and wild as the boy who got the live horses in his pistol pocket, and proceeded to regret it at once.

The latest, positively latest, rumor, is that Mr. McClure and Mr. Martine are preparing an emphatic remonstrance against the Senate confirming Mr. Hetfield's nomination.

BRIEFLETS.

—The married men and single men will bowl on the C. Y. M. L. alleys to-night.

—Somerset Council, No. 104, Jr. O. U. A. M. will meet in Red Men's Hall to-night.

—Plainfield Council, Royal Arcanum will hold a concert in Red Men's hall, on April 16.

—Crescent Division, Uniformed Rank, K. of P., will hold their ball in Hallett's Hall next week.

—The Aetna Social Club is making arrangements to hold another dance in Red Men's hall, some time next month.

—To-morrow night the Union County Country Club will hold its annual Club dinner. The music is to be furnished by Rogers.

—Thursday night the Catholic Club of Jersey City will visit Plainfield and bowl a game with the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum.

—Charles B. Sutphin, of New Brunswick, a decorator and painter, died last evening of pneumonia, and will be buried Sunday. He had friends in Plainfield.

—The next games in the Diocesan Euchre Tournament will be played in this city Thursday night between the C. Y. M. L.'s and St. Pauls of Jersey City.

—Borough Clerk Vetterlein says that he gave the copy for the financial statement to Mr. Edwards three weeks ago, and he is, therefore, not to blame for the delay.

—At the Congregational church to-night the Mission Band of Willing Workers will hold a sociable and cake sale, the proceeds of which will be used to educate a mission girl.

—The shooting match between Aaron Woodruff of Elizabeth and Charles Smith of this city has been postponed until the 28th of March, on account of the shooting at Maplewood on the 29th.

—All the live stock and perishable goods belonging to the late Joseph Lalor's estate, at Dunellen, will be sold at auction on Thursday morning by order of the administrator pendente lite.

—Ladies speak in very complimentary terms of Edsall's excellent assortment of new stylish Spring dress goods. Edsall says that many ladies meet repeat re goods are bought in short lengths or patterns, so as to avoid duplicates.

—A regular meeting of the Union County Board of Agriculture will be held Thursday in the Court House at Elizabeth, at 2 p. m. Subject for discussion, "What kind of farming county farmers doing to improve their land and business."

—April 10th is the date set by the Independent Fife and Drum Corps for their next dance. The Committee of Arrangements comprise Messrs. David Bodine Chairman; A. Wilson, Secretary; F. L. Marshall, treasurer; J. V. Beekman, A. Allen, and H. C. Ackerman. It will be held in Hallett's Hall.

—Application for the admission of patients to the Hospital during the month of March and April should be made to Dr. Perkins, 125 East Front street. Visitors to patients are admitted on Tuesday and Friday afternoons, from two to four, and on Sundays from 2.30 to four. At other times permission must be obtained from the physician in charge of the patient.

—The farm which Eugene Moore of Summit avenue recently purchased near Mt. Bethel is not ready for occupancy yet, and probably will not be before the middle of April. Mr. Moore has everything ready to move there as soon as the present occupant can get possession of his new place, some distance away, but the way the roads are now in the "valley," it would be impossible to attempt moving household goods.

Ministers' Association Meeting.

The Ministers' Association met at five o'clock yesterday at the home of the Rev. Robert Lowry of Madison avenue. It had been the intention of the Association to meet at the home of the Rev. C. L. Goodrich, but as he was absent from the city the meeting place was changed.

The next meeting will probably be held at Mr. Goodrich's.

A paper was read by Rev. Dr. C. B. Burgess, on "The Spiritual Life of the Preacher."

CORRESPONDENCE.

Dunellen People Don't Want Front Street Spoiled for Driving.

To THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—Dunellen citizens are in favor and anxious to have the trolley road of Plainfield extended to Dunellen, if they can have it on some other road than the main one to Plainfield. That is the only decent road, especially in bad weather, from here to that city, to drive over. Besides we have been at heavy expense to macadamize it that we might have a good road between our thriving little borough and enterprising and beautiful Plainfield.

Why not have the trolley company take the road south of the Central railroad track. That would accommodate the New Market people equally with the Dunellenites and be favorably received by both villages.

We, who economize in many ways that we may be able to keep a horse, would very much dislike having the only 25 rood road to drive on, be destroyed between Dunellen and Plainfield, destroyed by the trolley extension to Dunellen, as it has been from the center of Plainfield to Grant avenue. Anxious as we are to see the road extended to Dunellen we decidedly object to having our pet road and drive destroyed. S. L.

Dunellen, N. J. March 12, 1894.

HOW FASHION MAKES FRIGHTS.

Vagaries of Head-dressing Often Seriously Handicap a Pretty Woman.

To THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—

A woman who does not dress her hair on the top of her head should never wear a snowless bonnet. The only excuse for the existence of such a perpendicular sort of head covering is the display through the open crown of a pretty arrangement of the hair, filling up the empty space. Even in that case they are not suitable for anything except rather festive wear. They are quite a clever invention, however, since the hair is a more beautiful adornment for the head than anything that can be manufactured, and hats and bonnets serve usually only to conceal it.

Nothing external so much affects a woman's appearance as the arrangement of her tresses. If she is wise enough not to be carried away by mere novelty, she will find out what style of coiffure best suits her face and then keep to it permanently without regard to the vagaries of fashion. It is astonishing how often a frights woman will sometimes make of herself for the sake of being in the mode. If heavy fringes are in vogue, the woman with the low Greek forehead cuts off her front hair on a level with her eyebrows, thereby concealing her chief beauty. If pompadour fashions rule, forehands that would put the portraits of Shakespeare to the blush are unblenchingly exposed, without a curl to soften their boldness. In fashion, as in love and war, discretion is the better part of valor.

The favorite hair ornaments at present are small swords with plain, jeweled or enameled hilts. They are 6 or 7 inches long and are used also as hatpins by persons who do not object to the havoc made by the blade. They may be obtained in both silver and gold. Beads and bows of velvet and ribbon are also worn, although prettily dressed hair really requires no decoration other than itself. An illustration is given of a graceful coiffure intended to accompany a full dress toilet. The front hair is curled, while the back hair is waved and rolled over in front at the back of the head. It is then secured on the crown in two loose puffs surmounted by an erect loop, and the ends are allowed to escape in short curls. The ornaments are pearls, which are twisted in with the puff arrangement.

BIT THE POLICEMAN.

"Dick" Mead Locked Up After a Hard Tussle.

"Dick" Mead was arrested last night by Policeman Frederickson after a hard tussle. Mead was disorderly at the depot at about eleven o'clock and when the policeman attempted to arrest him he kicked and bit like a wild man. In the scrimmage he tore Mr. Frederickson's badge off and bit one of his fingers very badly, tearing the skin and flesh almost off the knuckle. He was finally landed in the lockup.

City Judge Coddington gave Mead the full extent of the law, sentencing him to pay a fine of $100 and to serve 60 days in the county jail

To tear off a policeman's badge is a State offense. Policeman Frederickson could make a complaint against Mead before any Justice of the Peace on this charge.

—Voters, watch your tickets to-day. Compare with that published in THE NEWS. Look out for tricks to deceive. A fair election will mean a complete Republican sweep.

Trying Gazelle's Engine on a Squirrel.

The Chief of the Bayonne fire department was in Plainfield yesterday inspecting Gazelle's engine with a view to purchasing it for his department. The engine was taken out and tried at the Sandford avenue bridge. The steamer worked very satisfactorily. A stream of water was thrown as high as the trees in that neighborhood, as a squirrel found out to its sorrow. The animal was in one of the tallest trees and in attempting to investigate it received a drenching.

A Light Vote Being Polled.

The election in North Plainfield proceeded very quietly to-day. Up to noon a very light vote had been polled. In the first borough district 182 ballots had been cast at one o'clock, and 120 in the second district.

Held Their First Parish Meeting.

The former members of the Holy Cross church, who left the church not long since, held their first parish meeting in St. Peter's Evangelical German Lutheran church last night.

A Child's Bite Causes Blood-Poisoning.

NEW YORK, March 13.—Mrs. Patrick Lavery, of 2079 Second avenue, is seriously ill with blood-poisoning.

Her two-year-old child, ill with scarlet fever, buried one of its tiny teeth in a finger of Mrs. Lavery's right hand a week ago, and now it is not unlikely that the mother will lose her hand, if not her life.

Strikers Rioting.

PATERSON, N. J., March 13.—The striking silk dyers created another big excitement here this morning. They marched to the works of Simon & Auger, broke down the doors and forced the workmen out of the establishment.

They threw the undished silk on the floor, turned on the steam in the tube and burned a large quantity of the material.

THE POSTMASTERSHIP.

The Disappointed Ones Very Sore Over Their Defeat.

The nomination of Mr. John M. Hetfield to succeed Mr. Silas R. Pope as postmaster, continues to be a cause of bitter denunciation on the part of the local leaders.

Mr. James Martine attracted a group about him yesterday on North avenue, by his loud and angry utterances to those with whom he was talking, who all seemed to agree with him, and much sympathy was expressed for Mr. Rowland M. Stover, who was led by prominent Democrats to expect the office as a reward for long and useful work for the party. He is said to have taken his disappointment very much to heart.

The language of some of the other aspirants was also extremely lurid.

There was a story last evening that an effort will be made to have the nomination defeated in the senate.

It is presented to the Postmaster-General with the recommendation of the congressman. If the Postmaster-General considers that the nomination would not prove of any detriment to the service, he forwards it to the President for appointment. If no satisfactory objection is made to the President, he sends it to the senate as his appointment. The senate simply confirms or rejects the appointment on recommendation of the senators from the State interested. This may take a week, or only a few days.

The defeated candidates hope to defeat Mr. Hetfield's nomination at some stage of its progress before it is confirmed. That is the situation at present.

It would be rather a queer meeting to have all the disappointed aspirants get together and vote which of their number was preferable to the position. Would any one consider any other of the number any better than himself.

Went on Strike.

Fifteen men, working for Capt. Hand, in grading the Recap property on West Front street, went on strike yesterday because they wanted $1.50 per day. Mr. Hand offered them $1.35 per day, but they were not satisfied with the amount, claiming that it was not enough. They were replaced by Italians.

Pulled Out a "Draw Head."

The engine attached to the train reaching this city at 5.01 p. m., pulled out a "draw head" at the North avenue station last night. The cars were left here while the engine went on to Dunellen. The 6.14 train pushed the cars of the 5.01 to Dunellen.

A PAUPER'S TREATMENT.

Peddled Around by Poormasters and then Taken Back to His Hut.

Ferdinand Smith, the aged pauper, whose case has been attracting considerable attention at Westfield was taken on Saturday by Poormaster Cox, and the Overseer of the Poor of Clark township, where Smith's legal settlement was declared to be. The Postmaster of Clark put him in a wagon and carried him to Rahway to put him in hospital. Late in the evening he was sent to the place where Smith had been living to get some things belonging to the old man that had been left behind, and he was astonished to find that Smith had been brought back to the hovel he left in charge by the other Poormaster. The old man was nearly dead from his long ride. He is suffering from dropsy, and is utterly helpless. A nurse was sent to take care of him during the night.

Elizabeth Field Club Levied on.

The Elizabeth Field Club, a social and sporting organization, which took part in the recent Journal Bowling tournament in which the C. Y. M. T. A. of city was also one of the clubs, has gone to pieces and the stock and fixtures in club rooms have been levied upon by the creditors. The Field Club was organized as an offshoot from the Elizabeth Athletic Club, and quickly increased its membership to over one hundred. Most of the members were young men, who did not like the restaurant of the Athletic Club. For some time everything ran along smoothly, but recently the club's membership has decreased, and at last dwindled to about forty.

Vials of Water for Next November.

[Elizabeth Journal.]

Congressman Dunn has settled the row over the Plainfield Postmaster by recommending the appointment of John Hatfield. And this leaves Rowland M. Stover, Elmore D. The appointment in Plainfield is about as satisfactory from a party point of view, as the appointment in Roselle.

THE STATE BACKS DOWN

NEW JERSEY HOLDS THE DOINGS OF THE DEMOCRATIC SENATE ILLEGAL.

Counsel for the Commonwealth Argues that Anything Done Except in the Presence of the Republican Senators is Void.—This is Considered by Politicians as an Acknowledgment that Republican Claims are Well Founded.

The argument which is to lead to a determination concerning the constitutional status of the two Senates of New Jersey was resumed before the Supreme Court, at Trenton, at 11 o'clock yesterday morning.

Allen L. McDermott, counsel for Robert Adrain, President of the Democratic Senate, finished his address. As on Friday last, he was frequently interrupted with questions by members of the court. He contended that less than eleven members could convene and organize the Senate, and quoted a great deal from precedents in proof of his contention that the Senate is a continuous body, and that a minority could legally preserve control of the body before the scrutiny of the credentials.

Mr. McDermott finished his argument at 1 o'clock. After recess ex-Judge Stevens of counsel for the Democratic began his address. In his view, he said, the writ applied for would not lie against the president chosen by the constitutional Senate of the State. The court is not asked to exercise jurisdiction over that body nor even to pass upon the title of its presiding officer. The only thing asked is that the court pass upon the title of a usurper—one who is exercising powers not conferred by the Constitution. The great question in the case, he said, is, "What is meant by the word House?" It being conceded that it requires eleven votes in the Senate to pass a bill, that is, a majority of the whole body, it follows that eleven may and does constitute the House; not the whole House, but one of sufficient integrity to transact business. Now there were nine members of the Senate in the chamber when the four Republican holdovers arrived. Their presence made two more than a quorum, and they could, under the law and the Constitution, have passed bills. When the nine members before the Republicans arrived was, in his opinion, unconstitutional, because a quorum was not in attendance. The writ asked for as against President Adrain should therefore be denied, for the reason urged that the Republican Senate was an unconstitutional body, because it was organized by only four members.

Judge Stevens argument created a sensation, inasmuch as he held that neither Senate was legally organized, and that what the Democratic Senators did on the day of organization, except during the presence of the Republicans, was illegal.

This was considered a backdown on the part of the State, which has heretofore supported the Democrats in their contention and attitude.

Judge Stevens next made an elaborate argument to prove that the court has jurisdiction in the matter.

Meeting of the Official Board.

The Official Board, comprising all the officers of the Methodist church, met at the home of the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Barnes, on Grove street last night, and the work and plans of the coming year were discussed and decided upon. After the business was over they all adjourned to the dining room, and partook of refreshments.

CRUSHED BY ROCK.

Bodies of the Gaylord Mine Victims Found and Brought to the Surface.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., March 12.—The Kingston Coal company finally consented to give some information regarding the fate of the 13 men who were entombed. The company officials admit that one of the bodies had been recovered. It had been crushed beyond all recognition. The bones were placed in a casket and hoisted to the surface shortly before midnight. Superintendent Rosser of the rescuing gang admitted that all the men were crushed beneath the heavy fall of rock and coal.

At midnight the excitement among those who had gathered at the mouth of the slope was almost at fever heat, and many of the miners' wives were loud in their blame the officials of the company for keeping back the news from the rescuing party. The report that the men died from starvation is exploded, and there is no question that they all perished when the fall occurred.

At 4 o'clock this morning two more were brought to the surface. They, too, were crushed and entirely unrecognizable. Mrs. Walsh, whose husband was among the 13 unfortunate men, believes that one of the three bodies is that of her husband.

Says She Is Held by Gypsies.

PITTSBURG, March 13.—A note found in a corked bottle by Ed Rosenbush, watchman of the steamer Germania, which is tied up at Brownsville, created considerable excitement in that town. The note was written by a woman, who said she was held by a band of gypsies encamped near Uniontown. The finder immediately notified the police authorities of Brownsville, and the steamer will be searched for the woman.

AGAINST BLAND'S BILL.

A Broadside of Speeches From Opposing Senators.

WANT NO PEEPER INVESTIGATION.

Mr. Blanchard of Louisiana Assumes Jim Rue White's Seat in the Senate.—The Breckinridge-Pollard Trial Is Enlivened by a Personal Encounter.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—The most interesting feature of the day's proceedings in the senate was the administration of the oath to Mr. Blanchard, the recently appointed senator from Louisiana.

When the oath was about to be administered to him Mr. Vilas took up his argument against it at the point where he left off on Friday. He was followed by Mr. Allison, who spoke in the same strain, and by Mr. Wolcott of Colorado, who opposed the motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill passed the third reading—so much, he declared, because he was opposed to amendments to it as because he wanted it to serve as a lesson to those who had voted for it merely as a sop to Cerberus to keep the tariff bill out of the senate.

During the morning hour Mr. Peffer's resolution looking to an investigation of the charges made in the press that senators were dealing in stocks on information gained in their official positions was laid on the table by a yea and nay vote after Senator Hoar and others had declared their opposition to noticing the charges alleged against senators.

Peffer Hears Gossip.

Mr. Peffer, in the course of his remarks, said that for some time past there had been gossip in the papers, gossip on the streets, gossip in the capitol relative to the dealing of senators in the Sugar stocks, and he thought it necessary to take some cognizance of these rumors.

While he didn't love the metropolitan newspapers, he realized that they were a powerful factor for good as well as for evil, and he had felt humiliated and pained by the charges made in them and hoped some one else would bring them to the attention of the senate. But finally, when the charges became so specific in their character and so virulent in their nature, he felt impelled to introduce the resolution which he had presented.

Mr. Gorman of Maryland opposed the resolution in a vigorous speech, in which he said there appeared to be a strong and well organized effort to belittle and degrade the senate of the United States, and he regretted that on some occasions it had been the part of even the senate into hasty if not imprudent action.

"Let senators on both sides of the chamber," said Mr. Gorman, "without respect to party, stand together in this emergency. Ing the attempt to bring in the resolution presented by the senator from Kansas. If gentlemen have any charges to make for vindication, let him ask for an investigation of himself."

In the House.

The day in the house was devoted entirely to the consideration of a bill relating to the extension of the time for allowing a street railroad company in this city to change its system of motive power. According to the report presented several of the street railroads of the district were required to change their motive systems from horse power to electricity, storage battery or underground electric. All but the Metropolitan road complied with the provisions of the law. That road claimed that within the two years granted it had the storage battery system, but this proved a failure.

The debate rapidly drifted into a discussion of the merits of the cable and the underground electric system, and it was boldly charged that the General Electric and Westinghouse companies, which hold, stock, in almost all the overhead trolley lines, had retained all the prominent electric engineers in the country and would not spare money to defeat the practical demonstration of the feasibility of the underground electric now in operation at Buda-Pesth and for a short distance on the outskirts of this city. To prevent this Mr. Walker proposed to restrict the motive system to be used by the Metropolitan road to underground electric. No conclusion was reached. Today the house will go on with the sundry civil appropriation bill.

Breckinridge-Pollard Case Exciting.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—A pugilistic assault by Congressman Breckinridge's law partner, Mr. John Shelby of Lexington, Ky., upon the junior counsel for Miss Pollard, Mr. W. G. Johnson of Washington, closed the day's proceedings of the breach of promise case.

Mr. Johnson referred in a general way to the course taken by the defendant's attorneys in regard to certain affidavits as chattel. Mr. Shelby then got up and began to make a reply, but as the usual hour for adjournment had passed Judge Bradley had deferred the question.

As Mr. Johnson left the room Mr. Shelby darted after him and accosted him in the hallway. Mr. Johnson is broad shouldered, black mustached, cool and handsome; Mr. Shelby is short and excitable. Said Mr. Shelby, facing his taller opponent, "You have insulted me, sir, and I must have satisfaction, sir!"

"Well, sir!" responded Mr. Johnson interrogatively and calmly, as he afterward said, expecting that Mr. Shelby would announce the sort of satisfaction he expected.

Thereupon Mr. Shelby's right fist shot outward and upward, grazing Mr. Johnson's left cheek and drawing a slight blood. As he threw up his arm in the defensive the dignified form of his professional partner, Mr. Alderson Clendenin, loomed large and polished attorney, was interposed between them.

Miss Pollard Creates a Sensation.

Quickly several other gentlemen became participants in the fray. Colonel Breckinridge, with his gleaming snow white beard, and his son Desha Breckinridge, with coal black whiskers, allied themselves upon Mr. Carlisle. There was an excited moment of general melee engaged in by no less than a dozen gentlemen, most of them wholesome looking specimens, when Deputy Marshal John R. Leonard, a giant in stature, strode into the center of the conflict, thrusting the belligerent Kentuckian back and quelling a dangerous spasm immediately. Every body emerged from the heat of controversy uninjured, although Mr. Johnson's cheek was slightly reddened, and the immaculate silk hat of Judge Jere Wilson had been sadly ruffled.

This pugilistic encounter was not the only sensational incident of the day, for Miss Pollard was carried sobbing from the courtroom and fell in a faint outside the door when the jury's decision concerning the birth of her child in 1890 was given. The two faithful friends of her own sex attended her, and she was driven in a cab to the House of Refuge, where she makes her home.

The gossip of the city is about equally divided between the constantly affixed and the identity of the boy of fashionably dressed young ladies who were summarily ejected from the courtroom by Justice Bradley. The boy's presence was explained forth a description of the barriers against taking testimony for the plaintiff which had been used with in Colonel Breckinridge's defense, and much of the time was consumed by arguments over the admissibility of depositions which were objected to on technical grounds.

Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—The president sent to the senate the following nominations:

David C. Fassett, Cambridge, N. Y.; Joseph F. Hall, Batavia, N. Y.; Edgar L. Brady, Washington, Pa.; Charles M. Lee, Tunkhannock, Pa.; Alvin E. Lindeman, Troy, Pa.; William B. Dawson, Telfordville, Pa.; John Haviland, Phoenixville, Pa.; Nettie S. Johnson, Athens, Pa.; Emma Ritter, Muney, Pa.; David H. McCarty, West Keedsville, Pa.

The following fourth class postmasters were appointed:

New York—Bailiffs Bridge, H. M. Hall; Hawleyville, Edward Webb; Bloomville, I. T. Bloodgood; North Bangor, Charles Smith; Port Kent, C. D. Dewey; Sawyers Corners, W. H. Sleight; Tishakoke, Charles Matthew.

Pennsylvania—Darby, G. W. Claney; Lewisville, Maggie A. Scott; Malden, W. H. Rea.

Suspended Pensioners All Restored.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—All suspensions of pensions in cases where payment has not been already resumed or where the pensioner's name has not been stricken from the rolls will be issued by an order just signed by Commissioner Lochren. This action affects the cases of between 2,000 and 4,000 pensioners. The pension agents will be instructed to pay the pensioners their former rates until otherwise ordered by the bureau.

WORK OF A MANIAC.

Almost Killed His Parents During a Sudden Fit of Insanity.

LATROBE, Pa., March 13.—Thomas Flanegan, a demented man, attacked his mother while laboring under a spell, and will probably die. He struck her with an iron bar, fracturing her skull, kicked her in the stomach and left her for dead. Next he attacked his father, beating him into an unconscious condition. He broke all the furniture in the house and left the premises.

He then entered the house of a neighbor named Eaton, but the family fled on seeing the crazy man approach. Flanegan proceeded to break the furniture, and scarcely a whole piece was left in the house. People hearing of the affair hurried to the house and attempted to arrest him, but his strength was too much for them. John Smith, who was pushed to the wall by the maniac, drew a pistol, pointed it over and fired at him. The ball passed through his face, cutting out several teeth.

Flanegan fell to the ground and was overpowered. He was bound hand and foot and sent to the insane department of the county home. Mrs. Flanegan will probably die. The child is not seriously hurt and will recover. Flanegan had been insane a long time ago, but being quiet and apparently harmless he was permitted to stay at home.

COTTOLENE IS MADE TO EAT

Made from clarified oil, expressed from Cotton Seed—as pure and golden as the Southern Sunshine which produces it.

For convenience in handling, there is added to this oil enough beef suet to make it a solid shortening.

The combination of these two pure natural products makes Cottolene, a shortening and cooking fat, with which by healthfulness, cleanliness, flavor and economy, nothing in the world can compare.

IMITATIONS are MADE TO SELL

To sell on the merits of the genuine. To sell by substitution; or by deception. To sell to the injury of the genuine, to the dissatisfaction of the consumer, to the detriment of the dealer, to the loss of all concerned—except the scheming counterfeiter himself.

If you wish the best food and the best health, you should insist that your cooking be done with genuine Cottolene. Refuse all counterfeits.

DA GAMA ASKS QUARTER

Insurgent Admiral Takes Refuge on a Portuguese Ship.

BRAZIL'S WAR PROBABLY ENDED.

Stunned In by Peixoto's Dynamite Throwers, the Rebel Commander Asks Leave to Surrender His Fleet and Leave the Country With a Whole Skin.—May Be Granted.

WASHINGTON, March 13.—Advices received at the state department from Minister Thompson, at Rio Janeiro, indicate that the Brazilian rebellion is about ended. The dispatches from Minister Thompson contain the information that Admiral da Gama has gone aboard the Portuguese warvessel Mindello, now in the harbor at Rio, and has sent to President Peixoto by the Portuguese officer an offer of surrender on condition of full protection for himself and his followers.

Two dispatches were received by the state department. They were in cipher and when translated read as follows:

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 12.

Gresham, Washington:

Da Gama today, through the senior Portuguese commander, offered to surrender to the president of Brazil, provided he and his fellowers were guaranteed protection against punishment. THOMPSON.

RIO DE JANEIRO, March 12.

Gresham, Washington:

Da Gama has gone aboard a Portuguese man-of-war for asylum. THOMPSON.

Probably Ends the War.

Secretary Gresham believes that this marks the end of the Brazilian war.

There is considerable surprise expressed here by those interested in the affairs at Rio that the offer of surrender should have been made through the Portuguese commander, who up to this time has not shown any particular disposition to take a hand in the conflict. It is not thought, however, that the action of the Portuguese in receiving Da Gama is necessarily an act of sympathy with the insurgents.

The Portuguese are said to recognize a principle of international law, now obsolete, by which the right of asylum, as it is called, is granted temporarily by a neutral power to a defeated belligerent. This right of asylum is not recognized of late years by most nations except in cases of half civilized peoples, and moreover the Brazilian insurgents have not been recognized by anybody as belligerent. There is, therefore, some speculation as to the exact meaning of the action of the Portuguese commander.

Minister Mendonca admitted when seen that he had received news of the surrender, but was unwilling to give out any information concerning the exact terms of Da Gama's offer of surrender or discuss the probable action of the Brazilian government. He did, however, that he had no doubt that final settlement had been made or would certainly be made today.

Possibly as good a commentary on the surrender as can be made consists in the following summary furnished by Senor Mendonca of the forces engaged in the naval maneuvers in and about the harbor at Rio:

Surrendered at the First Show of Force.

The rebel forces consist of the gunboat Lieutenant, Da Gama's flagship; gunboat Da Meandary, gunboat Trajano, transport of war Purus, armed merchantmen Julio de Lamey, Pereira da Cunha and Adelpho da Barros, also the torpedo boat Gustavo, which are in good condition and the other two half disabled. The force of men on the rebel ships and in the torpedo fortresses engaged is about 700. Outside the harbor, "whereabouts unknown," the rebel warships Aquidaban and Republic are cruising about.

The array of government ships lying on the south side of the entrance to the bay under the batteries of Fort St. John is somewhat more formidable. They consist of the dynamite cruiser Nictheroy, ironclad Bahaira, cruiser Tiradentes, torpedo boats Admiral Wandenkolk and Tymoio armed torpedo boat Mexoto and five torpedo boats recently purchased in Germany. Cruising outside are the cruisers Amerika and Trajano. The loyal force of men aggregates about 25,000.

Notice of the intention of the Brazilian fleet to begin an active attack on the insurgent fleet had been given Sunday noon to neutral forces in the harbor. This notice was given 48 hours before the firing was to begin. According to this arrangement firing could not begin until Tuesday noon. Da Gama's offer of surrender was made, therefore, fully 24 hours before an attack could be expected. The offer of surrender, in fact, followed the first actual show of determined force on the part of the Brazilian government.

Another dispatch was received at a late hour by Secretary Gresham from Minister Thompson containing the additional information that Da Gama asks only that he and his officers be allowed to leave the country and the lives of his private soldiers and sailors be spared. It is regarded by officials here as without question that the Brazilian government will accept the surrender upon the terms asked for by Da Gama.

FOR DIRECT LEGISLATION.

Advocates of the Referendum Given a Hearing Tuesday.

TRENTON, March 13.—All business was laid aside in the assembly for the purpose of hearing the advocates of direct legislation, who propose a constitutional amendment embodying the principles of the initiative and referendum as is now employed in making the laws of Switzerland.

The assembly in committee of the whole, with the senators in attendance, listened to vote for members of the senate and general assembly. The right to enact measures for the government of any municipal division of the state (such as county, city, town, township, borough, village, etc.), in addition to being exercised by the legislators thereof and by the senate and general assembly, shall be vested in the qualified electors of the municipal division affected thereby.

SEC. 2. The right to reject any measure passed by the senate and general assembly affecting the whole state shall be vested in the electors qualified to vote for members of the senate and general assembly. The right to reject any measure passed by the senate and general assembly or by the legislative body of any municipal division of the state (such as county, city, town, township, borough, village, etc.) affecting such municipal division shall be vested in the qualified electors of the municipal division affected thereby.

SEC. 3. The senate and general assembly, at its first session after the adoption of the amendment and from time to time thereafter, shall pass laws necessary to carry the provisions of the next into effect and may therein provide for and classify measures for the public peace, health and safety as urgent, which may take effect immediately.

The principal address was made by J. W. Sullivan, author of "Direct Legislation by the Citizenship." Short speeches were made by A. Cohen, president of the league; Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor; H. D. Oplike, secretary of the Farmers' Alliance; Henry A. Beckmeyer of Newark, J. P. McDonnell of Paterson and others.

TROOPS FOR QUEEN LIL.

Hawaiian Royalists Importing Recruits From Canada.

VICTORIA, B. C., March 13.—The Hawaiian steamship Warrimoo, just arrived, brings confirmation of the enlistment of Canadian volunteers for the service of Queen Lilinokalani. The plan was fully described in dispatches sent from here early in January, which at the time were discredited as false. It now appears that their authors were in full possession of inside information on the subject. The dispatches say:

More than an ordinarily large number of passengers came by way of them. Englishmen and Canadians some wearing military badges, arrived here during January and February. They have no ostensible employment and are understood to be well supplied with money, while their sympathies are with the royalists. They are described by dispatches sent from here as engaged or enlisted by Samsome of Vancouver, and the military appearance of many of them has given the authorities reason to believe that they are here for the purpose of resisting the provisional government.

The opinion prevailed that the report previously sent of the enlistment of men in Canada was a fake, but the presence of at least 60 strangers confirms the original story. In view of the presence of these men the provisional government has put half the citizens under arms and has passed strict regulations in regard to the landing of passengers by steamers.

A Hungarian's Revenge.

PITTSBURG, March 13.—George Degenfelch, a Hungarian, lay in wait in an alley in Elma borough for Peter Stravitch and shot him down without warning, killing him almost instantly. Degenfelch then fled over the hills and has not yet been captured. A year ago Stravitch notified Superintendent Taylor that Degenfelch was a dangerous man, and this is supposed to have been the cause of the murder.

Tried to Swindle Wanamaker.

PHILADELPHIA, March 13.—William B. Utley, alias Daniel C. Camp, who came here with a bogus letter purporting to be from Secretary Blaine to Smith and attempted to swindle John Wanamaker and other prominent firms, was held in $2,500 bail for a further hearing.

Swarthmore Rangers Confess.

PHILADELPHIA, March 13.—Twenty students of Swarthmore college appeared before a committee of the faculty and pleaded guilty of participating in the hazing of John W. Hutchinson, Jr., the young New York lawyer. They were suspended for 30 days.

Senator Coke Intends to Retire.

WACO, Tex., March 13.—Hon. Walter S. Baker, chairman of the state Democratic committee, in receipt of a letter from Hon. Richard Coke, United States senator from this state, saying that under no conditions will he again be a candidate for office.

BOY BURNED AT A STAKE

His Comrades Were Playing at Being Indians.

THE GAME WAS TOO REALISTIC.

Young Barney Was Tied, Wood Piled Around Him, and Then a Boy Whom He Had Angered Set Fire to the Pile.—Now Dead, Perhaps Too Late, by a Negro.

CAMDEN, N. J., March 13.—Fifteen or 20 boys, whose ages range from 12 to 15, were playing Indians in South Camden, and as a result of their play one lad is in the hospital insane for life, even should his life not pay the penalty of the too realistic performances of his comrades.

The vicinity in which the lads were at play is a lonely one, made up of open fields and woods. Among the boys was Charley Barney, aged 13, who lives with his parents at 1115 Broadway. The boys divided into parties, and an Indian war was soon in progress. Two captives were taken, a council of war was held, and it was decided to follow the true Indian custom and torture and burn the captives at the stake.

Tied to the Stake.

Frank Eldridge, aged 13, was first tied to the stake. Beneath his feet was a pile of logs, and around it rose the woods and swamps, and, minus the fire and the copper skins of those taking part, the scene was realistic. Eldridge, however, instead of going calmly to the torture and submitting to the mock death with due cheerfulness, fought. The boys had formed a ring about the captive and began to dance when he loosened the rope which bound him and rushed away.

Having escaped, he was free, and when his fellow captive, Charles Barney, was led to the stake Eldridge was among those who assisted in tying the lad. By some act Barney angered Eldridge, and the latter in a frenzy of rage set fire to the faggots on which the boy stood. Barney cried out in fear and agony, and the others laughed at his frantic efforts to get away.

The fire burned slowly at first, but being fed by some pine cones they suddenly flared up, and in a moment the lad at the stake was wrapped in their fiery embrace. Before the others realized his peril Barney's clothing had caught fire from the wood.

The terrible sight of the helpless lad burning to death before their eyes seemed to paralyze the lads, and they stood watching him, utterly powerless to move. The thick smoke partly hid him from view, but no one made a move to free him. His cries attracted the attention of a colored man at work several blocks away from where the boys were. He dropped his work and raced across the fields.

When he came in sight of the group and realized what was happening he shouted. This seemed to bring a realization of the terrible consequences home to the boys, and seeing the darky running toward them all fled except the two negro youths over the fence and cut the rope. He then lifted the lad from his place on the burning pile, and slipping off his own coat he wrapped it about the lad and smothered the flames.

It was too late, however, as the clothing had been burned to the skin and the flesh was parboiled.

Rescued by a Negro.

The negro bore the unconscious boy to a house, and after the clothing was removed, some of the skin adhered to it. The doctors who are attending the boy think he will lose both hands, even should his life be saved.

The police were notified of the affair and set to work to capture those taking part in it. They could find no trace of any one who could give any information. Finally they were successful in capturing Charles Brown, aged 12 (colored), and John Degan, aged 14, hiding in the swamp a mile from where the burning occurred. They told the story of the morning's doings and gave a list of those who were present.

Eldridge was captured later. He was taken to the station much the same way. The police see no reason to doubt the stories told by the other two prisoners.

Croker Will Turn Ranchman.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 13.—Richard Croker returned to San Antonio from the ranch of Lem A. Morris. He spent a week in the country and was so impressed with this section that he has decided to purchase an extensive ranch near that of Mr. Morris and engage in the stock raising and teaming business. It is probable that he will spend part of every winter in southwest Texas.

Robbed by Bogus Doctors.

NEW HAVEN, March 13.—Two bogus doctors, one giving the name of S. Henry, called on an old woman in Branford and said they were sent by Dr. Gaylord, her physician, to examine her eyes, and they intimidated the old woman into giving them $37.

WATCHUNG PARK PROPERTY!

Handsomely situated

BUILDING LOTS

now offered for sale.

This Property is in the heart of the recently opened residence section of the city, being within a few minutes' walk of the Central Railroad station.

The New Watchung Park, with its new streets as it advances, will be among the handsomest residence sections in this part of the suburban belt.

Only High Grade Residences are to be erected. The neighborhood will be restricted, making it as desirable as any in Plainfield.

All Modern Improvements will be in force by early Spring. The work of macadamizing the streets is now being pushed rapidly.

Electric Cars Pass the property. Electric light, gas and city water will be introduced as soon in the Spring as the mains are needed.

Scores of Beautiful Homes now fronting on Smalley and Westervelt avenues have been located on the old Crescent Park field.

Just as Property Values jumped in Sandford and Westervelt avenues, so will they also increase rapidly in Watchung Park. Those who buy now will reap the benefit of property investment.

The Lots Are About 50x150 feet in size, and the map of the property, printed in three colors, is now ready for distribution. Copies of the map, etc., can be had of agents A. D. THOMPSON, 147 North avenue, opposite Railroad Station, Plainfield, N. J.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

DANCE OF THE GHOSTS.

An Easy Electrical Experiment Which Children Can Perform at Home.

Procure a water glass, an ordinary tray and a sheet of common writing paper somewhat smaller than the tray. The glass must have all the moisture removed from it by exposing it to considerable heat. Then place it upside down on a table, and on it place the tray.

Now, either by ironing with very hot iron or by holding over a lamp chimney, heat the paper until it begins to redden, and then for a time brush it briskly with a clothesbrush. The treatment will charge the paper with a considerable amount of electricity—so much, in fact, that if it was held over the head, especially that of a light haired person, the hair will at once be observed to rise, and there will be a decided prickling sensation. This sheet will also have sufficient attraction to draw out such objects as light downy feathers, small bits of paper or even tiny figures cut from pith.

If the paper be placed on the tray upon the glass, before any of its electrical energy has been drawn from it, the whole will constitute a surprisingly powerful little electrical machine. On darkening the room the application of the knuckles to the edge of the tray will result in a succession of remarkably brilliant sparks, which will be a surprise to every one. Their brilliancy and continuation will depend on the absolute dryness of the glass and the energy with which the paper has been heated and brushed.

A surprising little display of this paper electricity may be made by presenting "the dance of the ghosts."

Cut small oblongs of green tissue paper and bend to the shape of grassy grave mounds. At some distance out of sight, place tiny human figures cut from the pith of the cornstalk or elder. The head, body and limbs may be separate pieces run together by fine thread. If these figures are rubbed with phosphorus, the effect will be more startling. Lastly, place a well electrified sheet of stiff paper or a piece of glass, fastening it in place with two bits of sealing wax.

When all is ready, turn down the light very low. A dim moonlight effect may be produced by having a screen of pale blue tissue paper ready to place between the lightand the "graves."

Then cause the piece of glass, papered side down, to hover over the miniature graveyard, when, presto: the graves will fly up fast against the glass, so as to dispose, and the pith ghosts, in their luminous phosphorescent livery, will first sit up, then stand, swaying to and fro in a wind dance, and finally perhaps follow their graves up to the glass sky above them. A little ingenuity will produce a most startling effect with this simple outfit.—New York Recorder.

Billy Dressed Up.

What do you think of Billy in his sleeveless gown? The baby's boots in the little dog belongs sent his portrait to the editor of the children's page of the Pall Mall Budget. In a very interesting letter which came with the picture the lady said that Billy has quite a trousseau of frocks and hats, and that he is very vain of his fine clothes and loves being dressed up in them. His great amusement is to take long rambles alone. For fear of losing him the mistress had a high gate and wire netting put up to prevent his leaving the garden, but the undaunted Billy climbs the gate like a cat and has actually gnawed a hole in the netting big enough to wriggle through. "But he is a dear, sweet dog," his tender hearted mistress concludes.

The Three Sisters.

"Oh, mamma!" cried little Blanche Philpott, "I heard such a tale about Edith Howard! I did not think she could be so very naughty. One——"

"My dear," interrupted Mrs. Philpott, "before you continue we will see if your story will pass the three sieves."

"What does that mean, mamma?" inquired Blanche.

"I will explain it. In the first place, is it true?"

"I suppose so. I got it from Miss White, and she is a great friend of Edith's."

"And does she show her friendship by telling tales of her? In the next place, though you can prove it to be true, is it kind?"

"I do not mean to be unkind, but I am afraid it was. I should not like Edith to speak of me as I have of her."

"And is it necessary?"

"No, of course, mamma; there was no need for me to mention that all."

"Then put a bridle on your tongue. If we can't speak well, speak not at all."—Exchange.

Kid Gloves.

While a glove made of buckresed or suede kid is neater and makes the hand look smaller than a glove of dressed or glazed kid it does not wear half the time. Occasionally a pair is made that wears like horn cloth, but it is the curse of the whole stock, frequently losing the custom of the buyer, who demands the same quality, and hurts the firm because it cannot duplicate the order. The popularity of the suede glove astonished the firm that introduced it. Nobody dreamed that it would continue in favor as it has and is likely to do. In preparing the skin what we call the "flower"—the outside—is rubbed off on a stone wheel. This leaves the skin one-half and destroys the stronger half. It is then reversed, the wrong side of the skin is painted or dyed, the glove is cut and made, and the woman of fashion wears her kids inside out. With the place glove no such mutilation occurs. The skin is just as the animal wore it, and if it is not too small it will give more satisfaction than two pairs of undressed kids.—Dry Goods Economist.

Mrs. Parkhurst.

In appearance Mrs. Parkhurst, wife of the well known New York clergyman, is tall and handsome, with brown eyes and waving hair. The expression of her face is singularly sweet and winning. Strangers cannot comprehend the strength that lies behind the quiet manner. Perhaps her most striking characteristic is a common sense, which we think a union of all the sense. Mrs. Parkhurst is deeply sympathetic in her nature and may be said to have that "reason firm and temperate will" which Wordsworth wrote of.

For fashionable society Mrs. Parkhurst has little time or inclination, but she thoroughly enjoys quiet visiting among her friends.

Freely she has received from the large minded people around her; as freely she has given that best of all gifts—her own sympathy; quiet, strong and noble, she has drawn many to her and has helped many to lay aside their own burdens and press on to higher thinking and living.—Sara Lee Milton in Ladies' Home Journal.

Children's Meals.

A woman who has tried it says that the way things are served is as important to children as to their elders oftentimes, although the former may not be able to formulate the difference. For example, she says, my children all of them dislike hash. No matter how carefully it was made, it was invariably refused. One day it occurred to my cook to put the hash into little cups and set them in the oven to brown. She did it, serving one to each plate, and before the "cubes in cups" ran it is judiciously called, is a favorite dish.

Another point which the same authority suggested was to serve the things the children like by the meal like when there is a different—at their hungriest meal. This is usually luncheon on school days. They come home ravenous, and the sauce of a good appetite imparts a relish to the dishes that at other times do not receive a cordial welcome. Any one who habitually caters to a family of growing children will appreciate any assisting hint in the work.—Her Point of View in New York Times.

Baby's Delight.

A fascinating creature to be company for a baby may be easily fashioned by any one who knows how to knit. Knit a strip of pink wool 18 inches long and 4 inches wide. Gather this into an oblong ball and stuff it with cotton. The ears are made by knitting, in stripes of pink and black two pieces 6 inches long, narrowing them slightly at the lower end. Sew each two pieces together, and then sew the two legs thus made to the bottom of the pink ball. Outline on the ball black eyebrows, a red mouth and nose. Make a "head of hair" by knitting some black wool "over the fingers." You can then put on clothes like a "Jumeau" by embroidering a face on each side. Sew a cord, twisted, of all the colors used, in among the roots of the hair, and tie on to it a rubber teething ring. Sew around the crown of head and the waist, and where the toes ought to be and you will have a toy that will please the baby better than mines of diamonds. —Babyhood.

TOILETS FOR MOURNING.

Unexpected Signs of Grief That Warm Weather May Develop.

The Eton jacket is too convenient to become quickly obsolete and is used in many of the spring costumes for misses and young women. A French model of a mourning gown is shown having an Eton jacket, although it seems rather too flippant a style for the appropriate expression of grief. The round bell skirt is trimmed with bias bands of crape, and the jacket, which opens over a full crape vest, is bordered with the same trimming. Tight crape cuffs extend to the elbow, while crape epaulets fall over the puff that forms the upper part of the sleeve.

Crape is still the orthodox material for mourning, although it is so unserviceable a stuff. Woolen crape and cyprons, henriettas, serge, camel's hair and all dull finished black cloths are employed, while some beautiful black silk crapons are shown among the new spring goods, having a narrow plain silk stripe, or a silk stripe with a sort of ruffled effect, or the goods, instead of being striped, are ribbed with plain silk flecks. For warm weather grenadine, nun's veiling and plain black silk net may also be used. Ample veils of the latter are far better for summer wear than the suffocating crape ones and are quite as complete mourning.

The custom of wearing black lisse or tulle ruchings next the neck and wrists is one to be followed with caution, as the dye is usually not fast in those materials and is apt to come off upon the skin under the influence of warmth or dampness. A fold of dull china silk or a plaiting of silk net is a safer finish to adopt.

A spring mourning toilet is shown made of dull finished and woolen material. It has a round bell skirt trimmed with three bias bands of crape of different widths. The plain corsage has a short basque and opens in front over a full vest of black gauze confined by a crape belt. The full cloth sleeves are trimmed with crape. A triple cape accompanies the gown, the two lower capes of cloth and the upper one of crape. They are mounted on a yoke which is concealed by a cloth collar continued down the front edges of the cape in the form of crape revers. The bonnet, with its trimmings and strings, is of crape and has a ruching of white crape beneath the close brim.

FOR USE AND ORNAMENT.

A Doll Boudoir Box That Only Costs $3 or $4.

The source of decorative novelties seems to be unfailing. Every month brings out on the fancy counters of the shops a fresh assortment of small articles more or less useful and ornamental. One of the latest things is a flat pocket pincholder, made of brown silk, in imitation of the fat side of a chestnut and rather larger than the Spanish chestnuts seen in the markets. The pins are stuck in around the edge. The tiny decorated rolling pins, etc., once popular for key racks, have been superseded by wood or composition ones, and inside leaves, painted and veined in the natural colors. Several small gilt hooks are fastened on the face of the leaf to hold the keys, and the leaf is hung up by the stem. Something decidedly new are the white applique letters now for sale at the notion counters. They are about three-quarters of an inch long and are embroidered, but have no background, and are intended to save the labor of embroidering initials on household linen and underwear. The idea is a novel but practical one.

Voluminous lampshades are still popular, but ingenuity has been almost exhausted on them, and every combination of china silk, lace and crape has been tried over and over. Some new ones are shown made of crape paper in shades of lavender, ornamented with a large cluster of purple and white flag lilies or iris, also made of paper. The same scheme might be more cheerfully carried out in pale yellow, since there are yellow irises in nature. These millinery lamp shades are not satisfactory on the whole, however, as they are too flimsy to be trusted in the neighborhood of fire.

A doll bonbon box is a rather attractive novelty which, installed in many seems, sells at between $3 and $4. The foundation is a rather tall, round box, to the lid of which is fastened the upper half of a doll's body, with head and arms complete. The skirt is secured to the waist of the doll and is made just the right length and circumference to cover the box when the lid is on. These dolls are dressed in various styles—one in gray, as a Quaker, with a silk bonnet and a kerchief; another in lace and muslin, with a hat and a tiny basket of flowers. The prettiest are the "folly" costumes of satin and ribbons, hung with little bells. The dress is in two colors, of course, black and orange, blue and white, and turquoise and gold being the most effective combinations.

HOME RULE THE ISSUE.

Rosebery Will Carry on the War Against the Lords Too.

LONDON, March 13.—Parliament was reassembled, and it is probable that more interest is taken in this meeting of the lords and commons than in any other previous gathering of the two bodies for some years past, owing to the announcement of the retirement and the reorganization of the different parties which must follow.

After the usual formalities at the bar the queen's speech was read, by the lord high chancellor, Lord Herschell.

The prime minister, Lord Rosebery, in addressing the party, alluded with considerable feeling to the retirement of Mr. Gladstone, saying that they would "greatly miss that sublime and pathetic figure which enriched and ennobled not merely the treasury bench, but the house itself." Lord Rosebery continued:

"In regard to the Irish question we are bound to it by ties of honor and affection. My speech in the house of lords in 1892 seems to have raised some doubts as to my own position in regard to home rule. Those who have these doubts can only have read the speech in a cursory manner. The policy of home rule will not be less definitely pursued. If there is any doubt on the subject, one pledge which the government has given in this connection is the continuance in his present office of the Right Hon. John Morley, chief secretary for Ireland. [Cheers.]

"Our late illustrious leader, in his last speech delivered in the house of commons, made a declaration with which the present government have entirely identified themselves. [Cheers.] The conviction has long been forcing itself upon me that with the democratic suffrage which we now enjoy a second chamber, constituted like the house of lords, is an anomaly. This conviction has been strengthened by the unhappy chapter of accidents which has turned the house of lords from a body of hereditary lawgivers, more or less equally divided, into one great Tory organization entirely at the beck and call of a single party leader." [Cheers.]

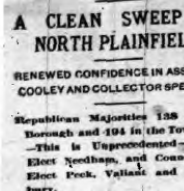
ALL REPUBLICAN

A CLEAN SWEEP IN NORTH PLAINFIELD.

RENEWED CONFIDENCE IN ASSESSOR COOLEY AND COLLECTOR SPENCER.

Republican Majorities 138 in the Borough and 404 in the Township. —This is Unprecedented—Mayor-Elect Needham, and Councilmen-Elect Peck, Valiant and Lounsbury.



ELECTION is over for North Plainfield Borough and Township officers and has resulted in a clean sweep for the Republicans by polling the largest majority ever received there.

To the credit of the Borough Democrats let it be said that their contest was a manly one throughout.

Their Borough ticket was given its true name—A Democratic ticket. There was nothing of the sneak about it, as was the case in the Township ticket, where the Democrats called their ticket by a misnomer, designating it the "The Citizens' Ticket," with the hope of deluding those who would not vote the ticket called by its true name.

There is another thing we wish to compliment the Borough Democrats for. They said in time for reply what they had to say, and had it well circulated through their organ, the Press, among voters in the Borough. The NEWS in a special edition for the Republicans followed, preaching every voter in good season. We exposed the false claims of the Democrats, and the verdict of the people was an intelligent one. The Democrats, who secured control in the Borough two years ago are out.

THE NEWS said before election that the indications pointed to a clean sweep by the Republicans, and the result has but verified our predictions.

The result in detail is as follows:

STOLE HIS OWN WAGON.

A PECULIAR CASE HEARD BEFORE JUSTICE NASH.

Aaron Brown Held Under $100 Bail for the Grand Jury, Charged With Taken His Own Wagon From Sheriff Kyte's Barn.

Yesterday afternoon a hearing occurred before Justice Nash in the case of the State v. Aaron Brower, on a charge of grand larceny. The facts as they appeared were as follows: Some time ago Brower placed in the hands of one Albert Brown, a blacksmith doing business on Richmond street, this city, a spring pedler's wagon for him to repair. Brown repaired the wagon and charged Brower for $73. This, Brower did not, as Brown says, "pay, and to get his money Brown advertised to sell the wagon. The sale did not come off. It hasn't taken place yet. The reason for this is: Just when the time of sale arrived there was no wagon to be found to sell. It had been secretly carried off the afternoon previous to the sale. Brower and a colored boy named Jackson were suspected of having the pedler who stole it. Sheriff Kyte, in whose custody it was for safe-keeping when carried off, made complaint before Justice Nash against Brower and Jackson for grand larceny. Brower was arrested and gave bail for a hearing yesterday—Jackson having no criminal intent in what he did, was let off.

On the hearing Brower was represented by the irrepressible "Count" Van Nest of the New York bar, and admitted that he took the wagon, saying he did so by advice of the "Count" and because the wagon belonged to him (Brower) and he had a right to take it. Sheriff Kyte the complainant had as his counsel Winfield R. Angleman, of the firm of Jackson & Angleman. Mr. Angleman admitted that under some circumstances, and for some acts, the advice of counsel was received by the courts as an excuse, but never for a crime of a criminal quality and referred to the fact that even in the cases in which it might be offered as an excuse, it should be made to appear that the person offering it was a counsellor of the State in which it was given, calling attention to the fact that the "Count" was not a member of the New Jersey bar, so his advice in this case at least could not avail. He then proceeded to show by the New Jersey and other authorities that even though Brower was the general owner, he being out of possession of the wagon, and Mr. Kyte having a special property in and immediate right of possession to the wagon, any one clandestinely and with felonious intent taking it and carrying it away from him, even the general owner himself, was guilty of grand larceny. Justice Nash decided Mr. Angleman was correct in his view of the law and held the defendant in $100 bail to answer the charge at the next Grand Jury, notwithstanding the most animated and vociferous protest of the "count" against his so doing.

OF MANY HUED STRIPES.

Beautiful Wash Silks For the Fancy Waists of Springtime.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—

A beautiful line of wash silks has been brought out for the spring trade, so lovely in color and soft in texture that it is difficult to make a choice where every piece is so attractive. Solid colors are shown in dull blue, light violet, absinthe green and old rose, but stripes prevail, and their combinations are innumerable. All the stripes are of narrow width, in whatever manner they are clustered, and the effect as a whole is of harmonious and subdued brightness. Rose and gray, rose and green, rose and tan, and violet and tan are some of the combinations seen. The goods are said to really wash, provided soft water and a small quantity of fine soap be used, and no fabric could be prettier for separate waists for every day use as warm weather comes on.

For more elaborate bodices brocaded taffetas and satin or moire striped silks are employed. These and similar weaves may be obtained to great advantage at this season, as all the large shops are closing out the remainder of their winter stock of silks and crapes at reduced prices, and five or six yard lengths of fine quality may be bought at half the price per yard that was charged two or three months previous. In this qualities of silk the soft varieties wear better than the prince kinds of the same grade, although the latter appear to have more body.

THEATER BODICE.

In regard to the mode of making these waists, there is only one law—they shall not be plain. Even the wash silks are usually made up full with a folded belt and collar, balloon sleeves and a double ruching down the front, while the shapes intended for theater and evening wear are so voluminously and variously trimmed that it would seem impossible for the ladies' ingenuity to invent a new style. A sketch is given of a theater bodice composed of pale green crape and laurel green satin ribbon, made over a fitted lining of pale green satin. It is shirred in the form of a round yoke, which is outlined by a band of ribbon finished with a bow on the shoulders. A second parallel band curves across the bust. The bodice is gathered in at the waist under a pointed ribbon belt and has a short, full basque lined with satin and trimmed with a band of ribbon. The tight, shirred sleeves extend from the wrist to above the elbow, where they are met by a balloon puff with a ruffle trimmed with a ribbon band. The standing collar of ribbon is surmounted by a ruching of the crape. The bodice closes at the back.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

TO EDUCATE A MISSION GIRL.

Charitable Purpose of an Entertainment at the Congregational Church.

The Y. P. S. C. E. of the Congregational church held a sociable and sale in their church parlors last night. It was largely attended during the evening. The object which the society hoped to gain by this entertainment, was to raise money enough to educate a girl of one of the mission schools in Tennessee.

The young people took a novel way of increasing the proceeds of the sales. In the evening they distributed and all invited had the privelege of bringing as many friends as they pleased. Each person thus attending must contribute the number of pennies as were in his or her years of age, and the more charitably disposed doubled the number. The room in which the sale took place was prettily decorated with palms and hot-house plants and the tables were neatly arranged around the room, presided over by the following young ladies:

Cake Table—Miss Nellie Rockefellow, Miss Elsie Bradford.
Candy Table—Miss Demarest.
Popcorn Table—Miss Force, Miss Hallock.
Lemonade—Miss Belknap, Miss Pound.
Fancy Table—Miss Wilkins.
Ice Cream—Miss Jenkins.

Republican Majority in Somerset Board of Freeholders.

Bridgewater Township Somerset county re-elects Lewis Voorhees (Dem.) Assessor and F. F. Vanderveer (Dem.) Collector. Other township officials are elected by the Republicans. Returns indicate Republican gains and a majority of one in the Board of Freeholders. J. Howard Perry is elected Mayor of the borough of Bound Brook.

A Check for $3,000 for Mrs. Leggett.

Mr. D. W. Littell, treasurer of Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum has received a check for $3,000 from the Supreme Council to pay the claim of Mrs. Sarah E. Leggett on the insurance of her husband. Only 13 days elapsed between the sending of the proof of death and the receiving of the money.

A Large Crowd at the Ball.

Fully 100 couples attended the ball of Crescent Division, Uniformed Rank, Knights of Pythias, in Hulett's Hall, last night. Invitations were by invitation. The affair proved a success in every particular. An excellent supper was served.

TANTALIZING, AIN'T IT!

To go out shopping, buy your goods, take them home and tell your friends what they cost, and then have them say they bought the same at White's, at a much lower price. Probably it's the old-fashioned way that some stores have of getting all they can for their goods, but it don't go this year. We are doing business on a different principle and we make it our business to quote the lowest prices.

AND IT PAYS.

A PANSY SOCIABLE.

Novel Form of Entertainment at the Presbyterian Church.

At the First Presbyterian Church last night there was a pansy sociable. It had been arranged by the Misses Petrie, and was carried out successfully.

In one corner of the room a curtain had been placed behind which was a sheet upon which was painted representative pansies. In the centre of each pansy was a hole large enough to admit a young lady's head. There were eleven in all, and never was there more beautiful and livelier pansies seen in a church. It was a pretty sight, that met the congregation's gaze when the curtain was drawn, and the faces of eleven pretty young ladies were brought into view.

They rang an "alphabetical chorus," as follows:

A.—A little cock sparrow.
B.—Ba-ba.
C.—Cock-a-doodle do.
D.—Dickory, Dickory-Dock.
E.—Eggs, butter, cheese, bread.
F.—Fa-fa-fa, three cows.
G.—Georgie Porgie.
H.—Humpty, Dumpty.
I.—I had a little husband.
J.—Jack and Jill.
K.—King of France.
L.—Little Bo-Peep.
M.—Mother may I go out to swim.
N.—Nineteen birds.
O.—Old Man clothed in leather.
P.—Pussy Cat.
Q.—Queen of Hearts.
R.—Ride a Cock Horse.
S.—Sing a song of Sixpence.
T.—Tom little pig.
U.—Upon my word and honor.
V.—I and I together meet.
W.—Why do you sob?
X-Y-Z.

The young ladies who took part were Miss Nora Wilmore, Miss Agnes Blair, Miss Pansy Herring, Miss Bessie Blair, Miss McKillop, Miss Overton, Miss F. E. Petrie, Miss Margaret Cave, Miss Edith Lane and Miss Olive Newell.

In part second "Only a Pansy Blossom," "Oh, Susanna," "Stop That Knocking" and "In 1903," were sung. Between each song there was a verse of a funny piece, in which each took part.

It was a regular church sociable. The programme was arranged by the young people while the older members of the congregation had charge of the refreshments.

LUNCH BOX SOCIABLE.

"Bob" Mattox Lays a Hand at Auctioneering.

The Sons of Temperance held a lunch box sociable last night in their room, corner of Park avenue and Front street. A business session was held first, after which there was a general social time. The meeting was attended by P. G. W. P., J. R. Petrie, the only living charter member of Howell Division.

A large delegation from Sons of Welcome and Red Divisions, of New Brunswick, came over in a stage to attend the meeting.

Those present were very pleasantly entertained by John Berdan Cline and Miss Swain who sang several selections in an exceptionally fine manner.

Genial "Bob" Mattox proved a good auctioneer and the way he sold off the lunch boxes (without a license) would make a veteran auctioneer Carey look to his laurels. And although the lunches did come pretty high they were well worth it, for each one was packed full of palatable and dainty morsels.

Mad a Good Time After They Got to Know Each Other.

The Y. P. S. C. E. of the Park Avenue Baptist Church, held a very delightful sociable in that church last night. The room was prettily decorated with ferns, palms and many other beautiful plants. The aim of the committee which had the affair in charge was to bring about a feeling of sociability between the members and their friends. This is the way they did it; the committee prepared a large number of conundrums which were written upon numbered cards, with answers on other cards of a corresponding number. These cards were given out, one to each person as they entered, and the person holding the card with the conundrum on must find the person holding the card with the answer, and vice versa.

A song entitled "Old Black Cat," by the Juniors, was followed by a most pleasing flower drill by the same children.

The entire programme was as follows:

PART I.

Overture—Light Cavalry.....
Recitation—"The Last Hymn,".....Miss Cantwell.
Piano solo—"Tambalina,".....Miss Bogle.
Song—"Old Black Cat,".....Juniors.

INTERMISSION.

Piano Duet—"Tambalina,".....
Recitation—"The Two of the Pictures,".....Miss Smith.

Suing the Fowler Car Company.

Last Summer the J. W. Fowler Car Company erected at Elizabethport a large building for carrying on their business of manufacturing cars. The building and machinery are probably worth about $600,000. The contractor Henry J. Bowers, a builder of Brooklyn, N. Y., has now claims against the company for work done and materials furnished in the construction of the building. Jackson & Anderson of this city, attorneys for Mr. Bowers, have filed two suits claims against the building and have commenced two suits against the company for the amount of the contract price. The claims were filed on Saturday, and the summons in the two suits were served yesterday.

THE WAR ENDED.

Brazilian Insurgents Surrender Unconditionally.

DA GAMA IS NOW A REFUGEE.

He Is Supposed to Be on Board a British Ship.

At the Expiration of Forty-eight Hours' Notice the Government Forts Opened a Fierce Fire, Which Had Lasted but an Hour When the Rebels Struck Their Colors—Rio Janeiro, After Suffering From War For Many Months and Being Almost Depopulated, Is Once More Enjoying Peace—Government Fleet at Last Enters the Harbor—Welcomed by the People.

RIO JANEIRO, March 14.—The war is practically over, and the cause of the insurgents is a lost one. There is much rejoicing in this city at the culmination of the struggle which has continued so many months, with no object seemingly but to hamper business and destroy property.

The rebel forces have surrendered unconditionally and almost without firing a shot.

The officers of the insurgent fleet have taken refuge on board French and Portuguese warships.

One French vessel has put to sea with many of the rebel officers on board.

Da Gama Is Hiding.

It is said that Admiral da Gama is on the British warship Sirius.

When the fact became known that Da Gama had offered to capitulate, the government fleet entered the harbor quietly. As the vessels made their way up the bay they were saluted by the various govern ment batteries.

The greatest excitement prevails in the city. The streets are crowded, and everywhere one can hear the cry of "Viva Peixoto!" For the last two days the streets have been packed with people, and all the available trucks and handcarts have been busy carrying household goods and personal effects out of the city. The street cars were jammed until noon, when it was learned that the struggle was over. This was most joyful news to the people, who fully expected that a battle was at hand.

There has been much suffering in the city. All business houses have been closed, and it has been very difficult to get food. The whole available police force has been on duty constantly, but there has been little disturbance. Almost the whole population is gathered in the center of the city.

City Partly Depopulated.

Probably 100,000 persons have left the city. Railroad transportation to the suburbs is free. The government is feeding the poor. Great crowds collected on the hills with the expectation of witnessing a battle as soon as the two forces.

The insurgent warship Aquidaban is not in this harbor. Admiral de Mello was false to the emperor and to President Peixoto and President Peixoto. He now proves false to Admiral da Gama. Where he and his vessel are is not known.

At noon precisely the bar forts opened fire upon Fort Villegaignon. In a short time the government fleet in front of Armacao and Fort Bragueta joined in the bombardment. The fire was not returned by the insurgents. The bombardment was continued until 3 o'clock, when it ceased.

Custodio, San Bento, Sande, Carvello and all the city batteries then opened a furious fire upon Fort Villegaignon and the insurgent warship Tamandare. The fire was directed upon the insurgent works at Cobras island and at other places. The forces at Enchadas lowered the hospital flag and hoisted the insurgent ensign. The garrison at Gubernor's island also took part in the attack on Fort Villegaignon, which was hastily hammered by the government guns.

Furious Firing For an Hour.

The works on Cobras island took fire, but the flames were soon extinguished. The firing of the batteries lasted for an hour. No great damage was done. The insurgents did not fire a shot, husbanding their ammunition.

At 4 o'clock the government fleet appeared off the harbor, the largest being Aurora leading. The other vessels in the fleet were the Nictheroy, Amazica, Itajuo, Bahia, Tiradentes and Paraihyba and two steamers and five torpedo boats. The insurgents did not fire a shot, husbanding their ammunition.

As the vessels passed the mouth of the harbor they were answered from the shore with a salute of twenty-one guns. The insurgent fleet then steamed out to sea.

Welcomed by the People.

The government fleet then entered the harbor and proceeded to the arsenal, where it was welcomed by the people with the wildest enthusiasm. The streets were filled with cheering crowds, and the scene was one of the wildest excitement.

The Aquidaban, with Admiral de Mello on board, is reported to be at Montevideo.

APPROPRIATION DAY.

The House Spends a Day on the Country's Expenses.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—The house began the consideration of the bill making appropriations for the sundry civil expenses of the government, and a fair progress was made. Only three amendments of any importance were adopted—one appropriating $43,500 for lighting Hay Lake Channel, another of $65,000 for the public building at Buffalo and another of $60,000 for repairing the postoffice at New York. The latter was fought by the appropriation committee.

The only other amendment of importance was one made by Mr. Morse of Massachusetts to cut off the appropriation for the Interstate commerce commission. The manner in which that portion of the appropriation for counsel fees ($184,000) was worded led to a rather spirited debate, in which Mr. Cannon of Illinois rather broadly intimated that this appropriation had been placed under the direction of the commission instead of the department of justice, as heretofore, because of the criticism against Attorney General Olney from certain quarters that he was in sympathy with corporations.

The Morse amendment precipitated a rather bitter attack from Mr. Wise of Virginia, who read a sarcastic anonymous letter charging Mr. Morse with opposing the law from purely selfish reasons in the interest of the stove polish concern of which he is the proprietor.

When the sense of the house was tested upon the Morse proposition, it was overwhelmingly defeated, but Mr. Haines of New York made the point of no quorum against it.

Just before the adjournment Mr. Cummings' resolution calling upon Secretary Herbert for information regarding the alleged violation of the armor plate contracts by Carnegie, Phipps & Co. was passed.

The evenings in the senate were of an extremely uninteresting character. Without the intervention of any morning business, except the presentation of a few petitions and the introduction of a few unimportant bills, the senate took up the discussion of the seigniorage bill. Senators Stewart and Lindsay spoke in favor and Mr. Dolph spoke in opposition to it, holding that its passage would destroy the existing equality between gold and silver.

The two new senators—Mr. McLaurin of Mississippi and Mr. Blanchard of Louisiana—received their committee appointments. The day closed with a lively bout between Senators Dolph and Harris over the question of printing extracts from books and newspapers in The Record, and on account of the absence of a quorum the senate adjourned.

Fourth Class Postmasters.

McCarthyites Reassured.

LONDON, March 14.—A meeting of McCarthyite members of the house of commons was held today, at which a deputation was sent to have a second interview with Sir William Harcourt and that they received satisfactory assurances as to the government's intentions toward Ireland. What the nature of these assurances was, however, cannot be learned.

Gang Was Murdered.

CAMDEN, N. J., March 14.—The body of the man found near Blackwood on Sunday was positively identified by a score of persons today as that of Charles Hall, the missing Swedesboro man. That he was murdered there is no doubt, County Physician Isaac Lee, at a postmortem examination and found that the neck had been broken.

French Exhibitors Demand Damages.

DOWN WITH THE LORDS

House of Commons Votes For Their Abolition.

RADICALS STRIKE A SUDDEN BLOW.

Under the Leadership of Labouchere an Amendment Was Rushed Through That Will Force a Crisis—The Government Was Caught Napping.

LONDON, March 14.—Mr. Henry Labouchere, in the house of commons, proposed as an amendment to the address in reply to the queen's speech the abolition of the house of lords.

After some discussion and considerable excitement the amendment was put to a vote and was passed by 147 to 145 in spite of the opposition of the government.

During the discussion which preceded the vote Mr. Labouchere said in his contention that the premier ought to be a member of the house of commons was justified by the fact that they for the last two hours had been listening to Lord Rosebery's remarks. He agreed with Mr. Redmond that if home rule depended upon an English majority, why had they stumped the country in denunciation of the house of lords?

Labouchere's Amendment.

Mr. Labouchere then moved an amendment abolishing the power enjoyed by persons not elected to parliament to prevent bills from being submitted to her majesty, and he expressed the hope that, if necessary, her majesty, with the advice of the ministers, would use her power to secure the passage of this much needed reform. He suggested that this object could early be achieved by creating 500 new peers who would vote for the extinction of the house of lords. [Laughter.]

Sir William Harcourt said he agreed with Mr. Gladstone that the present state of things could not continue. He, however, could not understand the process by which Mr. Labouchere reckoned to achieve his object.

Mr. Labouchere interposed with the remark that he had a list of 500 stalwarts who were pledged to vote for the abolition of the hereditary lords if they were sent there [Loud laughter.]

Sir William Harcourt said the method was impracticable. It must be left to the government to find means to put an end to the intolerable situation. The division on Mr. Labouchere's amendment was then taken.

When the figures were announced, they caused an outburst of prolonged cheering, which was renewed when the deputy speaker read the division list in reply to the queen's speech with Mr. Labouchere's amendment attached to it.

The division occurred earlier than was expected, and many of the Conservatives were absent at dinner. The majority was composed of 73 McCarthyites and Parnellites, the remainder being Radicals.

When the division list was handed to Mr. Labouchere, a tremendous cheer broke from the Irish and Radical benches and was renewed as the news was spread the gang way. Mr. Tanner was excitedly cheering and waving his handkerchief, while the government table looked pale, especially Chief Secretary Sir John Ellis. The latter looked downcast, while Mr. Balfour smiled ironically.

Mr. Chamberlain moved to adjourn the house on the ground that it was too late to continue and because an amendment had been carried against the government, Mr. Gladstone, he maintained, would soon had called upon her majesty to do what she had no constitutional right to do. There could be no doubt that the government could not remain in office at the moment through which this ridiculous amendment was to be submitted to the queen.

Mr. Balfour said he trusted that the government would be in a position to announce their intention today. Mr. Labouchere said he hoped that the government would not allow themselves to be baffled by the leaders of the opposition. Sir William Harcourt agreed to the motion to adjourn.

Comments on the Result.

The result of the division paralyzed the nature of a surprise not only to the government, but to many of the Radicals who had voted in favor of the amendment. Several of the latter avowed that their object in supporting the amendment was merely to give a good division against the house of lords. They declare that they had no idea that there was any prospect of the amendment being carried. It was in fact a jump in the dark and a bringing up at a place at which they did not expect to arrive.

The action that will be taken by the government in view of the defeat inflicted upon it by its whilom supporters is a matter of conjecture. The prospect of the resignation of the cabinet is a general topic in the lobbies of the house of commons. It is expected that the cabinet will meet today to discuss the matter.

The Daily News ridicules the idea that the government will resign on account of the adoption of the Labouchere amendment. It says that the only practical and from some points of view not undesirable result of the division will be that the amendment must be brought directly under the notice of the queen. It will do the government no harm and will help the agitation against the house of lords.

The Times says in an editorial: "The situation is developing with startling rapidity. Lord Rosebery's government has received a blow which shatters its foundations and leaves it entirely denuded of even such prestige as can be derived from the incongruous alliance that kept Mr. Gladstone in power. The Radical and Irish revolt renders an early dissolution inevitable. That is, for the Unionists, the moral of last night's proceedings."

Killed Himself With a Shotgun.

BLUFFED A YANKEE.

The Report Says a Commander of a Japanese Warship Died It.

SYDNEY, March 14.—Passengers on the steamer Atawa, which has just arrived here, give an interesting story of recent events in Honolulu.

They assert that a subject of Japan was recently arrested in that city for a trivial offense and placed in jail. He escaped from jail and swam out to a Japanese warship. The authorities appealed to the American admiral, asking that he demand the surrender of the Japanese.

The commander of the Japanese warship refused to give the man up and threatened that if the American admiral boarded his ship he would give him 'a half hour to leave, or, if he refused, the American flagship would be blown out of the water.'

According to the story of the passengers the escaped prisoner was not molested.

The Pollard-Breckinridge Trial.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Brotherly love and almost deferential politeness made up the spirit which prevailed in the intercourse of the attorneys in the Pollard-Breckinridge case all day. Judge Bradley dismissed Monday's encounter of counsel with an expression of regret. Information had come to Judge Bradley that some of Colonel Breckinridge's counsel had come to court armed, and after he had called their attention to the local law against carrying concealed weapons there was an unusual courtroom scene, each lawyer rising to formally purge his hip pockets. Apart from these accessories of the case the day was uneventful.

Crank Frightens a Priest.

QUINCY, Ills., March 14.—A shabby looking stranger presented himself at the parochial residence of Rev. Father Andrew, head of St. Francis church and school, and declared himself an emissary of the American Protective association. He said that he was commissioned to blow up the church and college buildings with dynamite and kill the priests, but if Father Andrew would pay him $1,000 he would desert the order and reveal all its secrets. The priest slammed the door in his face and rushed inside, where he barricaded himself for half an hour, but heard no more of his unwelcome visitor.

Coxey's Army Consists of One.

MASSILON, O., March 14.—There is no truth whatever in the report that this city is already thronged with tramps who have come here to join the Coxey "On to Washington" army, which departs from here on Easter Sunday, March 25. Mr. Coxey is doing all he can to prevent tramps and anarchists from assembling here. A cow-boy from Oklahoma is the only enlistment to the army thus far. He is at present grooming Coxey's horses.

Movements of Ocean Steamships.

NEW YORK, March 14.—The following steamships are due today: Majestic, Liverpool; Lahn, Bremen; Rhynland, Antwerp; State of Nebraska, Glasgow; Carlisle, Rotterdam; Greece, London; San Giorgio, Palermo; Mohican, Swansea; Alecto, London; Stratford, Liverpool; Mobile, London; Hansa, Hamburg; Othello, Antwerp. The following steamships sail today: Britannic, Liverpool; Belgenland, Antwerp.

White House Crank Was Dangerous.

INDIANA, Pa., March 14.—George M. Walker, an insane crank of this county, who was arrested a few weeks ago while endeavoring to get into the White House at Washington, was arrested here and lodged in jail. He is a dangerous crank, goes heavily armed and says that when the Lord tells him to kill a man he is going to do it.

The Gaylord Mine Horror.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., March 14.—No more bodies had been found in the Gaylord mine at midnight, but those on duty at the mouth of the shaft are in constant expectation of hearing a summons which means that another victim has been unearthed from the temporary tomb in which they have reposed so long a time.

Recruits For Coxey's Army.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 14.—The railroad men at New Castle junction say that almost every freight train that passes over the four roads centering there has from one to half a dozen men on it who claim to be on their way to join Coxey's army at Massillon.

Mysterious Killing.

KYLE, Tex., March 14.—C. G. Tetze, a merchant, was preparing to close up for the night when some one entered the store and deliberately shot him through the heart, killing him instantly. The safe was standing open, but the contents were not disturbed.

Investigating McKane's Accounts.

BROOKLYN, March 14.—The Gravesend citizens committee met in secret session. After the meeting Mr. Elliot announced that many items had been found in the accounts, but that documents were wanting to make the list complete.

Wants Well Informed Citizens.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 14.—Judge Hazen refused in open court to naturalize no less than a dozen applicants on the ground that they were not sufficiently well posted on the laws and form of government of the United States.

Nuns Will Get No Pay.

PITTSBURG, March 14.—At the meeting of the general board of education a resolution was adopted by a vote of 29 to 7 refusing to pay any teacher appearing in the public schools in the garb of any religious order.

A START FOR THE POLE

The Wellman Party Off For Spitzbergen.

A UNIQUE ARCTIC ENTERPRISE.

What the Young Explorer Hopes to Accomplish—Novel Features of the Expedition. The Frozen North's Fascinating Mystery May Soon Be Solved.

NEW YORK, March 14.—Mr. Walter Wellman, the well known journalist, sailed on the steamer Britannic today en route for Spitzbergen, from which point his expedition will make a summer dash for the north pole. Mr. Wellman was accompanied by three other Americans—Professor Owen B. French, late of the United States coast and geodetic survey and an experienced and capable scientist; Dr. Thomas B. Mahon, a successful Washington physician, and Charles C. Dodge, the artist and photographer of the expedition. The enterprise is under the leadership of Mr. Wellman, and the three men named are his lieutenants.

Ten hardy young Norwegians, ambitious and experienced in arctic exploration, will join the party in Norway, and the expedition will sail from Tromsoe, Norway, for the islands of Spitzbergen about the 1st of May. At Dane's island, which is very near the eightieth parallel—that point of latitude so far north that many explorers have never reached and few ever passed it—headquarters will be established, and then the party will steam to the edge of the great ice pack about a degree farther north. After a landing is effected the steamer will return to Dane's island, and about the 10th or 15th of May the dash for the pole will begin.

Will Use Aluminium Boats.

That marvelous new metal, aluminium, has been utilized in the construction of sledges, boats and other apparatus, and thus equipped with far lighter paraphernalia than any previous explorer Mr. Wellman expects to be able to push on north at the rate of from 12 to 20 miles per day. As he will have only about 600 miles to travel before the pole is reached, he expects to either reach that goal or a point very near it in 30 days. He will then return to the edge of the pack in 30 days more, his steamer will pick him up, and he will then return home.

Mr. Wellman has carefully studied the great problems before him and expects to profit by the knowledge gained by previous explorers who have traversed the pack and to avoid their mistakes. His early start is for the purpose of getting far north before the pack begins its drift toward the south. Away back in 1827 Sir Edward Parry pushed on northward over the pack at the rate of from 16 to 20 miles per day, but his heavy equipage compelled him to break his knob speed with and pass from five to seven times over the same road.

Other explorers, handicapped with old time sledges and boats, have been compelled to progress in the same slow manner, but Mr. Wellman believes that with his light aluminium outfit retracing his steps will be unnecessary, and that every mile traveled will take him a mile farther toward the pole. At the start the drift of the ice pack will not be against him, and when he reaches it by 30 days more, his steamer will pick him up, and he will then return home.

Mr. Wellman carries with him his aluminium boats and sledges—the first ever built in America—and tests have demonstrated that they are by far the lightest and at the same time the very strongest boats and sledges of their size that the world has ever seen. The entire equipment of the party of 14 will be about 5,500 pounds, and as 40 hardy draft dogs will be used to carry the weight, it the average per man and dog will be about 100 pounds.

A Newspaper Expedition.

One novel feature of Mr. Wellman's scheme of exploration is that it is strictly a newspaper expedition, and if Mr. Wellman's plans are carried out the world will be apprised of his progress toward the pole, a thing that has never before been done in the case of any previous polar expedition. Members of his party will be sent back from time to time to the edge of the ice pack with letters describing the progress of the expedition and the discoveries made by the explorers. At the edge of the ice pack the dispatches will be taken on board Mr. Wellman's steamer, which will return to Norway, whence the world will receive the news.

Whether Mr. Wellman's dash for the pole will be successful or not remains to be seen, but if his novel plan is even partly carried out he will succeed in reaching a degree of latitude farther north than that reached by any previous explorer. With Wellman, Peary, Nansen and possibly Jackson in operation in the pole this year, it seems highly probable that 1894 will mark the solution of the frozen north's fascinating mystery.

REST FOR MOTHER'S TIRED HANDS.

Ready Made Clothing For Children Is Now Pretty and Inexpensive.

It is a marvel that any mother will spend time in making the garments for her young children, when their entire wardrobe can be obtained ready made—and well made, too—so reasonable as cost. The children's clothing shown this season is remarkably pretty, and much of it is inexpensive. Blue or pink and white striped lawn waists, trimmed with ruffles and wide collars, may be bought to go with little boys' fancy suits, besides the usual white cap and aprons ones, while the suits themselves are shown in black, blue and drab, trimmed with braid, the jacket being made short enough to allow the light waist to appear below it.

White lawn aprons ruffled around the armholes and with ribbons run through embroidered beading about the low neck and tied in bows on the shoulders are novelty for small girls, while the display of frocks and coats for very little people is dainty in the extreme. There are fine gingham dresses mounted on a white embroidered yoke, with a berthe of white embroidery falling over the sleeves; charming, old fashioned little gowns of white corded nainsook sprinkled with tiny colored flowers and made with full bodice, skirt and sleeves and a wide nainsook sash; white Marseilles coats, with capes, both trimmed with wide embroidery, and etherealized sunbonnets, very perky in the crown and facing in the brim and prettily embroidered. A beautiful dress for a 4-year-old child is of bright red cashmere. It is gathered into a tucked yoke of the same material and has very full sleeves gathered into a band at the wrist. Full cpaulets of cashmere, finely embroidered with white silk on the edge, hang over the shoulders.

The fashion of dressing very little girls in short sleeved and low necked frocks, at least during warm weather, has again come around. It is charming to see the soft little necks and arms uncovered, but gowns made in that style ought always to be panelled in a manner to be adjusted at the first hint of dampness or falling temperature. An illustration is given of a frock made of blue and white figured nainsook. It is mounted in box plaits on the pointed yoke, which is made of bands of blue and white insertion and surrounded by a ruffle of embroidery to match. Blue ribbons are fastened at the under arm seams and tied in a bow at the back, and blue bows adorn the shoulders.

Handsomely Situated BUILDING LOTS Now Offered For Sale.

This Property is in the heart of the recently opened residence section of the city, being within a few minutes' walk of the Central Railroad station.

The New Watchung Park, with its new streets and avenues, will be now as the handsomest residence section in this pretty suburban place.

Only High Grade Residences will be erected. The neighborhood will be restricted, making it as desirable as any in Plainfield.

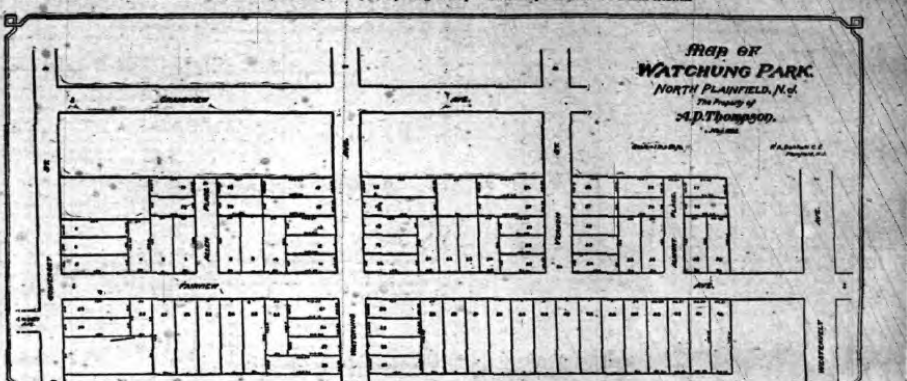
All Modern Improvements will be in force by early Spring. The work of macadamizing the streets is now being pushed rapidly.

Electric Cars Pass the property. Electric light, gas and city water will be introduced as soon in the Spring as they are needed.

Scores of Beautiful Homes now fronting on Sandford and Westcott avenues have been located on the old Crescents' ball field.

Just as Property Values jumped in Sandford and Westervelt avenues, so will they also increase rapidly in Watchung Park. Those who buy now will reap the benefit of an early investment.

The Lots Are About 50x150 feet in size, and the printed map of the property will give the public necessary information as to their location.



For further information regarding prices and terms, copies of the above map, etc., address or call upon A. D. THOMPSON, 147 North avenue, opposite Railroad Station, Plainfield, N. J.

MATTER FOR HOUSEKEEPERS

HELPFUL HINTS THAT CANNOT BE FOUND ELSEWHERE.

Read It Carefully When You Have Time, and Keep the Items of Most Value to You in a Scrap-Book, or You Will Regret It Later.

In putting down oilcloth you do not tack as you go, as with carpets; plan out the whole room first, putting in a tack here and there to hold it all in position until ready for the final tacking. It is disagreeable work to fit oilcloth and you will need a very sharp knife to cut it in shape. A good way of keeping a keen edge is to have a piece of fine emery paper and every once in a while lay the blade of the knife flat on it, drawing it along as if it were an oilstone. After the oilcloth is fitted put in as few tacks as possible. Matting is laid in the same way, only a spain stouter will be found better than tacks to use at the joinings to prevent fraying.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

It is a good idea to have a dish of lemons served with any kind of fish.

It is said that a few cloves scattered on buttery shelves will, if occasionally renewed, drive out long-cherished ants.

Renew old crockery by placing them in the oven for long enough a time to dry them, but not to burn them. They are more delicious and crisp than when first bought.

The true physiological method of treating burns or scalds is to at once exclude the air with cotton batting, flour, scraped potato, vaseline, sapolite of an egg, paste, or anything that is most quickly obtained.

Cheese kept in a cool larder or cellar with a cloth wrung out of clean, cold water constantly upon it will never have mites on it; or, if it has, this soon destroys them, and also greatly improves the cheese, keeping it always moist.

A clean paste may be made of two parts gum tragacanth and one part powdered gum arabic. Cover with cold water until dissolved, then reduce to the desired consistency with the same. To prevent souring add a few drops of carbolic acid.

A simple mode of purifying water is to sprinkle a tablespoonful of powdered alum into a hogshead of water, stirring the water at the same time. This will precipitate all the impurities to the bottom, after being allowed a few hours to settle, and will so purify it that it will be found to possess nearly all the freshness and clearness of the finest spring water. A pailful containing four gallons may be purified in this manner by using no more than a teaspoonful of the alum.—Detroit Free Press.

A COSEY BED.

A Curtain Arrangement that is Very Decorative.

A very comfortable arrangement for the head of a bed, for the prevention of drafts and shading the eyes from the light, may be made by placing an eighteen inch shelf, against the wall across the headboard. From the back of this depend chintz curtains hanging perfectly straight. Drapery of the same material is arranged across the front of the shelf and caught back against the head post or left to hang loose as desired. Chintz or sretonne is now altogether used for sleeping rooms in place of the heavy hangings which were so fashionable a short time ago; every effort now is made to give a bright and airy look to the rooms in which we spend one-third of our lives. The blue and white Anatolia curtains would be pretty draped in this way, while plain chintz could be used for the curtains at the head of the bed.

A CURTAINED BED.
From Decorator and Furnisher.

Nothing Prettier Than Rag Carpet.

There is nothing that makes prettier bedroom mats and rugs than the old-fashioned rag carpeting if well sewed. These are particularly pretty if there is a large preponderances of white. It is capital employment for small children also to cut the rags and sew them together, making them into great balls when they have a sufficient quantity cut and sewed. "Let nothing be wasted," is a good maxim to impress upon their young minds, and it would be a good plan to allow them to make a little money for themselves by selling the rags in charge. In almost every village there is some one who makes rag carpets, and this ancient and useful industry should not be allowed to die out.

Delicious Pork Chops.

Tender pork chops done in this way are simply delicious: Fry them brown on both sides; pour off all grease, adding about half a pint of Espagnole sauce and a teaspoonful of curry paste. Put the lid on the saucepan and simmer the chops on the fire very gently for ten minutes longer, then add a small piece of glace. Toss the whole together, and dish them by arranging them in a circle and fill the centre with curried rice, pour the sauce over the chops and serve.

Cake Trifle.

Take a round white cake, cut out the inside about an inch from the edge and bottom, fill the inside with a custard made of the yolks of four eggs, a pint of boiling milk sweetened well and flavored, place on the custard any kind of jam or jelly that may be preferred, and cover the whole with the whites of the eggs beaten very stiff, with powdered sugar.

HOW TO MAKE BENDS.

Knots Which Every Boy Should Learn the Name of.

When ropes are fastened together the knot made is called a bend. We reproduce here from Harper's Young People the principal bends.

Common Bend.—This is also known as a single bend, and is used for making one rope fast to another in a hurry. Make a bight with one rope, and hold it in the left hand; pass the end of the other rope (1) through the bight (2), then back round the two parts (3), over the rope (4), under the rope (5), and over the short end of the loop. If the end (1) is taken around once more and through the bight again, as shown in Fig. B, the bend will stand a great strain, and be less liable to jam. The bend shown in Fig. B, is known as a double bend.

A, B. COMMON BEND. C. CARRICK BEND.

Carrick Bend.—This, like the common bend, is used for bending hawsers together, but is a trifle more difficult to make. Make a loop in the end of one rope; pass the end of the other rope through the bight and over the standing part of the first rope where marked (1); then under the end (2); and again through the bight and over the standing part (3).

A Modern Cat's Adventure.

It is quite proper that cats to have adventures, else we would never have had that dear old story of "Puss in Boots" and never have heard of "Whittington." But the cats of to-day are apt to lead very humdrum lives with no more adventure in them than the rest of us save the live in these times. We very seldom hear, indeed, of any excitement ruffling the life of one of these quiet creatures. Yet the other day, in New York, there was a cat who spent three days in the branches of a tree and nobody could get her down. Policemen tried and lots of women and men, and up and down the street for all these days there was the greatest amount of excitement. Finally the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals came, and by the very ingenious use of a scaffold from a neighboring window, and pieces of meat for bait the cat was induced to walk the plank" to the window to the relief of thousands who witnessed the rescue.

Before Paper Was Invented.

In the most ancient times writing was used for rare occasions only, and a rock, a tablet or stone, or a plate of metal was the receptacle. Moses, you remember, wrote upon stone tablets. The works of Homer and Hesiod were said to have been first written on plates of lead. And ancient documents on copper are still met with in India.

Some persons are of the opinion that the first writing was upon thin pieces of wood. From their convenience this seems probable. Such boards were used at an early period by the Greeks and Romans and were frequently covered with wax, which was, of course, easily written upon when the bare wood.

Some New Rules for Tennis.

A ball through the parlor window counts you eight—shortage dollar.

After hitting your opponent with the ball, it is not fair to yell out the score.

Don't laugh if the other player has to run a long distance after the ball. The chances are that he will find an opportunity to make you run before long.

Don't mark out the court lines with a blacking brush—lime is bad for shoes.

Don't get mad if the ball is lost, but sit down and rest while your opponent hunts for it. This rule is observed by all players.—Harper's Young People.

Dotey.

In this city is a kittie. Fal fol lal
Her name is daisy, my! she's lazy,
For she takes her paw,
Then rubs her nose and ears and whiskers
With the greatest grace,
And says, please may I have my breakfast?
I'm done washed my face.

Natural History Notes.

I am told there is a Swiss family living in Dakota who have a dear that is ten years old, and is only six inches high.

It is worth knowing, and was carved by their father before he came to this country.

It is said that Mr. Y. Z. Jones, of New Jersey, has a pet mosquito which he uses for the double purpose of protecting his house from tramps while he attends to the farm, and bringing his cows to and from pasture.

A Cautious Maid.

A little girl, aged three, who had often heard Bridget cautioned about drying the tin-ware carefully so that it would not rust, amused her mother one day by saying, after taking her bath, "Mamma, you did not wipe me dry, I am afraid it will make me rust."

Ted's First Knife.

Ted had a knife that his papa had given him. With a knowing look grandma said: "It is only a matter of time for him to cut himself." In just five minutes, Ted came in holding his hands behind him, and said: "Grandma, it is not a very bad cut."

A little girl, noticing the glittering gold ring in her aunt's front teeth, exclaimed:

"Aunt Mary, I wish I had copper-toed teeth like yours."

FLASHING METAL IN FAVOR.

The Girl of the Period May Soon Be Partly Armor Clad.

With the great variety of soft silks, crapes and nets now in the market, there is no lack of material for the construction of dainty vests, yokes, plastrons, collars, capes and similar devices for the brightening up of street toilets to suit evening occasions where full dress is not necessary. A great deal of guipure is used, also beaded tulle and net embroidered in jet or small colored cabochons or pleatifully spangled. Indeed flashing metallic effects are greatly in favor, and as the spangles are very light there is no objection of weight to be urged against their employment. Of course these brilliant accessories appear to best advantage when they are worn over a dark gown, and if a small hat or bonnet to match is worn the effect is doubly satisfactory.

A pretty and very simple plastron arrangement is made with the metal pieceseenterie pieces that come in pairs shaped like a corselet and fitted to the front of the figure. Satin ribbon 5 inches wide is tied in a huge bow reaching from shoulder to shoulder, the ends being brought down over the bust and gathered in beneath the top of the corselet piece. The corselet is attached to the bodice by means of jeweled stickpins.

All colors are used for these accessories, black and gold being particularly effective. A graceful garniture is made by arranging the embroidered material in the form of a yoke and bordering it all around with a flounce of spangled guipure, which conceals the upper part of the sleeve and falls over the bust almost to the waist. The neck is finished with a high collar fastened by a jeweled buckle.

A charming sort of basquine in which metal effects and lace were shown was worn at a recent fashionable wedding in Paris. It was made of bronze faille and was embroidered with bronze and gold beads. Wide Russian guipure was arranged to fall like a cape over the arm, while the upper edge formed a ruching across the top of the shoulder. A breadth of the lace was also gathered in at the neck in front, falling in plain folds some distance below the waist. There was a high flaring collar. With this garment was worn a tiny bonnet of bronze beads trimmed with pink roses.

Uterus Man Mangled by a Tiger.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., March 14.—Two keepers named Werner and McKay, employed in Barnum's winter quarters here, were terribly mangled by a ferocious Bengal tiger shot last night, probably due as a result of their injuries. They went into the cage to hang up a sheep which had been killed for the beast's dinner, and with apparent ease the huge beast crushed the heavy iron bars separating one part of the cage from the other, and in an instant and before the other employees of the place could interfere it had so badly lacerated McKay's legs and torn Werner's head and shoulders that physicians think both men will die.

Troy's New Mayor Inaugurated.

TROY, N. Y., March 14.—A large crowd gathered at the city hall, the attraction being the swearing in of Mayor-elect Molloy and the retirement of Mayor Whelan. The common council met, and a certificate of election was handed to Mr. Molloy signed by the 14 Murphy aldermen, including Alderman Dunlop of the Thirteenth ward. The six Republican and five Whelan aldermen refused to sign the election certificate.

Boss Weaver Mobbed.

PHILLIPSBURG, N. J., March 14.—George Holt, a boss in the Standard silk works, was followed home from work by a mob numbering 2,000 people who sympathized with the striking weavers. The howling, hooting crowd knocked him down and might have killed him had it not been for the intervention of his wife. The police were powerless.

Tramps Captured a Freight Train.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 14.—An east bound freight train on the Southern Pacific was captured by a gang of 30 tramps or unemployed workingmen west of Marfa. The sheriff of Presidio county met the train at Marfa with a large posse of deputies and placed all of the tramps under arrest.

MOBS RULE THE CITY.

Striking Silk Weavers In Paterson, N. J.

PATERSON, N. J., March 14.—The city of Paterson is practically in the hands of a lawless mob. A thousand strikers went from one to another of several of the silk ribbon factories and dye works, broke down doors and fences and forced the workmen to abandon their work and join them. Thousands of other strikers looked on, ready at a moment's call to join their comrades and demolish whole buildings. In the evening the police charged a large crowd of strikers and dispersed them.

During the day the police seemed to be powerless. They are 10,000 like silk workers in Paterson and only 65 policemen. That there was no bloodshed or burning of buildings or repetition of the scenes at Homestead was due entirely to the control which the leaders had over the mob.

BEGAN IN THE SUPREME COURT YESTERDAY.

Brought by Joseph B. Miller Against William F. Trust. — The Papers Served Last Night.—Miller's Hand Badly Mutilated.

Joseph B. Miller has retained City Judge William Coddington to prosecute William F. Trust for an alleged atrocious and murderous assault, according to the complaint, that Mr. Trust made against Mr. Miller several days ago at the City Hotel.

Yesterday suit was begun in the Supreme Court against Mr. Trust for $10,000 damages by Judge Coddington in behalf of his client.

The papers were served on Mr. Trust last night by Deputy Sheriff Moffett.

In the alleged assault, it is claimed that Mr. Trust bit the thumb and hand of Mr. Miller and caused such serious injury to him that it is feared he will lose his thumb.

Trust, it is said, had such a hold on Miller's thumb with his teeth that his jaws had to be pried open by two men to make him let go.

BREVITIES.

—The old elm trees on the old Embury property, corner of East Front and Church streets, are being cut down. The old house is being made ready for its journey over to the corner of the lot.

—The week of prayer will be observed at the Congregational church next week. On Tuesday night the Rev. Dr. Patton of Westfield will preach and on Thursday the Rev. Lincoln Goodrich of Bound Brook will occupy the pulpit.

—Last night the C. Y. M. L.'s were to have played a euchre game in the tournament with the St. Josephs of Jersey City, but as the latter did not come to Plainfield the games were postponed. The next games are scheduled for April 5th, when the visiting team will be the Harrison Y. M. C. A. of Harrison.

Frank Manchester to be Tried for Breach of Promise.

Friday night Mr. Frank Manchester is to be tried at the Trinity church mock trial for breach of promise. Miss Fannie Mattison is the plaintiff. Judge William A. Coddington is to be the presiding judge. Charles J. McNabb will be counsel for the plaintiff and Robert Clark will represent the defendant.

W. C. T. U. Meetings.

There will be a mothers' meeting, led by Mrs. E. L. Hyde, Thursday at 3.30 p. m. in the W. C. T. U. rooms on Watchung avenue.

The meeting in the interest of colored work, which was announced for Thursday evening, March 15th, at eight p. m. in the W. C. T. U. rooms, has been postponed to March 22.

DON'T STOP YOUR GOOD WORK.

The Relief Association Has Only 30 Cents Left as I Many Families Need Help.

The Plainfield Relief Association finds it necessary to make a special appeal for extra funds to carry on its work for the remainder of the year. While the donations this Winter have been unusually large the demands have also been extraordinary.

At the first meeting in March 87 families were receiving assistance, as compared with 21 at the same date last year.

All these cases have been investigated and found to be in absolute need.

Notwithstanding the five hundred dollars received from the Citizen's Fund, the Treasurer's report on March 14 showed a balance of only thirty cents in the Treasury.

Immediate aid is required or the work must stop.

The managers feel sure that it is only necessary to state the case plainly to the friends of the Association in order to receive the help so greatly needed.

Contributions can be sent to the Treasurer, Mrs. H. P. Reynolds, or left at Dr. Reynold's pharmacy, corner Park and North avenues.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Wm. Kitchen of Somerset street is convalescent from an attack of the grip.

Mr. Richard Stevens of East Sixth street will move April first to South avenue.

Mr. William Case of East Second street is confined to his home on account of illness.

Miss Nellie Keely, of La Grande avenue, returned yesterday from a visit at Orange.

Mrs. Coleman, of Orange, is a guest at the home of Mrs. Keely of La Grande avenue.

A euchre party was held at the home of Miss May MacLoughlin of Somerset street last evening.

Mr. Theodore J. F. Zellar of North Plainfield and Miss Mary White of Fourth street are to married shortly after Easter.

Miss Gussie Coltbar of Bound Brook, who has been a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Kitchen of Somerset street for the past few weeks, returned home this morning.

Mr. Jesse L. Hatfield, one of the conductors on the Front street branch of the street railway has been transferred to the Somerset street line for a short time.

The Rev. Father Kelley of Hoboken preached at St. Mary's church last night. Father Kelley was a Plainfield boy and he was greeted by many old friends while here.

Mrs. P. C. Adams and children of Madison of Madison avenue, whose home was considerably damaged bo fire last week, are staying with Mrs Adams' father, Peter Vroom, on South street, Somerville.

Mrs. Alfred Obitz of Brooklyn, formerly of Somerset street, North Plainfield, who is now spending several weeks with her grand-daughter, Mrs. August Trust, expects to return home the first of next week.

Dr. and Mrs. Anderson, who formerly resided on East Second street, this city, returned to Plainfield Tuesday night on a sad mission; to bury their little son, who died at their present home in Georgia.

A birthday surprise party was held at the home of Miss VanNest, of Jackson avenue, last night. Among those present were: Alice Bird, Kenna Bird, Alice Van Horn, Dora Bonnet, Maud Sharkey, Frank Foster, Clarence Sharkey, James DeCamp, Allie DeCamp, Frank Van Nest, and Howard Bennett.

Mr. and Mrs. August Trust of Somerset street will occupy the residence recently vacated by Mr. Trust, on the corner of Mountain avenue and Somerset street, which is the property of Mrs. Trust, the first of next week. Mr. and Mrs. Mountfort, the occupants, will remove to the Obitz dwelling as soon as it is vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Trust.

Last evening an informal dinner and general good time was had at the Union County Country Club. The matter was arranged entirely by the committee on entertainment and was merely a pleasant way of bringing the members together. The annual dinner, which is an elaborate affair, is not held until later in the year.

Rev. C. B. Burnes pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church, left this morning for Saratoga, to take a month needed rest. There he will make his home at Dr. Strong's Sanitarium, of which his friend Rev. H. M. Simpson is chaplain. He expects to return the latter part of next week. There will be no meeting of the Junior League and Bible readings until his return.

The Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church in this city, attended the Spring meeting of the New Jersey conference of Congregational churches, in the Waverly Congregational church on Kentucky and Webster avenues, Jersey City Tuesday. The morning session was opened by devotional exercises conducted by the Rev. Lincoln B. Goodrich, of Bound Brook. Moderator C. B. Johnson was in attendance and presided over the meeting. Mr. Goodrich was appointed a member of the Committee on Church Extension.

—A meeting of the Epworth Leagues of Monroe Avenue chapel, the Methodist church and the Westfield church will be held at Grace M. E. church to-morrow night.

500 LETTERS IN 4 DAYS

THAT IS THE PRESENT RATE OF DEMOCRATIC CORRESPONDENCE TO WASHINGTON.

The Latest Rumor Afloat is that a Telegram Has Been Received from Washington Stating that Hatfield's Name Had Not Been Sent in to the President nor Never Would be.

And now there is a rumor afloat that a prominent Democrat in Plainfield has received a telegram from one of the high dignitaries at Washington, who has something to say in the matter, stating that John M. Hatfield's name has not been sent in to the President by Postmaster General Bissell, and that it never would be.

A man in a position to know says that upwards of 500 letters have been sent to Washington protesting against Hatfield's appointment, since last Saturday. At this rate if the name is withheld long enough "Uncle Sam" will soon receive money enough from postage to pay Plainfield's postmaster's salary for a year at least.

If Hatfield is appointed it is said that a still greater surprise awaits the Plainfield Democrats, as a Republican is to be assistant postmaster.

Ex-Councilman Spangenberg, one of the aspirants for postmaster, says that Hon. John T. Dunn, when interviewed by him in relation to his appointment, told him (Spangenberg) that he would see him again.

Mr. Spangenberg hasn't seen him again yet.

A PLAINFIELD BOARD.

A Branch of the Republic Savings and Loan Association Organized.

A meeting of the shareholders of the Republic Savings and Loan Association of Jersey City, was held in the parlors of the Hotel Grenada on North avenue, last evening, to formally organize a local board in Plainfield.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—J. A. Hubbard.
First Vice President—A. M. Griffen.
Second Vice President — Justus H. Cooley, M. D.
Secretary—Frederick J. Pope.
Treasurer—F. S. Runyon.
Attorney—Wm. M. Stillman.
Appraisers—D. W. Littell, H. N. Spencer, H. R. McCullough, Louis G. Timpson, Alex Thorn.
Directors—A. V. D. Honeyman, J. L. Blackford, N. B. Smalley, J. J. Heidloff, Joseph D. Spicer, J. P. Homan, T. R. Van Zandt, Frank Rowley.

A MISSIONARY DAY.

To be Held by the Ladies Home Missionary Society of the M. E. Church.

Tuesday afternoon the Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Church held a meeting in Vincent Chapel.

It was decided to hold a missionary day in the chapel on Wednesday, April 4th.

In the afternoon there will be an address by Mrs. Willing.

Mrs. Willing will also make addresses in the evening.

In the evening there will also be a missionary tea.

Concerning Watchung Park Property.

As spring approaches the beauties of Watchung Park as a residence neighborhood become more and more apparent. Several beautiful homes have already been built in the prettiest parts of A. D. Thompson's North Plainfield property, and more are contracted for, and will be erected soon.

Mr. Thompson certainly has improved the property immensely, and land in that vicinity is said to be worth many times what it was before he began operations.

Manager Ryder is attending to Mr. Thompson's interest very successfully during the latter's journey through the South, and he will be happy to answer all communications addressed to him in reference to the purchase of property.

Moore Baker to Leave.

Moore Baker, who killed the murderers of his wife and child at Franklin Park, has decided to leave that place. Public sentiment is against him for selling part of the effects of the room in which the murder was committed. It is understood that he received but 600 for the lot, but authorized this statement as to what he sold: "I sold the crib, ax, shotgun, blood-stained carpet on the bed-room floor, the broken pitcher, my night-shirt and corners of the bedclothes. I sold nothing of my wife's or baby. I told the moneyed people that I would burn the bed-clothes, so they only took pieces of the corners. The clothing of my wife and child, which I regarded as sacred, have been burned."—Ex.

Decided to Give an Entertainment.

The Holy Cross Brotherhood held a meeting in the choir room of Holy Cross church last night. It was decided to hold an entertainment some time in April. It was understood that the programme will consist of three short plays. After the business was concluded a short social time was enjoyed.

SLEEVES STILL SWELLING.

They Are Steadily Becoming More Ample. Fashions of the First Empire.

To the Editor of The News:

The taste for all that recalls the time of the first empire has had a marked effect upon interior decoration. The rigid forms of furniture that characterised that epoch have been revived and are seen in white and gold, or mahogany upholstered in the green, red or yellow damask then popular. But the revival has stopped at the verge of the dominion of dress, and there seems to be no prospect of the adoption of the empire gown in its genuine short waisted form. The prevailing influence is shown only in subordinate ways that do not materially affect the stiff corseted mode to which we are accustomed. Not only is the empire fashion a trying one for many women, but the eye has become so used to the long bodice contracting below the bust that it refuses to recognize the beauty of the high girdle.

In fact instance, in the novel ball costume illustrated, an empire flavor, as it were, is given by the full drapery across the bosom and the cut of the top of the sleeve, which allows it to fall below the point of the shoulder, but the tight modern waist is retained, which at once robs the gown of any distinctively distinctive character and leaves the field open to the free play of fancy in regard to the other features. The skirt is ball shaped and is made of satin soleil. It is cut in deep slashes, which open to display a flounce of mechlin lace over cream satin. Chains of pearls are festooned around the skirt, the upper edge of which is held by an amethyst cabochon surrounded by brilliants. The top of the skirt is caught up with a cabochon and forms panniers like puffs over the hips where it meets the bodice. The lower part of the bodice is of lace, while the balloon sleeves and the drapery on the bosom are of velvety velvet. The corsage, like the skirt, is ornamented with a garniture of strings of pearls, secured at the bosom and on the top of the sleeves by cabochons.

Sleeves are seen on all the decollete corsages and show no indications of diminishing. If there be any change, they are becoming more ample. The shoulders are usually finished with butterfly knots of ribbon, or with bertha trimmed with lace are arranged full at the top of the sleeve and allowed to fall over it. Bretelles and rosettes are also used on evening toilets. Brilliant effects are sought after just now because the popularity of satin and moire and the adoption of galloon of various sorts as a garniture.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

TROLLEY ROAD TIED UP.

Strikers Almost Kill the Superintendent.

New York, March 15—The employees of the Steinway Street Railway, Long Island City, went out on a strike at 1.30 this morning, and soon after Assistant Superintendent John Cosgrove narrowly escape assassination.

A pistol shot was fired from the crowd into the Company's office, the bullet striking Mr. Cosgrove in the head. It glanced off, making only an ugly scalp wound.

The strikers at daylight cut the trolley wires leading into the car barn and also tore up the track of the road. The mob also blockaded the tracks in the vicinity of the car barn with wagons, wood, paving stones and other obstructions.

One hundred men are now out, and they have the road completely tied up.

Victory for Bland and the Silver Men.

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 15—The Seigniorage Bill has passed the Senate by a vote of 44 to 31. This is a victory for Bland, and, incidentally, for the Silver Men. It would mean an addition of millions to the volume of currency.

The President may veto it.

Killed by His Own Bomb.

PARIS, March 15.—A dynamite bomb was exploded, this afternoon, inside the chief entrance of the Church of La Madelaine.

The man who threw the bomb was killed by the explosion, and a number of others were seriously injured.

No Candy for a Week.

Next week the Salvation Army will observe a week of self denial. The object of this is to increase the amount of money to be used in the missionary work which is carried on both in this and foreign countries. Each member of the corps is expected to deny themselves unnecessary things, such as candy, etc., and give in the money to the treasury.

The Game Postponed.

The game between the Board of Trade team of this city and the Westfield Club team was not bowled last night owing to misunderstanding. Word had been sent to Captain Vail of the Board of Trade team to postpone the game but it had not been received. The team went to Westfield but as there was no team present to bowl against they returned home.

In the City Court.

Policeman Fredrickson had another hard tussle with a prisoner last night. He found John Callahan drunk on Park avenue. As the policeman attempted to take him to the lockup Callahan resisted and tried to get away, but the jail got him.

Judge Coddington fined Callahan $10.

MRS. HEMENWAY'S ESTATE.

She Wants the Income for Fifteen Years to be Used for Educational Purposes.

The will of Mrs. Mary Hemenway, widow of the late Augustus Hemenway of Milton, Mass., whose estate was valued at some $16,000,000, was filed yesterday afternoon.

Her son, Augustus Hemenway of Canton, Charles J. Morrill, and Reginald Gray of Boston, are named as executors and trustees to administer the estate.

They are instructed to devote the net income accruing for the period of not more than fifteen years, to the support and furtherance of certain objects and undertakings in which she was interested.

It is Mrs. Hemenway's wish that any men or women at present in archæological work at her expense, at the time of her death, shall continue the work on the same terms if the results attained by them shall warrant such continuance. She also directs that the trustees shall, during or at the end of fifteen years, dispose of her collection of archæological, historical and miscellaneous objects and relics at their discretion. She also desires that the Boston Normal School of Gymnastics shall be continued so long during the fifteen years as Miss Amy Bowman is able to direct it.

Col. Allen Scott of this city was one of those who were engaged by Mrs. Hemenway.

The Car That Carried Cleveland.

J. R. Maxwell, President of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, said yesterday that the value of the private car Monmouth, which was damaged by fire on Tuesday, was about $12,000. He thought that $6,000 or $8,000 would repair the injury. The car was insured against fire. The Monmouth was one of two private cars belonging to the road. It was divided into four parts, an observation room, a pair of bed-rooms with a passageway along the side, a large dining room, with a round mahogany table and a kitchen. In the kitchen quarter of the car was a Baker heater, which warmed the car.

The Monmouth is the car that conveyed President Cleveland from Lakewood to Washington to be inaugurated last year.

The Finger Memorial.

Services in memoriam of Rev. John F. Finger, Ph. D., are to be held in Westminster Presbyterian church, Elizabeth, on Monday evening next. The final arrangements were completed Monday.

Rev. Dr. Hunter, of St. Johnsbury, will preside and offer the prayer. Rev. Dr. Glazebrook of St. John's church will read the scripture. Of the address Prof. W. F. Magie of Princeton will speak for the period of 1871 to 1881; R. Wayne Parker of Newark for the Belleville period, 1858 to 1861. John Leal of Plainfield, will represent the teachers, and Rev. E. Entwistle, D. D., the clergymen and Elizabeth Presbytery.

Judgment Against Mr. C. C. Cokefair.

Judgment for $8,458 was entered yesterday in New York against Charles C. Cokefair, of this city, in favor of Benjamin W. J. Fox, on a note of Hotchkiss & Co., bankers, which he indorsed. The note was for $8,000, dated July 24, 1893, payable three months after date to the order of Cokefair or John I. Blair, to which were attached, as collateral security, five $1,000 first mortgage bonds of the Diamond Coal and Timber Company, of West Virginia. The bonds were sold for $815 and $125 was previously collected on the coupons.

The White Clover as the Flower Emblem.

A number of the citizens of the State propose soon to memorialize the Legislature to have them by legislative action adopt as the flower emblem of New Jersey the white clover, with a view of perpetuating it and making it a symbol of New Jersey's liberty and prosperity. Not only that, but they wish to have it made an addition to the coat of arms and the state flag. A controversy has been going on in the State for several years in reference to a State emblem.

Awarded $10,000 on Ten Pulse Beats.

Chancellor McGill of New Jersey decided Friday that Mrs. Ann Huyler, who was killed with her husband in a railroad accident at Bergen Fields, survived him. Huyler, the husband, bequeathed $10,000 to his wife, his next kin claimed that the couple died simultaneously, and that the estate must therefore go to them. As witness for Mrs. Huyler's kindred a doctor said after the couple were struck by the train he counted ten pulsations at Mrs. Huyler's wrist. Mrs. Huyler's heirs were awarded her estate.—Ex.

One of the Penalties of Being an Editor.

[From an Anonymous Contributor.]

I am "hard up" as they say,
And need some money bad;
I'll try to write some poetry,
Though I know's my its bad.

Pro written lots not lots,
Any, eloquent and gay;
Used no end of ink 'n paper,
But never got the pay.

No editor would take 'em,
The ways, O I couldn't see;
Their rejecting many manuscripts,
And with Lizzie was real free.

I often made 'em cross,
But the lines was often forced;
It sounded awful keen,
Though the sense was sometimes lost.

But now I see a poem,
That I never counted a cent;
And just as poor as can be,
And a "chronic" gent.

Trouble Ahead for the Trolley Company.

It is said that the Jersey City authorities look for serious trouble to-day unless Nelson & Bullen, the contractors constructing the so-called Rutherford trolley line on Jersey City Heights, make provision for the payment of the six hundred or more Italians in their employ. The firm has offices at No. 28 Bline street, Paterson, and No. 104 East Front street, Plainfield.

About two hundred men were discharged ten days ago, after being paid, it is alleged, only a portion or nothing at all of the fifteen days' pay due them. The remainder of the force who were continued at work are now also looking for their wages.

200 more men left yesterday and the 500 are standing about in a very ugly mood. They were also oppressed by padrones.

Theatrical Notes.

That most fantastic and fascinating of burlesques, Rice's new "1492" continues to do an enormous business at the Garden Theatre, which is in every way just suited to this merry form of entertainment. The house is always crowded and the audiences always receptive and responsive. The old drolleries and the new are alike received with shouts of merriment.

NUNS GO OUT.

They Leave the Riverside Schools and Reopen the Parochial School.

PITTSBURG, March 15.—The nuns have withdrawn from the Riverside schools and will make no further effort to teach in the public schools until the question as to their right to wear the garb of their religious order while teaching is settled by the courts. This action was taken in view of the injunction proceedings entered by the Junior Order of American Mechanics and the refusal of the central board of education to pay their warrants.

It was unexpected, as the members of the Riverside school board were unanimous in declaring that the nuns would remain until the courts decided against them. Before dismissing the scholars, however, they were notified that the parochial school would be reopened to-day.

The 229 pupils who came with the nuns to Riverside expressed their intention of going back to the parochial school. The nuns refused to take their leave then to say that they preferred to remain away from the public schools until the matter was finally settled by the courts.

Private Attorney Moreland, of the school board, made a later statement that the withdrawal of the nuns was final, and no further effort to induce them to introduce them into the schools as teachers. The injunction proceedings, he thought, would be discontinued.

A Four Years' Horseback Trip.

A Very Funny Creature.

The chameleon has for ages been an object of curiosity, not only on account of its ability to change its color at will but also on account of its remarkable power which admits of the creature instantly changing its form. At times it takes upon itself the exact form of a worm; again, with back curved and tail erect, it is the exact counterpart of a crouching thing, which no doubt gave rise to the saying, chameleon-like, which clearly means "ground hog." By inflating its sides and flattening back and belly, it takes upon itself the form of an ovate body, the tail acting as the petiole, the white line over the body becoming the midrib.

When in repose it also has the power to sway itself over so as to present an edge to the observer, thus adding greatly to its means of concealment. As is well known, the human countenance, as in handling, will cause a change in the color. Its usual color is of slight pea green. When excited the groundwork remains the same, but numerous stripes —about thirty or number—appear on the body. These stripes, which are of a very dark green to begin with, soon change to inky blackness. The idea that the chameleon takes upon himself the peculiar hues of whatever object is placed upon it as curious and widespread as it is wrong. Placed in house lined with red and blue silk they retain their pea green color, with no perceptible trend the brighter hues of the surroundings.

PEACE IN RIO AT LAST.

People Rejoicing at the Rebellion's Fizzle.

EMPTY SHIPS WERE BOMBARDED.

Da Gama and His Men Had Fled in the Night, Leaving Their Flags Flying—The Rebel Admiral Sues in Hasting—Political Prisoners Released From the Jails.

RIO JANEIRO, March 15.—The insurgent forces, it now appears, deserted Fort Villegaignon and the ships on Monday night, leaving the flags flying, and took refuge on the islands of Enchadas and Paqueta. There was not a soul on board the rebel ships during the bombardment Tuesday. Several insurgent officers on Monday took refuge on merchant vessels.

Admiral da Gama left the harbor on board the French vessel Magon. The Magon returned here Wednesday. It is not known whether the admiral is still on board.

The insurgents offered to surrender on Monday, but the government refused to promise that amnesty would be granted. Some 60 rebel pirates gave themselves up. All the insurgent officers, with the exception of the surgeons, have fled. By order of President Peixoto 500 rebel prisoners have been liberated from the jails.

The rejoicing among the people that the war has proved a farce is general. Salutes are fired at regular intervals. The streets are crowded, and every one is keeping a holiday.

Minister Thompson Reports.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—The following cablegram from Minister Thompson at Rio was received at the department of state:

The operations were directed by the president from the marine arsenal on the water front. At 2:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon terms of truce were haisted on Enchadas island. The president sent immediately and ascertained that the whole force of the insurgents were there with the exception of the officers, who had taken refuge on the French, Portugese and English men-of-war. A surgeon also remained with the forces. Da Gama had left on the French cruiser Junon. About 6 o'clock the Aquidaban steamed past the bay, led by the Victoriozy, and anchored in front of the city.

The forts Villegaignon, Santa Cruz, Gragoatoa and Cobras island had been abandoned by the rebels. Business has been resumed, and everything is tranquil.

The news of the surrender from Rio de Janeiro contained in Minister Thompson's cablegram was very welcome to Secretary Gresham, and to Secretary Herbert particularly. To the first it serves as a relief from the ever present apprehension lest something should occur that might involve the United States government in some form of dispute with one of the combatants or perhaps with some of the foreign powers that have not joined in the blockade. The course firmly and consistently pursued by this government.

To Secretary Herbert the surrender means the ability to relieve most of the American sailors, who have endured much hardship and exposure to yellow fever, from duty there, and to withdraw the vessels the ships now there for duty in other places where they are much needed. It also means a considerable saving to the navy department. The maintenance of the large fleet at Rio has been very expensive.

Our Naval Officers Acted Wisely.

Minister Thompson and Admiral Bleichan have both acquitted themselves of their delicate and responsible duties to the perfect satisfaction of the president and their superior officers. Secretary Gresham said that there was nothing for the United States to do now at Rio. We had acted with perfect fairness throughout, and there was no possible ground for interference so long as American interests were safe.

Whether or not the French, British and Portuguese naval commanders have laid themselves open to censure by their course of neutrality in receiving the fugitive rebel officers aboard their ships is a matter in which the United States government, particularly as we are blameless on that score. The naval officers here are well pleased that Da Gama should have escaped, believing that he is a man of sterling qualities and brave to a fault. It is furnished that he will be landed at Montevideo or some other neutral port, and it is believed that he will have nothing more to do with rebellion in Brazil.

It is suspected by naval officers that Da Gama has been made a scapegoat by Mello, for it is now believed that when the latter sailed away from Rio with the Aquidaban and Republica he realized that the rebel cause at that place was absolutely hopeless.

Secretary Herbert is still confined to his home by a severe attack of the grip, and his representative, Assistant Secretary McAdoo, said he presumed steps would be taken immediately leading to the dispersal of the American fleet at Rio.

Mello's Whereabouts.

BUENOS AYRES, March 15.—Insurgent Admiral de Mello is at Ilha Grande, 60 miles west-southwest of Rio Janeiro, with the warships Aquidaban and Republica. It is not thought that he will attempt to hold out longer, but that he will surrender to the government.

ARGUMENTS ALL IN.

Both Sides of Jersey's Senate Muddle Laid Before the Court.

TRENTON, March 15.—The great argument before the supreme court in the senate muddle came to a close after lasting five days and in which seven of the leading counsel before the bar of New Jersey have participated.

The court gave no indication of what its decision might be except that the chief justice stated after adjournment that nothing would be done before Monday, as the court would not hold any conference upon the matter before that time. It is thought that the chief justice may write the opinion of the court, though even that matter is not made known.

The closing argument of the attorney general was interspersed with brilliant flights of oratory, and during the three hours that he spoke the courtroom was crowded with eager listeners. His chief argument was that the senate was a continuous body, and this he discussed at great length.

During the evening session of the court counsel for Mr. Rogers announced their willingness to accept the proposition suggested by the chief justice as to the manner of procedure in case its jurisdiction was granted. Mr. McDermott, on the part of Mr. Adrian, agreed to the same, except that he desired that it appear on record that Mr. Adrian had taken the oath of office, if the court found that material to the case.

It was the first intimation in a public way that Mr. Adrian had been sworn in. The deed was done Tuesday afternoon before Private Secretary Pintard, who is a master in chancery. The Republican lawyers made such a handle of this fact that it was thought best to settle the question beyond cavil by having Mr. Adrian take the oath. Mr. McCarter's argument was largely an attack on the Democrats and was protested against by counsel for the governor.

HUNDREDS POISONED.

The Chickens Served at a Jewish Wedding Improperly Cooked.

BOSTON, March 15.—Over 800 guests participated in the wedding festivities of Henry Stolzberg of Worcester and Miss Ida Margolies, daughter of Rabbi Margolies of this city. Of that number fully 300 were victims of poisoning, caused, it is thought, by eating food that was cooked in two old copper boilers. Two of chicken Saturday and Monday. He is positive that the chickens were fresh and pure and is certain that the fault was in the cooking, which was done by a local baker. So great was the crowd of guests at the wedding that a second supper table was necessary, and it is thought that most of the victims were those who ate at that sitting. The fish was taken from the bottoms and sides of the boilers.

There was no intimation that anything had gone wrong during the time the festivities were in progress, which ended at midnight, but after a majority of the people had got to their homes in the north end of the city they were taken with the worst attacks of nausea. Dr. Cutter, who attended the sufferers, said that there was no indication of ptomaine poisoning, but that the symptoms were those of irritant poisoning. He thought that the fish was responsible for the trouble.

Dr. Cutter, Dr. Bowditch and Dr. Gannett, who have been attending the sufferers, say that the symptoms are those of irritant poisoning. They think that the fish was responsible for the trouble.

LED ON BY ANARCHISTS

It Is Said They Instigated the Riot at Paterson, N. J.

SOME OF THE LEADERS ARE IN JAIL

The Reds Reported to Have Come From New York—The Strikers Still Threaten Violence, and the Situation Is Still Serious—Want Clubs Taken From Police.

PATERSON, N. J., March 15.—The police have been busy locking up the ringleaders of Tuesday's rioting at the dyehouse. Five of them have been placed behind barred doors, and all will be held for inciting riot.

As a result of the arrest of these men there is trouble expected, for a committee of dyers begged Police Justice Van Gilere to release the men, and when he refused they threatened to call all the dyers out on strike again. The delegates said that if the men came out it would not be to attack the dyehouse, but the police.

Carl Starke, the president of the Dyers' union; August Muller, Reinhardt Vander ven, Peter Riedel and Deberardi Lotz are the men arrested as the leaders of Tuesday's riots, and the police justice sentenced each to jail for 30 days, telling them that charges of rioting and inciting to riot might also be preferred against them.

Rioting is a penitentiary offense in this state, and the full penalty is 15 years.

Anarchists Are Responsible.

These five leaders were assisted in their outrages by Peter Grasse, Antonio Ferari and Michael Schick, avowed anarchists from New York and friends of Emma Goldman. This has just been learned by the police, and warrants will be issued for their arrest. The disclosure was made by the delegation of dyers who threatened to bring the men out on strike again if the men in jail were not released. They assert that the New York anarchists were the real leaders of the mob.

The police are also after more of the leaders, among them a man named Pozzi, who has been identified as the one who choked John H. Cadwell, the bookkeeper of Anger & Simon.

Most of the silk dyeing firms have signed the schedule presented by the men, and all the dyers are at work.

A committee from the board of trade, consisting of William Strange, William J. Buckley, Charles Keeler and Benjamin Eastwood, conferred with the police commission, the chief of police and the sheriff. They asked for better protection. The committee said that if the commission would but confess that it was unable to cope with the lawless strikers then an appeal would be made to the sheriff to assist by swearing in deputies. If this would not do, an appeal would have to be made to call out the state troops, for such lawlessness would not go on longer without resulting in serious bloodshed. "The police," Mr. Strange said, "must recollect that they are dealing with anarchistic firebrands who will stop at nothing, even the taking of life."

Strikers Want Police Disarmed.

The members of the police commission said they had determined upon decided action in quelling all demonstrations and that the citizens need fear no further violence.

While this conference was going on a delegation of striking ribbon weavers were conferring with Mayor Braun in the city hall and requesting that the police be forbidden on Tuesday night, when they charged upon a crowd of 5,000 strikers assembled at Bamford Brothers' mill to intimidate a few men and women who are at work there and have been working all through the strike. The strikers demanded an investigation and declared that the police had no right to club any one.

The mayor said he had done all he could, but unfortunately was powerless. The new law creating the police commission had given that body full authority to act, and he had no more right to interfere than any citizen. He informed the weavers that he had asked the police to leave their clubs at police headquarters and preserve the peace by persuasion, as persuasion would do more than force to disperse the crowds and put a stop to violent outbreaks.

Crushed by a Log.

DERBY, Conn., March 15.—Mary A. Morse, aged 7, only daughter of Charles Z. Morse of Ousam, met a terrible death. She was playing with some schoolmates in a lot near the schoolhouse. They were climbing on a pile of logs when one rolled down, and Mary was crushed beneath it. The others escaped.

Horse In the Orchestra.

NEW YORK, March 15.—In the stockade scene of "The Girl I Left Behind Me" at the Academy of Music last night one of the mounted soldiers was crowded off the stage, and horse and man plunged into the orchestra. A woman in the audience fainted, but no one was hurt.

The Lincoln Suit Withdrawn.

NEW HAVEN, March 15.—The suit for divorce which Arthur B. Lincoln, a New York sketch artist of wide reputation, brought in this city against his wife, who is a protégée of Elia Wheeler Wilcox, has been withdrawn.

Arbitration Fails In Lawrence.

LAWRENCE, Mass., March 15.—The state board of arbitration failed to effect a compromise in the Arlington mills difficulty. The entire mill is shut down, leaving over 2,200 employees idle.

Tech Murder Still a Mystery.

HARTFORD, March 15.—The murder of Robert Peck of West Hartford is still a mystery. Of the nine men arrested on suspicion seven have been released.

Woman Suffrage Progress In Boston.

BOSTON, March 15.—The house of representatives passed to a third reading a bill granting municipal suffrage to women.

Immigration Tide at Flood Again.

NEW YORK, March 15.—The steamer Majestic brought 538 steerage passengers—the largest number since the cholera scare.

VICTORY FOR BLAND.

His Seigniorage Bill Stands a Test Vote In the Senate.

WASHINGTON, March 15.—The test vote which was to be taken in the senate on the seigniorage bill—the vote on Mr. Allison's motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill passed to the third reading—had the effect of attracting a large attendance to the galleries, and there was also a very full attendance on the floor.

The senate early took up the consideration of the bill, and Mr. Teller of Colorado and Mr. George of Mississippi spoke in favor of its passage, the former criticising severely some statements made by Senator Sherman in his recent speech against the bill.

Before Mr. George had concluded his remarks Mr. Harris insisted upon the vote being taken on Mr. Allison's motion, with the result that it was defeated by 28 to 45. It is expected that the bill will pass by about the same vote today.

Mr. Manderson moved then to commit the bill to the finance committee, and this motion also was defeated by a vote of 27 to 44. The other portion of the agreement—that all debate until 4 o'clock today, when the bill is to be voted on, should be under the five minute rule—was abrogated, and Mr. George concluded his speech in favor of the bill. He was followed by Mr. Carey of Wyoming, who opposed the bill.

Chairman Sayers of the appropriation committee is making wonderful progress with the sundry civil bill. Forty pages of the bill were disposed of by the house, making in all 93 in two days and leaving only 16 pages more, exclusive of two paragraphs relating to the U. S. coast and geodetic surveys and the Missouri river commission—which were passed over temporarily.

The amendments of importance were adopted, although the northwestern members made a vigorous effort to increase the amount for the survey of public lands. An unsuccessful attempt was also made to provide for a patrol tug to prevent dumping by scows of the refuse of New York and adjacent cities outside the harbor. The appropriation for the geological survey, which usually encounters bitter opposition, passed unchallenged.

WAITE WILL USE FORCE.

The Governor Calls Out the National Guard In Denver.

DENVER, March 15.—No attempt was made to oust the old fire and police board, but late last night Governor Waite issued an order to the First regiment of the national guard of Colorado to assemble at their armory at 1 p. m. today prepared for action under command of Adjutant General Tarsney.

It is undoubtedly the governor's intention to install the new commissioners in office by the use of force. Sheriff Burchinell is ready with a large number of deputies, and these, with the entire police force, will report at the city hall today prepared to resist the militia.

What the consequence will be no one can tell, but peaceably disposed citizens are hoping that the governor will take no step that will lead to bloodshed.

Two Fatal Wrecks.

BAKER CITY, Or., March 15.—Passenger train No. 2 of the Oregon Short line was ditched near Mountain Home, Ida., causing the death of the fireman, mail clerk and three tramps. Freight train No. 24 of the same line ran over a snow two miles west of Durkee, and the engine and six cars were derailed. The engine turned over, and Brakeman R. Phillips was killed instantly and Frank Lessal of La Grande fatally hurt.

How Harvard's Crew Is Arranged.

CAMBRIDGE, March 15.—As a result of the close attention of the Harvard coaches for the past few days radical changes will be made in the university crew, and hereafter Fennessey will be in his old seat at stroke. Fennessey, '96, stroke; Towne, '96, eight; Cameron, '95, seven; Davis, '94, six; Blake, '94, five; Bullard, '96, four; Murchie, '96, three; Brewer, '96, two; Purdon, '95, bow.

Cathedral Boycott A. P. A.'s.

CLEVELAND, March 15.—The north end of the city is in a fever of excitement over the fact that a membership list of one of the leading A. P. A. lodges has fallen into the hands of Catholics. A boycott has been declared by the latter against all merchants whose names appear on the list, and it is said several have withdrawn. The A. P. A. lodge has a membership of nearly 900.

Stead Gives the Palm to Chicago.

LONDON, March 15.—Mr. William Stead, who has just returned to England from an extended visit to the United States, said in an interview that he had a very good time while in Chicago, but is glad to be back in England. He never had so interesting a time in his whole life or one so full of suggestion, instruction and encouragement. He considers Chicago the greatest city in America.

A HUMBLE SUBSTITUTE

Labouchere's Radical Amendment Is Hastily Recalled.

THE NEW ADDRESS TO THE QUEEN.

There Is Not a Word About Abolishing the House of Lords In the Revised Reply. Harcourt Ridiculed, but His Substitute Was Adopted.

LONDON, March 15.—The government has escaped from the embarrassing position in which it was placed by the sudden move of the Radicals. The amendment to the queen's address calling for the abolition of the house of lords has been withdrawn, with the result that it was defeated by 28 to 45. It is expected that the bill will pass by about the same vote today.

Mr. Manderson moved then to commit the bill to the finance committee, and this motion also was defeated by a vote of 27 to 44. The other portion of the agreement—that all debate until 4 o'clock today, when the bill is to be voted on, should be under the five minute rule—was abrogated, and Mr. George concluded his speech in favor of the bill. He was followed by Mr. Carey of Wyoming, who opposed the bill.

Chairman Sayers of the appropriation committee is making wonderful progress with the sundry civil bill. Forty pages of the bill were disposed of by the house, making in all 93 in two days and leaving only 16 pages more, exclusive of two paragraphs relating to the U. S. coast and geodetic surveys and the Missouri river commission—which were passed over temporarily.

The amendments of importance were adopted, although the northwestern members made a vigorous effort to increase the amount for the survey of public lands. An unsuccessful attempt was also made to provide for a patrol tug to prevent dumping by scows of the refuse of New York and adjacent cities outside the harbor. The appropriation for the geological survey, which usually encounters bitter opposition, passed unchallenged.

The Governor Calls Out the National Guard In Denver.

DENVER, March 15.—No attempt was made to oust the old fire and police board, but late last night Governor Waite issued an order to the First regiment of the national guard of Colorado to assemble at their armory at 1 p. m. today prepared for action under command of Adjutant General Tarsney.

It is undoubtedly the governor's intention to install the new commissioners in office by the use of force. Sheriff Burchinell is ready with a large number of deputies, and these, with the entire police force, will report at the city hall today prepared to resist the militia.

What the consequence will be no one can tell, but peaceably disposed citizens are hoping that the governor will take no step that will lead to bloodshed.

Two Fatal Wrecks.

BAKER CITY, Or., March 15.—Passenger train No. 2 of the Oregon Short line was ditched near Mountain Home, Ida., causing the death of the fireman, mail clerk and three tramps. Freight train No. 24 of the same line ran over a snow two miles west of Durkee, and the engine and six cars were derailed. The engine turned over, and Brakeman R. Phillips was killed instantly and Frank Lessal of La Grande fatally hurt.

How Harvard's Crew Is Arranged.

CAMBRIDGE, March 15.—As a result of the close attention of the Harvard coaches for the past few days radical changes will be made in the university crew, and hereafter Fennessey will be in his old seat at stroke. THE NEW ADDRESS TO THE QUEEN.

There Is Not a Word About Abolishing the House of Lords In the Revised Reply. Harcourt Ridiculed, but His Substitute Was Adopted.

LONDON, March 15.—The government has escaped from the embarrassing position in which it was placed by the sudden move of the Radicals. The amendment to the queen's address calling for the abolition of the house of lords has been withdrawn, with the result that it was defeated by 28 to 45. It is expected that the bill will pass by about the same vote today.

Sir William Harcourt announced that the government had taken advice from all available sources and had decided to make the declaration that the judgment given in amending the address did not show a mature and well considered decision of the house of commons. This was a grave question, and the government would not present the address as amended to the queen. Consequently the government proposed to bring up a new address amounting practically to an acknowledgment of the speech from the throne.

He offered the following address:

Most GRACIOUS SOVEREIGN—We, your majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the house of commons of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, in parliament assembled, humbly express our sincere thanks for the measures recommended for our consideration and shall receive our most careful attention, and we beg leave to thank your majesty for the most gracious speech which your majesty has addressed to both houses of parliament.

Sir John Rigby seconded the address.

Mr. Labouchere, amid cheers and laughter, defended his amendment, the success of which was abundantly justified. It was only because the ministers refused to regard to these purely formal documents, the queen's speech and the address in reply thereto.

The tone of the proceedings in the house was quite farcial, the members treating the matter as a huge joke. When Sir William Harcourt moved the substituted address, Mr. Edward J. Saunderson, Conservative member for North Armagh, asked whether it was not the immemorial practice for "What do you know about it?" for a member moving an address to wear a uniform befitting his rank. [Loud laughter and cries of "Order?"]

Continuing, Mr. Saunderson said, "I desire to move an adjournment of the house for 30 minutes in order to allow Sir William Harcourt to array himself in suitable garments." [Loud laughter.]

Sir William Harcourt, who was interrupted continually by ironical cheers and laughter, said that it was not necessary to notice Mr. Saunderson's remarks, adding that the opposition evidently saw in it an opportunity to treat the speech from the throne with levity. Renewed cries of "Order!" "Go on!" etc.]

Sir William Harcourt therupon remarked that he would proceed when the "gentlemen opposite" had recovered their gravity." The house then rejected the amended address to the queen's speech and passed the address substituted by Sir William Vernon Harcourt. The house then adjourned.

The Times this morning, commenting upon the scene in the house of lords, says of commons, says that the ministers were bound to destroy Mr. Labouchere's amendment. They have done so in a way which, if unprovided with an adverbial grotesque, has answered the purpose.

An Irish Manifesto.

The following manifesto, signed by Messrs. John E. Redmond, Timothy Harrington and Joseph Edward Kenny, has been issued:

FELLOW COUNTRYMEN—The solemn words of warning which we recently addressed to you have been justified more speedily than we anticipated. The premier's first official declaration upon the question of home rule subsequent to cautioning you to place no blind confidence in parliamentary action, the position of our country is rendered still more perilous by the slavish silence of the majority of the Irish representatives and their action in particular in the recent voting closure of our criticism of the government policy and then giving their votes directly in support of the Irish administration and its policy of eviction, house burning, prosecution and jury packing. No crisis so grave has been in the history of Ireland since the death of our late chief. We feel it to be our first duty to appeal to you for consultation and guidance.

With this in view we shall summon a national convention to be held in Dublin on April 3 to organize without delay. We draw no narrow distinction which would exclude men who recognize the national danger and are willing to share in an endeavor to avert it.

A Deepdale Mystery.

PROVIDENCE, March 15.—During the past week scores of heavy silver doorplates have been unscrewed from the doors of houses in dozens on the east side and carried away. Nineteen of the missing plates were found wrapped up in a newspaper lying on the front steps of a police station.

Dunraven Still a Cup Hunter.

LONDON, March 15.—Lord Dunraven has bought the yacht Dragon, which was the crack of last season's 20 raters, and intends to fit it with a centerboard in order to test the relative merits of a fixed keel and centerboard. Lord Dunraven still has his eye on the America's cup.

Died While Rehearsing a Wedding Party.

OTTAWA, March 15.—Parliament opened today. The general impression is that the session will be long and arduous.

ASK THEM Why?

Ask the men who are making imitations of COTTOLENE, the new vegetable shortening, why they give up land and title to trade on the merits of COTTOLENE? Perhaps you can guess why.

ASK HIM Why?

Ask the grocer who attempts substitution, why he tries to sell an imitation when people call for the pure, palatable and popular vegetable shortening, COTTOLENE? Perhaps you can guess.

ASK YOURSELF Why?

Why should not YOU use COTTOLENE, instead of lard or any other compound, for all cooking purposes? It has the highest possible endorsement; from Physicians as to healthfulness; from Cooking Experts as to superiority; from housekeepers as to economy. Use COTTOLENE and stick to it.

WOMEN OF THE WEST.

IN SOME THINGS AHEAD OF THEIR EASTERN SISTERS.

An Oklahoma Girl Who Rivals the Cowboys In Her Cattle Herding—A Feminine Utopia—A Nebraska Woman Conquers a Pair of Cattle Thieves.

While the women of the east are distinguishing themselves by entering the professions and thus placing themselves beside their brothers and are winning both fame and financial reward by their efforts, those of the prairie are not behind in the race for preeminence. They have done much in the earlier days, and in the present are attracting attention by their successful adaptation of the situation and making themselves mistresses of circumstances wherever they may be placed. Many striking results have been produced, and, though some have appeared in print, many of them are unknown except in the vicinity where they occur.

The openness of Oklahoma and the Cherokee strip has developed many a heroine, and more than one deed worthy of praise has been performed by members of the fair sex. They have not, however, always consisted of single acts of distinguished bravery, but have frequently been manifest in a steady observance of duty despite unpleasant conditions.

Such is the case with Miss Minnie Duval, who is known in the Cherokee strip as "the female cowboy" and whose fame has been spread far and wide by the tales of newcomers.

When the Duval family entered the territory, the daughter was but a year old. Now she is 20. By the good graces of the Indians her parents, coming from Missouri, were allowed to settle on Saving creek and have made their home in the land of the redskin since Mr. Duval started in 1873 with 25 cattle. They have increased to over 800 and make a large herd to care for. Minnie is the only child, and though so young is her father's chief assistant. She does not simply take the cattle to the range and leave them there, but remains with them all day, looking after the herd as well as could any cowboy.

Her duties frequently take her a score or more miles from home, as the cattle must be kept moving to feed well. Often some of the cattle become mired in the mud along creeks where they graze or where they wade in to drink. Then comes the hardest part of the work. With true cowboy skill she throws the lariat over the slender branching horns, while the other end of the long lash phenomenally strong rawhide rope is fastened to the saddle. Then a steady pull on the part of the pony draws the imprisoned animal to a place of safety on dry ground. She has a large herd for one person to handle, but with the assistance of two cowboy cattle dogs she does it.

While on the range she dresses in true cowboy fashion—wide brimmed white felt hat, long tasseled gloves, a lariat coiled about the saddle horn and a revolver at her belt—and rides the wildest broncho with thorough ease. When off duty, she is a modest, unassuming young lady, the last one that would be suspected of such masculine accomplishments. At the annual round up she has charge of her herd with the other boys and made a good record. In land throwing, when the wildest of steers are turned loose and goaded into fury by mates there mingled, she has held her own and got a handsome saddle from her masculine competitors as a testimonial to her exceptional dexterity and skill.

Somewhat novel is the scheme evolved by a number of women who entered the Cherokee strip at the time of the rush with the avowed purpose of founding a feminine Utopia, where there should be nothing of the harshness of masculinity to annoy or make afraid. They camped on the border along with the other boomers and were apparently well satisfied with the outlook. Miss Lucinda Crosby, a musician, was their leader, and she had a well defined idea as to establishing a feminine community.

The party of a score or more spinsters was laughed at by the other boomers, and their chimerical scheme provoked much amusement all along the line. But they made the rush together, and reports are that they have succeeded in establishing their longed for community.

Not all the heroism of which western women are capable comes along the line of startling reforms or new departures in customs of living. The everyday experiences of many a matron are not less noble. Such was the case with Mrs. McLean, who, with her husband, settled on the Nebraska frontier in the seventies. Her bravery is yet told of by the cattlemen who then drove their great herds up through the Platte bottoms.

Her husband had with great difficulty gotten together a bunch of cows—about 50 in all—and was endeavoring to start a little home in order to rescue his family from the poverty which hung over the claim. Mrs. McLean had the herding of them, as well as the care of the house. One night when her husband had gone 30 miles to the stage she was compelled to have the cattle grazing while she looked after a sick baby at home. Suddenly she saw two men ride from behind the hills and start the herd off full canter, abducting the whole bunch. She wasted not a minute, but mounting her broncho was after them.

The men evidently thought themselves undiscovered and in the bustle of hurrying on the stock did not hear the pattering hoofs of the pursuer's pony as she came cantering up behind. Suddenly one of the men gave a yell and tumbled back wild off his saddle, with the nose of a lariat tight around his throat. Frightened, the other turned to see a furious woman facing him.

"What are you doing?" she demanded.

"Who are you?" he responded gruffly.

"I own these cattle, and you have got to help me drive them back where you got them."

As she held a cocked revolver toward his head, he decided to submit, and, with her following closely, rode around the scattered herd and turned their heads homeward. For three miles the stock was driven, and then, with a warning not to look back, ward, the depredator was dismissed. He fled without a look at his handle. His companion, choked to death and with neck broken, was found on the prairie, but there never was any inquiry as to the manner of his taking off. It was enough in those days, as it is now, to know that he had been engaged in cattle stealing. For such the prairies have scant pity.—Cor. St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Uncorrected Children.

Mrs. Frances Hodgson Burnett has extraordinary notions about the bringing up of children. Hers have never been allowed to be corrected since they were born. However much they may have outraged the traditions of good behavior, sense of shame and the force of example were the only respects in which it was as much as a governess or servant's place was worth to forget this rule.—London Tit-Bits.

TANTALIZING, AIN'T IT!

To go out and shop-per, buy your goods, take them home and tell your friends what they cost, and then have them say they bought the same at Whites', at a much lower price. Probably it's the old-fashioned way that some stores have of getting all they can for their goods, but it don't go this year. We are doing business on a different principle and we make it our business to quote the lowest prices.

For the Candle Party.

The table at the "candle party" is a small one covered with an open work cloth laid over pink. The plates are pink, and if possible the center of each one should represent some ideal baby face. The centerpiece at the affair which I attended represented a swan in bisque being driven by a silver little baby boy. The back of the swan opened between the wings, and this space was filled with tiny moss rosebuds that overflowed quite a circular space on the table surrounded by smilax, caught here and there by pink satin ribbons that wandered off over the cloth in loops and ends, bobbing at short intervals tiny clusters of arbutus and white hyacinths. The reins by which the swan was driven consisted of pink blooms also.

The candles in pink were covered by little paper shades formed of a row of baby faces that seemed to laugh in genuine enjoyment as the light shone through from the back. Each place was set with a real baby's pink kid shoe filled with moss rosebuds, and the almonds and bonbons to be passed in little pink glass cradles. Of course this affair was a trifle elaborate, as those present themselves and can be counted on both inexpensively and daintily.—Edith Townsend Everett in Ladies' Home Journal.

Women In Washington.

Society in Washington grows more complex every year. It is the result of the democratic simplicity which in the rural mind characterizes our government and has its reflex in the social life of the Capital City. No political season ever played the great game of politics more assiduously than do many women the social game in this city. I know of one woman who averaged 17 calls a day one week. Isn't that devotion? Six times 27—162 calls. And she told me how relieved she was to get out and make a few calls; how weary she had grown of receiving and what a pleasure it was to be entertained instead of entertaining.

There is no half way in Washington. One must either sit Penelopelike at home and spin or no one's whole length in the mad plunge. As society draws its distinctive waste line closer, the race becomes the keener.

It is becoming as much of a profession and fine art to be an accomplished society woman as it is to be an adept politician or a lawyer. I wonder whether a woman can really be a society leader and be sincere and frank and free from hypocrisy and do her duty as mother or wife in this world?—Washington Post.

A Lady.

A writer in the New York Press undertakes to answer the question, "What is a lady?" This is the result:

A lady is a woman who is honorable, truthful and refined; who regards the comfort of others first; who never forgets how important are little courtesies to the happiness of life; who is loyal to her friends and never betrays a trust; who scorns to think a mean thought or speak a mean word or perform a mean act; who reverences age, protects weakness and maintains her own womanly self respect.

In European countries the title is generally confined to women who belong to the nobility and gentry. In this republic it literally belongs to every woman, young or old, rich or poor, uneducated or plain, who possesses the qualifications we have named, and the term should not be made meaningless by indiscriminate or unthinking use.

Danger In Perfumes.

Women who are fond of indulging in strong perfumes should remember that they are decidedly injurious to the sense of smell. By their frequent use the secretory glands of the nose and throat are overtaxed and weakened. One day the person notices that the hearing is less acute than usual, and the sense of smell seems defective. This is of course put down to a cold, and but little is thought of it. After a time the entire head becomes affected, and there are various long complications which are likely to end in chronic if not fatal illness. Smelling salts are a prolific cause of deafness. All strong and pungent odors, particularly those which act upon the secretory processes, should be avoided as far as possible.—New York Journal.

The Care of Food.

So few cooks or housekeepers seem to know that every article of food should be covered until it appears on the table. Milk and butter, for instance, should be kept in airtight vessels and kept covered. They both take up every odor flying in the air and are positively harmful to take into the stomach after standing uncovered for an hour or two, for not only odors, but the animalcula that fill the air are attracted to milk and butter. Uncovered jelly is a menace to family health. It is in gelatin jelly that expert bacteriologists imprison germs for cultures to watch development. They seem to thrive better on that kind of food than on any other, yet in two-thirds of the pantries in the city will be found half used dishes or glasses of jelly standing uncovered.—Montreal Star.

Coal Oil Lamps.

Some people think that because coal oil lamps often give off an odor it is one of the concomitants of that illuminator, which is not a fact. A lamp has to be as regularly and carefully cleaned as a furnace, and if either gets clogged up there is no comfort to be had. Coal oil makes the best light for reading purposes by all odds. The lamp should be emptied of all the oil once a week to cleanse the bowl of all impurities. It should be carefully filled each day, for when the wick has to be turned down to a depth the lamp is sure to smoke. The wick should be trimmed every morning and the burner carefully freed from bits of charred wick. Use only the best oil. If these directions are followed, you will have no trouble with your lamps.—Exchange.

Scolding.

Scolding is worse than useless. With children it arouses antagonism, if only because angry looks and feelings are so contagious. One should wait until the transgression subsides before correcting any one. A reprimand given in the presence of others is apt to arouse a feeling of mortified pride that quite nullifies any impression that might otherwise be made, and it is an exceptional person that can be trusted to be the bearer of a scolding. It is apt to gather force en route. Argument between parents and children is unseemly, and it is always best to avoid letting the point of contest become too important.—Exchange.

The Hair.

All the sayings that letting the hair hang loose will break the roots are fabulous. The natural provisions for the healthful growth of the hair do not necessarily include a ribbon or even a shoestring for tying up the braids. The ends of the hair should be clipped off once a month, precisely as people trim their nails and for the same reason—that the ends, being the oldest part of both hair and nail and farthest from the roots and farthest from the vitalizing power, may be a little deadened and likely to split with the wearing.—New York Mail and Express.

Handy In the Kitchen.

One of the handiest pieces of furniture about a kitchen table is a thick lipped oyster shell. It makes a much nicer pot and skillet scraper than an "iron dish cloth." The chain arrangements which are used for that purpose are all abominations. They get full of indefineable bits of cabbage, burned potatoes, bits of fried onion, broiled steak and the like, and only a bath of concentrated lye and the application of scrubbrush will clean them. An oyster shell can be kept as clean as a silver spoon.—Philadelphia Call.

A Sewing Machine Rug.

A good thing in household economy is a sewing machine rug. It should be made of crash or something of that nature and be about six feet square. A worn sheet might be colored some neutral shade and thus utilized. Set the machine near the middle of the rug; then you can keep all your snippings and threads on the rug, and in the evening pick it up and shake off the litter without having to sweep and dust the whole room.—Detroit News.

The Suffrage Question.

Some men think women do not want enfranchisement, but they do. They do not always acknowledge it, but every night 20,000,000 women in the United States offer up a prayer for their political rights. They will be answered until those are given them. I want to see the word male expunged from the voting clause of the constitution of this nation, and of every one of its sovereign states.—Mary Lynde Craig.

Women's Bonnets a Blessing.

Men become bald. Why? Because they wear close hats and caps. Women are never bald except by disease, and they do not wear close headgear. Men never lose a hair below where the hat touches the head, not if they have been bald 20 years. The close cap holds the heat and perspiration; there by the hair glands become weak and the hair falls out.—Exchange.

Minced Mutton.

Take a pound and a half of cooked mutton and mince it as fine as possible and season it highly with pepper and salt. Warm half a pint of good brown gravy or gravy made from the bones, make the mince very hot in it and serve with a border of poached eggs.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Celery seed that is too old to germinate can be bought cheaply, and by washing and drying, then grinding and mixing, by sifting two or three times, with twice its bulk of salt, an excellent quality of celery salt can be made at a decided saving over that of the shops.

The fastidious woman makes her closet hangings act as perfumers to her wardrobe as well as furnishings. A wide curtain before it is plaited and lined and padded with cotton batting and given a generous powdering of her favorite sachet.

Divorce in France is regulated by law on the theory that a wife is her husband's equal. She does not promise to obey. She retains her own property and may dispose of it at will.

Don't throw away the bits of string. Make them into a ball and keep in a box in the kitchen. String is always in requirement and seldom at hand.

Once a month the ends of the hair should be cut to remove the forked ends, which stop its growth.

SUTHERLAND GUILTY.

The Graveseud Police Justice Who Helped McKane Is Convicted.

BROOKLYN, March 15.—After an hour's deliberation the jury in the case of Kenneth F. Sutherland, a police justice of Gravesend, accused of oppression in causing the arrest of John D. McNamara, Royal M. Stockler and Frank B. Cottrell, copyists sent to the town hall just prior to election by William J. Gaynor, rendered a verdict of guilty in Justice Brown's court.

The prisoner, who was on $2,500 bail, was not in court when the jury came in. He was paroled in the custody of his lawyer, Postl. A. Backus, and will be brought up for sentence on Friday.

The maximum penalty is one year's imprisonment and $500 fine. Lawyer Backus says that Sutherland went to New York in the afternoon "to sign some papers," but up to a late hour last night he had not gone back to Brooklyn. Inquiry at his home in Coney Island showed that he was not there either, nor would those in the house say where he was.

In view of the fact that Sutherland has about half a dozen other indictments impending over him and is being sued civilly for large amounts by the men whom he illegally arrested in 1892, it is generally the impression in Brooklyn last night that his return would not be hurried.

More Lawlessness by Strikers.

PHILLIPSBURG, N. J., March 15.—Superintendent Learned of the Standard silk mill in New Village called upon Sheriff Sweetzer at Belvidere, who appointed 12 deputies to aid in protecting the property and employees of the mill from the violence of the striking weavers. The same scenes of disorder as were enacted on the streets of the town Tuesday night were renewed, and the strikers who have returned to work were driven from the mill to their homes in carriages.

Governor Morris Explains.

HARTFORD, March 15.—The proclamation of Governor Morris for the observance of Good Friday has caused much comment because of a sentence which has been inserted and which reads, "O Jesu Iouinnan Salvator, with thy gracious light illumine the minds of thy children, who, groping in darkness, are unable to see the truth when it is presented to them." Governor Morris' explanation is that the present ages are not observing the anniversary properly.

THE CHORAL CONCERT.

THE SOCIETY WON MORE LAURELS LAST NIGHT.

Music Hall Filled With a Delighted Audience.—The Programme a Particularly Fine One and Most Excellently Rendered.

The usual large and appreciative audience was present at Music Hall last evening at the second private concert of the Choral Society, under the leadership of Mr E J Fitzhugh.

The Society, always good in its rendering of chosen selections, was considered by many exceptionally so on this occasion.

The programme was varied somewhat from those of previous concerts, being made up more of lighter music.

Part 1st began with Blumenthal's chorus, entitled, "Mother Ye Rose Buds," the first verse of which ran:

"Mother ye rose buds while ye may,
Old time is still a-flying;
And the fairest flower that smiles to-day
To-morrow may be dying."

"The Lullaby of Life" by Henry Leslie was the next number on the programme. Mr. Anton Hegner rendered a solo on the violoncello (a) Cappriccio, and (b) Cantilena, by Goltermann, and (c) Tarantelle by Hegner, and fairly captivated his audience which demand repeated encores.

The other numbers on the programme were as follows:

"The Singers" ..... Alfred R. Gaul
"The Wooing of the Rose" ..... James W. Hill
(Adapted from Johann Strauss)
"Aria from Der Freischutz" ..... C. M. VonWeber
— Solo by Madame Selma Kronold-Koert.
Soprano.
"Sing to the Lord" ..... (Psalm xcviii) Mendelssohn
(Double chorus.)

Part Second.

Two Cupids ..... A Wellmeier Batson
Songs { (Old Memories) Sir Victor, M. Hellmund
{ (Old Primrose) ..... Gounod
By Celia's Arbour ..... Hoosier
Serenade ..... F. Shubert
Violoncello { (Cellomance) ..... Hegner
{ (Romance of Spain) ..... Paque
Scene and Prayer ..... F. Mascagni
— From Cavalleria Rusticana.
Madame Kronold-Koert and Choral Society.

Miss Jessie Utter presided at the piano for the Society. Mr. Burgen Hoyt was leader for the soprano; and Mr. William E. MacClymont was the organist.

Altogether the Society may feel justly proud of its success.

Every number was rendered admirably, and well deserved the hearty applause which followed in each instance.

DIRECTORS AUTHORIZED TO SELL.

Music Hall to be Advertised for Sale.

A meeting of the Music Hall directors was held last night. Stockholders representing 500 shares were present.

The directors were authorized to sell Music Hall. Stockholders representing 503 shares voted to sell, and holders of 10 shares voted against it. The hall will be advertised for sale.

BREVITIES.

—Read Werner's announcement to-day.

—There will be a mock trial at the Trinity church to-night.

—Mr. J. B. Borey of Somerset street is building a new board walk.

—The case of Garrett vs. Miller was adjourned yesterday for one week by Justice Nash.

—C. W. Griffin, the Watchung avenue grocer, was sold out this afternoon at a mortgage foreclosure sale.

—The fire gong has been blowing at intervals to-day. The reason assigned is that the wires are crossed somewhere.

—The annual meeting for the election of officers of the Womans' Foreign Missionary Society takes place next Tuesday.

—The Independent Order of Foresters will give a dance in Saengerbund Hall on Somerset street, Tuesday evening, April 3.

—West field is going to fasten bells and chains to the tramps caught within the township, and make them work on the stone roads.

—Yesterday Justice Nodyne rendered judgment in the case of Wild vs. Williams, for $31. The defendant failed to appear.

—The Board of Governors of the Crescent Wheelmen will meet Saturday to receive the plans and specifications for their proposed track.

—The work of laying the water pipes through Fairview avenue, the new street which has recently been cut through Watchung Park, is progressing rapidly.

—A. B. Clemens will make an address at the young men's meeting, at the Y. M. C. A. rooms, on Sunday, at 4.15 p. m. The new Hymn books will be used for the first time.

—The Reydl estate case in the Orphans' Court at Somerville, in which Charles A. Reed represents a claimant, and Judge Coddington is counsel for the administratrix has been set down for trial on March 26.

—After a two-months' organization the new Liederkranz has a membership of twelve active members. On Wednesday night they held a meeting at the home of Mr. Fatermeyer, No. 69 Sandford ave., at which there was singing. Prof. Knoll accompanied on the violin and Mr. Stein on the piano. Two hours were pleasantly spent.

POST OFFICE ROBBED.

Thieves at the Bound Brook Post Office.

The Bound Brook Post Office was robbed last night. The burglars were evidently frightened away, because they left their implements behind.

A team of horses and wagon were also stolen from a local livery stable.

A $25,000 SUIT.

BROUGHT BY JACOB SMALLEY FOR DAMAGES.

Against Both the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad and the Central Railroad of New Jersey—City Judge Coddington, the attorney for the Plaintiff.

Jacob S. Smalley of Board Brook was injured about a year ago at Board Brook while driving with a horse and sleigh over what is known as Middlebrook crossing, and has since been unable to work. For three weeks he was unconscious and not expected to live. His life was saved, however, but it was found he would be injured for life, and his physician says that he will be unable to follow his occupation, that of builder.

Mr. Smalley's horse was killed.

Suit was brought through his counsel Judge Coddington, against the Philadelphia & Reading and Central Railroads for $25,000 damages.

The Judge is supported in bringing suit against both railroads by a Supreme Court decision rendered some time ago in which it was decided that when an accident happened by one company's train on an another company's tracks, both companies are liable.

Mr. Smalley is 33 years old, is married and has always lived in Bound Brook, and is well known in Plainfield.

LIABLE TO A FINE OF $100.

A Misdemeanor for any Person to Sell Medicine or Poison Unless a Registered Pharmacist.

MAYOR'S OFFICE.
Plainfield, N. J., March 14, 1894.

The law of New Jersey forbids the retailing or dispensing of medicines or poisons by any person who is not a registered pharmacist. Violation of this law is made a misdemeanor punishable, as to the first offense, by fine of not less than fifty nor more than one hundred dollars, and as to every subsequent offense, by a like fine, or imprisonment not to exceed six months, or both at the discretion of the Court.

Reputable druggists have represented to me on information and belief that this law is being violated in the city of Plainfield, especially in the sale of laudanum. It will become my duty, on receiving sufficient evidence, to set in motion the machinery of the law to bring about the conviction and punishment of all offenders.

Good citizens may have offended in this matter in ignorance of the law. If so, let them take warning and desist from further violation of a statute enacted in the interests of public safety and morality.

A. GILBERT, MAYOR.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. J. S. Powlison of Somerset street is confined to her home with the grip.

Mr. Frank Quinn has returned to his old quarters at Werner's Clothing House.

The old friends of Letter Carrier Robert Loughlin are glad to see him on his route again.

Mr. James Lane, formerly employed by Councilman Frazee, will leave to-morrow for Southampton.

The Young Men's Social Club met at the home of Mrs. De Witt Brokaw, of Spicemore avenue, last night.

Mrs. Ira F. Biker, who for the past few weeks has been seriously ill with pneumonia, is reported as being much better.

Miss Lena Weber, of East Third street, is organist at St. Peter's Evangelical German Lutheran Church, North Plainfield. She is but 16 years of age, but is quite an expert on the organ.

Mr. Thomas Budd, of Chester, Morris County, a cousin of Collector H. Newton Spencer, and a descendent of Col. Budd, of Revolutionary fame, was a guest of the collector yesterday.

The funeral of the late Henry Meyers of Warrenville took place this afternoon at half-past two from the Coontown church. A large number of relatives and friends attended the funeral.

Last evening a very complete surprise was tendered Miss Lillian Hope, on West Fifth street. The evening was spent in playing games, after which refreshments were served. Among those present were Misses Edna and Cora Harris, Miss Ida May Tallamy, Miss May Murray, Miss Della Grant, Miss Grace Ulrich, Miss Irene Hope, Miss Edith Titsworth, Miss Mollie Pratzner, Miss Mary and Lizzie Stevens, Miss Kitty Tarsur, Miss Lillie Haberle and Miss E. Runyon, and Hervey Doane, William Pitts, Earnest Duffy, Clinton Mosher, William Pratzner, Charlie Sebring, William Popp, Percy Vail, Fred Sebring and William Kennett, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hope, Mr. and Mrs. Harris and Mrs. Smith. Miss Lillian Hope and Ida May Tallamy played a duet, which was well received. Miss May Stevens and Edith Titsworth sang a duet, and Miss Mary Stevens entertained the party with violin solos.

Van Fleet Gets Off Easy.

The case of the State vs. Peter Van Fleet, charged with obtaining money by false pretences, and with stealing a team of horses from Mr. Van Doren's, came up for trial at Somerville to-day. Lawyer George De Mezz appeared for the defendant and succeeded in getting Van Fleet clear on the charge of stealing, but he plead guilty for his client on the other charge. His argument won for his client much leniency and the judge only imposed a sentence of one day in the county jail.

FINED $1 AND COSTS.

THAT'S THE SENTENCE JUSTICE HOFF IMPOSES ON GALLAGHER.

End of the Troubles Between the Central Railroad Company and the Dunellenites.—The Other Cases to be Dropped.

The case of the Central Railroad against Michael Gallagher, who was charged with stealing coal, came up for trial before Justice Hoff at Dunellen yesterday at ten o'clock. Lawyer Hetfield of this city was counsel for the defendant, and Lawyer Burkalow of Jersey City was counsel for the prosecution.

When the case opened Mr. Hetfield moved to dismiss the proceedings on the ground that the complaint was irregularly drawn. As the motion be denied this motion, Mr. Hetfield moved to dismiss it on the ground of non-payment of costs in the same action and the same justice on a former occasion. This motion was also refused. Mr. Hetfield then demanded a jury, but Justice Hoff decided that he couldn't have one.

The trial then proceeded.

Detective Coren was the first witness.

Mrs. Ann Dunham swore that she had rented a house to the defendant Michael Gallagher. A shed back of the house was used by Gallagher. She said she had never seen any coal there.

The next witness was David D. Hoopes. He was one of those arrested for picking coal. On cross-examination he admitted to Mr. Hetfield that he had been called into the depot office by Lawyer Burkalow, and had been promised to be let off if he would tell all he knew about the thefts. He said that Gallagher was only picking coal within three or four weeks of the time set in the complaint.

The complaint read that the offense had been committed on or about the 24th of February. Justice Hoff decided that the work on or about meant within 10 days before or 10 after the 24th.

Charles Wykuskie swore that he was along the railroad during February and that he didn't see Gallagher pick any coal.

Allen Wilson testified that he had seen the defendant walking along the side of the track about four weeks ago, pushing a wheelbarrow. He didn't see him pick any coal nor did he see any in the wheelbarrow.

The evidence given by Michael Reidy, day engineer at the tanks, was to the effect that he had seen Gallagher around the tanks with a wheelbarrow, but that he didn't see him pick coal or do anything in it or out. He had never seen Gallagher take coal from the cars.

John Hunt, a section boss, testified that he had seen Gallagher on the track during the Winter, either January or February, picking coal, but he couldn't swear as to the date.

This ended the case for the prosecution.

Lawyer Hetfield then moved to dismiss the proceeding on the ground that the prosecution had made no case out. The motion was denied. An adjournment of a half hour was then taken for dinner. After which Mr. Hetfield took up the defence. Michael Gallagher, the defendant, was the first witness sworn. He denied positively that he had been on the tracks on the 24th of February or within ten days before or ten days after.

Mr. Hetfield then stated that he was willing to rest his case with that, and that if it was decided against him he was prepared to carry it higher.

Justice Hoff decided that the defendant was guilty and imposed a fine of $1 and 68 costs.

Lawyer Burkalow and Hetfield then held a conference. The former asked the latter if he would let the case stand, on condition that the company took no further action against the other persons who were arrested. It is said that there was about 100 in all. Mr. Hetfield agreed to the proposition and no further action is to be taken in the matter.

Went to Vote and Lost His Money.

When Charles McMurray, who lives near the mountain, went to Westfield to vote Tuesday he had a roll of bills in his pocket amounting to $90. On his way home from town he discovered that his money was missing. Just where he lost the bills is unable to say. He carried the money with him because he was afraid that while away from home some one would break into the house and steal it.

The Windows in Graceland Depot Broken.

All of the windows in the Graceland depot have been again broken out. This mischief is caused by coal train jumpers, who ride up and down on the coal trains and bombard with pieces of coal every thing within reach. The glass will be put in again and the depot watched.

PERFECT POEMS OF BONNETS.

Black Is Much In Evidence In the New Spring Headwear.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—

Hats are of medium size this season, and bonnets are small. The combination of black with rich narrow shades claims as prominent a place in spring millinery as it has held all winter. Black is much in evidence in all the new bonnets, almost everything displayed consisting in part at least of some black material. Black lace is particularly popular, and much jet and many spangles are used. There are some pretty little bonnets in which the crown is a sort of skeleton arrangement of steel or gold and black beads, while the tiny brim consists of a frill of plaited lace, and the trimming is made up of some bits of black velvet, the two inevitable masculy wings in steel or gold and an aigrette of one or the other metal. Birds' bodies and wings are very little seen, and as they are easily defaced and soiled in bad taste it is to be hoped that they have permanently retired from popular favor. Ostrich tips are much used, and with jet and velvet are the preferred trimmings.

Some fine lace straws have been brought out in black and colors, but black lace hats are most fashionable at present and a number of them are shown. The lace used is mainly of the fine, light quality or is jetted or spangled—the plain, heavy guipure so much employed of late is losing prestige. Moire piece silk is utilized as a trimming on many of the spring hats, cut on the bias for bows or gathered to form a soft crown, and the effect is rather good. The low crown of one lace trimmed hat was quite covered by a broad silk bow set flat upon it. Beads in oxydized mercury tones before alluded to, some pretty ornaments are shown composed of balls larger than a filbert, also made of overlapping spangles. These are used on collarettes and mixed with metal aigrets, or are twisted in with the trimming and are a pleasing novelty.

A sketch is given of a hat the brim of which is composed of black lace embroidered with jet and black spangles. The soft crown is of black moire, gathered together in the middle of the top by a jet ornament. The trimming is simple, consisting of a large rosette of carmine velvet, from which spring two upright black ostrich tips.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

FOR CHILDREN TO READ.

An Exhibition of Suitable Books at the Public Library.

To-morrow afternoon, from two to six there will be a special exhibit of books suitable for children in the woman's parlor of the Free Public Library.

The exhibits will include the best books of all classes that have been written for young children. It will include volumes for the little folks as well as for children of larger growth.

To parents and to teachers, who have the care of children, this exhibition will be especially valuable and interesting.

With so much written for children that is trashy and weak, if indeed, not worse, it is well to keep an oversight of what the children read, and the aim will be to have an exhibition the best of all classes the collector prefers.

Children themselves will be welcome, and, if time will allow, suggestions will be given them as to what to read. The exhibit, however, is meant particularly for their parents and will be of assistance to them and teachers.

In the morning from nine to twelve the teachers of the Grammar grades will visit the library to see what the library has on the subject which they are teaching.

All are cordially invited to visit the library between the hours stated,—from two to six.

Lost Her Pocketbook on Front Street.

Last night a young woman from over the mountain came to Plainfield with Peter Barnett to make several purchases. She bought a pair of shoes at Kenney's and then went across the street. When she crossed back she discovered that she had lost her pocketbook containing about $60. Between the time that she had paid for the shoes and when she discovered her loss only a few minutes had elapsed. As the young woman is in poor circumstances the loss was to her a very heavy one.

Bitten By a Dog.

Russell Johnson, a collector for THE NEWS, was bitten on the leg by a dog belonging to Mr. Connett, of West Third street. Johnson's trousers were badly torn and the dog fastened his teeth in the flesh, inflicting a slight wound. The wound was cauterized by Dr. Probasco.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

Bloodshed Expected.

DENVER, Col. March 16—At 9 o'clock this morning Gen. McCook, in command of the United State troops whose arrival effected last night's truce, was in conference with Governor Waite, who has issued an order calling out all its state troops. Gov. Waite's residence is still surrounded by a strong guard, as he is in mortal fear of assassination.

Sutherland A Fugitive.

NEW YORK, March 16—Justice of the Peace Kenneth P. Sutherland did not appear for sentence in the Court of Oyer and Terminer, Brooklyn, this morning. His bail was forfeited, a bench warrant for his arrest issued and he is now a fugitive from justice.

Left a Dead Horse Behind Them.

On Tuesday night a number of gypsies camped for the night at their regular stopping place on Park avenue, near Campbell's Club House. They left bright and early the next morning, leaving behind them, unburied, the body of a dead horse, that had died during the night, with what disease nobody knows. Dogs gathered around the carcass nights and fight over it and "make night hideous" with their howls and yelping.

The gypsies have been forbidden to camp on Park avenue by the road overseer of that district and the fact that they chose there during the night and then stole away, leaving the dead horse there has aroused the residents in that vicinity.

Granted a Non-Suit.

Some time ago Katie Bezold, through her counsel, John A. Preeh, of Somerville, brought suit against her brother, Adam E. Bezold of Liberty Corner. The suit was tried before Justice Kitchen, of Somerville, who decided in favor of the plaintiff.

On the advice of City Judge Coddington the case was appealed.

To-day it was tried in the Common Pleas Court, and a non-suit was granted on Judge Coddington's application.

This disposes of the case as the claim upon which the suit was based is barred by the statute limitation.

TO OPEN JUDGMENT.

Mrs. Schorb Will be Allowed to Plead to the Action.

Judge Van Syckel, of the Supreme Court, yesterday, made an order in the case of the Gottfried Krueger Brewing Company vs. Elizabeth Schorb of this city to open a judgment amounting to $700.55 obtained by default against the defendant and to allow her to plead to the action. The order of Judge Van Syckle in this case shows how jealously the New Jersey courts guard the rights and interests of married women. Mrs. Schorb was regularly served with the summons and declaration in this suit, but neglected to attend to the matter until she learned of the judgment against her.

The action was brought on a promissory note which she had endorsed. Ex-Senator Karsh, who appeared for the plaintiff, strongly opposed the opening of the judgment, but the argument of Jackson & Applegate, who appeared for Mrs. Schorb, obtained the order as above noted. Mrs. Schorb claims that she has a complete defense to the action, which will result in a saving to her of nearly eight hundred dollars.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH, WESTFIELD.

Parishioners Out with Rector Jennings Propose to Form a Society.

The initial step towards establishing a new Episcopal church in Westfield was taken at a meeting of the Episcopal families in town in Library Hall Wednesday evening. A petition was drawn up, and will be sent to Bishop Scarborough, requesting permission to start a new church. All the church laws bearing on the subject were cited in the petition and everything will be done in accordance with the canon of the Church. Not a word was mentioned in the petition about Rector Jennings and his trouble with the vestry, as it is the intention of the people to prove that if there were no Episcopal church in the place.

Fully forty persons signed the paper, and as many more names will be obtained speedily.

An answer is expected from the Bishop in about a month, and it is favorable, as every one expects it will be, another meeting will be called, wardens and vestrymen elected and a hall secured for worship. The services for a time will be conducted by a lay reader. It was decided to call the new church St. Paul's.

IN MEMORY OF DR. PINGRY.

All Who Studied in His School are Invited to at a Memorial Meeting.

An interesting service will be held in Westminster Presbyterian church, Elizabeth, on Monday evening, March 19th, at eight p. m. It will be in memory of the late Rev. John F. Pingry Ph. D. who for so many years was the principal of the large boys school in this city bearing his name. The service has been gotten up by the graduates and will be a fitting testimonial to the memory of a loved teacher. A double male quartette choir will furnish music and there will be six speeches, each limited to 15 minutes. Of these four will be graduates and will represent periods in Dr. Pingry's school life. They will be E. Wayne Parker of Newark, 1858-61, Rev. Mr. Beeker of Hackettstown 1861-71 Prof. W. T. Magie of Princeton 1871-81, Thomas B. McCarter Jr. of Newark, 1881-91. Mr. John Leaf of Plainfield will speak for the teachers and Rev. E. Remsen Bull D. D. will speak for the city of Elizabeth and the clergy.

All who formerly studied under Dr. Pingry are cordially invited to be present and seats will be reserved for them until five minutes before eight o'clock.

THE NEWARK CONFERENCE.

To be Held at St. Luke's Church, Newark, on April 4th.

The Newark conference will open its annual session in St. Luke's church, Newark, April 4. As usual there is a great stir among the preachers, many of whom are not satisfied with the places they have occupied during the past year or two, and desire to change. It is believed that more changes will occur this Spring they have marked any conference since the two-year term of service was inaugurated. Bishop Ninde of Detroit will preside. It will be his first appearance here as moderator.

In regard to changes, the most important will be the appointment of presiding elders in the Newark and Paterson districts. The terms of the incumbents will expire with the conference. A host of candidates have been mentioned for the two desirable places.

A FEW THINGS ABOUT PADRONES.

A Plainfielder, Paymaster of Italian Workmen at Jersey City, Knows Where the Trouble Is.

Mr. Walter Gibson, son of Mrs. King of West Second street, is paymaster of the 800 or more Italian workmen now on strike at Jersey City and with whom the authorities are anticipating trouble.

The padrones, through whom the laborers are hired, are said to be the source of all the disorder.

The Italians are a miserable, ignorant set, and are supposed to receive $1.10 per day wages. Of this they get from the padrones only 87 cents. They are forced like cattle in sheds, pay or mercenary by the padrones, who charge the men each $1 a week for lodging. The board is extra. All this is out of 87 cents a day.

When the pay is delayed for any reason, the immediate result is a strike.

Mrs. King is worried about her son's safety among the strikers.

TROUBLE AHEAD FOR SOMEONE.

An Army of Tramps Propose to Force a Passage over the Santa Fe Railroad.

Special interest will be taken in the proposed forced march of the army of tramps, under the name of unemployed workmen, as told in the following telegram, because the head of the great railroad organization, of which the Santa Fe is a branch, is Mr. J. W. Reinhart, of Netherwood.

LOS ANGELES, March 16.—The industrial army has received accessions, bringing its numbers here up to 800 men. The situation is liable to become serious here today. At 11 o'clock Acting Commissioner Gould is to receive an answer from the city council as to their success in securing free transportation for the army over the Santa Fe. The answer is bound to be in the negative. General O'Brien on Monday told the city council that if the officers would not give transportation the army would take the railroad.

—For the next few days the Leader will have a closing sale, at which great bargains are being offered. The advertisement tells the story.

Where Women Stand Higher than Men.

At an Iowa college a careful record has been kept of the relative standing of the young women and men in class work. From this the Liberalizing fact is have been gleaned that the average standing of the young women has been above that of the young men in every term but one in nine years in the sophomore class in every term, and in the senior class but two; that is, the average standing of the young women was higher than that of the young men thirty-two times out of thirty-six.

What Fred Began to Think.

Little Fred's sister was married the other evening, and he was so much impressed by the ceremony that he sat in perfect silence until the bride appeared in her traveling dress, and her weeping mother took him by the hand to lead him to her for a good-bye kiss. Then Fred burst out with: "Oh! oh! oh! must I go away? Am I married, too?"

WAITE'S WAR.

Colorado's Governor Fills Denver With Troops.

BLOODSHED JUST AVERTED.

Defiant Police Board Were Besieged in City Hall.

Because His Appointees Were Kept Out of Their Municipal Offices Governor Waite Caused Gatling Guns to Be Trained on His Opponents—Regular Troops From Fort Logan Camped in the City—Entire State Militia Held In Readiness to March Into Denver Today—Whole Police Force Massed In City Hall.

DENVER, March 16.—The national guard of Colorado is under arms, the Federal troops from Fort Logan have been called out, and although martial law has not been officially proclaimed there is no other authority in Denver but the strong arm of the military.

This critical situation has been brought about by the determination of Governor

GOVERNOR WAITE.

Waite to oust the two members of the fire and police board—Jackson Orr and D. J. Martin—whom he removed for protecting gambling houses, and place in office their successors—S. D. Barnes and Dennis Mullins.

Messrs. Orr and Martin, having obtained from the district court an injunction restraining Governor Waite from forcibly removing them, were determined to resist to the utmost. They accordingly kept the entire police force at the city hall all day under orders to resist the soldiers if attacked.

Police Armed With Guns.

In addition several hundred of the toughest citizens, many of whom have records as gunkillers, were sworn in as deputies by Sheriff Burchinell and placed in the city hall as a re-enforcement of the police department.

Each deputy was armed with two six shooters and instructed to use them in case of necessity. The police were armed with shotguns in addition to their clubs and revolvers.

When the First regiment and the Chaffee light artillery arrived at the city hall, General Brooks, commanding officer, delivered to Police Lieutenant Clay, in command outside of the city hall, a message to the effect that if the municipal police commissioners did not vacate within half an hour the offices would be taken by force. Orr and Martin refused to surrender.

Before the half hour expired prominent citizens entered into negotiations with both parties to the controversy with a view to reaching a settlement by arbitration, and while the negotiations were in progress a truce was declared. The streets around the city hall were packed with an angry mob numbering many thousands.

"Hail Columbia" was given as an order to fire," said General Brooks, "we would have been riddled with bullets from the crowd, and then I would send in sweeping sides of the street with my gatling guns. However, the mob made no such act necessary, and there was no bloodshed."

Federal Troops Called Out.

On the governor's representation that the state militia would probably be inadequate with the mob that had full possession of the city General McCook called out the United States infantry from Fort Logan, 13 miles from here, to act in conjunction with the state and local authorities in clearing the streets and preserving the peace. The United States troops arrived about 8:30 p. m.

Adjutant General Tarsney, an old Indian fighter, placed the militia in front of the city hall in Fourteenth street, with two gatling guns loaded with grape and solid shot trained on the city hall, and four companies of militia in front and around them to stand the crowd off.

The excitement was intense and was increased by the re-enforcement of the local state troops, numbering 220 men, by the Boulder and Fort Collins companies of the First regiment and the Second regiment companies from Colorado Springs and Pueblo. Since 2 o'clock Thursday morning the city has been entirely without protection from the criminal classes.

The causes leading up to this state of affairs are as follows: Governor Waite has been changing the personnel of the city fire and police board from time to time ostensibly for cause, but, it is claimed, for political purposes purely. This mode of procedure began last June, when George H. Phelps was removed for alleged neglect of duty in failing to prosecute a gambler. The appointment of R. W. Trimble in his stead was carried on appeal to the supreme court.

The court decided that all the appointments by the governor are made with power of suspension or removal at any time for cause, to be stated in writing, but not for political reasons.

Trouble Over the Police.

In the face of this decision Judge Graham of the district court enjoined the recently appointed members of the fire and police boards from taking their seats, although they had been sworn in. This action the governor regarded as an infringement upon his prerogatives, and he accordingly ignored the injunction. He expressed a willingness to leave the whole controversy to the supreme court to decide, but also removed Commissioners Orr and Martin, refuse to consent to such an arrangement.

Counsel for the old fire and police board claim that they are in full sympathy with the supreme court as to removals, and that if a writ of ouster was served on the old board through the court they would vacate instanter. The question, they say, is merely one of process by the court or by the military. The governor ordered out the militia contrary to advice of his counsel and prominent members of the chamber of commerce. The militia officers were asked to resign their commissions in the interest of peace, but they refused and said they would obey orders.

A move was made to have the supreme court order Governor Waite's arrest for disobeying Graham's orders, but this was not done. President Byers of the chamber of commerce tried in vain to prevail upon Governor Waite to recede, and the governor has said he would use the entire national guard if necessary. Moreover Adjutant General Tarsney said that if he was ordered to fire on the city hall he would blow it to pieces.

Waite Guarded by Militia.

Threatening demonstrations have been made against the governor, who remains at his residence under military guard, and he was reported much alarmed as to his safety before the arrival of the United States troops.

At the city hall it was claimed that strict orders had been given not to fire a shot or raise a club until the militia had taken the offensive. From 9 until 9 the state troops were drawn up in line of battle, and the city hall forces were ready for action. The other city officials were prepared to vacate at a moment's notice. All overtures from the governor were rejected, and an American flag was hung from a window. This was cheered by the crowd. City officials and prominent citizens sought in vain for a compromise, and every hour or two the governor threatened to exterminate the city hall people in 20 minutes, but wiser counsel finally prevailed.

The fire department had lines of hose laid through the city hall to throw water on the besiegers. The firemen were armed. The surgical department was also ready to care for the wounded in case of a conflict. At 9 o'clock, or shortly after the arrival of the United States troops, Adjutant General Tarsney ordered the militia back to the armory, and presently the crowds that had been surging through the streets began to dwindle, and the excitement began to die out.

The United States troops are camped in front of the Union depot, where Sheriff Burchinell says he will try to keep them two or three days to prevent any possible outbreak. He has only 30 special deputies under arms, he says, and these are to patrol the streets in the absence of policemen.

Governor Waite refused to make any statement further than that he had withdrawn his troops for the night. What his next step will be he would not say. His pale face told more eloquently than words of the strain through which he had passed. He has received a dozen or more letters threatening his life, and there is considerable public feeling against him.

Judge Graham, whose order of injunction Governor Waite disregarded, says he will take no notice of the contempt. There was a great deal of suppressed excitement on the streets, but the spark to fire the combustible was not there, and there has been no outbreak. The streets are quiet, though strict watch is maintained at the city hall to prevent hostile surprises. Martial law prevails in Lake and Arapahoe. Orders of General Brooks and the state troops for facing the mob about the city hall.

All the state Militia Summoned.

It seems the state troops were withdrawn by the governor on the recommendation of General McCook, who said the government troops would preserve order and prevent a conflict. At 9:30 the troops returned to the city hall, the crowds having dispersed, and the usual quiet reigned.

Hon. T. M. Patterson appeared before the police board when the situation seemed most critical and appealed to the patriotism of the members, urging the necessity for submitting all matters at issue to arbitration by impartial hands. Before he had finished Messrs. Rogers, Shafroth and Hartshell, counsel for the governor's latest appointees—Mullins and Barnes—put in an appearance and announced a formal proposition on the part of their clients to submit the matters in controversy to a board of arbitration to be mutually agreed upon.

This was exactly the proposition made by the old board earlier in the day, both by written agreement and verbally, which had been rejected in view of the facts. Messrs. Martin and Orr replied that the matter would now have to take its course in the courts, as they were powerless.

Governor Waite has issued the following proclamation:

"All companies of the national guard of Colorado are hereby notified to be in readiness at the inspection armory to respond to call to come to Denver, which will be issued on Friday of this week."

Adjutant General Tarsney, who took troops from the scene of action was the result of a conference between Governor Waite and Adjutant General Tarsney, at which it was decided that it would be impossible to take the city hall with the force at hand without great and unnecessary loss of life.

To-day the governor will call all the troops of the state to Denver, and Saturday he will renew his attempt to install the new police commissioners in office. General McCook will confer with the governor today and will then decide upon his line of action.

LYNCHED IN HOT HASTE

Escaped From Jail to Fall into a Mob's Hands.

NEW SCENE FOR PENNSYLVANIA.

Murderer Puryear Had but Twenty Minutes of Liberty—Run Down by a Negro Friend After an Exciting Chase—Given Up to the Crowd and Lynched on the Spot.

EAST STROUDSBURG, Pa., March 16.—Richard Puryear, a negro, charged with killing Christian Ehlers and wounding his wife, was hanged by a mob within 20 minutes after he had escaped from the Monroe county jail.

Although he was lynched in broad daylight by a crowd of young men, not one of whom wore a mask or made any other attempt at disguise, no one can be found among the 5,000 inhabitants of this quiet town to say who did the deed.

Puryear's crime was notable for the ingratitude that inspired and the ferocity with which he committed it. Old Christian Ehlers, when he shot dead and wounded his wife he frightfully wounded, had been kind to him for more than a year.

The murder aroused the people of Monroe county first to a fever of revengeful fury. Openly and without the slightest attempt at concealment a crowd of 30 of Ehler's neighbors, many of them fellow Sunday-school workers, broke into the jail and kill Puryear. An extra guard was placed on duty after this, but it was soon discontinued. It was too expensive.

An Exciting Man Hunt.

The man hunt that followed his escape was made all the more tragic by the fact that the pursuer of his contempt all the west and seized Puryear at the point of a pistol was an old comrade of his, Benjamin Cuenton. They had been friends for years in Virginia.

The crowd in the street knew almost by intuition what had happened. The picture presented by the runaway negro and the pursuing sheriff needed no words of explanation.

Men and boys joined in the chase. Some of them cried "Fire!" as they ran. The sheriff meantime ran back to the jail to put on his hat and coat. Men shouted to one another as they ran.

"Puryear's escaped! Kill him! Shoot him!"

Probably 20 of those who joined in the pursuit had revolvers. They were still too far away to fire.

When he was captured, the murderer panted: "Oh, Ben, let me loose! For God's sake let me loose, and I'll not go!" "No," replied Cuenton. "You've killed innocent persons, and you must die. Come with me."

He led the trembling negro to the brink of the flood, and both plunged in together. Puryear in front. Slowly the exhausted man swam toward the group of men on the shore of the island. Puryear knew they would kill him, but he dared not try to escape down the stream, for he knew they would follow.

Eager hands seized him as he staggered up the bank. Men dragged him across the dead grass to the foot of a small, scrubby oak. A pile boy had run back to get an upper limb the block and fails used in Palmer's place to hoist sheets for the slaughter. In about a moment's time, or reflection the murderer was pulled into the air, he was still pawing from his run, and he did not utter a word.

Hanged in a Twinkle.

A boy threw the loop in the rope around Puryear's neck, and a score of hands hauled at the other end. Gentlemen can so swiftly as they will rope that Puryear's body shot upward with a rush. The top of his head struck a joist of the block. The blow must have stunned him, for he hung perfectly limp and motionless. Within 19 minutes after he had run out of jail Puryear was dead.

Sheriff Kreiger ran to the scene of the lynching tremulous with excitement, and he was received with a derisive cheer. No one was bidding to the rope, for on seeing the sheriff approach the crowd had made fast the rope to another tree.

One man shouted, "Gentlemen, don't one of you say one word about this?" and everybody heeded his advice, for all the information one can now get about the lynching consists of "I heard" and "I am informed," as the man in town will admit that he ever saw it.

While the body of his old chum swung and slowly twirled in the breeze Cuenton thoughtfully passed around his hat and took up a large collection. One man dropped in a $5 bill. Not content with this, Cuenton severed the rope with the body that had been cut down, cut the rope into bits and peddled them on the streets. The executioner amounted to $6, but postponed the payment until next week.

The Breckinridge-Pollard Trial.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—The spectators at the Pollard-Breckinridge trial heard little of interest, the most important witness to be appeared being the colored woman who kept the house in Lexington where the intrigue had its beginning and much of its course. She said that Colonel Breckinridge had tried to persuade her not to testify.

Death Revealed His Secret.

PITTSBURG, March 16.—Wesley Herring-ton, who has been treated all over this country for the murder of Oliver Kelly at Willow Grove, Pa., died at the Homeopathic hospital of cancer of the brain. He gave the name of W. J. Latshaw when admitted to the hospital, and his identity was discovered after his death.

Big Strike at Lawrence Settled.

LAWRENCE, Mass., March 16.—The strike and lockout at the Arlington mills was unexpectedly settled by mutual concessions. The strikers returned to work this morning, and the mills opened to the 5,000 locked out operatives.

Benham Ordered to Blockfields.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—There is now no doubt that Admiral Benham will go to Blockfields on the San Francisco, as supplemental specific instructions to that effect were sent to him by cable.

Wisconsin's Official Scandal.

MADISON, Wis., March 16.—Judge Lineker granted a nonsuit in the celebrated Bowker suit against Governor Peck and other state officials. An appeal was at once taken.

Freight Handlers' Strike Off.

NEW LONDON, Conn., March 16.—The strike of freight handlers on the Norwich line was adjusted satisfactorily, and the men returned to work.

Can Pay a Dividend.

WALTHAM, Mass., March 16.—The American Waltham Watch company paid a semiannual dividend of 4 per cent.

RIO RUMORS.

Reported That the Aquidaban Has Been Abandoned.

RIO JANEIRO, March 16.—The time of the Americans who shipped at New York on the cruiser Nictheroy has expired. The men have come ashore and will probably return to the United States by the way of England.

Vessels have left for the south with reinforcements of troops. Fighting is reported there, and it is thought that it may last for months. The government vessel Itajipe attacked the rebel tug Santa Lucia. The vessels were in the open sea when the capture was made.

Despite all contrary reports Admiral da Gama is on the Portuguese warship Mindello, on which he first took refuge. The ravages of yellow fever alarm everybody here. The number of deaths amount to 60 daily.

All sorts of rumors are in circulation. One of them is that the Aquidaban, one of the vessels captured by Admiral de Mello when he sought to set up a government on his own account, has been found abandoned in southern waters.

The officers of the Nictheroy charge the Brazilian officers of the fleet with making repeated attempts to destroy the machinery and the guns of the ships which arrived from the United States. Their attempts have only been prevented by constant vigilance.

Twice during the passage from Bahia at night the Itaipu's lights were hidden, and the Victoria tried to ram the Nictheroy. The latter vessel narrowly escaped this danger by the promptness of the officer of the deck. On three occasions false signals were sent to the engineer when the vessel was in dangerous places, and the ship had a narrow escape. There have been continued bitter quarrels between Government Officers Baker, Belfort and Duarte. These torpedo boats have been refitted intentionally, some of the officers claim.

LUDICROUS PASSION PLAY.

Not Only the Production but the Music Was Irreverent.

BOSTON, March 16.—What its perpetrators call a "Miracle Play" was produced for the first time in Boston before an American audience. The "Miracle Play" proved to be nothing more or less than the bilious representation of the life and sufferings of Christ while on earth, and was produced by means of hideous wooden marionettes, and was in fact a burlesque on the "Passion Play."

Not only were the dangling caricatures of the Saviour and his contemporaries offensive in themselves, but the offence amounted to almost horror when the street band that assisted in the play accompanied the bearing of the cross to Calvary with "After the Ball is Over" and the crucifixion with the "Washington Post March."

The innocent and estimable lady who brought out this play acted entirely in the interests of religion and benevolence. She is the daughter of a well known Boston clergyman and author, and had in the course of her studies learned of this "play," which, it was represented to her, was based upon an old religious tradition familiar to Germans and produced by some of them during Holy week as a sort of religious duty. Being interested in folklore and deeply interested in religious things, she engaged the Italian players to give the piece in a hall and sold tickets to about the people of Boston's most exclusive set. The proceeds were to be given to the poor.

BOMB THROWER IDENTIFIED.

Parnell, an Anarchist, the Author of the Latest Paris Outrage.

PARIS, March 16.—The corpse of the bomb thrower has been removed from the Church of the Madeleine to a morgue. Under the direction of Dr. Alphonse Bertillon made an anthropometrical measurement of the body and found that it coincides with the anarchist Parvels, who was an intimate friend of the anarchists Decarted and Pauli Reclus.

A number of rivets similar to those used by the bomb thrower were found on the body, and Parvels was a skin dresser. Parvels was born at Courcelles, Belgium, in 1864.

When the corpse was lifted up to be taken to the morgue, it was found that one of the hands tightly clinched a revolver. Both hands were badly injured.

The man who was killed resided in the house and was about to advance into the church when he was startled by the sight of the bundle, an imposing looking old soldier who took notice of the stranger's hasty retreat. The latter, anxious to enter, yet to escape notice, fitted quickly in the small vestibule to try the other swinging door on the right. He was not aware that it was bolted, and he went at it at full tilt, causing the bomb, which he doubtless carried in his belt, to explode.

Fox Jury Disagreed.

HARTFORD, March 16.—The noted Fox will case, involving the division of $200,000 left by Major Frederick K. Fox of Boston, was ended by the discharge of the jury by Judge Hamilton of the superior court. After 19 hours' deliberation the jury disagreed.

Dole Smiles on John Bull.

LONDON, March 16.—Advices received here from Honolulu say that President Dole declares that Hawaii may cede Pearl Harbor to Great Britain in the event of the United States proving unfriendly to the provisional government.

A BOMB IN PATERSON.

Exploded Before the House of a Mill Foreman.

IT WAS SMALL AND DID NO DAMAGE

Deputy sheriff In Phillipsburg, N. J., Attacked by a Mob of Strikers and Shoots Into the Crowd—Bullet Hit a Man, and the Deputy Was Arrested.

PATERSON, N. J., March 16.—The Paterson strikers had recourse to dynamite, estimating out their threat of a few days ago.

The people of the city were awakened by the explosion of a bomb in front of the residence of John Bates, foreman in the printing department of Bamford Brothers' mills.

The men in Bamford Brothers' mills are on strike, and it was at the mills that the trouble first occurred, and its employees have figured prominently in the subsequent agitations. Bates, the foreman, is very unpopular with the men and has received frequent warnings since the strike commenced.

The bomb exploded was a small one personally, so no damage was done, and Bates himself regards it more in the nature of a warning than an attempt upon his life. It had been placed in the middle of the street and did no more damage than to cause the buildings in the neighborhood to tremble. The police have no clew of the perpetrators.

Shot Into the Mob.

PHILLIPSBURG, N. J., March 16.—The trouble at the Standard silk mill culminated in bloodshed, although nobody was dangerously hurt. When the mill shut down for the day, deputy sheriffs started to escort several girl weavers who remained at work to their homes.

Sheriff Swartz had previously cautioned the crowd to maintain order, but the mob, instead of heeding the warning, started to follow the deputies, yelling "Scab!" and making threats. At the corner of Fulton and Lewis streets Deputy John Keller was struck in the face with a large stone, which broke his nose. Keller drew his revolver and fired into the crowd, the ball striking a young man, whose name could not be learned, in the hip and inflicting a bad flesh wound.

Officer Steiner arrested Keller and took him to the police station, followed by several thousand wildly excited people. He furnished bail for a hearing and was released.

During the shooting one of the girls fainted and was carried to her home. Excitement is running high here. Superintendent Larned is rapidly filling the places of the striking weavers with new hands.

THE PITTSBURG NUNS.

They May Be Returned to the Riverside Convent.

PITTSBURG, March 16.—The withdrawal of the nuns from the Riverside public school does not mean the abandonment of the field for even the school board and the Knights Order of American Mechanics and is only a truce, pending the settlement of the question in the courts.

If the petition from the mechanics for an injunction is not granted, members of the board say the parochial school children and the nuns will return to the public schools at once. Until then the taken to compel the central board of education to sign the warrants for their salaries as teachers. In case the injunction is granted they will give up the contest, but not before.

Bishop Phelan is quoted as saying that the Roman Catholic church was not a party to the arrangement at the Riverside school. He believes it a question that should be handled by people of the Thirty-fourth ward, he being one of the only ones interested. He thought there was no harm in making an experiment, but warned those interested against stirring up trouble.

Irving Talks to Harvard Students.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., March 16.—Henry Irving addressed the Harvard students in Cambridge at a meeting which succeeding. Sanders' theater was packed with members of the university, both students and faculty, and also of Radcliffe college. Mr. Irving confined his remarks to "Individualism," urging every young man to develop his own powers rather than copy others because he is popular. He merely touched on the dramatic art.

Anarchist Club Raided.

LONDON, March 16.—Inspector Melville, with a posse of detectives, made a raid on the International Toilet club in Bennett street, in a small hall there, situated near the Autocomic, in the center of the foreign quarter. All the occupants of the place were searched, and a young Frenchman was arrested. A large amount of anarchistic literature was also seized.

Mrs. Miller's Death Suspicious.

NEW LONDON, Conn., March 16.—The suspicion of the authorities has been aroused over the death of Mrs. Dr. Henry Miller, wife of a Baptist minister, which occurred Thursday. Miller belongs in Yonkers, N. Y. The funeral of Mrs. Miller has been delayed by the order of the coroner, who is investigating.

CURIOUS YOUNG FOLKS

A STRANGE SHARK.

The Curious Friendship Between It and Some Small Fishes.

The hammer headed shark has received its name on account of the extraordinary structure of its head, the eyes being placed at each end of the hammer like form, giving to this creature a most singular appearance, quite distinct from all other rovers of the sea. Five specimens of this shark are known, which are most abundant in the tropical seas. Specimens of this species have often been observed when the voyager was looking down into the clear, deep blue of the ocean.

THE HAMMER HEADED SHARK.

The whole shark tribe is more or less ferocious, and perhaps the Greenland shark is the most terrible of them all. It is extremely tenacious of life and so fierce that it does not hesitate to attack the whale, sending out with every bite large masses of its flesh, while the agonized whale lashes the water in vain efforts to drive off its tormentor. With regard to the hammer headed shark and others frequenting the warmer latitudes a curious circumstance is frequently mentioned. They are often seen attended by three or more small fishes (they are called pilot fish) resembling mackerel. Between these small attendants and the shark a singular friendship is said to exist. An observer has stated that they will interpose between their friend and the baited hook, and running against it sounds will turn him from it. On the other hand, when they see no danger they will direct him to the bait.

About Paper and Stamps.

Hold a leaf of St. Nicholas between yourself and the light, says that journal. It is printed on paper of a quality. A sheet of this writing paper may be found, in which you will see a great many fine parallel lines. This is "laid" paper. When these lines are very fine indeed and the paper appears slightly raised along them, it is known as "ribbed." When the laid lines cross each other at right angles, the paper is called "quadrille." "Watermarks" of the maker's name may be seen in almost any sheet of writing paper. Watermarks in stamps are best seen when they are moist.

"Proofs" are impressions of stamps taken for various purposes from the die or plate, but not for use in prepaying postage. They are usually unperforated.

"Essays" are proofs of stamps which have never been adopted for use.

MILLINERY, DRY GOODS, MATTINGS AND HOUSE FURNISHINGS.

"Provisionals" are stamps issued by a government to supply a temporary need. They may be surplus stock of certain values with a new value put over the old, called a "surcharge," or, as in the case of Bolivia, a lithograph or a poor native print made and used until a new supply of stamps is received from the engravers having the contract to furnish them.

Envelope stamps are of little value if not on the envelope, because few form them when cut to shape. Cutting square preserves the condition of the stamp, and spaces provided in albums are always of square shape.

The United States has issued more postage stamps than any other country.

Enough to Set an American Boy Crazy.

William E. Meehan, of the Peary relief expedition, writing in Golden Days about Eskimo children's games and toys, says that of all the playthings in this world the Eskimos have perhaps one of the most curious, and one which would set even an American boy crazy before he learned to master it. It reminds one in its playing somewhat of the "cup and balls," though in the appearances of the playing itself there is little resemblance to that toy.

It is made of a piece of ivory about 4 inches long and slightly curved, but with square sides. Through one end a hole the circumference of a steel crochet needle is bored diagonally, and another straight through at the opposite end.

In the center is fastened one end of a piece of cord half the length of the ivory. To the other end of this cord an ivory skewer 2 or 3 inches long is attached. In playing, the skewer is held in the hand, and the ivory bone is thrown loose. The object is to pierce over in the two holes with the skewer, the diagonal one preferably.

Hokee Wokee Wee.

There was once a curious old Chinee
Whose name was Hokee Wokee Wee.
Never a man was so fond as he—
So very fond as he—of tea.

At last this queer old Chinaman had
A very peculiar kind of fad—
That he was a teapot he made no doubt,
And he called to his friends to pour him out.

"Will nobody pour me out, I say?
For, oh, dear me! I'm boiling away,
And tea is spoilt if it's left to stand,
But be careful, do, or you'll burn your hand."

Truly indeed it was and to see
The whimsical ways of that old Chinee,
For when it was time to go off to bed
He plucked himself up from the hot tea pot.

THE CURIOSITY SHOP

EARLY HANDWRITING OF NOTE.

Signatures of Queen Elizabeth, Mary, Queen of Scots, Lady Jane Grey, Etc.

Whether the early English kings and princes could write or not is not always certain, but after the conquest 900 years elapsed before they left specimens of their calligraphy. A collection of facsimiles of these, with many explanatory details, has recently been made, from which it is learned that at the period just referred to names were appended to documents, but the writing is that of the scribes, and only attested by the sign of the cross, though even that was not always made with a pen and to often stamped. Of this kind we have examples reaching back to the conqueror and including kings, queens, bishops and nobles, but no royal hand writing is produced earlier than the latter part of the fourteenth century, the first being that of Edward, the Black Prince, in 1370, and the next that of Richard II, in 1395, after which royal writing becomes more frequent. There are letters by Henry IV, both in French and in English. The first sample of a woman's signature is that of Jaquetta of Luxemburg, wife of the Regent Bedford, to whom she was married in 1433.

The first English queen whose handwriting has been preserved is Elizabeth Woodville, wife of Edward IV, but it is a signature only and dates from several years after Edward's death. With Henry VIII we enter upon a new era, for not only did he write much himself, but of Henry's half dozen wives we have examples of the handwriting of five—Catherine of Aragon, Anne Boleyn, Jane Seymour, Anne of Cleves and Catherine Howard. Among these a letter written by Anne Boleyn is a beautiful specimen of penmanship.

Edward VI, both as prince and king, was a careful and diligent scribe. Of the Lady Jane Grey, whose shadow of a reign is so well known, we get a few examples, including her stolen device as "Jane the Quene." Queen Mary furnishes signatures to some important documents, but Elizabeth's is much more fully illustrated and at various periods of her life. Subsequent kings and rulers have left abundant examples of their writing, many of them historically interesting.

A Curious Siamese Custom.

Among the curious customs observed in Siam and that still maintain to the present day, though modified in some cases through present contact with western nations, the following may be of interest:

Men are often subjected to severe punishment for very trifling offenses, and the most degrading accord, though intensely painful and galling, are borne with apparently complete indifference. It is not an uncommon occurrence for the king to sentence two men to be chained together, whereupon they compelled to go about perhaps for years yoked in this manner, as no one dare release them without the king's permission, and of course he soons forgets the circumstance.

An instance of this character occurred not very long ago, when one of the prisoners died, and the other unfortunate wretch was seen dragging the body of his late companion about beside him, unable to escape from his horrible yoke. The European consuls, shocked by the sight, endeavored to obtain his immediate release, but during the delay occasioned by the absence of the king the poor fellow became insane and soon afterward died.

Jenny Lind's Tribute to Payne.

No American poet ever received a more enviable compliment, says The New England Magazine, than one paid to John Howard Payne by Jenny Lind on his last visit to his native land. It was in the great National hall in the city of Washington, where the most distinguished audience that had ever been seen in the capital of the republic was assembled. The matchless singer stood alone at the front during with her most exquisite melodies—"Casta Diva," the "Flute Song," the "Bird Song" and the "Greeting to America." But the great feature of the occasion seemed to be an act of inspiration. The great singer suddenly turned her face toward the part of the auditorium where John Howard Payne was sitting and sang "Home, Sweet Home" with such pathos and power that a whirlwind of excitement and enthusiasm swept through the vast audience. Webster himself lost all control, and one might readily imagine that Payne thrilled with rapture at this unexpected and magnificent rendition of his own immortal lyric.

At the Kimberley Diamond Mines.

The compound is a wide space within a great stockade about 12 feet high. Strong wire netting is fastened above, so that it looks like a monstrous aviary. Here the natives who work in the mines live to the number of I am afraid to say how many hundreds. They engage to work in the mine for a term of months, agreeing to remain prisoners for that period. They sleep in sheds round the compound, have shops where they can buy what they choose and dens where they smoke a sort of narcotic plant, in its effects not unlike Indian hemp. All these precautions are taken to prevent the diamonds being stolen. But for the wire the men would throw the stones over the stockade. As it is, they contrive to steal some. The difficulty is to find out which of the compound. A day or two before their time expires they are carefully searched.

HOW TO STAND.

The Center of Gravity in the Right Place Gives the Easiest of Positions.

What is the normal poise of the body? The New York Herald says: It is expressive of physical buoyancy, but no light, springy movement can ever be made when the center of gravity is over the heels. You must keep the center of gravity over the balls of the feet. Then you will be ready for any movement, and the abdominal muscles will keep their tone longer than they otherwise would. It is very common for one to experience a sensation of falling when one first tries to keep the center of gravity over the balls of the feet. Emily Bishop says that all her pupils cry out at first: "Oh, I can't stand this way! I shall tip over. It's unnatural." But in the latter they say: "I feel so much lighter and younger than when my weight rested on my heels. Why, this is the easiest position I ever had."

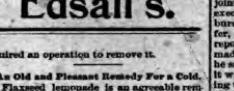
You see, when you suddenly change the position of years, when the upper part of your body really falls forward from one-half of an inch to two inches normally you feel a little queer, but you will soon become used to it. Well, then, take the position assumed in the second exercise and let the weight come upon both feet, which remain flat upon the ground. Now keep the knees, hips and shoulder points stationary, and moving the body as one member from the ankles to the crown of the head sway slowly forward until the center of gravity is directly over the balls of the feet. Then sway backward until it is over the heels. Repeat this movement a dozen times, making it each time more slowly than the last.

A Cinder In the Eye.

Nine persons out of every ten with a cinder or any foreign substance in the eye will instantly begin to rub the eyes with one hand while hunting for their handkerchief with the other. They may and sometimes do remove the offending cinder, but more frequently they run it in. The eye becomes inflamed, bind a handkerchief around the head and go to bed. This is all wrong. The better way is not to rub the eye with the cinder in it at all, but rub the other eye as vigorously as you like, according to a writer in The Medical Summary, who relates the following experiment:

A few years since I was riding on the engine of a fast express. The engineer threw open the front window, and I caught a cinder that gave me the most excruciating pain. I began to rub the eye with both hands. "Let your eye alone and rub the other eye" (like from the engineer). I thought he was chaffing me and worked the harder. "I know you doctors think you know it all, but if you will let that eye alone and rub the other one the cinder will be out in two minutes," persisted the engineer. I began to rub the other eye, and soon I felt the cinder down near the inner canthus and made ready to take it out. "Let it alone and keep at the well eye," shouted the doctor pro tem. I did so for a minute longer, and looking in a small glass he gave me I found the offender on my cheek. Since then I have tried it many times and have advised many others, and I have never known it to fail in one instance unless it was as sharp as a piece of steel or something that cut into the ball and required an operation to remove it.

An Old and Pleasant Remedy For a Cold.
Hot lemonade is an agreeable remedy for a cold, especially when the throat is sore and rasped with coughing. To a pint of water add 2 small teaspoonfuls of the seed, the juice of 2 lemons, not using the rind, and sweeten to taste. If too pasty, dilute with water. This should be taken either hot or decidedly cold.



VARIOUS BITS OF GOOD FORM.

The Size of Paper—At Afternoon Tea. About Invitations, Regrets, Etc.

The following useful items on social matters are gleaned from Harper's Bazar: Letter paper measures 8¾ by 7¾, packet about 8¾ by 4¼, and billet 3 by 5. There is another variety in odd sizes. The conventional sizes are always the best style, in white or pale cream tint paper.

The tea table or the table is prettier than the floor standard. For your drawing room tea table you need a pretty assortment of cups and saucers. Variety is better than a set in this respect, preferably of china, a sugar dish with small tongs, a tray for sliced lemon and a pretty plate for biscuit or bread and butter. Very few ladies care to serve in drawing room tea. A dish of almonds or bonbons may be added.

Husbands do not exist at teas. Cards are only left for the hostess and her daughters—one for the ladies whose names appear on the card of invitation. Cards are not left for the young girls in the receiving party unless they are resident in the house.

As to the number of cards to be left, two of your husband's and one of your own for each of the couples in the house.

You may ask men to call again or not, as you may desire. You can at least say you are very pleased to have entertained them. You should say good evening at your reception room door. A first call should be returned within two weeks.

A lady may wear a tea gown in her own home whenever she chooses. It is perfectly appropriate throughout the afternoons to receive casual visitors in informally or even to wear at her own dinner table if it pleases her. When visiting, she would best be guided by the habits of the household with whom she is staying.

Invitations to dinners or to theater parties should be promptly accepted or declined. It is not customary to send acceptances to teas. If you do not attend, you should send your calling card during the hours of the reception. Inclose it in an envelope and send either by post or by a servant.

Calling cards for social use by a lady who is also a physician should not bear the professional title. They should read Mrs. John Jones Smith, while those for professional use should read Mrs. John Jones Smith, M. D.

It is not correct to write "regrets" or "accepts" on a card. You may either leave or send your cards on the day of reception as a regret or for more formal affairs write a note of regret or acceptance. The fashion of folding calling cards is obsolete. There is no such thing as a "visiting card."

A man usually offers a woman his right arm. It is extremely bad taste for a man to take a woman's arm in the street.

BLAND BILL PASSED.

The Senate Voted In Favor of the Seigniorage Coinage Measure.

WASHINGTON, March 16.—The last day of the debate on the Bland seigniorage bill attracted a large crowd to the senate, and the galleries were well filled. The first part of the day was taken up by the transaction of some routine morning business and by the speeches of Senators Carey, Palmer, Dubois, Mitchell of Oregon and Pettigrew.

Senator Harris asked that the bill be put upon its final passage in accordance with the agreement arrived at several days ago. The yeas and nays being demanded, the bill was passed by a vote of 44 to 30.

The senate also passed several bills of minor importance and then went into executive session and passed upon a large number of nominations. When the doors were reopened, several unimportant bills were passed, and the senate adjourned until Monday.

In the house the consideration of the sundry civil bill was completed excepting those portions passed over during the reading of the bill. The principal light was made by Mr. Enloe of the coast and geodetic surveys and transfer the former to the navy and the latter to the interior department. The amendment looking to this transfer, as he showed by letters, was indorsed both by Secretary Carlisle and Secretary Herbert, but after a long debate it was ruled out on a point of order.

Mr. Enloe then modified his amendment so as to authorize an investigation by the joint committee on the expenditures in the executive departments of the work of that bureau and the advisability of the transfer, giving the committee instructions to report in full for this purpose. Mr. Enloe made a vicious attack on the survey, which, he said, had exceeded the limits for which it was designed and was annually spending thousands in useless work. Over $30,000,000 had been spent by the survey altogether, and the present bill carried $800,000 for the prosecution of the work during the next year.

No action was had on the amendment. After this paragraph is disposed of today only three sundry civil items—the appropriations for the Missouri river, for the United States courts and the proposed change of method in auditing the accounts of the National Soldiers' home.

HE SNORED TOO LOUDLY

FRANK MANCHESTER'S TRIAL AT TRINITY CHURCH.

He was Found Guilty and Sentenced to Sleep alone for One Month, and Out Doors at That.—A Little Rub to the World-be-Postmasters.

WHEN the trial(mock) of Frank Manchester came off in Trinity church last night, the lecture room was crowded with people.

It was decidedly interesting. The extraordinary charge was not for breach of promise, but that Frank Manchester had been snoring too loudly. What a charge! Witnesses in being questioned by one lawyer would tell a seemingly straight story and two minutes later, on being cross-examined, would tell a story so entirely different that the audience was in continual laughter. A few minutes after eight o'clock a commotion was heard near where the judge, jury and witnesses were to be. On closer inspection it proved to be the court crier and sheriff, who was calling out, "All ye who have any business with the court," etc., at which everyone moved nearer the front that they might hear all.

Judge Coddington, trying hard to look stern, was the first to take his chair. After him followed the lawyer for the prosecution in behalf of the State, Chas. McNabb.

Lawyers Robert Clark and C. E. Anthony for the defendant next took their seats.

The sheriff then proceeded to call the jury—"Mark Twain, Herr Most, John Wanamaker," etc., until twelve were assembled.

Next the jury was sworn in. The judge looked for something on which the jury might be sworn in. A shining book was produced, "no," said the judge, "it will not do." A copy of THE NEWS was then produced, and, as the judge was willing, the jury was sworn in—three at a time, on that. The witnesses were sworn in under the following oath:

"Do you solemnly swear that the evidence which you shall give in this case of the State plaintiff and Frank Manchester, defendant, shall be as little of the truth as you know, so help you forever?"

Miss Jennie Matthews was the first witness called. "I do," she responded, whereupon the lawyer proceeded to examine her.

The witness stated that she had heard strange noises during the night as though there were rats in the garrett, or swallows in the chimney. Counsel for the defendant, Mr. Clark, then proceeded to examine the witness. "Have you ever been in the garrett," he asked as a starter. This question was followed by shouts of laughter from the audience so that Judge Coddington had to rap on the table to procure "order in the court." The question was followed by "Have you swallows in your chimney?" "No," said the witness.

"Do you ever swallow," asked Mr. Clark.

"No," said the witness.

Mr. Clark then gave up in disgust.

Chauncey Colthar was the next witness. Mr. McNabb in examining him asked, "What were you doing on the night that this case is charged with loud snoring?"

Answer—"Before the court."

Question—"Without the owner's consent?"

Answer—"Yes."

At this the lawyer said "I know that we indict the witness for chicken stealing."

"I object" shouted Mr. Anthony, "the chickens were not hatched yet," and the motion to indict Mr. Colthar was lost.

Geo. De Even said he by his heard the prisoner snore in Scotch Plains, as had also Dr. Cat-lem-ap—Mr. R. Clark, Sr., and they were willing to swear that the prisoner was the cause of these strange and unnatural disturbances.

Bert Crawford testified that he and seventeen members of Alert Hose Company had traced the sound to the prisoner's house, at three o'clock in the morning. On being asked what he was doing out at such a time, the witness stated that the firemen were out listening for the blowing of the fire gong, and that they thought it had blown about every box on the circuit.

Counsel McNabb then tried to prove that the prisoner had moved so loudly that he had been known to stop a train on the railroad. Edgar Sheppard, another witness, quickly frustrated this plan of Mr. McNabb's by saying that the noise which stopped the train had been made by those who were waiting for the post office, and that they made noise enough to stop two trains, as no one had yet been appointed.

Ed. Weaver, as engineer of the train which had been stopped, stated that the train had not been stopped by any loud noise, but that a (moon) beam on the track was the cause of the stoppage.

Madame Rush (Miss Dunlap) said that she lived a few houses from the prisoner but had never been troubled or awakened in the night by any strange noise.

Miss Crawford, said that she lived in New Brunswick and that she had frequently heard strange noises coming from the direction of Plainfield.

Mr. Mettler said he lived in Scotch Plains and had frequently heard the prisoner snore.

Mr. McNabb said he did not deem it necessary to sum up as they had already proved that the prisoner was guilty.

Mr. Anthony for the defense said that to prove he he was not guilty, he would say that the jarring of the earth was not due to the loud snoring but to the fall of real estate in Round Brook and Somerville, when Plainfield sat in the water works, and that the noises heard in Scotch Plains was the babel of those who were seeking the Plainfield post office.

The jury, which was composed of J. P. Lairy, foreman, A. E. Johnson, Miss Bogart, H. T. Marshall, J. Owen Smith, Miss N. Fenner, Joseph Bouyon, Julius Williams, John Van Winckler, Jr., Mr. R. Mettler, Ed. Rose and Thos. E. Cairns, then retired, and, in a short time, brought in a verdict of "Guilty," and added further: "We recommend the full extent of the law, and that he shall sleep alone and outdoors for one month."

That the prisoner was discharged. He then partook of refreshments with the rest.

BREVITIES.

—To-day is St. Patrick's Day.

—To-night, a song service in the W. C. T. U. rooms.

—Another harbinger of Spring. Chief Grant says he saw a Reed Bird this morning.

—The Salvation Army will hold noonday prayer meetings all next week. Everybody invited.

—The bible training classes of the Y. M. C. A. will meet this evening at eight o'clock, and on Sunday at 9:15 a. m.

—Justice Mosher yesterday issued summons in the contract case of Pottstown Mills Sugar Co. vs. Darby, returnable the 24th.

—Four bottles of liquor were stolen from the window of Charles Smith's saloon last night. The window had been left unfastened.

—There will be no meeting of the City Common Council Monday night, as the Fire and Buildings Committee will not be ready to report.

—The drum corps with the minstrels here yesterday visited the Independent Fire and Drum Corps in their rooms, on West Second street, in the afternoon.

—In the contest for the old one-horn cannon, offered by Engine Co. No. 2, to the most popular Grand Army Post in the State, the Elizabeth Post is now in the lead.

—A meeting of the Brainer creditors was held at three o'clock yesterday afternoon at Justice Nash's office. All but two of the creditors agreed to take 10 per cent.

—In consequence of the great success of "Rosedale," on the little Bijou at the Star Theatre, New York City, a special matinee will be given next Wednesday, March 21st.

—The black horse formerly used to the hook and ladder truck is being tried by Thorpe & Ivins, the coal and lumber dealers of Washington avenue. If the animal proves satisfactory it is their intention to buy him.

—Fairview avenue, the new street through Watchung Park, is soon to have all the improvements. The water pipes are being laid and men are also engaged erecting electric light poles.

—"Doctor," the St. Bernard dog, which has traveled with the Guy Bros. Minstrels, died while en route to this city, yesterday. The animal was lifted from the baggage car by four men and taken to South Plainfield for burial.

—The Young People's Society for Christian Endeavor of the First Baptist church held a consecration meeting last night in the lecture room of the church. One new member was taken in and several applications received for membership.

—A company has been formed of which Mr. Charles Hand of this city is a member for the purpose of placing advertising signs along the Central Railroad between here and Roselle, and along the Pennsylvania, between Elizabeth and New Brunswick.

—The Red Men conferred the Warrior's degree on three candidates last night. The Room Committee reported that a contract had been given to the Jackson Awning Co. to cover the floor of Red Men's Hall with cresh which will be used when there is dancing.

—The handsome new team of horses for Zephyr Hook and Ladder Company were measured for collars yesterday by J. H. Sayers, and were found to measure 22 and 24 inches respectively. The necks of the horses are much larger once more around than any other team in town.

—"White of Plainfield" is getting to be something like "Mr. Barnes of New York, that is, a well known title and "White of Plainfield" endeavors to keep the addition to the title of "the place for bargains" by constantly having them. Mr. White's clever advertisement to-day is a sample of the attractions he has to offer. Read it.

—Thorpe & Ivins, the coal and lumber dealers, were determined to sustain their reputation for the trucking horses. Their big grays always attract attention on the street and now they have secured the splendid black horse from the Fire Department truck team. Mr. Thorpe believes it only baked through nervousness caused by the excitement incident to starting for a fire.

—Werner's clothing house on West Front street is now stocked, according to his announcement, with the latest styles in Spring and Summer clothing for men, boys and children. Easter Sunday seems to be the time selected by many for donning Spring clothing, so Mr. Werner's advertisement of his opening day is quite timely. Special space is also given in his large store for hats and man's furnishings.

THE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

AN ENJOYABLE SOCIABLE AT GRACE M. E. CHURCH.

Epworth Leagues Present from Dunellen, New Market, Westfield, Vincent Chapel and Monroe Avenue Chapel.

Cozy Grace M. E. church never seemed cozier and never held a more sociable gathering than last night, when members of the Epworth Leagues of Westfield, Dunellen and New Market, Monroe avenue chapel, and Vincent chapel assembled there at the invitation of the Epworth League of that church.

After a violin solo by Mrs. Dicke Winckler, the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Randolph in a few pleasant remarks welcomed the visitors to Grace church. He said they had been invited there first to be seen, and second to see them.

Mr. Konzie, of Dunellen, responded in an equally pleasant strain. He said he had been on his knees all day and was not prepared to make an address. (He had been stretching carpet and had kept his temper so well as a man putting up stove pipe.) He said he hoped the meeting would be the forerunner of many just such gatherings.

The programme was then concluded as follows:

Dialogue—"A Mistake"
Mr. Konzie, Mr. E. E. Winckler and Miss Agnes Tingley.
Piano Solo.....Miss May MacDonald
Character Infantry of young ladies and 8 little girls.....Misses Grace Carroll, Miss Clara Nelson, Miss Carrie Tingley, Mrs. I. A. Hoagland, Miss Mary Hoagland, Miss Mamie Hoagland, Miss Margaret Schenck and Miss Alice Loomis, the latter dressed as Uncle Sam; Misses Winckler, Edith Park, Alice and Ed. Howard, Myrtle Cory, Fannie Yocum and Edith Loomis.
Dialogue—"Lovely and Married Life".....
Mr. Loomis and Miss Carrie Tingley.
Quintette.....Mrs. A. Hampton, C. Hampton, E. E. Winckler, Mrs. Loomis and "F. H. Griffen
Dialogue—"Deaf as a Post".....Miss Grace Carroll, Miss Margaret Schenck and Mr. D. Winckler.

A bounteous supply of refreshments were then brought forth and this closed the first union meeting of the Epworth League.

A TEN YEARS OLD CULPRIT.

Arrested Last Evening at Dunellen for Stealing Coal.

"Dannie" Kaldorhes, aged ten years, was observed by Detective Corin, of the Central Railroad, last evening about seven o'clock, on a street in Dunellen, driving a little express wagon filled with coal.

The officer inquired of the little fellow where he got the coal, and was informed that it was from the "Round House."

He accompanied "Dannie" to his home and subsequently, after in spite of the vigorous protests of Mrs. Kaldorhes, who is a widow, her husband having been killed on the Newark Bay bridge, February 10, 1894.

The officer, his tiny prisoner and mother, appeared before Justice-of-the-Peace Haff who said that the law gave him the power to send the culprit to the Reform School, but, out of sympathy for Mrs. Kaldorhes, and upon her promise that her son should not do so again, he would let him off.

Found a Pocketbook.

John Gant, who is employed by Mr. M. C. Dubbins, on Park avenue, found a pocket-book containing over a hundred dollars in front the store this morning. It proved to be the property of Mr. Geo. F. Opdyke of Eighth street, to whom the boy returned it.

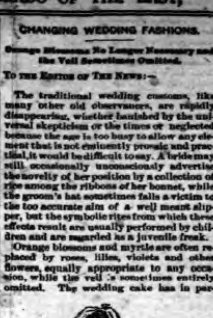
CHANGING WEDDING FASHIONS.

Orange Blossoms No Longer Necessary and the Veil Sometimes Omitted.



BRIDAL TOILET.

To THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—

The traditional wedding customs, like many other old observances, are rapidly disappearing, whether banished by the universal skepticism or the times or neglected because the age is too busy to allow any elaborate ritual, it would be difficult to say. At the same time, occasionally unconsciously advertise the novelty of her position by a collection of flowers, equally appropriate to any occasion, while the veil is sometimes entirely omitted. The wedding cake has in part regular degenerated most lamentably. Far from cutting it herself, the bride seldom even sees it, and it is brought from the confectioner's in the form of small slabs already packed in white and silver boxes tied with white ribbon and so delivered to the wedding guest after the bridal couple have departed.

The custom of dressing the bridesmaids in white is also falling into disuse, and with some show of reason, for it is entirely suitable that white should be left for the bride's exclusive wear. Delicate pinks, blues and yellows not only set off to perfection her snowy apparel, but lend a superficial cheerfulness to the bride's appearance, which is by no means to be encouraged in the modern wedding, usually almost as melancholy an occasion as a funeral.

To be married in traveling costume is a convenient and offhand method, but as the white regalia is one of the few poetic survivals in an age of hard facts, and a woman can array herself in it but once in her life, it seems rather a pity when she does not wear it on the one occasion. A sketch is given of the bridal gown at a recent Paris wedding. It is of ivory white satin merveilleux and has a bell skirt with piped seams and a demi train. The bottom of the skirt is trimmed with a flounce of guipure festooned with piquets of orange blossoms. The round bodice is slightly draped in front and has a wide guipure collar, while the large sleeves consist of a puff reaching to the elbow, where it is finished by a flounce of lace. A tulle veil is worn, secured by an orange spray.

The Switchman Averted a Wreck.

A wreck was narrowly averted on the Central Railroad this afternoon, about half past two. A heavy P. & R. coal train bound East was passing the North avenue station at a good rate of speed. The switchman threw the switch. The engineman of the Church street crossing taking in the situation quickly ran across the tracks and closed the switch. Had he been in his shanty he would have been too late, as it was he was just in time.

The Clothes Line Thief Again.

A clothes line in the back yard of Mrs. Fredberry, on West Sixth street was robbed of line, etc., Tuesday night. Yesterday morning the footprints of the thief, evidently a woman, were traced through the back way to Fifth street where they became indistinct owing to the hard earth.

The Trouble was on Madison Avenue.

After searching all yesterday afternoon for the cause of the fire alarm gong blowing, Chief Dunne finally located the trouble on Madison avenue. A wire had broken in two, but the covering held it together so that it was not easily discerned.

DUNN STANDS FIRM.

HE SAYS HE WILL STICK TO HETFIELD.

Says he has Discharged his Obligation to Mr. Martine.—That Done, he Claims the Latter has no Right to Dictate What he Shall Next do.

The Washington correspondent of the Trenton True American writes as follows to that paper concerning Plainfield's postmastership:

The recommendation of John M. Hetfield to be postmaster at Plainfield, which was made recently by Representative Dunn, has occasioned considerable disturbance in that town. It was expected that a delegation would be here to-day in the interest of Mr. R. M. Stover, but it did not put in an appearance. Mr. Dunn talks in his usual vigorous way about the matter. To a correspondent to-day he said:

"Mr. Hetfield was recommended to me as a business man and as a Democrat by men who express, in my judgment, the true interests of the Democratic party. Among them is Judge William A. Coddington, who came down here personally to endorse the appointment to the Postmaster-General and gave his word of honor that the office would be administered for the good of the people and the Democratic party. I prefer to take my inspiration, after a careful review of the field, from the fresh and young Democracy of Plainfield rather than from those who repel Democrats from the Democratic camp.

"I consider no personal obligation," continued Mr. Dunn, "to any one man in Plainfield more than another. What I wanted was to find a good business Democrat. I believe I have got him and I propose to stand by him. Mr Martine claimed the right to name the postmaster, and insisted upon Mr Stover and nobody else. I offered the postmastership to Mr. Martine himself, but he refused it with indignation. If there was any obligation between Mr. Martine and myself, by which I should recognize him, that obligation was discharged when I offered the position to him. He has been looking for a political office, and this would fit him finally, if he wanted recognition such as he has the right, from his standpoint, to claim at my hands. Having discharged that obligation, he had no right to dictate that I should appoint those whom I had determined in my own mind from experience, knowledge and inquiry, to be unfit for the place and who would not give satisfaction to the people.

"This is my position," concluded Mr. Dunn "and I care not how much they may threaten, I can afford to have them defeat me, if they have the power, but I cannot afford to be run by any one man when I was elected by the people to perform the duties of that office. If I propose to be the Congressman from my district. I don't propose that Mr. Martine or any one else shall be the Congressman when I have determined what course I shall pursue. That is not for myself and my constituency alone, but for the party, while the large sleeves consist of a puff reaching to the elbow, where it is finished by a flounce of lace. A tulle veil is worn, secured by an orange spray.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

MASSACHUSETTS'S FAST DAY NO MORE.

The Bill Abolishing the Ancient Institution signed by the Governor.

BOSTON, March 17.—"Fast Day" is now no more in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. The Governor, a few minutes before 5 o'clock last evening, signed the bill abolishing this ancient holiday, which has been observed in this State for more than two centuries.

The pen used was from the wing of an American eagle. It will be placed in the rooms of the Lexington Historical Society in remembrance of the establishment of April 19 as a public holiday in place of the day of fasting and prayer.

A Parliamentary Drill in Plainfield.

The State W. C. T. U. have been fortunate in securing Mrs. A. R. Benjamin of Ohio, the National Superintendent of Parliamentary Usage to go through New Jersey and lecture on this most important subject: "Help keep good order and form time to the best account by being prepared to make and second motions, also, brief and pointed debate." Where there is of such value as in Plainfield, every society will be glad to be represented and learn how better to do business and especially must be present.

The W. C. T. U. of Plainfield has secured three evenings and an afternoon, April 3d, 4th and 5th, for these parliamentary drills. Place of meetings will be announced later.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Draws the Line on Chewing Rags.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—It has been the custom of several retired and reputable citizens for many years to have a place for daily resort, each one paying the pro-rata amount of rent. We have had no formal organization, and are entirely without rules or name. An attempt by some well-meaning "wag" or "wags" to name us christen us with the name of "Asbestos," meeting with no disclaimer on our part has become associated with our identity. Your co-temporary, under this caption, publishes a belittling imputation regardless of cause, which we have taken, if he had not dubbed us a rag-chewing organization, which we indignantly resent, and appeal to your generous paper for a place to deny the slur bestowed that the writer would like to associate us with.

KILLED BY A TRAIN.

Frederick Demott Walked in Front of One at Cranford.

Frederick Demott of the Lehigh Valley Railroad and a member of the fire department at Aldene, was killed last night on the Central Railroad at Cranford Junction by a west-bound freight. Demott had been to Cranford and walked, it is said by the engineer, directly into the engine. The tracks were strewn with crackers which Demott had bought at Cranford. The body was brought to Elizabeth morgue.

Laurence Green was arraigned in the city court this morning charged with peddling without a license. He pleaded not guilty and he is to be given a trial.

TARIFF BILL NEXT WEEK

It Will Probably Be Reported to the Senate on Tuesday.

FREE LIST HAS BEEN EXTENDED.

Mr. Eaton's Second Attack on the Coast and Geodetic Survey Appropriation Was a Failure—More Private Pension Bills Considered—Republicans Polled Case.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Mr. Eaton's second amendment, aimed at the coast and geodetic survey, providing for the investigation of that bureau and a determination of the advisability of its transfer to the navy and interior departments, was defeated in the house by a majority of 25 votes.

No amendments at all to this paragraph were adopted except one changing the verbiage of the clause regulating the secretary of the treasury to reduce the office force of the bureau to bring it within $25,000, so as to conform to the act in connection therewith with the civil service law in so far as it applied to the coast and geodetic survey.

The latter part of the afternoon was devoted to a consideration of the appropriation of $750,000 for the Missouri river commission. No action was had, however, upon the amendments offered. The evening session was devoted to the consideration of private pension bills.

Progress of the Tariff Bill.

Senators representing both the Democratic and Republican sides of the senate committee on finance expressed the opinion at the close of the committee meeting that the bill would be reported to the senate on Tuesday next. They stated, however, that no agreement to this effect had been entered into, but that the opinion was the result of a knowledge of the progress that had been made upon the bill and that full committees has been in possession of it.

The entire time of the meeting was devoted to a general perfecting of the work of collecting the revenue in both the tariff and the internal revenue parts of the bill, and it was announced at the close that this part of the work had been practically completed. Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Hamlin was again with the committee during the afternoon for the purpose of making suggestions and answering questions as to the operation of the various provisions of the bill bearing upon its administration by the department.

When the Republican members of the committee withdrew the Democratic members went into consultation upon the suggestions made by the Republican members. They had discussed with the Republicans the points made by them in full committee, but formed it necessary to hold a party conference before announcing any decision. There are some indications that several changes will be made in accordance with the opinions advanced, and one of the Republican members of the committee stated that he thought that practically all the changes suggested by the minority would be adopted, which would, he said, leave the administrative part of the bill very similar to the bill as it now stands in this respect.

The committee will take up its schedules at its meeting today, and it is presumed that it will devote itself to considering any proposed changes in the free list paragraphs of the bill which the members, both Democrats and Republicans, may think should be changed.

The appearances now are that the Democrats will have quite a large number of changes which they will agree upon, and these changes will include the transfer of a number of articles to the free list which were made dutiable in the senate bill before the sugar duty had been agreed upon. The latest department estimates make it appear that the bill will give a larger revenue than will be needed by the government, which will afford the committee an opportunity to make a greater number of articles free than would have been possible if the sugar duty had not been imposed.

The Breckinridge-Pollard Trial.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Two distinct sensations were furnished in the Pollard-Breckinridge breach of promise trial. The foremost was the appearance of the slender plaintiff on the stand as a witness in her own behalf, but the one of greatest interest to legal circles was the corroborative testimony of Miss Lucy Holcombe, a real days afloat that Colonel Breckinridge was secretly married to Mrs. Louise Wing in New York last April—three months before the publication of the engagement.

When Colonel Breckinridge was shown the dispatch from New York, he refused to admit its truth or to contradict it. His counsel and law partner, Colonel Shelby, however, confirmed the report, as did Attorney Stoll. The latter said when inquiry was made whether the defense would be based on this earlier marriage, "It would not be proper to forecast our case at this stage, but I will say that Colonel Breckinridge has the documentary proof of his marriage certificate filed by Dr. Paxton, of course that speaks for itself."

Judge Jere Wilson of Miss Pollard's counsel, seemed much pleased by the report from New York. "That helps our case decidedly," he said. "I hope they will bring that matter into the trial. It furnishes no defense whatever against the breach of promise. All the authorities agree upon that."

The remark by Attorney Stoll was the first authoritative statement of the intention of the defendant to take the stand in his own defense, and it will be anticipated as an event of even greater interest than the appearance of Miss Pollard, for so far there has been no intimation of the plea to be made in contravention of the evidence for the plaintiff, the consensus of opinion among the audience, though, appeared to endorse as the most probable one, Throughout the trial the defense has deprecated and avoided any allusion to the personal wife of Colonel Breckinridge or to the late Mrs. Breckinridge, but when the defendant takes the stand references to his marriage with the latter will be inevitable, in every animation at any rate, for Judge Wilson is very sure to ask him when he married Mrs. Wing.

Fourth Class Postmasters Appointed.

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The following fourth class postmasters were appointed:

New York—Evergreen, Chester Skinner; Point Rock, David Sedillo; South Bolivar, N. Y., Frank Wattenberg; Pennsylvania—Wattenberg, H. S. Marlay.

Cousin Convicted of Murder.

HARTFORD, March 17.—John Cronin was convicted in the superior court of murder in the first degree in killing Albert J. Hayward South Windsor, Conn., on Oct. 4, 1893.

DA GAMA TRAPPED.

Rebels Demand His Surrender of the Portuguese Admiral.

BUENOS AYRES, March 17.—A dispatch received here from Rio Janeiro says that President Peixoto insists upon the surrender of Admiral da Gama and the other rebel officers who have taken refuge on board Portuguese warships. The president declares that they will be tried by the ordinary tribunals. The Portuguese admiral has refused to give up the rebels who have sought refuge on board the Portuguese ships, but he has promised to refer the matter to the Portuguese government and to act in accordance with the instructions which he may receive from Lisbon.

The Portuguese steamer Cid de Porto attempted to leave Rio de Janeiro with the insurgents on board, but she was stopped by Fort Santa Cruz, the officer in command of that post threatening to fire upon her if she did not put back.

A dispatch received from Rio Grande do Sul says that Admiral de Mello is actively engaged in organizing land forces. It is reported that the rebels have captured the Aquidaban to attack some of the northern ports of Brazil. The rebel warship Republica is said to be repairing damages and refloating at Montevideo. The Republica boats, under the command of Admiral de Mello, are said to have assembled at the entrance of Santos.

BIG BOWL FIGHT.

An Exciting Struggle at the University of Pennsylvania.

PHILADELPHIA, March 17.—There were more broken bones, more brushed and battered faces, more and more damaged clothing at the great annual bowl fight between the sophomores and the freshmen at the University of Pennsylvania than ever before. Consequently it was a great annual bowl fight in the history of the institution. The struggle lasted for over an hour and was a genuine battle royal. Some of the contestants being so badly injured that they had to be carried off to the university hospital, and many of them had their clothes in such shape as to be useless.

The battle took place on the athletic grounds, at Thirty-seventh and Spruce streets, the freshmen lining up upon the north side of the field with the big wooden bowl in their possession, as is the custom, and the sophomore forces assembling on the south side.

There fully 1,500 spectators of the fight assembled within the grounds, including many fathers and other relatives and friends of the contestants, who watched the affair with the deepest interest, urging on their favorites with cries and shouts.

Two More Fatally Burned.

NEWTOWN, N. Y., March 17.—A dwelling house on the Brinkerhoff estate in this village was burned this morning and two persons were probably fatally burned. The fire was caused by the explosion of a gas lamp. Mrs. Michael Neubent, one of the inmates of the house, was filling a lamp with oil when it exploded. Robert Jaeoskinsky and Cuslen Smith ran to the woman's assistance. Both were severely burned, their clothing oil and their arms and legs were horribly burned. Mrs. Neubent was slightly burned.

Pauwells' Wife Denounces Him.

PARIS, March 17.—In an interview with the widow of Jean Paul Pauwells, the dead anarchist, Mme. Pauwells said that her husband had been an industrious workingman until he became imbued with anarchistic ideas, when he became cruel, and she left him. She said that the death of her husband was a mercy because he would never have rested until he had killed many victims.

The French Premier Explains.

PARIS, March 17.—In the chamber of deputies, during the discussion of the proposed revision of the constitution, Premier Casimir-Perier profited by the occasion to explain the position of the government in regard to Catholics and the members of the Right in order to dispel the idea that the government was seeking an alliance with them.

Veteran Horse Thief Captured.

MALONE, N. Y., March 17.—Lon Clark, a notorious horse thief, was arrested here by Deputy Sheriff Kelsham. Clark has probably stolen more horses throughout northern New York and Vermont than any other man in the country. He is now 60 years of age, has spent half of his life in the prisons of this and other states.

Bank Cashier Arrested.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., March 17.—Cashier A. Bascomb Crawford of the American National bank was arrested for having embezzled about $14,000 of the funds. Crawford, and his two brothers have indorsed for one another until the amount involved is $50,000.

Left His Fortune to a Negress.

ELBERTON, Ga., March 17.—The jury in the contest case of George W. Dyer et al. could not agree, and a mistrial was declared. Dye died about a year ago, leaving $6,000 worth of land and $60,000 in money to an old negress and his children by her.

Anniversary of the Commune Approaches.

PARIS, March 17.—It is expected that the socialists and others will attempt to hold a demonstration on the anniversary of the proclamation of the Commune of Paris. The government has decided to oppose any manifestation on that occasion.

Firemen's Heroism Rewarded.

PROVIDENCE, March 17.—William C. Parker, a fireman, who brought suit for damages against the New York and New England railroad for injuries received in an accident on Aug. 25, 1890, was given a verdict of $6,000.

Religion in the Schools.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 17.—State Superintendent of Public Instruction Voorhees has rendered an important decision to the effect that devotional exercises cannot be enforced in the public schools of the state.

Italians Blown Up.

PROVIDENCE, March 17.—Two Italian laborers who were at work blasting rock at Cranston were blown to pieces by the premature explosion of giant powder. One was killed and the other fatally injured.

Rose Coghlan in an Accident.

HARTFORD, March 17.—Rose Coghlan, the actress, was thrown out of her carriage in a runaway accident. She was badly shaken up, but sustained no serious injury.

Disguised Man Disappears.

DUNKIRK, N. Y., March 17.—John Colver, the church member recently accused of thieving, has disappeared, and his friends fear suicide.

Buried by a Cavein.

PROVIDENCE, March 17.—Martin Kelly was fatally injured by being buried by the caving in of an embankment.

COURTS WILL SETTLE THE ROW.

Regular Troops Still Camped In Denver and State Militia Waiting Under Arms.

Mrs. Waite's Part In the Fuss—Citizens Afraid of a Riot.

DENVER, March 17.—The war is over. At least it is announced by Attorney J. Stevens, who was in consultation with the governor a large portion of the afternoon, that his excellency has accepted the advice of his attorneys and consented to submit the fire and police board question to the supreme court on its merits. The governor says he is still considering the matter, but it is generally believed that Mr. Stevens speaks by the book.

So the Colorado national guard, which was ordered to be ready to take the field on short notice, will not be called into action.

The state troops at Durango, Boulder, Colorado Springs, Grand Junction and other centers had been uniformed and under arms all day, ready to take special trains to Denver, and the state troops in this city have been on call.

Exciting reports have been flying all over the state. Many people regard the governor's military demonstration as a big bluff to show his contempt for Judge Graham's injunction and compel the judge, if possible, to arrest him.

The Troops to Stay.

General McCook's ordering the United States troops to this city has been approved at Washington, and he has removed them from the Union depot to the Gettysburg building on Champa street. There they will remain until further orders. Representatives from the chamber of commerce, prominent attorneys and other distinguished citizens have been laboring much of the day with Governor Waite to submit the matter to the supreme court, which has power to call upon counsel for both the old and the new fire and police boards to present their cases. The interrogatories to the court are based on two points force being in existence.

Sheriff Burchinell sent the following telegram:

To Hon. Daniel S. Lamont, Secretary of War, Washington:

I am quite able to maintain peace, unless the militia of the state is used against me. Nobody but the governor is seeking to disturb the peace, and he is acting in contempt of the district court of this county.

WILLIAM K. BURCHINELL.

Judge Bailey has issued an order for the drawing of a grand jury to meet on Monday. District Attorney Steele has been for some time contemplating the calling together of a grand jury to act on several cases pending, and he thinks it would be well to have it in session until the danger of riot is passed.

"If anybody is killed in the controversy between Governor Waite and the old police board, the person who does the killing and the two police boards who are still in office will be tried for murder," said District Attorney Steele. This means that Governor Waite will be tried for murder if anybody is killed in the dispute now on.

At least 20 people have called on the district attorney and urged him to have the governor tried as to his sanity. It is said that Drs. Eskridge, Pfeffer, and H. E. Lemmon are willing to swear that he is insane. Others wanted him arrested for gathering an unlawful assemblage, but Mr. Steele informed them that this would do little good, as he could give bonds.

Want Waite Arrested as Insane.

A meeting of prominent citizens was held in the office of Caldwell Yeaman to consider the situation and suggest some way out of the difficulty.

It was suggested by one or two present that the governor might very properly be taken into custody as an insane person. This was not very seriously considered, however. Well, Taylor & Taylor, attorneys for the old fire and police board, unequivocally condemned this project when it was presented to them. Several committees were appointed, and one of them went off to consult with General McCook.

The chamber of commerce directory is circulating for signatures of the most prominent attorneys a paper to be given to the press. It relates to military force in time of peace, the constitutional and statutory provisions connected with the use of military force.

The paper denies riot, insurrection or invasion in Denver. The courts are ready to decide the rights of the two boards. Use of military in this case, the paper says, means that whoever is in the governor's opinion, the courts are wrong and he is right, then he might use military force to compel obedience to his decree.

This is the paper and should not for a moment be tolerated. In attempting to enforce his order by military power, it is asserted, the governor is violating the law and abusing his high office. Very many signatures were obtained.

General McCook says there is no doubt that had a gun been fired the governor would have been attached within half an hour, to the state's disgrace. General McCook says he has the United States troops here only for public property, and that they will remain in town until the environment is over, especially since there is a large number of desperate men in town ready to foment riot and so make robbery possible.

The cause of Governor Waite's obduracy, it is learned on excellent authority, is his wife. She attended Thursday night a conference in an angry mood and declared with clinched hands that the fight should go on until the last national guardsman in the state lay dead on the pavement.

Many Populists do not uphold Governor Waite, and Judge Grafton, one of the best known Populists in the state, has asked General McCook to use his influence with the governor to avert further trouble. Referring to the governor's actions, Judge Grafton said, "This is not politics; it is anarchy."

OXFORD WON.

The Great English University Boat Race Rowed Today.

LONDON, March 17.—The greatest event in the English aquatic world—the race between the Oxford and Cambridge Boat clubs—took place today in the presence of the great crowd of people that always lines both banks of the river Thames from Putney bridge to "The Ship" at Mortlake, the points at which the race begins and ends. The boathouses that front on the river near Putney bridge were filled with masses of enthusiastic humanity, and every where along the river the partisans of the two crews wore their respective colors—the dark blue of Oxford and the light blue of Cambridge. Many ladies witnessed the race.

The Thames conservancy board enforced the usual regulations that obtain during the race, and the course was clear of all craft that could in any way hinder the oarsmen. The practice spins of the crews, which, contrary to the American custom, are had on the river, when any one so desiring can see them, led the sporting fraternity to believe that the dark blue of Oxford would be the first to cross the winning line.

When the crews appeared on the landings and prepared to enter their boats to take up their positions at the starting line, a mighty cheer ascended that gave notice to those further up and around the bend in the river that the race was about to begin. Both crews got away fairly well together.

Oxford took the lead and maintained it to the close, finishing three boat lengths ahead.

An Eccentric and Aged Millionaire Marries a Young and Pretty Governess.

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass., March 17.—The wedding of Timothy H. Porter, the eccentric millionaire of Stamford, Conn., to Miss Mabel Earle of Bridgeport was solemnized here at the rectory of the Episcopal church. He is over 60 years of age and was infatuated with the young girl whom he has just married and who was employed in his house as a governess.

Recently the suit brought by his relatives to prevent the marriage was withdrawn, and preparations were made immediately after by the old man and Miss Earle for their marriage. The bride is only 21 years of age, and she was accompanied here by her father. The couple intend to go to Bridgeport to reside.

NEWARK, N. J., March 17.—Julius A. Bond, who was arrested in Cincinnati on a charge of being a fugitive from justice, is wanted here for alleged perjury. In December, 1892, Bond arranged for a grand sacred concert, but it never took place. Bond claimed to be a son of a physician to King Victor Emmanuel of Italy. He is also said to be a son-in-law of ex-Congressman White of Indiana.

La Madeleine Not Desecrated.

PARIS, March 17.—Telegrams have been exchanged between Cardinal Richard, archbishop of Paris, and the Vatican anent the explosion and the death of Pauwels in the Church of the Madeleine. According to the rule of the church the shedding of blood in the sacred edifice would necessitate a reconsecration, but the pope has decided that the church was not desecrated.

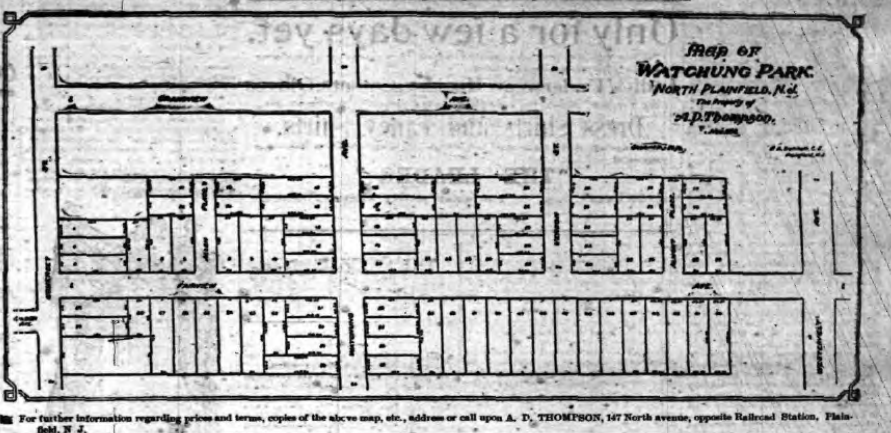
The work of macadamizing the streets is now being pushed rapidly. Electric Cars Pass the property. Electric light, gas and city water will be introduced as soon as the Spring as they are needed. Scores of Beautiful Homes now fronting on Sandford and Westervelt avenues have been located on the old Crowell's hill field. Just as Property Values jumped in Sandford and Westervelt avenues, so will they also increase rapidly in Watchung Park. Those who buy now will reap the benefit of an early investment.

The Lots Are About 50x150 feet in size, and the printed map of the property will give the public necessary information as to their location.



For further information regarding prices and terms, copies of the above map, etc., address or call upon A. D. THOMPSON, 147 North avenue, opposite Railroad Station, Plainfield, N. J.

COMMON SALT.

An Article of Value From Remote Times. How It Is Procured.

When men first learned the value of salt is not known. From time most remote, prompted by an irresistible call of nature, he has been incited to search for it. The savage recognized the value of salt. A Dark King's wealth was estimated in acred with his possession of salt and ivory. The first whites to cross the dark continent established a significant salt trade. In the capitals of Hindustan, stamped in the shape of cakes, it passed for money. To both man and beast it is invaluable. Without exception, it is the most indispensable of all seasonings.

"Bread is the staff of life," but without salt it could hardly be eaten. Indeed, vegetables, meat, bread and butter are almost tasteless without salt. Even water, nature's drink, contains this essential ingredient. It is necessary to the proper continuation of digestion, supplying hydrochloric acid for the gastric juice and soda for the bile and pancreatic fluid. The healthy condition of the higher animals, especially cattle and horses, demands a quantity of salt. Instinctively the dumb creatures seem to know this, as is demonstrated in their tireless licking for it. In connection with the manufacture of chemicals and in mining permits it is of vast importance.

Sodium forms with chlorine but a single combination (NaCl)—that is, common salt. It is a little less soluble in cold than in warm water. When crystallization sets in, evaporation is very rapid. The crystalsare very minute. Ordinarily one builds upon the other in the form of an inverted pyramid. A tiny cube crystal forms on the surface of the solution. The crystal has a tendency to fall below the surface because of its greater density, but owing to capillary attraction it remains near the surface. Soon a new crystal develops and attaches itself to the first form.

In this manner a little crystal on each of the four sides forms a row about the upper edges of the first cube. This formation sinks below the surface of the liquid, and a new system of crystals arranges itself in identical manner, forming another row of cubes about the upper edges of the first now formed. Similar buildings of rows of such crystals repeat themselves, resulting in a cube crystal, the face of which resembles an inverted trough or pyramid formed of tiny cubes.

The method of procuring salt varies with the conditions under which it occurs. It is obtained by evaporation of water from

THE HOUSEHOLD

PRETTY CHINA.

A Dainty Display of a Small Outlay—No Two Pieces Alike in a Need Match.

Wise housekeepers learned some time ago that a simple meal prettily served had an elegance of effect that was wanting in a more elaborate one when dainty dishes were lacking. There is probably no expenditure which gives more general satisfaction in a household than that which spreads a table with wisely chosen china. The housekeeper indeed rejoices over well stocked linen shelves, and the student feels a peculiar bliss when he makes additions to his library, but the entire family shares in the pleasure imparted by a new dish or a fresh set of plates.

The time has gone by when it was considered good form to have all the china of the same pattern. It is well to have a dinner set on hand, there may be some correspondence between vegetable dishes, meat platters, and at least one set of plates. But further than that unity of design or color need not go. The oyster plates may differ from those in which the soup is brought in. There may be no points of resemblance between fish and carver and dinner plates. The salad set may be sui generis, and the dessert or fruit plates unique. "Everything by rule" (forgive the slang) is this day of catholicity of taste.

This delightful fashion renders it possible for the housekeeper to make a gorgeous showing without too great extravagance. A dozen plates now, a dozen then—the expense need not be such a burden after all. If it pleases her, she may have each set in which no two pieces match, and so long as the china is good and the choice shows taste the whim needs no apology.

The price of china is graded to suit all purses. A pretty display may be made for a small outlay, judiciously expended, or the cost of such plates may be enough to keep a poor family in provisions for a month. Perhaps the porcelain from which the greatest pleasure is derived is not that whose weight in gold would hardly pay its price. One may be happy with her table furnished with cheaper ware, and in most cases only the connoisseur can judge of the value of the rarest pieces. The beauty of the china and decoration is, after all, the most important point to be considered in buying tableware, according to Harper's Bazar, which has the foregoing to say about pretty china.

When Painting on Glass.

For those who wish to avoid employing a glazier or to save the expenses of the diamond that most readily cuts the tinted glass for any shape required, press heavily upon the glass with a steel cutter; then lay upon the scratched line a length of linen thread soaked in turpentine. Press the thread to the surface of the glass and set it on fire. This will heat the glass around the marked line. While heated throw upon it a few drops of cold water, and it will then readily break into the desired form.—Art Amateur.

Bread Omelet.

Housekeepers who have too much principle to throw away stale bread, and who cannot bring their families to relish bread pudding, will find they can put their loaves to practical use by making what an experienced mother calls "bread omelet." Cut the bread in very thin slices—and there is nothing that one can slice so thin as stale bread—and dip the slices in beaten eggs. Fry in butter, and you have a delicate, nutrient and satisfactory dish for breakfast.

The Light Should Be Right.

To make the objects in the room distinct, the light entering the windows must be conserved as much as possible. This will last be accomplished by adding to Popular Science by banishing all dark materials. Heavy hangings absorb light as well as dirt. Oak or cushioned furniture reflects the light that black walnut or rosewood absorbed, and a light colored wall will do almost as much as a sunny disposition to fill a room with sunshine and good cheer.

A Good Hot Supper Dish.

Wash, peel and boil a pound of potatoes. When quite cooked, strain and mash them with a tablespoonful of cream, a lump of butter the size of an egg, a pinch of salt, a dash of nutmeg and cayenne. Put this mixture into six clean buttered scallop shells, score it with a knife, brush over with the beaten yolk of an egg and scatter small pieces of butter on each scallop; set the shell in the oven. When of a bright brown, take them up and serve.

The "Correct" Thing In Drapery.

Many single doors are using only one curtain, the material bought by the yard and the fringe sewed on. No rings are used. The rod is put on inside the doorways, with space above sufficient to permit the portieres to be thrown over the pole once or twice, according to the width of the doorway—one end reaching the floor, the other quite short. The fabric can be wound so loosely over the pole that the "sagging" in the center will form a graceful festoon.

"Draping remains elaborate in the four piece style for all 'correct' windows. First comes the plain white shade, then a sash curtain of yellow silk; next, dainty lace curtains of larger design, and lastly a heavy Turkish curtain of mingled oriental colors. The lace curtains are long plain, and the one Turkish curtain is swung over the pole," says The Decorator and Furnisher, from which the accompanying sketch of a portiere is reproduced.

PRANKS OF A CRŒSUS.

An Eccentric Millionaire Astonishes Atlantic City.

HE HAS MONEY TO BURN, IN FACT.

His Lights Cigars With $10 Bills, According to Tradition—Bought a Livery Stable For His Own Use and Keeps Relays of Teams in the Street.

ATLANTIC CITY, March 17.—The droll pranks of Edward R. Drouin, the eccentric individual who has gained widespread newspaper notoriety lately, are still the absorbing topic for conversation among visitors and residents here. Each day and night reveals a new phase of his eccentricity.

Mr. Drouin flashed on an expectant populace astride a big steeple chaser, his riding suit consisting of scarlet cavalry jacket, white duck breeches, tan colored top boots and a high silk hat. He flourished a riding whip of huge dimensions and dashed along the avenue at a lightning gait, his erratic horsemanship assuring him a clear track. He was greeted with derisive remarks and jeering comments all along the line, but was evidently quite content with the furore he was creating.

Drouin sallied forth from his extensive private stables two hours later on a diminutive Shetland pony. He was bent on another equestrian exhibition. This time he arrayed in a fashionable riding-habit suit, the long tails of which, as well as his feet, nearly touched the ground. He chose the beach as his stamping ground on this occasion and gave the thousands of lounging visitors who crowded the Ocean boulevard an hour's gratuitous entertainment.

Fast Riding With Relays.

Another fad which Drouin has been indulging recently is to have a relay of vehicles from his stables placed at points a few blocks apart in charge of his stable men, who await their master's coming with anxious stead.

Starting from his up town cottage in a pony cart, Drouin speeds up to the first relay, tosses the lines to the expectant groom, jumps into the other waiting rig and is off again like a flash to the next in line. When he has completed the circuit, he goes through a series of spasmodic evolutions on the highway and then proudly struts, whip in hand, along the crowded sidewalk to one of his favorite cafes.

The procession of vehicles which Drouin stations along the roadway does not exhaust his supply of rolling stock by any means. Not content with his unusually large stable, this modern Croesus recently purchased a local livery stable and has been adding to its capacity ever since. No one but himself and his wife, however, is allowed the privileges of the plaza.

Mrs. Drouin is a pretty blonde and apparently enjoys her husband's eccentricities hugely. Her actions, however, are demure and staid. Her clothing is always rich, but extremely unconventional. She bears a striking resemblance to the wife of Pugilist James J. Corbett.

One practice of Drouin has met with the grateful approval of the genuine of the town. He places a $5 bill under his foot, and then exerting all his strength promises the money to the one who can push him away. He is slender and not powerful, and the feat is generally easy of accomplishment. Often he utilizes $10 bills to light the choice cigars which he smokes.

Buys a Newspaper and a Hotel.

A local newspaper, a $6,000 block of Second National bank stock and the Penn Mansion hotel have become the property of this prodigal young resident since he appeared here several months ago. Of what use they can be to him is problematical, as he announces that the ventures were not for pecuniary gain.

The source of Drouin's stream of wealth is something over which this place has pondered in vain. He claims Philadelphia as his residence. Mendacious auto-biographical times the amount of their goods, and the messenger boys who are being continually summoned are fabulously rewarded. He has often been known to call a messenger to do a service which would require but half a dozen steps for him to take.

Another Gaylord Victim Found.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., March 17.—The searchers in the Gaylord mine at Plymouth came across a human hand at midnight. The remainder of the body will be unearthed this morning. This makes the fifth body recovered of the 12 originally overwhelmed by the fall of coal and earth.

Fast Day Abolished.

BOSTON, March 17.—Governor Greenhalge signed the bill abolishing Fast day and making April 19, the anniversary of the battle of Lexington, a legal holiday. The latter fact was duly celebrated by the citizens of Lexington by a huge bonfire.

Colonel Herr's Sudden Death.

HARRISBURG, March 17.—Colonel Andrew J. Herr, one of the best known and most successful lawyers in central Pennsylvania, died suddenly while conversing with his family. The cause of his death was neuralgia of the heart.

Sentenced to Be Lashed.

SANDWICH, Ont., March 17.—Adolph Jones of Lexington, who tried to debauch several young girls of that town, was sentenced to four years' imprisonment and 12 lashes on his bare back in the middle of each year.

Chaplain Atwood Resigns.

HARTFORD, March 17.—Chaplain E. F. Atwood of the staid priests, has resigned on account, it is said, of difficulty in adjusting the discharge of his duties to the many strict rules of the institution.

The Dynamite Thawed Out.

DULUTH, March 17.—Edward Wagner, a German laborer, put three sticks of dynamite in the oven of the family cook stove to thaw out. The house is now in ruins and the family in mourning.

Investigating Felton's Death.

BUFFALO, March 17.—The state commissioners in the lunacy investigation, conducted inquiry into the cause of death of George Felton, an inmate at the State hospital.

Prince of Wales Wins at Monte Carlo.

PARIS, March 17.—The Matin newspaper says that the Prince of Wales won 25,000 at Monte Carlo this week and donated the whole sum to the poor of Monaco.

An Eccentric Character Dead.

STONINGTON, Conn., March 17.—Mrs. James Atkins, an eccentric character, died here, leaving $60,000. She lived the life of a hermit.

Work For Over Four Thousand.

PROVIDENCE, March 17.—The Saxon and Weybosset mills will start up again on Monday, employing nearly 4,000 people.

BRECKINRIDGE'S MARRIAL

Rev. Dr. Paxton Says It Occurred In New York on April 26, 1865.

PITTSBURG, March 17.—The statement that Colonel Breckinridge and Mrs. Leslie Wing had been secretly married by Rev. Dr. Paxton on April 26, 1865, was confirmed by the latter in an interview here. Dr. Paxton stated that the marriage had taken place on the date mentioned, but his had suppressed the fact to oblige Colonel Breckinridge and the bride. In response to frequent telegrams he had kept putting off publishing the certificate until he could, if it kept to obviate a journey to the capital, in the present unsatisfactory state of his health, as a witness in the scandal suit.

He said: "On the 26th of last April my man Charlie came to me in my study and told me that a gentleman was down stairs and wanted to see me. When I went down Billy Breckinridge came to me and asked me whether I would marry him to Mrs Wing, and I said I would, and shortly afterward Mrs. Wing drove up to the door in another carriage. This was, I think, about 7:30 in the evening. I took them to the study and called Mrs. Paxton and Eleanora O. Collier, who was stopping at my house, to act as witnesses.

"After the ceremony Colonel Breckinridge asked me not to put the marriage on record. His children attained their majority and I was glad of it, and besides it would seem highly improper when his wife was dead only nine or ten months, I forget which.

"Mrs. Wing added her solicitations, as she desired to become acquainted with her husband's family and win their affections before their marriage was made known. I agreed, and they went away very happy, as he seemed very devoted to her."

Woman Tramp Dressed as a Cowboy.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 17.—The police arrested two tramps here, and one dressed as a cowboy proved to be a woman, aged about 20. Her disguise was good, but her small feet exposed her identity. At the police station she said she was a sister of the man arrested. The police do not believe her.

Abducted a Child From a Hospital.

HARTFORD, March 17.—The officials at Putnam found a child ill with smallpox which had been abducted from a hospital in Boston by a certain Mrs. Talbot. The woman went to the hospital in Boston to see the child, and she managed to escape without being observed.

—It is said the Waring Club has outwitted the Evans Club, and secured the new club car "Plainfield," which was exhibited at the World's Fair, for the ensuing year, by paying in advance the $1200 required. The amount is usually paid at the close of the year.

—It is rumored that the Rev. J. H. Jennings of Westfield is making overtures looking to a settlement with his people. The statement made is that he offers to take seventy-five per cent. of the salary he claims to be due him and retire. The vestry refuses to consider any proposition.

—The new departure in the manner of delivering coal, recently adopted by Thorpe & Ivins, is proving a great success, they say. Their customers find it exceedingly satisfactory, for, while it costs no more than other methods, it does away with all of the dust and noise incident to former systems.

—The annual school election of District No. 11 will be held in the public school at Bernardsville next Tuesday evening. The meeting is likely to be a lively one. An extra tax will be asked for to supply a teacher to assist the principal during the coming year. A few persons are opposed to hiring an assistant.

A Pension, Quickly Obtained.

On January 10th last Mrs. Mary McCarthy, of this city, through her attorneys, Jackson & Anglemun, made application for a pension. To-day word has been received from the Pension Department that the same has been granted. To the prompt and efficient services of her attorneys, is due the credit of so speedily obtaining it and this mode of practice, undoubtedly, in a large measure, accounts for their existence and constantly increasing business.

The Salvation Army.

The number who attended the Salvation Army meetings in this city last week were: Monday, 30; Tuesday, 320, Wednesday, 225; Thursday, 230; Friday, 120, Saturday, 470; Sunday, 1,119, total 2,338. Two persons were converted at the meeting last night.

SPOILED A SUNDAY DRIVE.

A King-Bolt in Mr. Day's Buggy Broke and the Whole Party Were Thrown Out.

Mr. and Mrs. Day of New Market, N. J. and two friends from Cranford were out driving yesterday near their home. The king-bolt broke and the buggy pulled apart. The four occupants were thrown out in a heap and more or less bruised.

The top of the buggy snapped off.

Fortunately, the horse did not run away.

They were some miles from home and were wondering how they would get there, when a gentleman, out driving with two friends, came along, understood the party's predicament at a glance, and asked if he could assist them.

The good Samaritan's offer was gladly accepted and the ladies were taken home. The men got home later with the horse and went after the wagon to-day.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Karef of Grove street is ill with the grip.

Mr. Lou. Waring of Park avenue is home from Florida.

Miss Florence Honeger of Carlton avenue has gone to Philadelphia.

Charles Suhr of Park avenue was able to be out to day after a week's illness.

Mr. Thomas Lynch of Madison avenue spent yesterday with relatives in Brooklyn.

Mr. W. T. Broadway, of La Grande avenue, has returned from a business trip to California.

Mr. William L. Sharkey moved with his family from Park place to Somerset street, to-day.

A patent on a car lighting system has been granted to Mr. W. M. Miner of East Second street.

Mr. Walter Scott of this city has been granted a patent on a "mechanism for transmitting motion."

The Rev. Father Murphy assistant priest at St. Mary's church, preached last night on St. Patrick.

Wm. Bamberger has gone to Brooklyn to-day to bowl in a team on the Manhattan alleys this evening.

Mr. Frankel and Mr. Adams, of New York, were the guests yesterday of Mr. Simmonds of Watchung avenue.

Mrs. John H. Tier, jr., of Bank place, returned yesterday from Newark, where she has been visiting her father.

Rev. J. W. Richardson will address the "Fs" and their friends on Tuesday, March 20, at 4 p. m., in their rooms on Watchung avenue.

Mr. Charles Stillman, who has been in charge of Mr. F. A. Dunham's work at Bordentville, N. Y., has returned to Mr. Dunham's Plainfield office.

Mr. James B Clarkson of West Sixth street has purchased a house on East Second street and will remove there about the first of the month.

Father Brennan of Mt. Holly preached a sermon on "St. Patrick," in St. Joseph's Catholic church, North Plainfield, last night. A large congregation was present to hear him.

"Doc," the gray horse formerly used to the hook and ladder truck, is to be used hereafter to the hose carriage. "Doc" was given a trial this morning and proved very satisfactory.

Mr. John S. Gibson, managing editor of the Newark Daily Advertiser, will deliver the memorial address in this city on Decoration Day. Mr. Gibson is a cousin of Mr. George W. Moore of this city.

Yesterday afternoon Miss Louise Myer, daughter of Henry Myer, was married to Peter Burnett by Rev. Hoopes Bowers. The ceremony took place at the home of Mr. Burnett's father in Washington Valley. A number of Plainfielders attended. The groom is a brother to Mr. Charles Burnett of this city.

The many friends and admirers of Mrs. Florence Howe Hall, in Scotch Plains, had an opportunity to listen to a lecture by her on "The Art of Conversation," Saturday night. The lecture was given in Assembly Hall and was for the benefit of the Scotch Plains Public Library. Both Mr. and Mrs. Hall have done a great deal for the welfare of the library, in the past, much of its success being due to Mr. Hall's untiring efforts.

Samuel L. Moore died Saturday night at his home, corner Front and South Park street, Elizabethport, aged 81 years. Deceased was born at Crosswicks, Burlington county, N. J., November 17, 1813. He was at one time an engineer, and ran the first engine through the Bergen cut and assisted in building the extension of the Central railroad from Somerville to Phillipsburg, forty years ago. He built the foundry at Elizabethport, which later developed into an extensive ship building yard, from which the United States cruiser Bancroft was launched a little over two years ago. Deceased served two terms in the New Jersey legislature and was a democrat. He was one of the founders of the Elizabethport lodge, I. O. O. F., and was the oldest Odd Fellow in the state and the first master of Essex lodge of Free Masons. A wife and six children survive him.

The Trophy a Silver Pitcher.

The trophy, in the Diocesan Bowling League, which was won by the C. Y. M. L. of this city is to be a silver pitcher. The committee had several handsome designs at the C. Y. M. L. club house yesterday for the young men to select from. The trophy was well worth contesting for.

DON'T WANT IT CHANGED

MR. LEWIS WANTS THE BROOK LEFT AS IT IS.

The Main Thing in the Grove Street Improvement is the Straightening of the Brook's Course, but the Owner of the Land Stops the Work.

The work of repairing Grove street from Greenbrook road to the mountain will end in two or three weeks more at the outside. The work is being carried on under the supervision of Street Commissioner Gavin, who has been careful to have the grading done systematically and without loss of time or labor. The deep gullies with but one exception have been filled up and that one is to be filled up at once.

For the first time in 18 or 20 years it is now possible to drive from Front street up Grove street to the mountain. Of course the roadway is in a rough state yet as it has only been graded and not macadamized. With a good covering of macadam the street could be made as fine as any in the borough.

Last week the Somerset County Freeholders met at the bridge and instructed Street Commissioner Gavin to straighten the course of the brook so that the water would not run over the street and thus wash away the road bed again.

To straighten the brook it was found necessary to cut away a part of the bank on one side. The Freeholders showed Mr. Gavin how much to cut away.

Mr. Gavin set the men at work digging off the bank, but they had only got the work well under way when ordered to stop by Mr. Israel Lewis, upon whose land they were at work. The men stopped work and haven't done anything more toward straightening the brook since.

This is the most important part of the whole job, and if the brook isn't straightened the water will again wash across the road, and besides injuring the road will wash over Col. Wilson's land.

Had Been Burning for a Week.

A chimney on Mr. Jules Boutes' house, on West Second street was on fire Saturday night. About half-past ten someone saw the smoke and flame pouring forth and ran over to the engine house and gave a still alarm. Foreman Newman ordered the Gazelles out. Chief Doane stopped a lot of boys who ran down the street yelling "fire" before a general alarm was sent in. Had the boys been allowed to go on they would have succeeded in getting someone to pull the box.

Chief Doane ordered out one hose wagon so that in case of necessity it would be on hand. The chemical extinguishers were all that were needed.

Mr. Boutes said there had been no fire from which that chimney could have caught fire inside of a week.

Dunellen News.

Veterinary Surgeon Voorhees of Somerville and a companion were thrown from a wagon near Schepflin's on Saturday and bruised. The wagon was upset, but no great damage resulted.

16 of the Atlanta Wheelmen of Newark are to have a dinner at Taylor's Hotel on May 1.

E. Sexton and H. Anderson, of Newark, rode from Newark to Hilton, on Sunday, a distance of some 7 miles, and stopped there an hour to witness the burning of the Hilton Hotel. They reached Dunellen in time for dinner, and rode on to Somerville.

Over 30 young people were at a party given by Miss McFadden Saturday night. The only instrumental music was from an accordion.

In Helping His Fallen Steed he was Injured.

Yesterday afternoon, about three o'clock, a young man from Westfield drove rapidly along East Front street, near Watchung avenue, the horse slipped and fell down, breaking some of the harness and one of the shafts of the buggy.

The driver jumped out and proceeded to liberate the horse, from the harness. While he was thus engaged the horse suddenly threw out his feet in an effort to rise, and stepped upon the young man's right foot, badly injuring it. Some passers-by then went to his assistance and helped him out of his predicament.

Bought Mr. Crowley Out.

Alfred Weinwurm, of New York, late with Bachmann's Brewing Company of Staten Island, has bought out Daniel Crowley's interest in the Central Hotel, and took possession on Saturday. Mr. Crowley was not fitted for the business he says. He will return to his trade as moulder.

Runaway Yesterday.

Plainfielders who happened up Front street, almost to Scotch Plains, late yesterday afternoon, witnessed a runaway, which resulted in the smashing up of a buggy. A horse, owned by the vehicle when the horse started to run, were thrown out.

Must Pay Up or go to Jail.

Delinquent Tax Collector Nash began Thursday his task of collecting back taxes. He has notified a number that they must plank down the cash or go to the Elizabeth jail.

EASTER MILLINERY.

Together With Novel Straws, Shapes and Trimmings For the Season.

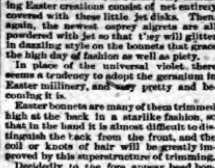
To the Editor of The News:—

An immense number of sponges or p'—letters are to be used, and some very charming Easter creations consist of these entirely covered with these little jet disks. Then, again, the newest osprey aigrets are all powdered with jet so that they will glitter in dazzling style on the bonnets that grace the high day of fashion as well as piety.

In place of the universal violet, there seems a tendency to adopt the geranium in Easter millinery, and very pretty and becoming it is.

Easter bonnets are many of them trimmed high at the back in a starlike fashion, so that in the hand it is almost difficult to distinguish the back from the front, and the coil or knot of hair will be greatly improved by this superstructure of trimming.

Decidedly to the fore appear bead bonnets of small dimensions shape, with a flower wreath over the face and at the back.



STRING HAT AND BONNET.

A taking novelty may be noted in opaque straws which are shot like beetle's wings and in many different colorings, and open-worked—that is, a circle top formed of jet beads—are often introduced into straw models with striking effect.

French panama straw is a new idea for hats. It is flat and shiny, blocked, not sewed row upon row, and will be worn of various shapes, toning from white to deep coffee color. The boat shape prevails, with the brim turning slightly up at the side. The trimming for all these hats is black moire ribbon, made up into large bows of various shapes and sizes, sometimes with the upstanding donkey's ears.

Black and white mingled in the plait appears for early spring, and nearly all the hats, whether they are of the close boat or sailor shape or have large brims, are all to be worn tilted back from the face. One of the revivals are the pure white split straws, which ought to be as white as it is possible to be, and some even are enameled.

In sailor hats there are both the wide and the narrow brims, nearly all of them double. Black hats are likely to be worn in these shapes.

Last year we had the amour straw. This has given place to the gothard, which has a fancy spike introduced in the plait, and a great deal of it is prepared in black and the several shades of tobacco color and fawn, both for hats and bonnets. In this gothard straw many hats have crowns surrounded by a series of scallops laid round them, so that they stand up against the hat, and bonnets are made of three or four such scallops in black, with an edging of brown.

Accepted the Plans and Specifications.

The Board of Governors of the Crescent Wheelmen met Saturday night. The plans and specifications of the proposed bicycle track, prepared under the supervision of F. A. Dunham, were accepted. The track is to be egg-shape, it will be banked up at the shortest turn so that as good time can be made on the turn as on any other part of the track. As soon as possible the contract for grading the track will be given out. When given out the contract will call for the work to be done the first week in May.

Fight in the Boulevard.

There was a "free for all fight" in the boulevard Saturday afternoon. When Policemen appeared the fighting ceased and sprinting qualities were tried. All got away excepting William Frey. McCue took him to the lockup. He was afterwards released by the Chief by order of the Mayor, the City Judge being away. They appeared in court this morning and pleaded guilty, as charged. Sentence was deferred until the remainder of the offenders are caught.

Thought he Could Stop a Blue Line Flyer.

Early Saturday evening John Burns, who was drunk, walked out upon the track at the North avenue depot and tried to stop a Blue Line express. Fortunately for Burns he was marched off the track before the express got close enough to stop him. Burns was locked up. This morning sentence was suspended in his case on condition that he leave town.

Palm Sunday.

Yesterday was Palm Sunday. It was one of the boliest festivals in the Catholic church. It was commemorated also in the Episcopal church, but there it lacks the stamp of authority which Rome throws around all her holy days, and it is only in Rome itself that the day is full of joy, united with reverential solemnity. Palms were given out in the Catholic and Episcopal churches.

A ST. PATRICK SERMON.

BY REV. MR. HERRING IN THE FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

He Considers Him not as a Mythical Personage, but as a Man of the People, a Great Man, Tactful to Persevering, Conscientious and Courageous.

The Rev. Mr. Herring preached in the First Presbyterian church last night on "St. Patrick." He said in part:

The reverence to hold the great Apostle of Ireland in great esteem, and such a hero is worthy of celebration. He was God's chosen apostle to bring the "Light of the world" into Pagan Ireland.

He was not a mythical hero. The book of Armagh written about 150 years after the death of St. Patrick assumes the life as never questioned. There is not a hint in a fact record that his life was a fable. We have again Irish tradition with one voice confirming his existence and "it seems incredible that a whole nation could have combined thus to deceive themselves," says Todd. We have the evidence of the two tracts left to us by St. Patrick, "The Epistle to Coroticus" and his "confession" which bear the stamp of genuineness.

There is much said as to the place of his birth. He was born possibly 410 A. D., and died Wednesday, March 17, 493. He says in his confession that he came from the town of Bonavem Tabernise and the position of this place Irish historians have been endeavoring to find. Dr. Lanigan arguing with much probability for Boulogne-sur-mer, in Northern France, and Todd that it must be somewhere in Britanny and probably in Dumarton near Glasgow, Scotland. There are strong reasons urged on both sides.

He was a man brought up in a Christian home, and at the age of 16 he was taken captive by pirates and carried to Ireland, where he remained for six years and attended cattle under Milchu. It was during this time that he realized his need and gave himself to God. He had a vision that a ship was awaiting him at a great distance and he started to find it to get out for Bonavem. After an angry reply he received to his home, but then there came a vision and a tract he saw, with the title the voice of the Irish and asking him to come over and walk with them. He believed it to be the voice of God, and he listened and the heart of his family and friends had no effect. He set out for Ireland and began the great work that has made him so dear to the Irish people.

He started to expel the serpents out of the house of his master, in a vivid picture which presents to Patrick's mind the Croagh Patrick, the highest mountain of Ireland, and standing there in the spirit and power of Elias after fasting 40 days and 40 nights, contending with the demons of the air and driving them with the few and Phlegeta More, the demon of the lakes, and with the golden wand of Jesus he smote them all and they are hurled down the mountain and lost in the abyss. It is a picture of what he did for Ireland in a spiritual sense.

But legend gathers as the years pass on as the snow ball gathers as it rolls and we know more about Patrick the further we are away from Patrick's time. Later writers have added to his already rooted have spoken of his outstanding magnitude, and beaming kings, and of the fountains that arose out of the earth from his foot prints but there is a truth in the man that we can learn. There are elements in the character worthy to note.

First, he was a man of scripture. In that short tract "His Confession" he quotes the Old Testament 19 times, and the New 20 times, and the Apocrypha six times, and the quotations are with the greatest reverence.

He had a deep attachment to Christ as shown in

THE LORICA.

Christ with me, Christ before me.
Christ behind me, Christ within me.
Christ beneath me, Christ above me.
Christ on my right, Christ at my left.
Christ in the fort.
Christ in the chariot seat.
Christ in the poop.

The hymn ascribed to him indicates his sentiments. He was a man thoroughly converted. He believed that his captivity was the result of his sin and a means of his conversion.

He was a man of prayer. He prayed a hundred times a day and as many times a night and looked forward to the time when the Christmas would arise in glory in the brightness of the sun.

His humility was intense and he was so conscious of his mission in Ireland that though he longed to see his home he felt that his work in Ireland would be imperilled and he denied himself that privilege. His celebration is not to be wondered at. It is to be regretted that the many swallow the snakes that the poison sans tries to expel from the land he loved. It is to be regretted that so many try to undo the work of St. Patrick, the very day of his celebration for it is captured within the serpent dance from their reptile without.

St. Patrick had martyr like courage. His work in Ireland was not easy. It was not achieved by missionary secretary. He met with opposition and a man aimed for him killed his charioteer. Into he had and television. He struck at the home of Paganism, Tara.

He aimed at the conversion of the nations. His best church was founded at Dunmalie, the site gift from Chief Dichu. He baptized Aengus the King of Munster and aimed not at attaining royalty but sanctioned the gospel and principles.

His crowning virtue was gentleness. He might make a saint to any age and condition.

When we gather the features that combine to up this noble character we find them very great. It is no wonder the most people celebrate him. His prayer was answered. St. Patrick will be the Apostle of the Irish people on the last day. Five was that saved them shall judge them. He is at the throne of grace to plead for those that imitate him and died for us, Jesus, shall be our Judge at the last day. Amen.

THE NEXT POSTMASTER.

IF NOT NAMED SOON CONGRESSMAN DUNN WILL GET WEARY.

He Started for a Little Yachting Trip Saturday, but was Covered by Plainfielders so Effectually that His Vacation was Postponed.

Poor Congressman Dunn! He wanted a vacation over Sunday, and Saturday afternoon, went to Elizabeth. He stopped at the Mansion House. The numerous aspirants for the Plainfield postmastership, or their representatives, were right after him. First, Mr. Bacon cornered him, and his gentle whisperings were so soothing that the lawyer was reminded of a bumble-bee. Just as Mr. Bacon was getting down to the fine points, Judge Coddington drove up to the door. Both men discovered him. Mr. Bacon remarked that he could not wait to be seen and went out through the bar room, eventually through the back door.

Then after Judge Coddington had been informed that all was serene, and the Congressman was beginning to figure out the situation in a satisfying way, along came a relative of Mr. Bethell's. This sort of business went on until the man from Washington returned, without the little yachting trips he expected. He came from Trenton a month ago and was button-holed so much there that he curtailed his visit.

Mr. Bacon is still bragging about the envelope in a friend's safe, which contains the name of the next postmaster, but it is supposed by some one gave the joke away, and that the solution of the puzzle is this:—The name of every man who is, or has been, after the office, is on the slip. That's why he is so sure he has named the winner.

An exchange has the following to say about the matter:

The selection of John M. Bethell as Postmaster of Plainfield seems to have stirred up a perfect hornet's nest. Congressman Dunn was warned that the prospect appointment would prove unsatisfactory to the Plainfield Democracy, and the result has been almost unbridled law writing. The whole city is in a ferment over it, and remonstrances from leading Democrats are pouring in to the Postmaster General, asking him to withhold the commission until some more deserving person can be suggested by Congressman Dunn. There are some ugly rumors afloat in connection with the matter, and hints are broadly thrown out of blasted Hatfield-town scandal.

Congressman Dunn seems not to have studied the last letter of the opposition to his choice, but now that the Democracy of Plainfield, and, in fact, of Union county, are up in arms over the matter, it would seem to be unwise on his part to give heed to their voice.

Chas. E. Martine, the farmer orator and leader of the Plainfield Democracy, is to be married next week, with Saturday in his eye when he learn that Bethell was slated for the Postmastership and had a long interview at the Sheridan House with Congressman Dunn. It is said that the boys of the Plainfield Democracy could be heard on the street as he eloquently denounced the wrong that would be done the party workers in Plainfield by Bethell's selection.

The former orator said the appointment would be a personal insult to him, who for twenty years has labored hard in and out of season in the cause of Democracy.

There is a prospect that the nomination of Bethell will be hung up before it reaches the Senate.

WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE ASSOCIATION.

A Meeting Held in Newark Friday Afternoon.

The Woman's Suffrage Association of New Jersey met Friday afternoon, in the W. C. T. U. Hall, Newark. The object of the meeting was to hear the reports of the delegates to the National Convention, held in Washington, in February. Mrs. Charlotte Smith, of Orange, and Aaron M. Powell, of Plainfield, gave interesting accounts of the proceedings.

After the hearing of the reports, it was decided to hold a tea, with musical and literary features, at an early day, in Orange, and gives the proceeds to the expenses of keeping for campaign purposes.

Mrs. Lillian Brett, of Belleville, was appointed to fill the office of recording secretary, in the place of Miss Martha R. Haines, who resigned some weeks ago.

Capt. Hubbard for Director Again.

By the last election the Union County Board of Freeholders will be Republican.

The prospects are that Plainfield will get the Directorship. Rahway either the Clerk or Attorney, Elizabeth the Collector and, if not city officials some Republican Freeholders next month, it may also get the County Engineer or County Attorney.

The slate, according to the very latest reports will be: County Collector, E. M. Wood, Elizabeth; County Attorney, Clarence Ward, Rahway; County Engineer, either Mr. Dunham, of Plainfield, or his assistant, Mr. Gavett, of this city; Director or Board, Capt. J. Frank Hubbard, of Plainfield; Clerk, C. Addison Swift, Elizabeth.

FOUR CONTESTED SEATS

House to Take Up the Election Cases This Week.

A QUORUM WILL BE DEMANDED.

The Senate Has Before It Only Routine Business For the Present Week—Colonel Breckinridge to Make a Long Defense Himself—Will Go on the Stand First.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—As soon as the sundry civil appropriation bill is disposed of, which will probably be done tonight, the house will take up the four contested election cases which are pending—the O'Neill-Joy case from the Eleventh Missouri district, the Williams-Settle case from the Fifth Kentucky, the English-Hilborn case from the Third California and the Wheatley-Cobb case from the Fifth Alabama.

The O'Neill-Joy and the English-Hilborn cases, which were both decided against the sitting members (Republicans) by strict party votes in the committee on elections, are the most important and will require the major portion of the time. In both these cases the result of the election in November, 1892, was exceedingly close. There were two counts in the O'Neill-Joy election, the recount giving Joy, Republican, 87 plurality. O'Neill being returned on the face of the returns, he instituted the contest on the ground that the Missouri election law had not been complied with, in that the ballots on which the name of the Joy ballots had not been numbered and initialed as required by that law.

The case before the committee involved the question of determination of the question as to whether the Missouri election law in this particular should be regarded as mandatory or directory. The majority of the members of the committee wavered for some time, but finally decided, by a strict party vote that the law was mandatory and that the ballots failing to do so were void. The decision gave the seat to O'Neill, Democrat.

English Charges Fraud.

In the English-Hilborn case the result was also very close, English receiving 13,180 on the face of the returns against Hilborn's 13,165. English subsequently contested on the claim that in one precinct the returns had been manipulated beyond doubt, and his attorneys charged that while Hilborn or some of the committeemen were present at the close of the case Hilborn's attorneys still claimed his election by a single vote, but the Democrats of the committee decided in favor of English.

In the Williams-Settle case the contestant alleged fraud in the manner in which he had been elected by the bulldozing and intimidation of negro voters by the Republicans, but most of the Democrats of the committee refused to sustain his contention. Mr. Woodward, Democrat, however, dissented from the decision of his colleagues.

In the Wheatley-Cobb case the committee unanimously decided against the contestant, who was a Populist, and his case can have no standing in the house whatever.

All the contested election cases are disposed of this week, which is hardly probable, as the Republicans will doubtless insist upon the right to call for quorums every time to unseat their colleagues, the house will proceed with the consideration of either the Hilliard resolution or the consular and diplomatic appropriation bills.

The present week will, so far as the calendar reveals, be devoted by the senate to routine business and the consideration of executive nominations. It is probable that the fortifications appropriation bill will be reported from the committee, and if it should be it will probably be taken up for discussion and put upon its passage.

For the rest there will be an effort to dispose of the government printing site, the Chinese exclusion legislation and the Morgan-Garrahan bills and of a large number of special bills on the calendar.

Breckinridge's Defense.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—Curiosity is rampant among lawyers as to the line of defense which the array of five able lawyers retained by Congressman Breckinridge has marked out for him. For a time after the revelations of the scandalous career of Colonel Breckinridge to Mrs. Wing in New York on April 29 was made public it was the general opinion that this circumstance would form the basis of the defense, but the attorneys for Mr. Breckinridge have lately intimated to the contrary.

Even had they not said so, it is a fact that all the speculation and surmise indulged by Miss Pollard to have been made to her, except the statements in the presence of Major Moore, were before the date of the alleged marriage. Moreover, it seems to be established by a preponderance of the authorities that the promise to marry made by a man to a woman is sufficient for a breach of promise action in case it is accepted in good faith by the other party, who is ignorant of his legal disability to fulfill the contract.

The mystery of the defense will be solved in a few days, however, for it is the presumption that Colonel Breckinridge will be on the stand as the first witness in his own behalf. It is evident that his attorneys place their principal reliance upon the story which he will tell, and from their sanguine state of mind it seems probable that they must have in reserve resources which have not yet been made known. Colonel Breckinridge's recital will be a long one was foretold by one of his attorneys when he said that the defendant would doubtless be on the witness stand three days. This attorney prophesied that the trial will continue for two weeks or more longer. He said that the cross examination of Miss Pollard would occupy two days more; that Colonel Breckinridge would be on the stand three days; that two days would be occupied in closing depositions for the defense and three days in closing oratory for the ears of the jury.

Beaten to Death by Toughs.

CLINTON, N. Y., March 19.—Martin McSamara, a young man who resides in this village, was fatally beaten by toughs last night, as is alleged, by three toughs. They are now locked up at police headquarters.

Milan's Divorce Annulled.

BELGRADE, March 19.—An act of the Episcopal synod annulling the decree of divorce secured several years ago by the then king of Servia, Milan I, from Queen Natalie has been published.

There Was No Disorder.

PARIS, March 19.—Meetings in commemoration of the proclamation of the Commune of Paris were held. There was no disorder.

Cunard Company's Profits.

LONDON, March 19.—The annual report of the Cunard steamship company shows a profit for 1893 of £240,000.

ALBANY GOSSIP.

A Busy Week For Both Houses Begins Tonight.

ALBANY, March 19.—The legislative week that opens tonight promises to be one of the most lively sessions, for in both houses the calendar contains many bills of great interest and some of which will be fought out along no party but on factional grounds. In the senate the Republican tax law bill for New York city is upon the general order calendar for today.

On Tuesday morning Senator Parsons' canal improvement bill, which the Republican senate caucus decided to cut from $1,000,000 to $500,000, will be the special order. This bill is likely to provoke a lively discussion, the Buffalo Republican senators believing that it should be left at its original figure.

On Wednesday in the senate the Sexton blanket ballot bill, amended so as to provide for an individual paster ballot for illiterate voters, will be the special order, and immediately following the discussion of the bill of the same senator providing a separate school commissioner ballot to be used by women voters for school commissioners will be taken up for debate. There are other events which will serve to make the week interesting. The Troy investigation by the senate and assembly committee will be continued and will be made more sensational by the taking of evidence relative to the election of mayor in Hoosick. Monday the state board of health investigation will be taken up in this city, and the same day the state board of charities will give out the findings in the investigation of Superintendent Brockway.

LA BRETAGNE ASHORE.

The French Steamer Lost Her Bearings in the Fog.

NEW YORK, March 19.—The general transatlantic line steamer La Bretagne, Captain Santelli, from Havre, for New York, ran ashore late last night at a point about 18 miles east of Five Island. A dense fog prevailed at the time and land was not sighted, and navigation along the coast was thereby rendered difficult and dangerous. The steamer, which was due to arrive in New York on Monday morning, had been caught in the fog and was bringing it along with her when the accident occurred.

Owing to the extremely thick weather and darkness it was impossible to ascertain the strength of the current, the steamer lost her bearings. It may be that the fog shut out the Fire Island light, from which west bound vessels shape their course for New York.

There was not much sea on, and the wind was coming out of the south and blowing only a light breeze. The captain of the steamer sent a boat ashore with a message to be sent to the agents of the company in New York announcing the accident. None of those in the boat would give any details or explanation of how the accident occurred.

Information of the grounding station went to the scene of the accident to give whatever assistance they might be called upon to render. It is not believed, however, that their assistance would be required. The steamer could not be seen well from the shore, but to all appearances she was not hard aground and was resting easily.

Victim of His Own Foolishness.

SCRANTON, Pa., March 19.—John Higgins took a revolver this morning and not been used for several years into the sitting room, where his sister and father were, and pointed it at them. They warned him against such reckless actions, but his reply was that the weapon was not loaded. To prove his assertion he placed the weapon against his temple and pulled the trigger. He was dead before medical aid could be summoned.

Two Firebugs Caught.

PERU, Ind., March 19.—The mystery surrounding the incendiary fires in this city for the past two months has been solved. William Koots and John Gould, each about 20 years old, were discovered starting a fire. They are in jail and have confessed to having caused all the fires. Dime novels and dissipated habits are said to be responsible for the acts of both.

Champion High Diver Dying.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 19.—Joseph Lonvenaux, the champion high diver of the world, will probably never take another header. As he was about to make a 70 foot jump from a tower at the ocean beach he was seized with a violent hemorrhage of the stomach. The doctor is doubtful of his recovery. He made his great record of 82 feet at Chicago.

Protestant Denounces Anti-Catholics.

ROCHESTER, March 19.—Rev. Fred G. Lowe, a Protestant clergyman of the city of Rochester, has marked out for him. For a time after the revelations of the scandalous career of Colonel Breckinridge to Mrs. Wing in New York on April 29 was made public it was the general opinion that this circumstance would form the basis of the defense, but the attorneys for Mr. Breckinridge have lately intimated to the contrary.

Even had they not said so, it is a fact that all the speculation and surmise indulged by Miss Pollard to have been made to her, except the statements in the presence of Major Moore, were before the date of the alleged marriage. Moreover, it seems to be established by a preponderance of the authorities that the promise to marry made by a man to a woman is sufficient for a breach of promise action in case it is accepted in good faith by the other party, who is ignorant of his legal disability to fulfill the contract.

The mystery of the defense will be solved in a few days, however, for it is the presumption that Colonel Breckinridge will be on the stand as the first witness in his own behalf. DYING ON THE TRACKS.

Another Mysterious Murder Reported Near Millstone, Pa.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., March 19.—Following closely upon the murder of John Robl, whose dead body was found in a field near his boarding house at Plains on Saturday morning, comes another which is even more mysterious. The victim this time was Andrew Bochor, an intelligent Polish miner of Smithville, a village near this city and five miles from Plains.

Bochor and his wife kept a boarding house, and 10 young men who work in the mines boarded with them. Saturday was the birthday of one of the boarders, and after supper a keg of beer was tapped. About 10:30 o'clock Bochor left the party. Nearly an hour passed, and the wife becoming alarmed started out, accompanied by three of the boarders, to search for the missing man.

They had gone several hundred yards from the house when one of the men noticed a pool of blood by the roadside and numerous footprints which gave evidence of a struggle. A trail of blood led through the underbrush to the tracks of the Delaware and Hudson railroad several yards distant, and there they found the body of Bochor lying on the tracks with an ugly wound in the back of his head, from which the blood was dripping. He was still alive, but unconscious, and he was carried back to his home, where he died on Sunday without regaining consciousness.

HAZLETON, Pa., March 19.—John Hammer of Andenried was found unconscious on the Lehigh Valley tracks, near Oneida junction. He was discovered by the engineer of a train, which fortunately was proceeding slowly at this point. Hammer said he had been assaulted and robbed by six men, who had left him apparently unconscious on the tracks.

RIVAL ROADS AT WAR.

Two Railroad Armies Are Now Waiting to Begin Fighting.

WOODBINE, N. J., March 19.—This little village has been in a ferment of excitement. The trouble between the West Jersey and South Jersey railroads over the latter's attempt to cross the tracks of the former has become critical, and it now seems as though the controversy will end in bloodshed.

All the employees of the West Jersey road are now encamped near the crossing and have been re-enforced by a large body of men whom the company has hired to protect its property. Great fires have been burning all day, and the gathering is like that of an army ready for battle.

A few miles distant the workmen of the rival road are encamped, and about midway between the two forces is the force of 75 special officers sworn in by Judge West cott to preserve the peace.

Sheriff Hand, with 20 policemen, occupies quarters in the village. People for miles around are interested in the outcome of the expected battle, but the vicinity of the spot where the battle may be fought is quiet.

The work is to be pushed soon and the attempt made to effect a crossing on the forbidden ground. A gang of Italians will arrive from Tuckahoe, 20 is expected, and they will be backed by the South Jersey road's army. They will be met by the contending forces of the rival faction.

Seven Killed, Fifty Injured.

GREENVILLE, Tex., March 19.—A tornado passed over Emory, the county seat of Hunt county, 30 miles south of Greenville, destroying the western part of the town, killing 7 persons and injuring about 50 others.

The news reached this city, and an urgent request was sent by wire that all the physicians that could do so should hasten there.

A special train bearing physicians and reporters from Greenville has arrived at Emory. The train was met by a panic stricken body of citizens. The reporters and physicians hurried to the postoffice, where a dozen persons lay on stretchers.

Triple Murder by Robbers.

GUANAJUATO, Mexico, March 19.—Jose Flores and Sixto Martinez entered the residence of Pedro Lettero, aged 90 years, and stabbed the old man to death with knives. The deed was witnessed by two grandchildren of the murdered man, and they began to scream. The villains thereupon killed them both with knife blows. Manoe Aviles, a waiter, aged 5 years. They then robbed the house and made their escape.

Escaped, but Were Recaptured.

BIDDEFORD, Me., March 19.—Two prisoners—Della Rossin and Edward Durant—made a daring escape from the county jail at Alfred. With the aid of an iron bar they broke through the wall of the jail near the roof and, lowering themselves to the ground by tearing blankets into strips and tying them together. Both men were found concealed under a barn and recaptured.

Bill Nye Will Stop Lecturing.

CHICAGO, March 19.—Bill Nye has decided to stop lecturing. He says: "The fact is I cannot keep up my writing and lecturing. The writing is too hard, and when my family are anxious to see more of me, I shall close my platform career in a few weeks and go home in the mountains of North Carolina to gather my straw berry crop on my model farm."

Fight on a Train.

ROCKVILLE, Md., March 19.—William Hill (colored) is in jail here charged with assault with intent to kill. He was a passenger on the Metropolitan branch, and when the conductor tried to collect his fare he refused to pay and shot at but missed the conductor. The train was crowded when the fight began, and a public scandal.

Race Horses Burned Up.

OWENSBOROUGH, Ky., March 19.—John Kopp, a well-to-do stock man, had a splendidly equipped stock barn and 10 valuable race horses by fire. Lightning struck the barn. The building and contents were in ashes in 30 minutes.

Ashamed to Face His Wife.

CHATTANOOGA, March 19.—Joe Carden, an engineer, committed suicide by taking rat poison. He lost his month's salary in a gambling room and was ashamed to face his wife.

Storeroom In Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, March 19.—There was a notable gathering in the new famous Bohemia hall of the Pen and Pencil club, here last night. The president thereon was among the guests.

Mrs. John W. Noble Dead.

ST. LOUIS, March 19.—Mrs. John W. Noble, wife of ex-President Harrison's secretary of the interior, died suddenly at her home in this city.

New Paper In Washington.

WASHINGTON, March 19.—The Washington Times, a morning paper, appeared for the first time in this city Sunday.

TEXAS TORNADO SWEPT

Many Killed and Injured by a Fearful Wind.

HAILSTONES LIKE CANNON BALLS.

In One House Six Persons Met Instant Death Amid Crashing Timbers—Cattle and Fowl Killed by the Unequaled Hail—The List of the Dead May Be Very Large.

LONGVIEW, Tex., March 19.—A cyclone swept over this place, accompanied by hailstones of immense size. The greatest fury was six miles east of here, where it struck the large country home of John Cain, largely occupied by a large family of negroes. The house was in an ancient grove of oaks, 20 in number. Every one of them was uprooted and piled up in terrible confusion, with dead fowls, dogs and cows and five dead and eight badly wounded negroes.

Old man Alexander Lester was found 50 yards away mortally wounded and dead. His wife Sarah was pinned under a tree mangled and dead. Alexander Lester, Jr., was found and is dead. Robert Lester, 8 years old, was found dead near a tree without a mark of violence.

Willie Lester, 5 years old, was slightly hurt. He started on up the long way from home in a field and suffering from hail and rain.

Doings of the Storm.

Mr. Ben Stone, a white man living near by, brought assistance, and the dead and wounded were taken to a one room house belonging to E. C. Edwards, a son-in-law, where they were placed in bed in strange confusion—unconscious, suffering and side by side. The correspondent often mistook the dead for the living. Drs. Hall and Wilson were attending them. Hardly had he just, while the wounded who were able hobbled, painfully bleeding, about the yard, bemoaning the fate of their relatives and friends.

Half a mile south the house of a Mr. Davis, a white man, was completely demolished, but with the exception of a few painful bruises all escaped.

John Knffet's wagon was blown away, and much of it has not been found yet. The grain in the fields for miles to the east, was uprooted. The house of Sallie Jones (colored) was wrecked, and her 4-year-old daughter Lorilla was perhaps fatally wounded by flying timbers.

A passenger train passed just as the cyclone swept by, narrowly escaping it. All persons assisting in picking stones and wind dwindle into insignificance in comparison with this storm. Many of the blocks of ice were from 15 to 18 ounces in weight, many others found after a warm rain and warm weather were larger than a goose egg. Two of these missiles passed through the roof of C. E. Thornton's residence, making a hole like a cannon ball, while fowls roosting in the trees were killed by the hundreds.

A cow belonging to T. Frank Lawson was killed, and stock bear many marks from these ice stones. About 300 window lights were broken in this place, while the residence of Mr. Matthews was unroofed for miles around. Full particulars will doubtless swell the casualty.

Lynched by Boys.

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 19.—John Parrott, who lives at Forest Hill, found his 12-year-old son dangling by a rope from the limb of a tree. The father cut the rope, and by applying restoratives he soon restored his son. The boy said that two companions, one of whom was Dan Shirth, became enraged at him for some trifling occurrence, and seizing him they procured a rope and hanged him in real lynching style. The rope was tied to the trunk of the tree, and the boy was left hanging. Mr. Parrott procured warrants for the arrest of the boys.

Troops Withdrawn From Denver.

DENVER, March 19.—General McCook has withdrawn the federal troops from this city to Fort Logan. The proceedings against Mayor Vaulson and Police Commissioners Rogers, Barnes and Mullins for contempt of court in having violated the injunction issued by Judge Graham on behalf of Messrs. Orr and Martin, the commissioners removed by Governor Waite, will come up before Judge Glynn this morning.

Duck Hunters Drowned.

PROVINCETOWN, March 19.—The body of Edward H. Bennett was recovered just off Chippewanoxette point. The body of C. P. Spencer has not been found. The two young men were drowned while duck shooting in Greenwich bay Saturday. Their boat was overturned, and as their pockets were heavily weighted with shot and ammunition it was impossible for them to reach land.

Ferdinand Ward to Marry Again.

ROCHESTER, March 19.—Ferdinand Ward has returned to his childhood's home, Geneseo, and it is rumored that he intends to settle in the little village permanently. It is announced that Mr. Ward will on next Thursday be married to a Brooklyn woman, whose name is not given out, but it is said that she is a friend of Ward's first wife.

To Join the Industrial Army.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 19.—A delegation of 60 unemployed workingmen, who have been here for the past several months subsisting on the charity of the public society, left here on a Southern Pacific freight train for Los Angeles to join the industrial army.

BITS FROM THE WIRES.

Severe snowstorms have been prevalent throughout Nebraska.

The condition of ex-Senator Dawes of Massachusetts is much improved.

Secretary Carlisle has received from a New Yorker a distribution of $10 to the conscience fund.

In Montevideo the deadlock on the presidential question continues, with no sign of it being speedily broken.

Poorman mining property, in Coeur d'Alene county, Ida., has been sold to English capitalists for $500,000.

During an encounter with a burglar in Whittier, Cal., the Rev. Andrew Carson was shot through the lung and will die.

Capture has been made in the City of Mexico of Emilio Vasquez, the notorious bandit of San Joaquin, who has long eluded the law.

The Providence park commissioners have voted $2,000 for the preservation of State rock, the famous rock where Roger Williams extended his hand to the friendly Indians.

William M. Hall, a custom house weigher in the Atlas sugar refinery, was arrested for applexy, and George H. Prior, manager of the stores, was so affected that he, too, died of appoplexy.

RIVER DWINDLING AWAY.

The Missouri May In Time Become but a Small Stream.

ATCHISON, Kan., March 19.—The United States engineering department has just completed a survey of the upper Missouri river and so far down as this point. In the opinion of the engineers the Missouri river is dwindling away and will in time become a small stream.

They find the total volume of water at Great Falls, Mon., measured 4,706 cubic feet per second, while at Fort Benton, 25 miles down the river, the volume was but 4,351 cubic feet per second—a decrease of 405 cubic feet. This, they claim, explains the presence of the great subterranean body of water known as the South Dakota submerged river. The discovery was announced for by an outlet in the bed of the river somewhere between the points mentioned.

These engineers state that cyclone fish have been discovered in the above locality, such as insidit subterranean streams. In 1873 similar observations as to the volume of water were taken by the department, and since that time there has been a decrease of fully 30 per cent in the volume of water in the river.

Sow Over Irish Flags.

SCRANTON, Pa., March 19.—Great excitement was occasioned in the city of Carbondale when Mayor Hendricks ordered down the three Irish flags that were floating in the breeze in front of the Academy of Music. Manager Keeny indignantly refused, and the mayor ordered a detachment of the police force to do it. The policeman, an Irishman, would not obey the command, and the flags did not come down.

Killed Himself on a Friend's Advice.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., March 19.—Fritz Gigingier, a German keeper, was talking with some of his friends when one of them said in response to a remark he made, "Oh, go on; you are attending them mighty lucky." He fired a shot at him, left the place. A few moments later a shot was heard in one of the rooms above the saloon, and when the crowd burst in the door they found Gigingier lying dead on the floor.

Carpenter's Awful Slide.

CHICAGO, March 19.—At a new grain elevator in process of erection at South Chicago, Joost Coates, a carpenter, slipped on the roof and slid rapidly to the edge. As he was going over the ledge Coates grabbed a wall plate with his right hand and hung to it, his body being suspended at a height of 100 feet. The other workmen were paralyzed with fright, and two of them fainted. He was finally rescued.

Fainted In the Pulpit.

TROY, N. Y., March 19.—Rev. Peter Havemans, while celebrating mass in St. Mary's church, was seized with heart failure and fell prostrate in his pulpit. The greatest excitement prevailed among the congregation. The aged divine was resuscitated and carried to his home next door, where he was reported as improving.

Cock Fight Raided.

BROCKTON, Mass., March 19.—Police officers ran across a crowd of sports engaged in a cock fight in an open lot. The crowd, which numbered about 100 persons, was taken completely by surprise, and the officers succeeded in capturing seven of the men, five teams and 18 cocks, the latter valued at $300.

Another Explosion Victim.

NEWPORT, R. I., March 19.—Maurice Harney, one of the victims of the explosion on the torpedo station launch Wave, died on Thursday at the hospital as a result of burns. This is the second of the men burned that have died from injuries then received.

Destructive Fire In Brooklyn.

BROOKLYN, March 19.—A disastrous fire, resulting in the destruction of over $200,000 worth of property, broke out in the extensive paint and varnish factory of Silas A. Insley & Co., at the southeast corner of York and Adams streets.

St. Patrick a Protestant.

PHILADELPHIA, March 19.—Rev. C. H. Woolston, pastor of the East Baptist church, in a protracted meeting here created a Protestant view of St. Patrick, who, he said, was a Protestant reformer.

Denver's Union Depot Burned.

DENVER, March 19.—The handsome Union depot at the foot of Seventeenth street, covering two blocks from Sixteenth to Eighteenth streets, was destroyed by fire.

Naming the Baby.

A baby is a baby when it is twelve days old, and usually by the mother. Sometimes the father wishes for another name than that chosen by the mother. In such cases the names are written on separate slips of paper and a lamp placed over each. The name over which the lamp burns brightest is given the child. Egyptian parents choose a name for their baby by lighting three wax candles; to each of these they give a name, one of the three always belonging to some dignified personage. The candle that burns the longest bestows the name upon the baby.—Boston Transcript.

WATCHUNG PARK PROPERTY!

Handsomely situated

BUILDING LOTS

now offered for sale.

This Property is in the heart of the recently opened residence section of the city, being within a few minutes' walk of the Central Railroad station.

The Park, Watchung and Grant avenues, and Second, Third and Fourth streets, will be among the handsomest residence sections in this pretty suburban place.

Only High Grade Residences will be erected, assuring an exclusive class of people to live in Plainfield.

All Modern Improvements will be in force by early Spring. The work of macadamizing the streets is now being pushed rapidly.

Electric Cars Pass the Property, and gas, light, gas and city water will be introduced as soon in the Spring as they are needed.

Heaps of Money have been invested in Sandford and Westervelt avenues, and fortunes have been located on the old (ressents' hall field).

Just as Property Values jumped in Sandford and Westervelt avenues, so will they also increase rapidly in Watchung Park. Those who buy now will reap the benefit of an early investment.

The Lots Are About 50x150 feet in size, and the map of the property, printed in three colors, is now ready. Wednesday and Saturday will give the public necessary information as to their location.

For further information regarding prices and terms, large copies of the map, etc., address or call on Messrs. A. D. THOMPSON, 147 North avenue, opposite Railroad Station, Plainfield, N. J.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN.

A Giant Stride.

Boys, did you ever make a "giant stride?" My brother Frank and I spent many happy hours in boyhood exercising upon this exhilarating device.

If you live in or near the country, select a good, straight young hickory pole, 8 or 10 inches through at the bottom and running up 30 or 35 feet to 4 or 5 inches through. Saw the top off square and shrink on an iron ring to prevent splitting of the wood.

Dig an iron pin half to three-quarters of an inch in diameter and 10 inches long into the center of the top of the pole. Set the pole up securely in the ground in a space where you can have a free swing of 15 feet from the pole on every side.

Take an oak or hickory bar 4½ inches wide, 4 inches thick and 2 feet long and bore a hole in the center of such size as to permit the bar to turn freely on the pin in the top of the pole. Near each end of this bar bore a hole about one-half an inch in diameter.

Secure to each end of the bar, by passing it through the small hole and firmly tying, a good piece of rope, with a loop of at least 3½ feet at the lower end. When these looped ropes are suspended from the crossbar, they must touch the ground or clear it by only a few inches at the bottom of the pole.

Above the loop fix a short, round piece of wood to form a hand piece. Make a "saddle" by placing in each loop a piece of carpet or leather. Your "giant stride" is now ready for use.

Two of you must put your right legs through the saddles, so as to bring the body on the outside of the loop, away from the pole. Grasp the hand piece and run, in a circle as far away from the pole as possible. As you gain momentum you will find yourself supported easily in the saddle and will be enabled to swing entirely around the pole, often making the circuit several times without touching the ground with the feet.

If you wish to reverse the movement, place the left leg, instead of the right, through the loop.—Youth's Companion.

If you were a German child of 4 years, you would know how to weed your mother's garden without ever pulling up a flower or a vegetable, and you would do it, too, for little German boys and girls are taught to work in the fields almost as soon as they can walk. By the time you were 12 years old you would be quite an experienced farmer. If you remained in Germany, the law would require you to go to school 10 months out of every year until you were Woman.

Once upon a time there lived a woman, and the woman was lonely, so she cried to the gods and said: "Oh, I am very lonely. Give me some one to comfort me." And the gods heard and were sorry for the woman. And they took a beautiful human soul, perfect in every part, and clothed it in the garments of a man, and brought it to the woman.

When the woman heard them coming, she was very glad, for she said: "Now I shall be no longer lonely. Now there will be one to keep me company." But when she saw the man she gave a great cry and fell down as one dead. And when she had a little recovered she shrieked: "Oh, take it away! I cannot bear it! It wears an old fashioned coat, and, behold, I see a spot of grease upon it."

Then the gods were wroth with the woman and took the soul away and left her lonely. So the woman sat and lamented. Time passed.

"Oh, ye gods!" cried the woman once again, "I am very lonely. Give me some one to comfort me."

Then the gods had compassion on the woman and, they took a block of wood, and carved out of it a beautiful human form, and dressed it in the latest fashion, and gave it eyeglasses and a flower for its buttonhole, and brought it to the woman.

When the woman saw it, she rejoiced greatly, and thought it a man and took it, and kissed it, and fondled it, and was comforted. And the woman called the figure a man, and she thought it was alive.—New York Recorder.

Aprons For Romping Children.

A sensible mother who finds it necessary finish her laundry list and to delay the wearing out of garments as long as possible makes both her little sons and daughters wear aprons when playing in the house. The sleeves of jackets and seats of trousers are saved much wear, and her children paint, use ink, model in clay and do various other delightful but sport provoking things without restraint.

Concession is made to the small boy's desire to look manly by making the aprons with a sailor collar and with a yoke laid in three box plaits. The aprons are of blue and white checked gingham, made with enough fullness to prevent their hanging like strait jackets, and may be worn with a leather belt. The little boy who wears these aprons is by no means a ridiculous looking child, for beneath the apron, when play is over, is found a natty suit of blue serge in winter and of white duck in summer. If the days are very warm, the apron only may be worn.—New York World.

The Dignity of Housekeeping.

I believe myself that a large class of American women are shockingly enervated by the irresponsibility of apartment and hotel life and overindulgent husbands. It is a great pity some strong tongued and silver tongued orator does not rise up and preach to them of the dignity, beauty and importance of housekeeping after the old fashioned, handmade method. It is the noblest and most womanly occupation on earth.

The domestic machine is infinitely more complicated than any electrical apparatus, more powerful than a Corliss engine, and unless properly handled is as deadly as a circular saw. To run one smoothly and safely is a prouder mission than writing a book, converting heathen or advancing the cause of political equality. Why the profession has fallen into contempt when it calls into play so many high and handsome talents I fail to understand. I suppose

Bridget holds the key of the situation, and no one has courage to break the lock.—American Woman.

A Good Puree Soup.

One of the best of the puree soups is made from black turtle beans and stock. It is choice enough for any dinner, though not by quite nutritious enough to be used alone as a clear soup for a dinner of many courses. Pick over a pint of the beans and soak them 12 hours in cold water. The next morning drain and cover with three pints of boiling water. Cook slowly until the beans are tender. Drain the beans, press them through a fine wire sieve. Heat three pints of the stock, add the beans and stir thoroughly. Heat to the boiling point, season to taste with salt and pepper. Garnish the soup with thin slices of lemon.

Hard boiled eggs are also excellent in this soup. Cut them in thin slices and use with the sliced lemon. Have your soup plates hot. A half cupful of good sherry makes this soup very palatable. If used, it should be added the very last thing, and the rest of the soup should be so hot that the addition of a little liquid will not cool it.—New York Post.

Practical Gymnastics.

Physical exercise is essential to animal health. The "picking up," dusting, dish washing and the endless rounds of housekeeping which keep the housewife eternally occupied are not blood stirring, but done with the window open are not without benefit. The gymnastics of beating, carpet cleaning and rug shaking exercise all the muscles, quicken the circulation as well as a direct weight and have the advantage of being useful. Brushing the dust from the ceiling and walls is good muscle developing exercise.—Boston Commonwealth.

When Baby's Fretful.

"Sometimes when a baby is very fretful, and nothing seems to quiet it you can lessen its wails by scratching its back. A baby is a good deal like a little pig or a puppy, and it loves to be scratched. Loosen the baby's skirt bands and with the well warmed hand gently rub its back and finally its whole body. This works like a charm in most instances. When a baby has colic, don't jolt and jar it. Imagine how you would feel if you had the stomach ache, and some great giant pranced you around in the air or over the knee.—Washington Star.

Keep Out the Croaker.

Men or women who have always a tale to tell of "how he suffered, that way himself" should be kept out of the patient's room. Their sympathy will do harm every time. In the sick chamber, if the patient can see company at all, there should be only bright, cheery talk, and the creature with "symptoms" can talk a man into having any and every disease on earth in less than half an hour. A sick man should be led to forget his ills and not to rehearse them or compare notes.—Chicago Journal.

Early Rising.

Begin the day well by rising early. The universal experience of the wisest men of all ages is in favor of the habit of getting up early in the morning. The practice is closely connected with length of life. It is also closely connected with happiness and activity of life.—New York Ledger.

DA GAMA HAS ESCAPED.

Insurgent Admiral Sails Off on a Portuguese Warship.

SEVENTY OFFICERS GO WITH HIM.

It Is Thought That the Rebels Will Be Landed at Buenos Ayres, Where They May Join De Mello—Revolting Crime In London.

RIO JANEIRO, March 19.—Judging from the course of events here, it is thought by impartial observers that the Portuguese governments does not intend to honor the request made upon it for the surrender of Admiral da Gama, who was lately in command of the insurgent fleet before this city. Admiral da Gama took refuge on the Portuguese corvet Mindello when the insurrection here collapsed.

President Peixoto demanded that the admiral and the officers who were with him be delivered into his hands. The Portuguese minister declined to order the commander of the Mindello to surrender the fugitives, and President Peixoto appealed, it is said, to the Portuguese government to instruct its minister to order the surrender of the insurgent officers. Whether a reply has been received to this request or but should be definitely stated, but Portugal the Mindello and the Albuquerque, another Portuguese warship, having on board Admiral da Gama and 70 of his officers, put to sea.

It had been thought in some quarters that if the vessels attempted to leave the bay with the fugitives on board trouble would ensue. There was not, however, the slightest opposition to their departure, and as a matter of fact trouble arising from this source was never probable.

The destination of the warships is not known. It is conjectured that they will go south to Montevideo and land the insurgent officers there. If they are landed at Montevideo, they can easily, if they are so disposed, join the insurgents in the states of Sao Paulo and Rio Grande do Sul, who are still in armed opposition to the government. The fact that Admiral da Gama and his officers have succeeded in getting out of the bay is a matter of great rejoicing among their friends in this city. There is no doubt in the minds of anybody that had the admiral been unsuccessful the government his trial by a drumhead court martial would have quickly followed. There would have been only one result of this kind, and that would have been sentence of death.

A London Murder.

LONDON, March 19.—This city has for a comparatively long time been exempt from murder, but a sensation has been caused by the discovery of a crime that in its details somewhat resembles the notorious Goulfe murder that occurred some time ago in Paris.

The scene of this latest London horror was in Grafton street, in the Soho district, which is infested with foreigners of the lowest class. It was in the immediate vicinity of the house in which the murder was committed that the police recently raided the anarchists' clubs. An Austrian woman named Marie Hermann, who is well known to the police as a night prowler, recently rented a small room in a house in Grafton street. On Thursday night last, in company with an elderly man, she was seen to enter the room. Subsequently loud quarreling was heard in the room by other tenants in the house, but as words were of frequent occurrence no attention was paid to this disturbance.

A woman named Hutchins, who lodged with the Hermann woman, on Friday found blood stains on a sink and spoke to the Hermann woman about them. The latter passed the matter off lightly, but on Saturday she changed her lodgings, taking her few apartments to Marylebone street. She took with her a heavy trunk, which she asked should be carefully handled.

Took the Trunk With Her.

In the meantime the suspicions of the Hutchins woman were aroused, owing to the blood stains she had found on the sink. In addition it became noised about the house that the man who had gone to the Hermann woman's room had not been seen to leave it. The Hutchins woman followed Hermann when she moved, and after learning her new address she informed the police that she suspected foul play had been done.

Officers were sent to the house in Marylebone street, where the Hermann woman had taken up her residence, and a search of the premises was immediately instituted by her. The trunk which the woman had been so careful about was in the room.

The police forced it open and found in it the body of the unfortunate man. His head had been battered evidently with some blunt instrument. The body presented a frightful appearance, and the clothing in which it was attired was drenched with blood. The Hermann woman was at once taken into custody on a charge of willful murder.

The body has been recognized as that of a well to do ex-jobmaster named Stevens. He was 76 years old. It is believed that the Hermann woman had an accomplice in committing the murder, as Stevens was a muscular man. It may be, however, that he was killed while asleep. The prisoner is 63 years old. She is ugly almost to repulsiveness.

QUIET AT CRIPPLE CREEK.

Troops Camped In Town and Miners Being Arrested.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Colo., March 19.—Everything is quiet here, and it is now thought there is little likelihood of serious trouble. Some of the miners, however, are desperate men, and not a few of them went through the horrors in Cœur d'Alene, as they have often admitted. The troops of the national guard arrived in town and went into camp at the foot of Second street on a large plot of vacant ground.

A hospital has been opened in a large building in the upper town, and it now has five inmates, some of the cases of a serious nature. A large number of business men waited upon Sheriff Bowers, General Tarsney and General Brooks. The situation was fully explained to the officers of the national guard.

Later General Tarsney had a long talk with Governor Waite by telephone and explained the situation to him as clear as fully as possible. Governor Waite then advised that a conference with the miners and authorities of Altman be held. This was agreed to by all sides, and the sheriff said that the men on Bull hill should come down from the hill and return again without molestation. The men then left and will not attempt to serve any warrants on the men while they are in the city.

Martin Alexander, the mayor of Altman, and John Daley, the deputy sheriff of the town, were arrested in this city and placed in jail early in the forenoon. John Calderwood, the president of the Miners' union, was also arrested. The men were taken to the county jail at Colorado Springs.

A COMPLICATED RUNAWAY.

A Pony and Gig the Cause of Considerable Excitement on Third Street.

There was some excitement on East Third street about eleven o'clock this morning. It was all caused by an honest looking pony. Noah Perry had left his pony and gig in front of Flannery's blacksmith shop. The pony, tied to a post, stood as mute as a lamb, for some time. Suddenly it took a notion to get loose, and began to pull back. As the post was of iron and would'nt break, the strap did and the pony made a bee-line up the street. Then commenced a series of mishaps. The pony and gig collided with a light wagon belonging to Alert Hose Co., turning it half way round; but not damaging it any. Next the gig caught on the wheels of Jerome's butcher wagon which had been standing in front of the Beef Company's house. The Kenzie team were seemingly waiting for just such an opportunity to have a little run, for no sooner had the gig struck their wagon which away they went at a gallop. The Beef Company's horse stood a short distance ahead of Mr. Kenzie's team, and, startled by the noise and clatter, it also decided to take a hand in it.

On the street Richmond both rigs went, the Beef Company's wagon slightly in the lead.

The pony fell out of line after running into the butcher wagon, and brought up on the sidewalk, between the fence and a tree. The suddenness with which the gig was stopped allowed the pony to snap the harness and dash for home without any wagon.

The butcher wagon overturned at the corner of Richmond street and the horses broke loose from it.

This is the second runaway Mr. McKenzie's team has had on East Third street.

The wagons made such a racket that women and children came running out of the houses to see what was the matter.

AN ATTEMPT AT ROBBERY.

The Would-Be Burglar Heard a Noise in the House, and Fled.

Between two and three o'clock Monday morning an attempt was made to burglarize the house at the corner of West Second and New streets. The house is occupied by two families, Charles H. Francisco and George H. Rockefellow. The Francisco's live on the first floor. Mrs. Francisco heard the noise of a man trying to pry open the door. She awakened her husband, but the would-be burglar heard the noise inside and fled.

—For the past week a fine big dog has been noticed around Mr. Carey's store building, at the corner of Front and Grove streets. There is a collar on the dog's neck bearing the following inscription: "Gabriel. Stella Lohlebothan, Spruce street, Philadelphia."

—A party of three went to Rahwood for a stroll on Sunday, and on the way back they came upon a nest of snakes, twelve in number. One of the old ones escaped, the other was captured and brought home alive. It measured nearly three feet. The little ones were killed.

—A bill introduced in the Legislature changes the game laws as follows: Squirrels from October 31 to December 16; quail, from October 31 to December 1; partridge and grouse, from October 31 to December 16; woodcock, during July and from October 31 to December 16, each year.

—The finished and artistic character of the work of the Schumann Lady Quartette is said to be the result of the long association, as a quartette, of four beautiful and finely cultivated voices. The concert will be given under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. at the Casino on Friday evening, March 30th, and will be advertised.

MAY HAVE BASE BALL AGAIN.

Plainfield's Diamond May be Leased to Outsiders.

A base ball diamond is to be laid out on the track of land leased by the Crescent Wheelmen on Randolph Road. The diamond will be inside the bicycle track. There is to be a grand stand, with "bleachers" on each end for those who attend the bicycle races. These stands will also serve for the base ball attendance.

It is likely that a team made up of Plainfield amateurs will be put in the field. It was said at first that Mr. John McLoughlin would manage a team, but Mr. McLaughlin says he will not be able to take the management of a team, on account of his business. He would play on a team if such a one were formed.

The plan most talked of among the Crescent Wheelmen is to hire out the base ball privilege to an outside team. They would play exhibition games here on Saturdays. It is understood that the managers of two or three teams are anxious to do this, and are only waiting for the Crescents Wheelmen to say the word. The manager of the Paterson, a strong aggregation of ball players, is one of those, it is said, who will bring his team here on Saturdays.

NOMINATING OFFICERS.

At the Special Meeting of the Home Building and Loan Association.

A special meeting of the Home Building and Loan Association was held in the room over the City National Bank last evening, to elect officers.

A committee composed of Messrs. Cornwell, Brown and Sampson, was appointed to nominate.

The committee prepared a ticket. The only change made was in the directors. The presiding officers will be the same, and, as directors, in place of four retiring, the following are proposed: Messrs. C. E. Apgar, A. C. Normer, W. T. Kirk and Geo. Griffen.

The election will be at the next meeting and will be duly advertised.

Week of Prayer at the Congregational Church.

The Congregational church will observe this week as a week of prayer. Meetings will be held Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings. On Tuesday evening a short sermon will be preached by Rev. L. B. Goodrich of Bound Brook on the theme, "The Collective Power of the Cross," which will be followed by prayer and remarks. The topic Wednesday evening will be "The Fellowship of Christ's Sufferings." Thursday evening, Rev. J. W. Richardson of the Park avenue Baptist church will preach on the subject, "Cross and Crown." Prayer and testimony will follow. The church will join in the union service in Grace church on Friday evening.

Met and Organized.

The Westfield Township Committee met Saturday evening and organized. Martin Wells was elected chairman and C. F. Conant treasurer. The amount of bonds for the town officers was fixed as follows: Collector, $1,500; treasurer, $1,500. The official oaths of the Assessor, Surveyors of Highway and Commissioners of Appeal were filed with the Town Clerk. The Chief of the Fire Department and his two assistants presented their certificates of election, and the committee indorsed them as approved. The committee adjourned to meet on Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

Taking Testimony in the Stites Will Case.

Testimony was taken in the Stites will case at Elizabeth yesterday before Surrogate Parker. The subscribing witness, Dr. Westcott and Mr. Flannery, were the only ones examined. The case was then adjourned until to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock. Messrs. C. A. Marsh and W. L. Rethell represented the will and Jackson & Anderson, Judge W. A. Coddington and Ex-Judge W. R. Codington represented William E. Dunn, who is trying to break the will.

Their Wages Unpaid.

Eleven pavers employed by con tractors Nelson & Cullen in constructing the Rutherford trolley line on Jersey City Heights have placed claims for $213 wages due in the hands of State Senator Daly for collection. Hundreds of Italian workmen employed on the road are also looking for their money. Nelson & Cullen have an office in this city, and are not considered to blame.

Second New Jersey Brigade.

The seventh annual reunion of the Second New Jersey Brigade Society will be held at Asbury Park, on Monday, April 9th. The society is composed of the 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, and 11th New Jersey Regiments; 26 and 120th New York; 38th and 158th Pennsylvania; 1st and 11th Massachusetts; 1st Maine Heavy Artillery and Clark's Battery.

—Twenty-six students were in attendance at the classes in Mechanical drawing and book keeping at the Y. M. C. A. rooms last evening.

—Go by the book on Beecham's Pills.

THE LEGISLATURE.

BILLS INTRODUCED AND PASSED IN THE HOUSE.

The Bill Providing for Corporal Punishment in the Schools Lost by a Vote of 41 to 11.—Civil Service for Letter Carriers.

A petition was received, signed by Messrs. E. P. C. Young, Mayor Wanser, Colonel Fuller, Colonel A. W. Dickinson, Phelps Medley, Ex-Governor Bedle, Willard C. Fisk, A. Q. Keasbey, Charles C. Black and others, asking the Legislature to pass the bill providing for the establishment of a naval reserve.

CORPORAL PUNISHMENT IN SCHOOLS.

House 151, by Mr. Eade, providing that corporal punishment may be inflicted by a rattan in public schools, if written consent of parents or guardians is given, was advanced on third reading by Mr. Eisler and approved by Mr. Olcott. The latter contended that too much power was given the teachers under the proposed bill and that it was a step backward instead of forward. Messrs. Wilbur and Salinger opposed the bill, and claimed that the punishment should be inflicted by the parents and not the teachers. Mr. Wilson, in opposing the bill, said the only saying that you could catch more flies with molasses than vinegar, would apply to the proposed bill, inasmuch as more scholars are kept under control by kindness than by corporal punishment. There was a protracted debate on the bill and it was lost, 11 to 41.

BILLS PASSED.

House 168 fixes salaries of officers of the house of assembly.

CIVIL SERVICE, FOR LETTER CARRIERS.

A resolution by Mr. Menkalier was referred to the Committee on Miscellaneous Business, calling upon the legislature to pass the bill regulating the removal of letter carriers.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

207, Mr. McEwan, creates State Water Board, to supply water to the municipalities; four commissioners to be appointed by the governor, the fifth, a hydraulic engine, to be appointed by the governor, the salaries to be fixed by the governor, not to exceed $10,000 per year.

198, Mr. Eisler, provides that railway companies shall provide a guard or fender in front of each car to prevent loss of life or limb by persons killed by the city authorities, and each violation to be punished by a fine of $50 for each offence.

199, Mr. Eisler, limits telephone charges in first class cities to $5 per month.

201, Mr. Ringer, makes it unlawful to establish or erect any building for reception of manure, animal droppings, etc., in any first class city, or within five miles thereof, under penalty of $5,000 for each day of imprisonment.

202, Mr. Ross, makes it unlawful to dredge for clams in Delaware Bay, South of Dennis Creek to Brandywine Light House, under penalty of $200 or two years imprisonment, boat and tackle to be confiscated.

203, Mr. Berry, requires registration of all druggists, who must be graduates of college of pharmacy, after having been assistants for four years; the applicants to be 21 years old or older.

208, Mr. Ewan, gives board of fire commissioners full control of all engines, etc., connected with fire departments, and providing that the expenditures of the board shall not exceed the sum fixed by law.

AGAINST KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

A Decision of Great Importance to Secret Orders Rendered in Court.

A decision, by Judge Childs, of Newark, in the Circuit Court, in the suit of Emma F. Lake against the Supreme Lodge of Knights of Pythias of the United States of America, in relation to the secret societies.

In December, 1887, Granger was suspended from the Lamartine Lodge of Newark, for "conduct unbecoming a Knight of Pythias." Two years previous to his suspension Granger had procured from the Endowment Rank of the Order a certificate of insurance for $2,000, and had kept up the payments on the same. After his suspension he again tendered payment, but it was rejected by the Section Secretary, William F. Lizell.

In 1890 Granger died and his children brought suit for the amount of the insurance. Judge Childs decided in their favor, basing the decision upon the fact that in the manner of suspending Granger, the lodge had not complied with the rule of the order. After pointing out the fact that the committee which suspended Granger was not legally appointed under the rules, Judge Child said:

"A member of an association in which he has a pecuniary interest cannot be expelled unless he be found guilty of an offense which either affects the interest or good government of the association, or is indictable by the law of the land."

Apples Dearer Than Flour.

[Buffalo Express.]

It is a peculiar fact that for the first time in over a quarter of a century a barrel of apples is worth more than a barrel of flour, and the relative difference promises to prove larger before the year is closed. Fair apples can be sold at $3 a barrel, while flour can be obtained fully a dollar cheaper. It is also cheaper to buy good oranges by the box than apples by the barrel.

A FEW NEW FASHIONS IN GOWNS

Pointers for Women—Written by an Authority—A Pretty Evening Cloak.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—

This pretty and convenient evening wrap, designed for a young lady's use, is in peach colored cloth lined with silk. The plaited cape is edged with lace and passementerie, and the ruff is of white curled coque feathers.

EVENING WRAP FOR YOUNG LADY.

Fancies That Please.

Very delightful bodices are made of watered silk, and on the whole it may be noticed that corsie is the most popular shade.

Turned down white linen collars are very fashionable, worn with any kind of a blouse, and to young ladies they are very becoming.

Fanciful galons of most elaborate patterns, with predominating paillettes, will be smiled upon by the authorities, and there will not be the least diminution in the attentions we are lavishing upon the black satin and black watered ribbon.

And, according to the New York Herald, effective belts are made of black satin ribbon profusely jetted and watered ribbons with the design outlined with spangles are also made into bands for the waist, but not perhaps with much success.

Short Coats and Capes For Spring.

Short coats are predicted for spring wear, in contrast to the long ones now worn. They are to be made with open front, showing a waistcoat or shirt waist, and with a volant or flounce sewed on as a skirt at the waist line, to fall full on the hips.

Short capes, extremely full and fastened at the throat by a large inecrgable bow, are being made for spring and summer wear. They are of cloth, velvet, and lace of rather light colors and also black. These capes, if kept too short to look dowdy, cannot fail to remain in favor, at least, while large sleeves are in vogue, and they have other reasons d'etre besides, as they are graceful, convenient, economical and inexpensive, says Harper's Bazar.

The Tapering Corsage Bouquet.

Corsage bouquets are boldly treated to be in keeping with the puffed sleeves that rule for the season. The cluster of flowers has all the natural stalks left intact, and the bouquet narrows as it nears the waist, which gives a tapering effect that is most becoming to all figures. A dainty corsage decoration for a young lady is composed of two light bunches of lilies of the valley connected by fine sprays of smilax.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Theatrical Note.

Fanny Davenport who makes her first appearance this season in Newark opens at Miner's Newark Theatre in Sardou's famous Cleopatra. To the famous American artist the greatest amount of credit is due for the energetic management and artistic impersonation of the "Queen of the Nile." In her hands Sardou's Cleopatra outlived the same creation by the great Bernhardt who has practically abandoned the role. The American artist has shown by her grit and enterprise what can be done with this play magnificently mounted and artistically put before the public without the slightest detail being neglected. It goes without saying that Cleopatras will be mounted with all the grandeur that characterized its performances last year.

Although the gay and glittering burlesque "1492" at the Garden Theatre is overflowing with mirthful and melodious specialties every week Mr. Rice is always on the alert for new sensations. He has secured one that is destined to meet with enormous success here as in Paris, Berlin, Madrid and London—the Kilsay troupe, comprising a dozen beautiful German and Italian girls, most perfect in form and features, whose living pictures caused a storm of applause when first exhibited last Tuesday night. The living statues are grouped within a huge golden frame and shown at the beginning of the third act of the burlesque. Herr Von Kilanyi, a Hungarian artist of repute from Buda Pesth, has invented original effects of groupsin and lighting, which make these reproductions very vivid and beautiful. Eighteen pictures, the work of famous artists, are shown.

Fatality in Infancy.

Of all the fatal affections that occur in the first year of life, 40 per cent. are diseases of the digestive, and 20, per cent. diseases of the respiratory organs. In the second, the main cause of death changes entirely, for of forty-five deaths from the two causes in that year, but nine are due to diseases of the digestive, and thirty-six to affections of respiratory organs. Thus, in the first year the stomach and intestines, and in the second the bronchi and the lungs are the scenes of a high death-rate.—A Jacobi in Medical Current.

NEW YORK'S MYSTERY.

Some New Light Shed on Miss Fuller's Death.

THEORIES TO PROVE SHE WAS SHOT.

The Man Who First Reached the Room Where the Pretty Typewriter Met Her Death Observed Some Interesting Things—A New Pool of Blood Found.

NEW YORK, March 20.—The web of evidence connecting Joseph T. Magee, the young lawyer, with the killing of Miss Emma J. Fuller, the handsome typewriter in the office of Lawyer Mullen in Nassau Chambers on Saturday evening, was woven a little closer yesterday, and the theory of suicide was correspondingly weakened. Superintendent Byrnes personally stepped into the case and detailed two of his best detectives to assist Inspector Byrnes in the investigation. The latter, who held to the theory of suicide on Sunday, while refusing to commit himself positively, last night said, "While I do not say that this is a murder, a man can change his opinions as a case develops."

One of the things which seem to indicate that the unfortunate young woman, if she shot herself, held the revolver a good distance from her head is the fact that no powder marks were found upon her as far as can be ascertained.

Another thing which has already been dilated upon is that the shot passed through her head from left to right; that she was not left handed, and that on her left hand was a glaze so arranged that it would have been extremely difficult for her to have fired a revolver in any direction with accuracy. And the revolver, from all appearances, was aimed accurately when the trigger was pulled.

Some New Light.

Through the wall of mystery and reticence which has grown up around the office where the tragedy occurred there has come some additional light. The most important evidence was secured from J. Frank Kiernan and J. F. Riley, who occupy Room 910, Nassau Chambers, directly over that in which the tragedy took place. Mr. Kiernan was the first man after Magee to respond to Magee's cries and the first to enter the room in which the dying girl lay. His evidence is diametrically opposed to the statement made by Magee in several vital particulars. It even goes so far as to indicate a premeditated crime.

Mr. Kiernan says he was about to leave his office for the day and was standing at the door when he was startled by a loud report from the steam pipes that pass through his office. He exclaimed to Mr. Riley, "What's that?" and noticed that the sound came from the pipes

BROCKWAY'S BRUTALITY

Results of the Investigation of the Elmira Reformatory.

MANAGERS ARE HELD RESPONSIBLE

New York state Board of Charities Finds the Charges Against the Superintendent Amply Sustained—Practised and Encouraged Inhuman Acts.

ALBANY, March 20.—The state board of charities has handed in its report on the Elmira reformatory investigation, and it is against the board of managers. After detailing at length the findings in the evidence the investigating committee concluded as follows:

First—That the charges and the allegations against General Superintendent Z. R. Brockway of "cruel, brutal, excessive, degrading and unusual punishment of the inmates" are proved in the most amply sustained by the evidence and that he is guilty of the same.

That the general superintendent in punishing inmates has been in the habit, by the paddle and the handle thereof, not because of any offense committed by them but because they have written their heads, often for the purpose of pleading for mercy, is guilty of needless cruelty and gross inhumanity.

Second—Brutality.

That the general superintendent permitted and encouraged officers and keepers to strike, kick, beat and otherwise practice brutality upon the inmates when in his presence in the bathroom, and that therefore said officers and keepers were encouraged to practice brutality upon the inmates elsewhere and when not in his presence.

We therefore find the general superintendent guilty of the charge of "permitting, countenancing and encouraging brutality on the part of officers and keepers."

Second—That corporal punishment as practised in the reformatory should be prohibited by law.

Third—That the general medical supervision of the establishment by the physician provided for, and that the appointment as physician of a relative of a member of the board of managers should be tolerated.

Fourth—That the law governing transfers of convicts from the reformatory to state prisons should be modified so as to protect a recurrence of the hardship and injustice proved to have existed in the management of the reformatory in this respect.

Fifth—That the laws authorizing the rearrest of paroled inmates of the reformatory should be amended so as to prevent the reincarceration of such prisoners except upon proper judicial inquiry.

Sixth—That the system of employing convicts as officers, keepers and monitors, it continued in the reformatory, should be amended so as to prevent the recurrence of such abuses as are shown to have grown up under the present method.

Seventh—The present board of managers of the reformatory, which is composed of but five members—a number so small that it admits of no divided responsibility—should have known of the existence of the facts set forth by this investigation, and yet the evidence shows they knew little or nothing about them. They were requested by the governor at the beginning of this inquiry to suspend the general superintendent pending the same, which they did under protest. When the prisoners had closed their side of the case and the testimony for the managers was only half submitted, they peremptorily notified him that the formal vote of resolution declaring their continued and undiminishing confidence in him. Thus they have assumed the entire responsibility for his cruelties and inhumanities, for which they were before only morally liable. At the same time they have apparently gone out of their way to offer a wanton insult to the executive.

Eighth—The maximum number of convictions to be confined in the reformatory should not exceed 1,800.

Adopting these resolutions, the state board recommends as follows:

Paddling to Be Regulated.

If the use of corporal punishment is to be continued in state reformatories, it shall only be administered upon the judgment of a majority of the board of managers, sitting as a court, after opportunity to the accused to be heard in his defense and to be confronted with his accusers; that said judgment shall determine the character of the punishment to be administered, and if by paddling the number of blows shall be stated; that the punishment shall be administered by a sub. ate officer of the institution designated for that purpose by the board of managers only, who shall not be the general superintendent, and that at least two members of the board shall be present to witness each case of punishment; that the board of managers shall record in a book kept for that purpose a full and clear statement of the disposition of each case of corporal punishment thought before them; that the judgments of punishment of the board of managers be published to the inmates in general orders by the adjutant of the reformatory regiment or in some other general and suitable manner before the punishment is inflicted.

It is further recommended that the physical condition of each inmate under charges that may result in his corporal punishment shall be ascertained by the physician and reported to the board of managers, sitting as a court, before judgment of corporal punishment is pronounced against him, and that the said physician shall be present at the time that at the time of punishment, if by medical reason the health of the prisoner be so protected by a stout leather jacket that no unnecessary injury may be done him; that he be properly secured and not bolsted in any manner from the ground.

TWENTY DEAD.

The Fatal Results of a Three Days' Storm in Texas.

DALLAS, March 20.—The storms which swept over northern Texas on Saturday night, Sunday and Monday and which are still prevailing are unparalleled in severity. The death roll will reach 20 and the list of wounded over 100. At Ennery, the capital of Rains county, the cyclone knocked the town nearly out of existence. There were many other towns visited and handled roughly.

The people in the storm's path are in a deplorable condition, all their household goods being either scattered out of reach or entirely destroyed, and they have no shelter from the downpour of rain which has been falling all day. It is impossible to get anywhere near the wrecked houses with a team.

Huge pines, some of them four feet in circumference, were broken up and twisted about, and the loss in this vicinity will reach several thousand dollars.

LUTHER, Tex., March 20.—A dozen farmhouses within three miles of this place were completely demolished, and a number of people narrowly escaped with their lives. Fences, trees and other obstacles in the path of the storm was torn down, and the roads in various directions are obstructed, and it is almost impossible to travel on horseback. The path of the storm at this place was nearly a mile wide. Several persons were seriously injured, but none fatally.

LITTLE ROCK, March 20.—The storm which began in Arkansas on Saturday night has not yet abated. The average rainfall from Buffalo to Memphis during the past 48 hours has been four inches.

MISS POLLARD'S ORDEAL.

Another Day on the Witness Stand Under Cross Examination.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Madeleine Pollard faced her opponents on the witness stand under a battery of fierce cross questions, and the trial was like a play in which one actor is starred to the exclusion and belittlement of all associates. Major Ben Butterworth, of Cincinnati, woman from Ohio, played a minor p[art] the question, all the interest centering about the slender, black robed plaintiff in the case.

It was the most exciting day of the sensational trial, and it was made more so by the masterly display of intellectual resources, of quick, keen thrust and of telling replies which flashed forth at every turn of the plot, as the lawyers followed up every possible trail which might lead to admissions casting any sort of shadows on the life of the woman apart from those passages which had been identified with the career of the Kentucky congressman.

Miss Pollard was more subdued in manner than she had been last Friday when on the witness stand. He face had gained pallor rather than an appearance of strength during the two days of rest. Her voice was lower and her manner more quiet and less studied—changes which served to give greater strength to her testimony and to impress it more strongly on listeners.

The silver headed congressman played a silent part all day, giving much attention to his correspondence, only rarely interposing to suggest a question to his counsel and looking seldom directly at the witness, who scored him often, although sitting within line of her eyes.

Miners Accept a Reduction.

PHILLIPSBURG, Pa., March 20.—Between 2,000 and 3,000 miners from this place and nearly mining towns paraded the streets here with two brass bands. A mass meeting was held, at which all the speeches save one were conservative. One of the speakers advocated the use of winchester rifles. He was applauded for his words, but his remarks were not indorsed. The reduction was accepted.

Miss Blaine Engaged.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—The engagement of Miss Harriet Blaine, youngest daughter of the late James G. Blaine, and Mr. Truxton Beale, only son of the late General Edward Beale, was formally announced at a dinner given by Mrs. Blaine. Mr. Beale is about 34 years old. He has been minister to Persia and later to Greece, and, it is said, will inherit a large fortune.

Strikers Mob a Girl.

PHILLIPSBURG, N. J., March 20.—Riotous demonstrations began afresh when the Standard silk mill employees quit work. Ida Somers, a weaver, while returning from work, was followed by several hundred people and assaulted by a man named Smith, who was arrested and put in charge of sheriff. Fifteen strikers in all were arrested and held for riot and conspiracy.

Children Boycott a Sunday School.

NEW HAVEN, March 20.—Twenty-five Chinamen have declared a boycott against the First M. E. church Sunday school because their opium dens were raided. COXEY'S ARMY OF PEACE

It Will Start For Washington Next Sunday.

A PETITION FIVE MILES LONG.

The Chief Feature of the Line of March Will Be a Red and Green Band Wagon Carrying the "Good Roads" Petition—Thousands of Recruits Promised.

MASSILLON, O., March 20.—From present indications the Coxey army will be ready to march from here next Sunday. But few of his followers have arrived to-day, but every day's mail brings letters from various parts of the country saying that companies are being organized and that they will be on hand to join the army.

Coxey came to town from his farm, and after reading a number of encouraging letters he remarked: "Won't things be lively next week by this time? Do you know that this thoroughly idea is making a wonderful effect? It is surprising to note how interested an audience becomes when I address them on this subject. The feeling will create harmony and is the only assurance of my success in this new undertaking. I truly believe this movement is the second coming of Christ."

Will Carry a Band Wagon.

Extensive preparations are being made at the Coxey farm. A red and green band wagon is under construction. It is the wagon from which to address crowds. In the center there will be a huge red wheel, with five miles of "good roads" petitions wound on it. At every stopping place the assembled multitude, after addresses by Browne and Coxey, will be invited to climb up and add their names. After reaching Washington the five miles of petitions will be unloaded on congress.

There are banners with inscriptions as follows: "Interest Bearing Bonds Feed on Nothing but Gold and Honest Labor!" "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Man, but Death to the Shylock of Interest on Bonds." "We Workingmen Want Work, Not Charity. How Can We Buy at the Stores With Charity and Cast Off Old Clothes?"

Coxey has received from many responsible quarters assurances that the start will be made from Massillon decently and in order. He says that within a few days more than 500 at the outside to make the start.

Coxey's Bills Introduced.

WASHINGTON, March 20.—Senator Peffer's "Coxey army" bills were introduced at the request of the Coxey Good Roads association. One of the bills provides for issuing, every any state, territory, county or town deems it necessary to make public improvements, legal tender treasury notes bearing bonds to run for 25 years with the secretary of the treasury, who shall thereupon issue treasury notes to be reissued at par value of five per cent per annum. Another directs the secretary of the treasury to have $500,000,000 of treasury notes printed immediately, which shall be legal tender for all debts, and placed in a fund to be known as the general country road system fund.

Coxey Alarms the Farmers.

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., March 20.—The Beaver Valley Coxeyites are now devising ways and means to feed and entertain Coxey's army on its arrival here Sunday, April 1. Farmers in this vicinity, however, are much alarmed and fear the army will eat them out of house and home.

The Trenton Situation.

TRENTON, March 20.—The Democratic senators held a conference and discussed the situation. They came to the conclusion that if the governor refused to sign the Republicans they would accept it philosophically and at once unite themselves with the Republicans. They also agreed that in case the decision was in their favor they would give the Republicans no more promises or assurances than they did at first.

Crushed to Death.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., March 20.—Samuel Hulley, 20 years of age, was killed before his father's eyes in the dyehouse of the Central Falls woolen mill. Young Hulley was rolling a barrel of lime weighing 500 pounds up an incline when it suddenly overpowered him, knocked him down and crushed out his prostrate form, crushing his head frightfully.

Spaniards Slaughter Negros.

MADRID, March 20.—Advices received here from Mindanao, capital of the island of that name, in the Malay archipelago, show that a large band of Mohammedan natives made an attack upon the Spaniards on the island of Pantar. The Spaniards inflicted severe losses upon the natives, 300 of them being killed.

Can Make Silver Dollars at a Profit.

OMAHA, March 20.—Four special treasury secret service men, in addition to the regular force employed at division headquarters and the forces of the United States marshals' offices, are working in Omaha and vicinity to unearth a private mint which is alleged to have turned out over a half million standard silver dollars. It is impossible to detect the difference between the money made by the counterfeiters and the genuine turned out by the federal mints. The profits of the gang are made from the seigniorage, which gives them 51 cents on each dollar made.

The Four Scenes of the Week in Poetry and Prose—The Sayings of Smart and Queer Said for the Bright Ones Benefit.

In case you are not familiar with the different parts of a rowboat, here are the names of the principal parts, with the definitions: The stern of a double-ended boat—one that is sharp at both ends—is shown by looking where the rudder is put on; that end is, of course, the stern, the other end being the bow. When the rudder is not in position the boat may be rowed stern first if desired. The seats upon which the oarsmen sit are called "thwarts." There are two kinds of oars, spoon and flat-bladed; the spoon one is most used for racing-shells and light pleasure-boats, the carbonite, or rowlocks, as they are often called, are the pieces of iron or brass that fit in sockets on the rail to hold the oar when rowing. The gunwale, or "gunn'l," as it is pronounced by sailor men, is the extreme edge or top rail of the boat. Never, in entering a boat, stand on the gunwales, for you are almost sure to capsize the craft or to fall overboard yourself.

HIGH CHAIR PHILOSOPHY.

Henry—Are you afraid of the dark? Tom—No. What's the use? When it's dark, you can't see, and when you can't see, you don't care.

A SICK DOLL.

Alice—My talking doll is very sick since she fell down stairs. She doesn't say "mamma" or "papa" any more, but just "mepumpa."

A HAPPY TIME.

"I'm glad we're going to move," remarked Louie, "because mamma will be so busy packing that she won't have time to know what I do."

TOO LITTLE.

Teacher—If ten carpenters worked for ten days at seventy-five cents a day, what would they get?

Hazh—They'd get cheated, 'cause pa says ten dollars a day is their price!

A VAIN ATTEMPT.

Father—That cat made an awful noise on the back fence last night.

Arnold—Yes, sir. I guess that since he ate the canary he thinks he can sing.

A DIFFERENCE.

Mamma—Come, now, dear, it's getting dark, and time you were in bed. The little birds have gone to sleep.

Dorothy—Yes'm; but the little birds got up at daylight, and I didn't.—Harper's Young People.

SPRING SONG.

Away, away, to the hills so gay,
Where the shadow-grass is peeping,
And the lady-cresses lift their heads
From their long cold winter's sleeping.
Where the pansies open their dreamy lids,
Their lily brows revealing,
And catch the dove's with their little pink cup
All over the meadow stealing.
Where the bobolink calls from the orchard shade.

Prayer of a Minister's Son.

Freddy is a little son of one of the best ministers in the city. One day while he was out walking, he saw for the first time in his life an intoxicated man reeling from one side of the pavement to the other.

Freddy's nurse hurried him by, while the little boy gazed after the man with tears in his blue eyes, he was so shocked and distressed at the sad sight. He asked a great many questions about it, which his nurse answered as well as she was able, but after she told him that men who were otherwise very good sometimes drank too much liquor he was silent.

That night his mother, who knew nothing of what her little boy had seen on his afternoon's walk, was greatly astonished when he added this petition to his usual evening prayer: "Dear Lord, please don't let papa ever get drunk!"—Youth's Companion.

The World's Seven Wonders.

Teacher—Willie, what are the wonders of the world?

Willie—The pyramids, the sphinx, another one's the gardens where they hung Babylon, my sister's beau, hash, and myself.

Willie has another wonder now, and that is, how long will it be before he can sit down with comfort. — Westfield Leader.

Soldiers' Rustles.

Three-year-old Freddie was taken to see the soldiers at the cemetery Memorial day. During the chaplain's prayer his wandering gaze was attracted by the cautions slung across the hips of the soldiers, and he cried out, in a tone of the gravest inquiry, "Look, mamma! are those the soldiers' bussils?"—Youth's Companion.

TWO FAITHFUL FRIENDS.

A Story of Some Noble Dogs That Showed Their Master Love.

So you want a story, do you, children? Well, I will tell you about two noble dogs that saved their masters' lives.

First of all comes a dog that belonged to a Prince.

If you went to Holland, you would see in one of the churches there the marble tomb of a Prince who, because he talked so little, was called William the Silent. At his feet is carved a little spaniel, in memory of one who once saved his life. It was in this way:

The Prince was fighting against some enemies from Spain who were overrunning his country, but it was night, and in both camps there was quiet; while the Prince and his men were all fast asleep.

Stealing along like robbers came a band of Spanish soldiers. The Dutch sentinels were so tired out that they never woke, and William the Silent would have been taken, if his spaniel had not awaked him by whining and scratching his face.

The clever little creature seemed to know that his master was in danger.

The Prince sprang up, aroused from the noise that his enemies had entered the camp, and rushed out of the tent. He had just time to mount a horse, always kept ready saddled, and fortunately it was so dark that he was able to escape. As for his poor soldiers, they were all killed in bed, we do not know what became of the faithful dog.

From that time, however, the Prince always kept one of that race to sleep in his bedroom, and guard him against surprises.

Another dog who well deserves to be remembered, lived several hundred years ago in a city which was destroyed by the lava (red hot melted rock) from a volcano.

The whole place, you understand, was buried; it was like a lost city. Some years ago people began to dig there; and I cannot tell you how many strange and wonderful things came to light.

They actually found loaves in an oven; loaves that had been waiting centuries to be taken out and eaten!

They also found the skeleton of a dog, lying by that of a boy about twelve; and it was easy to see from their positions, that the animal had tried to save his little master.

On his collar was some writing, and this declared that his name was "Delta," and that he belonged to Severinus, and had three times saved the latter's life. Once he dragged him out of the sea; another time, he drove away four robbers who attacked him, and lastly he killed a wolf who had sprung upon him.

It was engraved, too, upon the collar that Delta would take no food except from the hand of Severinus.

Now is not that a beautiful story? and all quite true!

About the Fruit Season.

Teacher—How long did Adam and Eve remain in the Garden of Eden?

Boy—I don't know.

Teacher—They remained in the Garden of Eden until—until—

Boy (gleefully)—O, yes, until the apples were ripe.

Didn't Make Any Difference.

"My brother has a bicycle with two wheels," said little Alick.

"I don't care," retorted Whittyboy, "if I had a brother, he'd have one too."

THE CAPTAIN AND HIS SHIP.

Sail on, sail on, my bonny boat
Of paper built this day!
Adown the stream so proudly float—
Now don't get wrecked, I pray.

I know there's not much water here,
But quite enough for you—
Yet something stops the way, I fear;
I'll tell you what I'll do!

I'll get a string, and tug and tow,
And keep you trim and straight;
So gaily into port you'll go,
And ancher by our gate.

Sail on, my bark, across the tide—
Let all your graces behold;
To shipwreck you shall never glide,
While I'm your captain bold.

How Fishes Eat.

The curious way in which fishes eat is quite a study. Some fishes have teeth, and some have none at all. In some the teeth are found upon the tongue, in some in the throat, and in some in the stomach. Some draw in the food by suction; the sturgeon is one of this class. The jelly fish absorbs all its food by wrapping its body round the prey it covets.

The star-fish fastens itself to its victim, turns its stomach wrong side out, and engulfs its dinner without the formality of swallowing it through a mouth first, much less of asking permission.

Then there is a peculiar little crab, the horseshoe crab, which chews up its food with its legs or claws before it passes the morsels over to its mouth. While other crabs and lobsters masticate their food with their jaws and afterwards complete the work with an extra row of teeth located in their stomachs.

So there are all sorts of methods for those regularly toothless, and the fishes which have teeth show almost as great a variety in the number, style, and arrangement of them.

The Adventure of Puss and Poll.

A pussy-cat went out to walk,
And met a parrot that could talk.
"Come, walk with me!" the pussy said;
"I will," said Poll, "since you're well-fed!"

And as they strolled along together,
Throughout that day of sunny weather,
They met a dog, they met a rat,
They met another pussy-cat;
They met a doctor in a gig,
They met a monkey and a pig;
They met a goose, they met a hare,
And then they met a great big bear!
Cried Pussy: "I shall climb a tree!"
Quoth Brain, "I will come after thee!"
But Pollsprang quick on Brain's back,
And bit him till he gave a "Whack!"
So Puss and Poll were safe and sound,
And firmer friends I've never found.

Bedrooms of the Orient.

The bedrooms of the Orient are far different from those of Christendom. Fully half the women of the world sleep upon the floor or the ground, and even the richest of the ladies of Asia have never known the luxury of hair mattresses and spring beds. Most of these Mongolian beauties don't know what a feather bed means, and there is in most museums a Japanese pillow, consisting of a piece of wood about the size of a loaf of bread with a piece of paper on the top of it, and so made that it will just fit into Yum Yum's neck and prop her head off the floor.

The Japanese girl never needs to shake up her pillow, and it is her neck rather than her head that lies upon it. The same kind of pillows are used in China and Siam, and as to the good woman of Hindostan, she does not know what a pillow means. You can buy her whole wardrobe for four shillings, and she sleeps on the floor, while her husband saddles himself up in spoon-fashion on the bed.

Set Him to Thinking.

A small Detroit boy, whose father is somewhat of a yachtsman, was traveling with him not long ago and noticing a yoke of oxen at work at a plow the youngster asked him what they were.

"Steers," answered the father promptly.

"What do they call them that for, pa?" was the next.

"Because, my son," replied the yachty pop, "they are tillers of the soil."

The boy isn't old enough to understand the profundity of the joke, but it closed his catechism for a while.—Detroit Free Press.

It Meant an Effort.

Nellie—I don't believe your brother loves me half as much as he says he does, Fanny—Oh, I'm sure he does! Why, when you were away this summer, he acknowledged to me that he had thought of you twice.

Nellie—Is that all?

Fanny—But you must remember what a terrible task it is for him ever to think at all!—Boston News.

WARRING RAILROADS.

A Fight For a Strip of Land Ends in a Wreck.

BRADFORD, Pa., March 20.—There is a fragmentive volcano threatening another eruption here at any moment, and a battle may be fought that will almost certainly involve serious consequences. The Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg Railroad company has already engaged in the preliminary skirmishing with the Western New York and Pennsylvania R. R. in this city.

It is all about a strip of land which both companies claim. The strip is 5 feet wide and 500 feet long, abutting on the Western New York and Pennsylvania track. During Sunday night the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg people, with a force of 300 men, laid a side track over this strip. In doing this strategic act under cover of the night they undermined the track of the Western New York and Pennsylvania. They were discovered while still at work with a regiment of men by the Western New York and Pennsylvania people.

The Western New York officials here mustered the strongest attacking force available on the earliest alarm, and a desperate effort was made to drive off the men in the services of the Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg. A heavily loaded train of Western New York and Pennsylvania cars was rushed down to cover the point that had been weakened by the operators of the other force. The load was thrown down, and the undermined track gave way, carrying the train down. The wreck fell upon Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg cars which had been run in during the night to help hold down a piece of that company's track, and an all around smashup was the result.

All this time the big Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg engines were pushing the gondolas which they had run onto the newly made switch down toward Main street, and a building which stood near by was torn from its foundation and piled on the sidewalk a complete wreck.

The Buffalo, Rochester and Pittsburg force held possession of the strip and have held it all day. The local authorities speedily took a hand, but in case of another collision they will be unable to cope with the railroad forces.

THE SCHOOL MEETING.

NORTH PLAINFIELD DISTRICT NO. 38, AND ITS SCHOOL EXTENSION.

Annual Reports Submitted and Approved, and Mr. S. J. Joseph Unanimously Re-Elected for Three Years. —$5,000 Voted for Expenses.

The annual meeting of School District No. 38, of North Plainfield, called by the Trustees, was held in the basement of the school building last evening.

Mr. McCutchen, President of the Board of Trustees, called the meeting to order, and, on motion, Mr. Charles Place was chosen chairman and Mr. Horace Martin secretary.

Mr. Place in thanking the meeting for the honor to him, took occasion to call attention to the progress made in the North Plainfield public schools, since the first meeting he attended twenty years ago.

The report of the District Clerk, Mr. Joseph, which was unanimously adopted as read, was as follows:

S. S. JOSEPH, District Clerk.

The trustees report, signed by S. St. John McCutchen, Samuel Townsend, and S. S. Joseph, was read by President McCutchen, and adopted unanimously as read. It showed among other things that the absorbing feature of school life during the past year has been the enlargement of the school building, authorized at a special meeting held May 11th, 1893, to be erected at an expense for the same, and furnishing, ventilating and furnishing, of $16,000, the bonds to be issued in that amount. These bonds were issued in denominations of $500 each, bearing interest at 5 per cent per annum, and to be payable in 1913.

There was some difficulty in placing the bonds with financial institution, owing to the financial stringency, but citizens took them readily, one gentleman in North Plainfield alone taking $11,000.

Contracts for the work were awarded as follows:

Mason work to William C. Smith.

Carpenter work to Brokaw & Clark.

Plumbing and heating work to C. W. Krause.

Painting work to Woolston & Buckle.

With larger subscribers, for the bonds the trustees made the following favorable arrangement: that they should deliver bonds from time to time as the trustees needed money, and they should pay (and have paid) to the trustees the par value of the bonds delivered and in addition interest on them from the date of issue of the bonds up to the date of delivery.

This will explain that entry in the District Clerk's Building financial report which shows that the trustees received from the sale of the bonds $244.65 more than their full par value.

The report complimented the contractors on the excellent work done, and took special satisfaction in a system of heating and ventilating which seems adequate and successful.

Probably no feature of school house construction is of more importance than ventilation, and none in the past, has been more neglected.

In the old building no provision for ventilation is made, except by opened windows, which are always attended with danger to pupils.

By the system adopted in the new extension, fresh air is withdrawn through registers in the floor and conveyed by flues out of the roof.

Already the trustees notice the superiority of the new system and on passing from one of the new class rooms into one of the old, the difference in the condition of the air in the two rooms is very marked.

Realizing the importance to young and growing lungs of fresh air, there is hope that at some near day the citizens will request the trustees to introduce into the old building a proper system of ventilation.

In addition to the construction of this addition, the trustees have had the old building fully renovated and cleaned; and the entire building is now ready for such a season of prosperity as the generous interest of the citizens in the cause of education in the District merits.

The addition gives eight fine, light, large class rooms; and besides four smaller corner rooms which will be used, respectively, for office, library, teachers' toilet room and store room.

The entire building contains twenty class rooms, which will furnish school facilities to the district for many years to come.

The Trustees hope that the citizens will visit and inspect the school while it is fresh and new.

After telling of the difficulties of building and keeping up the grade of the school, the report contains this:

"It is but fair to say that during this trying period principal and teachers have been patient and earnest in their work.

Already the school shows increase. The total enrollment to-day is 670, while the entire enrollment for all last year, up to graduation was 701. But last year of this number forty-eight were enrolled before the time of the District meeting in March and the end of the school year. So that apparently we are fifty ahead of last year in enrollment, and the prospects are that the end of the year will show even greater gain.

To meet the necessary increased expenses of the school, the trustees are compelled to ask for an increased appropriation.

To properly care for and instruct the large number of pupils we shall need one, and possibly two, additional teachers, and it is apparent that it will cost more in fuel, janitor's services and incidentals to maintain the enlarged building.

A special school tax of $5,000 was asked by the Trustees and voted unanimously, on motion of Mr. Winckler.

Mr. S. B. Joseph was unanimously re-elected for three years to succeed himself as Trustee.

Mr. McCutchen paid high tribute to his excellence, and on motion of Mr. Lounsbury, a vote of thanks was unanimously extended the trustees for their services to the Borough.

Mr. John Goodwin brought up the question of furnishing school books free, and, as a result of the discussion which followed, a motion by Mr. Charles Reed that it was the sense of the meeting that books be furnished free, was adopted, Dr. Carroll alone voting no.

Attention was called by Mr. McCutchen that the basement was for the first time lighted by electricity for which they were indebted to the North Plainfield Electric Light Company, to whom thanks were voted.

Mr. Place recommended that $30 chairs be provided for the use of citizens at future meetings, and some one moved that at the close of the meeting, which was adopted, after which the meeting was adjourned.

The meeting was harmonious and extremely interesting, particularly the reports of the Trustees.

A HALF CENTURY OLD.

THE CRESCENT AVENUE CHURCH TO CELEBRATE ITS 50TH ANNIVERSARY.

Of the Sixty-Eight Charter Members Only Four are Now Living. Something of the History of the Church.

To-day the Crescent avenue church is 50 years old and appropriate services will be held in the church to-night. There are only four of the charter members of the church living to-day. They are Eliza Anderson, Mrs. John Meeker, Deacon Corbett and Mrs. Stents of West Second street. A front seat is to be reserved for them at the church to-night.

CRESCENT AVENUE CHURCH.

From the First Presbyterian church (started in 1825) this church was founded on March 21, 1844. On that day 86 persons, with letters from the First church, met in what is now Mrs. Bloss's residence on East Front street, and by the Rev. Dr. Samuel H. Cox and Jonathan N. Rowland, as a committee of the Presbytery of Brooklyn, was duly organized "The Plainfield Presbyterian Church," by which title it received its charter.

Shortly afterwards the church was taken under the care of the Newark Presbytery. This relation continued until the re-union of the two branches of the Presbyterian church in 1870 since which time the church has been connected with the Elizabeth Presbytery. The people generally called it the Second Presbyterian church, to distinguish it from the First. Later, however, the name was changed to the Crescent avenue Presbyterian church.

Its first house of worship was dedicated in 1845, on East Front street on the site of the present City National Bank. The building was a frame structure, plain, but comfortable, and creditable to those of that day. There was an entrance for carriages to the sheds in the rear of Park avenue, (then Cherry street) on the ground now occupied by the Coward Building.

The first pastor of the church, was the Rev. Wm. Whittemer, now deceased. His ministry extended from 1845 to 1854, January, 1895 the Rev. Theo. S. Brown became pastor, and so remained until March 1867, the church meanwhile having experienced much enlargement and progress.

In 1870 the want of a new, larger and in every respect better, house of worship for this congregation having become a necessity, steps were taken to this end and finally it was decided to build upon the site now occupied. On August 17, 1871, the corner stone of the new church was dedicated on Thursday, Sept. 26, 1872.

From 1867 to 1893 the Rev. Dr. J. C. Bliss was pastor. The present pastor, the Rev. Dr. Richards, took up the pastorate in July, 1894.

The church has a membership now of over 1,000, 800 of whom attend service at the Crescent avenue church, 200 at Hope chapel, 60 at Bethel chapel and 20 at Warren chapel.

BREVITIES.

Senate is Republican

THE SUPREME COURT DECIDES AGAINST THE DEMOCRATS.

Scores the Adrain Senate as a Body Formed Without Legal Rights and Unconstitutional.—Quotes Law to Show that the Senate Is Not a Continuous Body.—The Decision in Favor of the Republican Senate Unanimous.

TRENTON, N. J., March 21.—Chief Justice Beasley of the Supreme Court and all the Associate Justices were present this morning, when, at eleven o'clock, the Supreme Court decision concerning the dead-lock in the Senate was read.

The decision, which was unanimous, declares the Republican Senate the only legal body and further states that the Adrain, or Democrat Senate, is unconstitutional and formed without any right in law whatever.

Other points were:

1. That the Supreme Court has jurisdiction in settling such questions as this one.

2. That the Democratic Senate was not a constitutional body.

3. That Adrain had no valid foundation, or claim to be recognized as President of the Senate.

4. That Senator Rogers was the only legal President.

5. That judgment should be entered against Adrain.

6. That the Senate is not a continuous body.

Numerous quotations were made showing the correctness of all these points.

PERSONAL.

Alexander Kane of Philadelphia is visiting relatives in this city for a few days.

Freddie Townsend of Crain place, was delightfully surprised last night by a number of his young friends led by Horace Martin, Jr., and his sister, Bessie, who had assembled to help him celebrate his sixteenth birthday. Games and other amusements were features of the evening's enjoyment.

At the Pingry memorial service at Elizabeth Monday night Mr. John Leal of Plainfield, a former teacher in the school, read a tribute of honor in behalf of those who had been Dr. Pingry's assistants. He said that boys grew and men grew when in contact with Dr. Pingry. He trusted men entirely. He was loyal to their interest, and shared generously with them, striving to lift them on the same plane on which he walked, and supporting them by his own personality. Association with him was rich in helpfulness.

Rev. Mr. Beck, of Somerset street was 81 years old yesterday. In celebration of his becoming a man his friends tendered him a surprise party last night. The company gathered at the German Church on Craig place and proceeded to Fred's house in a body. The young man was completely surprised and before he could recover his self-possession one of the company, as they flocked in upon him, presented him with a handsome silk umbrella. A very pleasant evening was spent in the playing of games, music and a little dancing. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. William Chamberlain, Mrs. Valentine Uttinger, Mrs. A. Riley, Mrs. M. Bechtle, Miss C. Armstrong, Miss M. Pigos, Miss Hoerichle, Miss Vedenkopf, Miss F. Sutterlein, Miss A. Meyer, and Messrs. Fred W. Beck, of New York, Fred Martin, John Uttinger, Fred Vanderweg, H. Peterson, W. Vanderweg and Albert Uttinger.

—A shooting match between Ellis Campbell and John Bonner is scheduled for this afternoon at the club house on Park avenue.

—John Smith of East Second street is quite an expert at slack wire walking, and his friends say he is practising to "go on the road." Yesterday he gave a free exhibition, and succeeded in balancing and walking on the wire for several minutes.

—White's special Easter offering to his customers is a handsome picture, which he presents to every purchaser of a pair of kid gloves. As a special inducement he is offering a five hook Foster lacing kid that is warranted, for 98 cents also a special bargain is a five hook Foster lacing kid at 75 cents which he says gives perfect satisfaction.

MR. GIBSON INSTALLED

AS PASTOR OF THE MT. OLIVE BAPTIST CHURCH.

The Sermon by the Rev. W. T. Dixon of Brooklyn and the Right Hand of Fellowship Extended by the Rev. Dr. Yerkes.

The Rev. P. S. Gibson of Pittsburgh was installed last night as pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church.

The sermon was preached by the Rev. W. T. Dixon of Brooklyn. He said in part:

"It is said that the further east men go the more light they see. Brother Gibson has come further east, but there is no greater light in Plainfield than there is in Pittsburgh or any other place in the world, because the only light is the Holy Ghost and that is the same here, and the same all over the world. Through the Holy Ghost is the only way to carry a man to glory. Universalism never saved a soul. Souls are saved only through the precious blood of Jesus.

We hear people say that religion is such nonsense; such foolishness. The worldly people say it is so foolish. They think they are wiser than God. The person who thinks he is wiser than God is on the road to hell. I believe in giving children the best education, but beyond everything teach that God comes first and education legally secondary.

Believe the gospel. What has led you to Christ? What saved your souls? What led your to the cross? It was believing on the Lord, Jesus Christ.

Some preachers are ashamed to preach the old story over and over again, so they rack their brains back over their library in search of new subjects. I can preach from the same text Sunday after Sunday and still it won't be worn out. There will be a new thought in it every time. The Bible never gets old to the thoroughly Christian. The searching for new subjects outside of the Bible allows souls to perish meanwhile. Never be ashamed of the true Gospel. Preach the Sunday preach it next Sunday, and preach it every Sunday, for it never gets old. The old tea kettle that you have used many a time can be used again to boil water. The gospel never gets old. Foolishness, the world calls it. A man's soul is saving his when he says the gospel is foolishness.

Some people don't go to church because they get angry at what the minister says. The truth always cuts. I wouldn't preach a gospel that wouldn't cut, and cut like a sword with two sharp edges. May it be God's will for Brother Gibson to wield a sword that will cut each way into the sinner. When all is right with you the truth will make you happy; but if you are wrong it will make you mad."

Mr. Dixon was followed by the Rev. Mr. Henry who led in prayer.

After the singing of a hymn the Right Hand of Fellowship was extended to the new pastor by the Rev. Dr. Yerkes, pastor of the First Baptist church.

The charge to the Rev. Mr. Ashway delivered by the Rev. Mr. Thomas.

Before the installation a supper was served by the women of the church.

The ministers present were the Rev. Dr. Yerkes, the Rev. W. T. Dixon of Brooklyn, Rev. Mr. Bird of Roselle and the Rev. Messrs. Mitchell and Henry of this city.

ATE ALL THE SHAMROCK.

How a Fourth Warder Feasted on What He Thought Was Water Cress.

There is a man in the Fourth Ward who can't tell water cress from shamrock. Of course he isn't an Irishman. On St. Patrick's Day Mr. Goff, proprietor of Goff's Hotel, on West Third street, had some real genuine shamrock, which he received from Ireland, on one end of his bar for the Sons of Erin to wear on the lapel of their coats on that day in honor of St. Patrick.

The shamrock had been sprinkled with water to keep it fresh.

During the day a regular customer sauntered in and simultaneously his eye fell upon the shamrock. Thinking it was water cress, of which he was very fond, he smacked his lips in anticipation of a treat. Proprietor Goff was busy at the other end of the bar, and did not pay particular attention to his old friend, who had called for the "water-cress" (shamrock), and began eating.

When Mr. Goff looked for his shamrock a few moments afterwards it was gone. Upon inquiry he found out where it had disappeared, and, although sorry at losing it, he himself as he had a good laugh at the "water-cress" fiend's expense.

Two Boys Before the Judge.

Yesterday, two boys named Ammons and Johnson, the latter a colored, were discovered in the brand school, so it is claimed, by Attendant on the Grounds Scout-Buildings. Chief Grant arrested the convict boy, but Ammons was brought up early Thursday morning, and began eating.

before Judge Coddington's office by his father. The latter said he would hold them under $100 bail for trial Saturday morning, and if the case warranted it he would hold them for the grand jury.

The colored boy wanted to know what he meant by "it the case warranted it." When the explanation was given to him he understood what it meant and the little fellow was satisfied.

The Taking of Testimony Continued.

Argument is continued to-day in the Surrogate's Court at Elizabeth, in the case of the late William E. Dodge of Scotch Plains, who bequeathed $10,000 to the Rahlenberg Hospital and $500 to All Saint's Church, while the residue of the estate, valued in all at $80,000, was left to a niece and a grand nephew, William R. Dodge. The contestants claim that Mr. Dodge was incapable of handling his affairs and that in making his last will and testament he was unduly influenced.

MR. WILCOX ELECTED TRUSTEE.

At the Dunellen School Meeting Last Night.

The school meeting at Dunellen last evening was one of the liveliest yet known. In former years there has been some contention in the matter of electing school trustees in that borough, but this election goes to show that the citizens of Dunellen are bound to stand by at least good government in the public school affairs, of which there are two, the "Whittier" school and the "Lincoln" school.

The meeting last night was harmonious throughout and in the large audience there was a sprinkling of ladies, some of whom voted. Rev. A. J. Martine called the meeting to order. E. J. Swackhamer was elected chairman, Elston Lowrie, clerk, and Eugene Runyon, R. Giggis and D. Campbell, tellers. Its object was to elect a School Trustee for three years to succeed Adam Deshaman, term expired, and to make an appropriation for the coming year. The report of the trustees asked for an appropriation of $3,000. The report of the Financial Committee showed the total receipts from all sources from March 1st, 1893, to March 1st, 1894, to be $6,250.70; disbursements for the same period $6,038, leaving a balance of over $2,000 on creek in the City National Bank at Plainfield.

In answer to a question the Rev. Mr. Martine said that at a rough estimate it would take $600 to run the schools for the balance of the year. The report of the trustees was a lengthy document, and it was ordered spread upon the minutes.

The election of a school trustee resulted as follows:

FIRST BALLOT.

Fred Wilcox	41
Frank Wyncoop	46
Total	99
Adam Deshaman (not nominated)	2

The chairman said it was necessary to have a majority of the votes so the two lowest were struck off and another ballot was taken as follows:

SECOND BALLOT.

Fred Wilcox	50
Frank Wyncoop	46
T. Todd	1
Transcop	1
Barney Kelly	1

The chair declared Mr. Wilcox elected, whereupon Mr. Martine began to differ with the chair's decision, claiming that a majority vote was necessary to elect. The chairman explained that as there were four scattering votes, the latter four votes went for naught, and Wilcox was elected.

Last years' budget of expenditures for the maintenance of the Dunellen public schools was as follows: Teachers' salaries, $900; janitor, $300; fuel, $100; furniture, $400; repairs, $150; incidentals, $150.

Atchison-Southern Pacific War Ended.

President Reinhart of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Company announces officially that the Southern Pacific-Atchison war is ended, and directions have been given to restore rates immediately. The position of the companies has been put back to that of September 1 last, which is the same as that prior to March 1 last., all differences to be taken up between Presidents Huntington and Reinhart for adjustment before March 15.

In Justice Mosher's Court.

Yesterday, Justice Mosher rendered judgment in the contract case of John H. Tier, jr., vs. Joseph C. Miller, for $61.31, in favor of the plaintiff.

On March 26th, the case of DeMott vs. Springs on contract, will come up for trial. The summons were issued yesterday.

Paugh Caugh Naugh Sinque.

Great Sachem Charles Brown has granted permission and many prominent Red Men will be present to witness the institution of Paugh Caugh Naugh Sinque Tribe, No. 194, Improved Order of Red Men, in this city, on April 11th.

—The young people of the M. E. church of Basking Ridge will aid the young people of Warrenville in giving an entertainment Thursday night. The programme will consist of dialogues, recitations, instrumental and vocal music. The entertainment will be held in the schoolhouse at Warrenville. The proceeds are for the benefit of the M. E. church of the latter place.

JUDGE FORBES' CHARGE.

Recommended Indictment For Manslaughter In Cornell's Chlorine Gas Case.

ITHACA, N. Y., March 21.—The latest phase of the Cornell poisoning case is the preliminary charge which Judge Forbes delivered to the grand jury. His address lasted fully three hours and was very impressive. He reviewed his former charge to the jury, in which he explained its intended meaning. The judge refused to allow this charge to be given out to the press except to be printed entire.

A prominent lawyer who said that the effect of the charge would be to open the mouths of the students who know the guilty parties. The former charge as well as this aimed at disabusing the minds of people of the "bugaboo of murder." The judge, when he delivered the charge, was asked whether all the facts were known, and the district attorney had no idea of finding an indictment for any degree of murder.

Replying to recently published statements, he said it was impossible to convict of murder in the first degree, even if an indictment was found for that crime. He had no idea that some of the criticisms had been with a direct purpose to close the mouths of the parties who knew who committed the deed.

The judge announced that unless a thorough investigation was now made he would give the district attorney such an order as would enable him to investigate fairly and fully. Later his remarks intimated that, placing the students in the most favorable light, there must be an indictment for manslaughter.

MISS POLLARD'S CLIMAX

She Ends Her Dramatic Life History In Tears.

DESCRIBED THRILLING INCIDENTS.

She Tells of the Time When She Threatened to Shoot Colonel Breckinridge and of the Time When the Senator Sought Protection In Washington.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—When the shrill voice of the bailiff cried adjournment in the two-by-old circuit court, the veiled face of Madeline Pollard was buried in her arms upon the rough board top of the witness box behind which she had sat for three days. The only sound which had broken such a silence as seldom falls on a courtroom was a sobbing that seemed to come from her inmost heart.

Three jurors were fumbling in an uncertain way with their handkerchiefs, and the judge was staring toward the ceiling abstractedly. Even the lawyer whose cross examination had led up to this passage wore a look of unwonted gravity on his fatherly, benevolent face, with something remarkably like moisture about his eyes. A few of the men among the curious hundred in the courtroom unmoved, he was inconspicuous in the majority of sympathetic faces. Madeline Pollard had been telling the most tragic episode of her unhappy life.

All day she had retained her composure in the witness chair, telling her story with such remarkable clearness of language, such a perception of the strong lights which certain phrases would throw upon her case, that lawyers experienced at the bar were constrained to comment that she was either telling the truth or was the most consummate actress who had ever come unheralded upon the stage.

The trial reached its climax early in the afternoon when Judge Jere Wilson, first called the secret marriage to Mrs. Wing in New York, and had after a fiery passage at arms received an evasive answer. From that crucial point the testimony of the plaintiff regarding the turbulent days of pistols and promises following the secret marriage of the 26th of July abounded in the most sensational incidents of the entire story.

The Hoffman House Scene.

The plaintiff's attorneys raised the contention that the secret marriage constituted the breach of promise on which the suit was based, and that all following events were irrelevant and to be excluded from consideration, but were overruled. Most of the day up to the final interesting hour had been occupied in sounding the depths of Miss Pollard to James Rhodes, calling upon him for money. Although other interesting points were raised, the subject had been comparatively lifeless.

Miss Pollard reached the most interesting point of her story when she told how Colonel Breckinridge had come to her at the Hoffman House in New York and said: "Madeline, how soon can you get ready to marry me? I may have to leave suddenly tomorrow for Europe." "Why, Willie, I can marry you right away.' After he had gone again I found a revolver in his traveling sack, and it awakened my suspicions because he had told me so many lies. I had telephoned to Whitney & Fairchild and found that they had not seen him and did not expect to; had found that there was no private car on the track where he said there was one waiting for him. He acted so queer too."

Mr. Butterworth—Did he act as though he was in his right mind?

"As much so as he has any day since then." [Laughter.]

Continuing, she said: "He acted so queerly that my suspicions were aroused. I am not surprised now, considering the position he was in. I said: 'Are you going to keep your solemn promise to marry me? If not, I am going to shoot you and myself with the revolver I found in your bag.' He said, 'My darling, I am going to marry you on the last of this month.' Before that he wrote me a solemn letter renewing his promise to marry me."

Mr. Butterworth (interrupting)—Have you that letter?

Miss Pollard raised her arm impressively, while every man in court leaned forward to catch her reply. "He took it away from me," she said, "on the 17th day of May with the vilest, vilest lie" [a rising inflection to her voice].

After the letter was written and before the 17th of May, Miss Pollard continued, Colonel Breckinridge had sent her flowers, had talked to her of their future married life together. The next Monday she and Mrs. Blackburn had seen him driving in Washington, "but when we next met him!" she said, "he lied to me and said he had come Tuesday."

Speaking of this meeting, she said, pointing her finger directly at the white haired congressman sitting with his head bowed on his breast and the eyes of the roomful of men focused upon him: "I think I saw something like a look of pity on his face that day than I had ever seen before. I think he had a conscience on that day and was really sorry for what he had done."

Never Studied For the Stage.

"Did you and he ever have any scenes before there unfortunate occurrences?" Mr. Butterworth asked.

"Life could not be altogether pleasant with any one living with Colonel Breckinridge. People had sent me anonymous letters telling of his relations with negro women." [Laughter].

From this reply Mr. Butterworth shied off to inquire and developed the fact that earlier aspirations, asking her if she had not intended to study for the stage.

"Oh, no. I never thought of such a thing," she replied with a look of pretty women go on the stage. A plain woman would not have any chance there. And then I have never studied elocution in my life."

"But have you not studied Delsarte or something of the kind?"

"No, I never have."

This little desultory shot having proved fruitless, Mr. Butterworth veered around his cross examination to the visits of Miss Pollard and Colonel Breckinridge to the office of the Washington chief of police.

Miss Pollard's story of those visits differed in no material respect from the recital of Major Moore and was in greater elaboration. She had gone to the house in Jefferson place, where Mr. Breckinridge was stopping with Mrs. Wing. She was let into the room where they were, and both of them cowered behind the door. Reproducing the impressive tone in which she had spoken, Miss Pollard continued, "I said to him: 'Come with me, Willie,' and he came."

The recital evoked a storm of laughter, although it did not seem to have been intended for that effect, which the bailiffs had trouble in quieting.

From the Jefferson pl ce house, where they had left the lady, who unknown to Miss Pollard was the wife of her companion, they had gone directly to the office of the chief of police, which was directly opposite the courtroom in which Miss Pollard related the story. According to her version of it Major Moore was in deliberately rather than in a chase, as the major had said, and the description she gave of Colonel Breckinridge's manners and words on that occasion were of the choicest but completely ever given in a courtroom unintentionally.

A Melodramatic Incident.

Colonel Breckinridge had seated himself in a chair, removed his hat, and mopping his brow had broached their business with the introduction, "Major, this is one of the tragedies of life." Then he had proceeded to announce: "There is a probability that this young woman will shoot me. She threatens to take my life."

Major Moore remonstrated that it could not be so bad as that, and Colonel Breckinridge had told him then that he had been intimate with her and that she had borne him two children.

She had remonstrated with him, saying, "Willie, why is it necessary to tell all these things?" He had stepped over to her to put his arm around and quiet her, and had then repeated his remark to the chief, "Major, this is one of the tragedies of life."

This characteristic remark, reproduced in something of the original manner, raised another irresistible laugh.

Major Moore had said after hearing the story that he hoped it was not so bad as that; that he had known Colonel Breckinridge for a long time, that he was a perfect gentleman and would keep his word to marry her.

Mr. Butterworth inquired if she had not threatened to shoot Colonel Breckinridge on that occasion, and she admitted frankly that she had said she would shoot him and herself if he failed to keep his promise to marry her.

Mr. Butterworth asked if she had not been armed on that day, to which the reply came, "I had only my parasol, and people do not go armed with a parasol, you know, Mr. Butterworth."

After they left the office together Colonel Breckinridge had remarked that it was a great power to put in the hands of another person—that which they had intrusted to Major Moore—the full knowledge of their secret.

On their second visit Colonel Breckinridge had discovered the revolver she carried when he put his arm around her. He had suggested that the major give it to her as a wedding present (rather a grewsome present, she thought), rather than as a protection, which they pressed, as the major had testified. She also had a vivid recollection of those points should be more accurate than his because the interviews had been of so much greater importance to her.

The three revolvers which had been spoken of Miss Pollard admitted having had. The first one she had thought of shooting herself with when he received the letters regarding his conduct with negro women. The second was the one she had found in his valise in the Hoffman House in New York. The third was the revolver over the revolver in the Hoffman House, as told by Mr. Butterworth in his questions and as related by Miss Pollard, varied widely. She denied that she had intended the revolver at Colonel Breckinridge, or that she had told him (he being in the next room) that if he opened the door she would fire at him, and that he had threatened to ring for the bellboy and have the boy open the door, so that she would shoot the boy instead of at him. The third pistol was the one which had been taken away from her in Major Moore's office. The first one Colonel Breckinridge had induced her to give up, promising to return it when they were married.

From this line of testimony Mr. Butterworth turned his questions to a direction designed to show that Miss Pollard had held Colonel Breckinridge under a reign of terror.

Told of a Love Scene.

"Did he not generally come when you called?" he asked. But she said that, on the contrary, she had always obeyed his slightest wish because she had trusted him and loved him dearly through those nine years. Had not Colonel Breckinridge often endeavored to break off the relations with her, Mr. Butterworth asked, and had he not promised to give her $125 a month if she would go to Germany? All this she denied, saying that he had importuned her to stay by protestations of his love that she wished the court could have heard.

She told how he had called to her that last night before he left her for Europe, telling her that she must not grieve at his short absence; that she must think of the future and of his love for her. "Good-by, Mr. Butterworth asked if it had not always been in her power to ruin Colonel Breckinridge, to which she replied with an emphatic "No," that never, never, never would she have used such a power against him, and she continued in a voice choking with sobs:

"I gave up my babies for him because he insisted on it. He said that if I kept them they would be surely traced to him. A woman can't do more than that. She can't do more than give up her child. I laid my baby in its cot, and left it, needed a mother's care, which I had not been able to give it; because he made me put it away from me. I never let him see me cry over it. I—never"

The sentence was not finished, for Madeline Pollard's head was bowed on her arms on the witness box and the frame was shaking with great sobs; there was suspicious moisture in many eyes. No man in the courtroom broke the silence by a whisper until Mr. Wilson suggested that the court should adjourn.

Beyond Description

The Misery Before Taking AND The Happiness After Taking HOOD'S.

Mr. E. H. Bishop
Hammonton, N. J.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:
Dear Sirs: I have been in poor health for 15 or 16 years, and have been taking doctors' medicines more or less all the time. I did not get much relief. My blood was in a bad shape and my system was all run down. I thought I must die, but noticing several testimonials in the papers in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla I bought three bottles and found that it did me so much good that I continued taking it. I was without appetite, stomach sleepy, and had a tendency most all the time. In fact I cannot describe my feelings. After using one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla I found it was doing me much good and now I cannot praise the medicine too much for what it has done for me. I am a disabled soldier 59 years old and was afflicted with many ailments, including kidney, liver and stomach troubles, and nothing I took of Hood's Sarsaparilla I am like another man. In fact I think Hood's Sarsaparilla saved my life." E. H. BISHOP, Box 466, Hammonton, N. J.

WILL WED AN ACTRESS.

Howard Gould and Miss Odette Tyler Engaged.

THE RING SHE WEARS COST $9,500.

They Will Be Married In May and Will Take a Wedding Trip a Ground Round Around the World—Mr. Gould Has a $250 Bunch of Violets Each Night.

NEW YORK, March 21.—It may be stated as good authority, says a morning paper today, that Howard Gould and Miss Odette Tyler, the well known actress, are to be married very shortly and to make a bridal trip of a year and a half in one of the Gould yachts around the world.

Young Gould was introduced to Miss Tyler on the Pacific coast by a prominent railroad official during a tour with Charles Frohman's company two years ago. Since then Mr. Gould has been devoted to Miss Tyler, but his devotion did not become a serious phase until recently.

Within three or four weeks he presented her with the magnificent ruby engagement ring which she now wears. It is of Tiffany's best and cost $9,500. No knight of the middle ages was more true to a lady love than is this young millionaire princ to Miss Tyler.

Receives $250 Bunches of Violets.

Every night she receives from the stage door at least $250 worth of violets, and rich presents are daily going to her apartments at the Hotel Dam. The handsome brougham which calls for her at the stage door of the Academy of Music, where she is playing in "The Girl I Left Behind Me," bears the Gould monogram and was a recent present from her betrothed.

About 10 days ago Miss Tyler left the company for a four days' visit in Washington. On her return it was observed by everybody in the company that she was unusually radiant. She seemed to walk on air. Her countenance was joyous, and she dispensed the sweetness of heaven to every one from the callboy to the manager. It was then that she began ordering pearl dresses.

The $9,500 ruby ring appeared on her finger, but never previously when it was present because her carriage was always at the door, and presently it was whispered that the object of her trip to Washington was to get married; that she and Howard Gould had been quietly married preliminary to having a grand public ceremony, with all the members of both families present, in New York. The rumor, however, was denied by both Miss Tyler and Mr. Gould. It was a noticeable fact that the utterances of the statement given out on either side was almost identically the same.

Since then, it is said, the preparations for the coming wedding have progressed rapidly. Miss Tyler declines to be seen or to be interviewed. The usual courtesies are denied to members of the press. Every stage door stranger is stopped on pretext can any one gain admittance unless connected with the company.

To Be Married In May.

As soon as an interviewer called on Miss Tyler in regard to the Washington story message of warning was dispatched to Mr. Gould. His wife stopped, and every effort was made to suppress gossip and cut off means of obtaining information about the fair actress and her movements. But, according to a statement made by a friend of one of the members of the company, the $30 bunches of violets continue to come every night, to the great distress of other members of the company who get none. It is said that Mr. Gould was anxious to have the marriage ceremony performed before this, but Miss Tyler, like other theatrical stars, is a devout Christian Scientist and, that is poetically superstitious and fancies that certain months are sure to bring more grave blessings and good luck than other months. Accordingly Miss Tyler's mother was finally agreed to compromise on the last of the spring months.

When the eventful marriage is consummated friends have been "notified." The young lady has met all the members of the Gould family and been duly introduced to the most intimate of their "intimates," and Miss Tyler's own family have come up from the south to assist in making the occasion one of joy and honor. Meanwhile every effort is exerted to keep the affair secret, and stereotyped denials are heard on every side.

Miss Tyler is a Tennessee girl. Her real name is Bessie Kirkland. She has been on the stage seven years, nearly all the time in Charles Frohman's stock company. Six years ago she was at the Madison Square theater, where as a young girl actress she appeared in "Feather Brain." From the box office standpoint she has always been considered a success. She created the comedy part of the Yankee girl in "The Last Paradise."

KOSSUTH DEAD.

The Famous Hungarian Patriot Finally Dies in Exile.

TURIN, March 21.—Louis Kossuth died at 10:55 o'clock last evening. His end was extremely painful. He showed signs of consciousness until the last. He expired in the arms of his son and died possessed of the hand of the Hungarian deputy, Kirolyi. The members of his family and a few of his intimate friends stood around to be the bedside of the dying patriot.

Nothing has yet been settled in regard to the details of the funeral. The municipal authorities of this city have offered to allow the remains to be buried in the Pantheon here.

Lajos or Louis Kossuth, ex-governor of Hungary, was born April 21, 1802, at Monok, Zemplin, Hungary. His father was a small land owner and belonged to the nobility.

When Kossuth was 27 years old, he took his seat in the national diet of Pressburg as representative of a magnate, being the agent of the Countess Szapary, and his action in publishing reports of the proceedings of this assembly led to their suppression and eventually to his prosecution for high treason.

The government being determined not to allow reports of parliamentary debates to be circulated in Hungary, the proceedings against Kossuth were pushed, and in 1839 he was sentenced to four years' imprisonment, but he was liberated after having been in prison about a year and a half under an act of amnesty.

In 1841 Kossuth made a tour of the United States, pleading in favor of Hungary, and then returned to England, where he resided for some years, occupying himself with writing for newspapers and in delivering lectures against the house of Hapsburg.

Since April, 1853, Kossuth has been living in an unpretending dwelling near Turin, and in November, 1879, he lost his rights as a Hungarian citizen, the chamber of deputies having adopted a bill declaring that any native of the country who voluntarily resided abroad for an uninterrupted period of 10 years should lose his civil rights.

Posthumous Honors Only.

BUDA-PESTH, March 21.—The Hungarian government and the members the National party in the diet have arrived at an agreement regarding the honors that will be shown Louis Kossuth, now that he is dead. By reaching this agreement the fall of the ministry is averted.

HATFIELD-M'COY FEUD.

Another Season of Bloody Ambushing Has Been Begun.

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., March 21.—Several citizens of the neighborhood notorious on account of the recent Hatfield-McCoy feud were here as witnesses and gave the following account of the breaking out again of the old trouble:

Last week Frank Phillips of the McCoy faction came from Kentucky to Peter's Creek, W. Va., and heard that Bob Hatfield, son of old Anse, was there. Phillips had been badly wounded in the former trouble and claims that Bob did it. At any rate, he is said to have laid in wait for Bob, and when Bob came along he shot and killed him. Mose Christian ran to Hatfield's assistance and was mortally wounded.

Phillips and seven men escaped to Kentucky, but the men who are here say the Hatfields are collecting their men, and another bloody time is expected.

Hartshorn's Trial Begins.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 21.—The state has begun the prosecution of Professor A. C. Hartshorn, ex-principal of the New Castle high school, on the different indictments returned against him in connection with the Robinson case. Hartshorn's array of counsel is as formidable as can be procured in eastern Ohio and western Pennsylvania. The procuring of a jury in this section will prove a difficult matter.

The Inquest at Troy.

TROY, N. Y., March 21.—The Ross inquest came to an abrupt close. Assistant District Attorney Fagan saying all the evidence was in. The coroner ordered an adjournment until this morning, when he charged the jury, and now awaits the verdict. Witness Delaney, suspected of perjury, was sent to jail.

Murderer Hart Confesses.

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., March 21.—Wallace Burt, the half breed Indian who has once been on trial for his life upon the charge of the brutal murder of aged Samuel Wright ley and his wife, has weakened on the eve of his second trial and confessed that he committed the awful deed.

No mails have been received at Portland, Ore., from the far east since Tuesday of last week, owing to washouts.

Three members of Dr. Hayes' family in Crawfordsville, Ind., were fatally poisoned by eating canned chicken.

Governor Werts of New Jersey has deferred the execution of Charles Bergeman from March 29 to April 26.

The Chicago park commissioners arranged to have blown up the Drexel play, which was across their right of way.

TARIFF IN THE SENATE.

The Bill Finally Reported After Much Revision.

APPROPRIATION BILL HAS PASSED.

Went Through the House Without a Division—Republicans Insisted on a Quorum When the Contested Election Cases Were Taken Up.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—The sundry civil appropriation bill was passed by the house without division. The amendment to the appropriation for the general land office, amending the provision of the act of 1891 that suspended the timber and other pre-emption acts, which was adopted in the committee at the suggestion of Mr. Hansbrough, and which was bitterly opposed by the western members, was defeated in the house.

The clauses which sought to require an accounting by the disbursing officers of soldiers' homes to the treasury department and annual reports by the boards to the secretary of war fell under Mr. Black's point of order. The bill as passed carries $217,000 more than it did as reported from the committee on appropriations. The four appropriation bills passed by the house—District of Columbia, pensions, fortifications and sundry civil—carry a net reduction of $24,334,958 as compared with the same bills for the current fiscal year.

Contested Election Cases Go Over.

After the disposal of the sundry civil bill the O'Neill-Joy contested election case was called up. Mr. Hall (Republican) raised the question of consideration against it and then declined to vote. Their purpose is to force the Democrats to produce their own quorum to unseat Republican members.

The roll call showed but 154 Democratic members present, although it is claimed that there are 172 in the city. As many members desired to witness the test of the 13 inch gun at the Indian Head proving grounds today and as the chances of securing a quorum were slim, a resolution was adopted revoking leaves of absence, and the house adjourned over until Thursday.

The new tariff bill was fairly launched in this way in the senate, Mr. Voorhees, the chairman of the finance committee, reporting it to the senate and giving notice that on March 2 he would move to take it up for consideration.

The rest of the day was taken up by Senator George of Mississippi in a discussion of the legal aspects of the Hawaiian question, defending the action of the president.

There was but little interest manifested in the proceedings, and there was a very slim attendance in the galleries, while the Republican side was almost deserted. Several unimportant bills were passed in the afternoon, and after a brief executive session the senate adjourned.

Fourth Class Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—The following fourth class postmasters were appointed:

New Jersey—Califon, John Neuhimer.

New York—Bergen, G. L. Pratt; East Macedville, E. L. Bogart; Erin, S. L. Dibble; Great Bend, E. H. Stone; Oakville, H. J. Atwell; Savesnah, E. B. Mole.

Arrived: Gibraltar, Genoa; Saint Martel, Marseilles; Stuttgart, Bremen; Grecian, Glasgow. The following steamships sail today: Berlin, Southampton; Rhynland, Antwerp; Majestic, Liverpool.

Troops Leave Cripple Creek.

COLORADO SPRINGS, March 21.—A secret conference of mine owners has been held, at which they determined to adhere to the original schedule of nine hours at $3. The sheriff has left the governor's record by sending him a telegram stating that serious consequences were likely to ensue if the militia were withdrawn. Nevertheless the troops struck camp and left Cripple Creek.

Legislature Will Go Visiting.

TRENTON, March 21.—At a session of the house a communication was received from the New York legislature at Albany inviting the New Jersey legislature to visit that body and accept its hospitality. A resolution was adopted that the invitation be accepted and that March 29 be fixed for the visit.

Railroad War Ended.

WOODBINE, N. J., March 21.—The railroad war was ended by an injunction restraining the South Jersey road from constructing crossings in the lands of the West Jersey Railroad company near Woodbine or Cape May courthouse.

Explosion In a Laundry.

CHICAGO, March 21.—Three persons were fatally injured by the explosion of an ironer in a laundry. The injured are: C. M. Moore, foreman; Peter Guldbrandson and Mrs. Mollie Evans, employees. All were scalded by steam.

Mrs. Hawley Found Guilty.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., March 21.—Mrs. Florence Isbey Hawley, charged with the murder of Mary L. Munson in Shelton two years ago, was found guilty of manslaughter in the first degree. Sentence was deferred until Thursday.

Gave Up the Fight.

BRADFORD, Pa., March 21.—The railroad war has subsided as suddenly as it broke out. The Western New York and Pennsylvania people have withdrawn from the field and will have the case settled in the courts.

Cronin Must Hang.

HARTFORD, March 21.—John Cronin, who was found guilty of murder in killing Alfred J. Allyn, was sentenced to be hanged on Aug. 24 next.

New Miners' Organization.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., March 21.—The new organization of mine and coke workers of this region was effected at a closed convention here.

Child Roasted to Death.

BUFFALO, March 21.—Paul, the 20-month-old son of Herbert C. Walker, was burned to death. His clothes caught fire from an open grate.

Leopold Travelling Incognito.

OSTEND, March 21.—King Leopold of Belgium arrived here, he is said, from France. His majesty is traveling incognito.

HEALTHFUL RHUBARB.

Various Methods of Preparing It—The First o n It nbarb Marmalade.

Peel six oranges, take away the white rinds and pulp, slice the peel very fine into a preserving kettle, cut very small, add a quart of rhubarb (finely cut), and from one to one and one-half pounds of sugar. Boil down quick as for other preserve. This is excellent.

RHUBARB AND BUTTER PUDDING.

Prepare the rhubarb as for a pie; cover the bottom of a pudding dish with slices of bread and butter; cover with a layer of rhubarb cut in short pieces; sprinkle thickly with sugar; put on another layer of bread and butter, and so on until the dish is full. Cover, and steam for half an hour; then remove the lid, and bake until nicely browned.

RHUBARB JAM.

Peel and cut the rhubarb into sliced pieces, and to every quart give one pound of good, moist sugar, put the sugar over the rhubarb and leave it twenty-four hours, to draw out the juice. The sugar sinks but does not dissolve. Boil the sugar together for twenty minutes. After it has come to boil put in the rhubarb and boil slowly twenty minutes longer. If only allowed to simmer gently it will not require to be stirred, and the pieces of rhubarb will then remain separate. This will keep good a year if kept in a cool, dry storeroom.—Good Housekeeping.

PRACTICAL SAYINGS.

If the oven should be too hot at any time, place a pan filled with water in it, and the heat will be lessened.

To test the freshness of eggs, drop them in a dish of water, and if the small end comes to the top they are fresh.

To make pies or biscuit a nice color, moisten the top of them with a little sweet milk just before they are put into the oven.

For iron rust, lay in kerosene oil and let it remain covered for some time. The oil will loosen the rust so that it will come off.

A tablespoonful of powdered borax dissolved in the bath will prove very invigorating, as well as soften the water so that it will feel like rain.

To take oil out of carpets or woolens, put on buckwheat flour, and brush it off very carefully into a dustpan. Keep on applying till all of the grease has been absorbed.

Cut glass should be first thoroughly washed and dried, then rubbed with prepared chalk, using a soft brush, and being careful not to neglect any of the crevices. This will give it a fine polish.—Good Housekeeping.

A Novel Bedspread.

A JAPANESE IDEA.

Those who like the greatest possible effect in the least expenditure of labor will be delighted with a combination of dye and needle work which is now used on linen with great effect, and is admirably adapted for tea-cloths, bedspreads, bureau covers and the like.

The idea is really an adaptation from the Japanese, who by their wonderful fabrics use whatever answers their purpose best to carry out any decorative idea they wish to put into palpable form. Without imitating their grotesqueness, however, we may thank them for many a suggestion, and among them for this pretty combination of white work and embroidery. In this example, taken from the New York Tribune, chrysanthemums of every imaginable tone are arranged in a conventional pattern for a bedspread and painted in fast-dye colors with a camel's-hair brush, just like water colors, on a fine, white, linen sheet connected with adequate fast-dye colors in the same tint—the flowers and leaves being afterward outlined with wash silk.

Strawberry Shortcake.

Put into a sieve one pint of flour, half a teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of sugar and two teaspoonfuls of baking powder.

Mix well and rub through the sieve. Now rub into the flour one tablespoonful of lard and two of butter. Stir into this 7 oz. (about ¾ pint) of sweet milk. Mix quickly with a spoon and divide into two parts. Roll each part into a smooth ball and, after sprinkling the bread board with flour, roll each ball down to three-quarters of an inch in thickness and place on two tin plates. Bake in a hot oven for about fifteen minutes.

Pick over and mash three pints of ripe strawberries, and just as they are to be put in the shortcake, add a generous cupful of sugar.

On taking the shortcakes from the oven, tear them apart. Spread with soft butter (not melted), and also with a thick layer of strawberries. Put on the covers and serve at once.

Should the cakes be desired richer, three tablespoonfuls of butter may be used. The three pints of berries are a generous allowance.

Should the sugar be added to the strawberries long before they would be too much juice.—Maria Parlos.

For Polishing Glass.

To clean windows, pictures and looking glasses there is nothing so good as methylated spirits. A rag dipped in the spirits should be rubbed over the glass, which should afterward be polished with a chamois. This plan is especially good in frosty weather, when water cannot be used. The methylated spirit dries quickly and gives a bright polish to the glass.

Much Oyster Stew.

To a quart of boiling milk add one can of corn and let it boil up once; then turn into a hot tureen when you have placed a goodly lump of butter, a trifle of salt and a sprinkle shake of pepper. Serve hot with oyster crackers just heated through in the oven.

Aluminum Pots and Pans.

"Here is the metal of the future," said a gentleman, holding out what was apparently a silver matchbox, but which was as light as air. "Of course," he continued, "aluminum is no new discovery, but it is only lately that the cost of production has brought it within the possibilities of ordinary use. The most characteristic feature and great advantage of this metal is its lightness. It is lighter than you see. It is very much like silver, but is only one-fourth its weight. It has one other great advantage and that every housekeeper will see with joy, and that is that it never oxidizes or tarnishes. An evidence of its practical use is shown in the fact of its recent introduction into the German army as the material for all canteens and other military accoutrements.

Boston Brown Bread.

Sift together one and one half cups of rye meal (not flour) and one and one-half cups of Indian meal. Mix with the sifted meal one small cup of molasses, a teaspoonful of salt and an even teaspoonful of saleratus. Stir with hot water into a smooth batter. Pour it into a buttered pail, cover very tightly and steam three hours in an iron kettle. Be sure the water is boiling in the kettle before the pail of bread is set into it. When done, uncover the boiler and set it in the oven fifteen minutes.

The Southern Oyster Gumbo.

Cut up a chicken, sprinkle the pieces with flour and fry them in the vessel in which the gumbo is to be made. When the chicken is nearly done chop an onion and fry with it. Pour on this three quarts of boiling water, and let it boil slowly until the flesh leaves the bone; then add the liquor from 100 oysters and salt and pepper to taste. Let this boil a short time and then add the 100 oysters and allow them to boil only five minutes.

Kerosene for Dandruff.

The best thing to clear dandruff from the hair is kerosene. Of course, all it is used, it ought to be scented, and that can be done. A Western barber has made a fortune by this discovery.

Boil the Time.

Jelly and cake tins that are in constant use should be boiled now and then (every year in strong soda with a handful of washing soda dissolved therein.

A Cure for Earache.

For earache, with which little children often suffer, lay upon the ear a flannel bag stuffed with hops and wring from hot vinegar.

FIXED WIT AND WISDOM.

Dentists are not all farmers, but they live off the others just the same.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

We have received a whole book of the Acts of the Apostles, but not a page of their resolutions.—Moody.

"Do you say the bride's costume was a mass of fleecy lace?" asked Miss Cayenne. "I suppose it was an illusion!"—Boston Gazette.

"Gunpowder tea" is a new color. The girl who meets her match dressed in that will be sure to go off.—New Orleans Picayune.

Why should officials spend thousands blowing dynamite balloons, when any ordinary teamster can draw rein?—Columbus Dispatch.

The doctrine of "like cures like" is illustrated by the fact that when people tire, the best thing they can do is to retire.—Boston Globe.

Did you ever notice how idiotic the smile of a pretty girl is—when it is directed towards some one else?—Binghamton Republican.

The waiter who gives the soup plate a tip-a-lo is holding it above the back of the din-ah-neck can hardly expect to get something worthwhile for it.—Louisville Journal.

Hazing has almost entirely disappeared. And yet the gray-headed fathers who as freshmen almost murdered one another seem to be the sons of the good old times. —Baltimore American.

SIFTINGS.

Closed to winter—Plumbers' bills.

Singing dolls must be pressed to sing.

It might make the ladies crooked roads. It is the wine jar that makes men shaky.

Nothing to speak of—your neighbors' affairs.

Lone is blind, but matrimony is a great seer.

The weight of evidence is used on the scales of justice.

Men with all sorts of views weigh as much and bring as much.

A fool's advice is better than a knave's; it is not so cheap.

The fall style of hat is one that blows off and runs on the ground.

Men can give excellent advice about what they cannot do themselves.

What nard does a girl with several lovers resemble? The queen of hearts.

The gambler may be fond of his "ante," but he pays frequent visits to his "uncle."—Texas Siftings.

THE JUDGE'S DICTIONARY.

Life—A splendid experiment.

Fickleness—The tall end of impulse.

The world—A cage in which humanity is tamed by its keeper.

Electricity—An instrument with which the soul plays tricks on itself.

Economy—The thrifty housewife who sits with comfort by the evening fire.

Suspicion—A canker that corrodes not only the suspected but the suspicious.

Revenge—An ancient wolf which civilization has clothed in the sheep's coat of justice.

Miracle—An event by which nature occasionally demonstrates the possibility of the impossible.

Rumor—A bird upon whose tail-feathers no one has ever succeeded in dropping the proverbial salt.

Editor—That severe but reliable guardian of one's literary reputation whose vigilance is unappreciated until its necessity is passed.—Katherine Grosjean.

THIS AND THAT.

"The fire of love," remarks the New York Journal, "is the only fire a woman likes to kindle." And yet we fancy she would much like to have some man help do that.

An Albany woman hid her diamond earrings in her mouth and then proceeded calmly to lecture the burglar. The possibilities of the female mouth are something wonderful.

It is the confession of a widower, who has been thrice married, that the first wife nurses a man of romance, the second teaches him humility and the third makes him a philosopher.

A Seattle woman has been married twice, divorced once, and is now suing for a divorce from her second husband, all within fourteen months, and yet some people say Seattle is a slow place.

Somebody has written to a newspaper asking for the definition of a flirt. A flirt, commonly speaking, is a woman who does things when she is young that she is ashamed of and sorry for when she is old.

IT IS WELL TO REMEMBER.

That every promise is a debt.

That newspaper criticisms are not always gospel.

That's it's no disgrace to be poor, but mighty inconvenient.

That the diamonds a girl wears usually belong to her mother.

That the man who smokes cigarettes is not necessarily brainless.

That children hear more than grown folks give them credit for.

That the poetry of a girl's feet usually do not mate with the prosaic boots of her lover.

That the girl of the period knows more than her grandmother—for her grandmother is dead.

That the average man about town is a huge bore.—Philadelphia Music and Drama.

THE CUTS OF BEEF.

The Different Portions of a Side of Poor Nopp d that.

"I shall never forget my various blunders when I first began to market," said a returned mountaineer, "my utter ignorance and consequent mortification when I asked for this and that at the butcher's, accepting whatever they gave me for fear of displaying my ignorance." Perhaps it will help some readers therefore if we give a diagram of a carcass with the various cuts mapped out, and labelled.

a, porterhouse steak; b, sirloin; c, middle ribs; d, fore ribs; e, rump; f, mouse buttock; g, chuck ribs; h, round; i, clod; j, shoulder; k, brisket; l, thin flank; m, thick flank; n, leg; o, shin; p, neck.

It is also well to remember in this connection that beef should be a bright red with yellowish fat and a somewhat loose grain. When it is poor or too old, it is usually dark red with hard, shinny fat.—N. Y. Tribune.

AT THIS SEASON.

What the French Think of Greens "In the Spring Time."

Many people think (and it is a good old-fashioned idea after all) that at this season of the year the system requires more or less purifying after the winter's torpidity. There are many simple herbs that nature furnishes that are undoubtedly very healthful and beneficial if taken in the spring. In the old days sassafras tea and other simples were always given in goodly quantities. French people are great believers in nature's remedies, and will eagerly gather the early dandelion leaves of which we think so little. These they eat with a little oil and vinegar, assuring us that they are one of the best spring medicines. There is also a broth that in France meets with general favor and is made in this way: Put a quart of water to boil, having previously prepared and washed about forty leaves of sorrel, a cabbage, a lettuce-head, and ten sprigs of chervil. When the water is boiling throw these in with the addition of a teaspoonful of salt and half an ounce of butter. Cover the saucepan and let them simmer a few minutes, then pass it through a sieve or colander. This preparation is taken cold and in quantities up to a quart for each person, and is said to be particularly wholesome at this season. A French writer in speaking of the advisability of taking greens refers to dogs and cats, who, he says, always eat grass in the spring.—N. Y. Tribune.

Little Sufferers Gladdened.

A lady who is charitably inclined, and who is largely interested in children's hospitals, sent recently to some of them a gift to gladden the hearts of the little sufferers. This gift took the form of an immense shoe of red satin, from which popped forth innumerable dolls. The supply was adequate to the demand, and each little pair of arms was supplied with a gayly dressed doll, which was hugged and fondled until evening, when it was returned to the shoe by the kind nurse in attendance. Each doll was differently dressed and none were hooded alike. All the work was done by the donor herself. Such work as this is always appreciated and the field is large, but the pleasure of the worker is boundless, especially if she be permitted to peep in upon the children at the time such a gift is received by them. The shoe crammed to the toe is the ward at the hospital, and the little ones are granted the pleasure of resting their eyes upon it as soon as they awaken in the morning.

Sydney Smith's Salad Dressing.

One hard boiled egg, yolk only, cold.
One-quarter tablespoonful dry mustard.
One-half saltspoonful red pepper.
One teaspoonful salt.
One-half teaspoonful sugar.
One medium sized boiled potato, hot.
Three drops vinegar.
Stir tablespoonful of good oil.
Three tablespoonfuls vinegar.
Rub the egg very smooth with the mustard, pepper, salt and sugar. Then rub in the potato, using the fat of the spoon, till no lumps are left. Stir in three drops vinegar; then very slowly the oil; lastly add the vinegar.
This makes enough for five persons.

Coffee as a Disinfectant.

One of the simplest disinfectants of a sick room is coffee. Some coffee in a shovel so as to fill the atmosphere of the room with its pungent aromatic odor. If two red-hot coals are placed on a fire-shovel and a teaspoonful of ground coffee is sprinkled over them, at a time, using three teaspoonfuls in all, it will fill the room with its aroma, and is said to have the hygienic effect of preventing the spread of various epidemic diseases. The odor is very agreeable and soothing to a sick person, have other disinfectants prove disagreeable.

The Healthful Apple and Deadly Pie.

If families could be induced to substitute the apple—sound, ripe and luscious—for the pies, cakes, candies and other sweet-meats with which children are too often stuffed, there would be a diminution of doctor's bills, sufficient in a single year to lay up a stock of this delicious fruit for a season's use.—Prof. Faraday.

To Stop Nail Biting.

The suggestion is made concerning the nail-biting habit, which has seldom remedy is to dip the finger tips after every handwashing into a strong solution of quinine and glycerine. Any druggist will prepare it at requisite strength; the bitter taste will stop children from further biting, and will remind an adult as well.

BIRDS' AGES.

Who Would Believe our Feathered Friends Lived so Long?

There is a German biologist, Weismann, who has some remarkable things to tell about birds. Did you ever suppose that some of them might be older than your own great grandfather? Or did you ever suppose that the little bird who waked you up in the morning singing in the tree-tops under your window, might easily be many years older than you? I never did, I confess, but that is what Weismann says. Small singing birds, according to him, live from eight to eighteen years. Ravens in captivity have lived for a hundred years. What nice old fellows they must have been, and think of all the secrets they could chatter about if they chose. Parrots live longer sometimes than ravens. What a comfort it must be to them not to have teeth to lose as they grow old.

Chickens and barnyard fowls live ten to twenty years. I suppose that is why some are such tough old creatures when we get them. Wild geese live nearly a hundred years, and swans sometimes live to be 300 years old. What fine celebrations the birds could have if they only knew it. Going to see an ancient grandmother crow or swan on different anniversaries. What a long procession of descendants the swan would have. I would rather see such a procession than Cock Robin's funeral, where all the birds of the air were a-sighing and a-sobbing as they came.—N. Y. World.

Cold Cream.

A simple rule for cold cream is as follows: One dram of white beeswax, two ounces of almond oil, one ounce of spermaceti. Put all these ingredients in a small cup, set it in boiling water and stir the ingredients till they are melted and thoroughly incorporated. And, if you wish, about a dram of gum camphor, which should be broken up fine before it is added, and then stirred in until it is melted. Pour the cold cream into little jars, into which it is to be kept, and let it get hard. The camphor is not a necessary ingredient, but it is an agreeable one, and is supposed to add to the healing qualities of the preparation. This is very much better than the ordinary preparation of this kind found in the shops, which is generally made of lard, and seldom or never of the pure vegetable oil, like oil of almonds or sweet olive oil, as it should be.

A NEGRO ON THE LADDER

THE SIGHT THAT MET A SERVANT GIRL'S EYES.

Startled by a Knock on the Window She Looked up: Only to See a Burly Negro Looking at Her.

Last night Mr. and Mrs. William Newcorn of West Front street attended a meeting of Iona Council, Degree of Pocahontas, in Red Men's Hall, leaving a servant girl home with the children. The girl sat by a rear window reading. About eleven o'clock she was startled by a knock on the window. Looking out she saw the face of a burly negro close to the window. As she looked up the negro saw her and showing his teeth screwed his features into an ugly scowl.

The girl sprang up and rushed through the rooms to the front of the building. Raising a window she yelled "Police; Police! A Man! A Man!" Her voice could be heard a block. Men came running out of Voehl's bakery to see what was the matter. Policeman Cooney heard her call and hurried to the place. As soon as he could catch the girl's meaning he went around the back way but there was no one there. The negro had escaped. No doubt as soon as he saw the girl run from the room, he divined her object and slipped down the ladder and ran. He had ample time, before the girl gave the alarm to slip out of the yard and down Somerset street.

The building occupied by the Newcorns is next to Charles Smith's saloon. They live on the first floor over the store.

There is a fire escape running from the second story to the third. The negro used a step ladder, which he found in the back yard to climb to the fire escape. It is supposed that in pulling himself up to the iron ladder, he accidentally struck against the window and thus startled the girl.

His intention was no doubt to climb to the third story and then work his way quietly down to the store for the purpose of robbery. It would then be an easy matter to unbolt the rear door and walk out.

The girl was very much frightened and refused to stay alone until Mr. and Mrs. Newcorn came home. Policeman Cooney went for Mr. Dreier to come and stay with her.

BREVITIES.

—Substantial Easter offerings at Edsall.

CRESCENT AVENUE CHURCH.

REMARKABLE MEETING

THE FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY OF THE CRESCENT AVENUE CHURCH.

Former Pastors Make Addresses and Tell of Plainfield as it was When They Were Here. Only Four of the Original Congregation Yet Living.—A Strong Church and its Growth.—What the Rev. Dr. Bliss Thinks of Cleveland.

The 50th anniversary of the Crescent avenue church was duly observed last evening by a special service at which former pastors spoke.

Dr. Richards in his opening address said in part:

"It gives me great pleasure to look upon the smiling faces of those gathered together for the purpose of making this day a memorable one in the history of the church. There are no doubt a few here who witnessed and took part in the great undertaking. They doubtless know that at that time it was considered a comparatively feeble attempt, but those who so far as we are gathered together and soon became strong."

The Rev. Theo. Brown, the second pastor of the church, then spoke as follows:

"It gives me great pleasure to speak again in the church where I, with others, labored for the master. In one respect it is entirely different. We had not a large handsome church as you who now attend divine worship in this building have, and it was a comparatively feeble effort, but, it was our trust and we felt that it was also our duty.

Not only the work which we did, but the place itself has many pleasant memories for me. On March 31, 1844 we had only 56 names enrolled. It was almost as a colony, branching off from the old established church, because the growth of that church necessitated it.

The Presbytery of Newark also established churches in other towns, the government of which was later given up to those in charge.

As perhaps most of you know the Rev. Mr. Whittemore was the first pastor here and that his ministry extended over a period of about ten years. One day I was visiting in Plainfield, and through Dr. Butcher I was called to the pastorate. I immediately accepted it, and was installed on the 10th of December 1854. During that time the church had not gained in membership.

The Plainfield of to-day is a beautiful city, but very different from what it was at that time. It had then about 2,500 or 3,000 inhabitants. The streets were laid out as far as Eighth street, but there were no houses on it. Park avenue and Front street are almost the same now as they were then, except for the buildings, and the most conspicuous house on Seventh street was that of Chas. B. Stillman, but the other cottages of other streets could not be compared to the handsome structures which now beautify your lovely city. Most of the stores at that time were also public dwellings, the supplies being kept in the dining and bed rooms. I think the principal buildings in the town at that time were Laing's hotel, the first Presbyterian church, which was afterward sold for coal wood, the Methodist church was and is yet a brick structure, the Second Baptist church, which has yielded to a more modern structure, and two Friends churches, one of which now stands, the other has been replaced by a brick structure. At that time the feeling between the churches was not a very amiable one, which is a gentle way of expressing it.

In these days, however, the churches mingle together, and good feeling exists between them, but I am glad to say that I never had a quarrel with any other church during my pastorate here as it always takes two to make a quarrel.

The only public school in the town was situated on Fourth street. It was a wooden structure, and was the first free school in the State. Its establishment was due to the efforts of the late Charles B. Stillman.

I admired that man, and I think we owe a memorial to him. I think it there is a new school building erected, a window of it should be dedicated to his memory. He was a noble man.

It is remarkable for the amount of manufacturing done in a city of its size. At the time of my pastorate, the Central Railroad ran but three trains a day.

In coming from New York we took the boat at pier 4, North River, and were transported to Elizabethport, where we had to wait one, two or three hours for a train. The entire trip was made in about one and one half hours, and I can remember the day on which I came to Plainfield, as we ran over the hills at Fanwood they were excavating fully 50 or 60 feet below us. I prophesied that the beautiful spot of ground now called Hillside Cemetery, would be a beautiful spot for burial, and my prophecy has come only too true, for my loved ones repose there."

The Rev. Dr. Bliss then spoke partly as follows: "On Friday, Sept 7, 1867, I came to Plainfield, and a friend, who was responsible for a supply preacher insisted that I should accept the pastorate. At last after much persuasion I gave my assent and prepared a sermon. The following extract is from my diary: 'I preached a sermon to a plain looking but very intelligent congregation.'

On the thirteenth of October I received a call from the church and on November 20th I accepted. I remember a short time after that Mrs. President Hayes was to visit Plainfield. The ladies of the church had made extensive preparations to have an oyster supper for the benefit of the church. When they learned that Mrs. Hayes was to come here they made more elaborate preparations to make the affair a success. Each one was anxious to have the lady eat out of her dishes, they were all disappointed, however, for Mrs. Hayes did not eat oysters. Of course after the President's wife had visited Plainfield, the President favored it by a visit too. He came, and, through persuasion, I induced him to address the Sunday school which was at that time holding its Christmas service. I think it is more to a man's honor to address a Sunday school than go off on a duck-shooting expedition on the Lord's Day.

On January 17, 1870, a new church was proposed. The 20th of September of the same year saw a conference held to decide upon the advisability of constructing a new church. The twelfth of September, '73, saw the church dedicated to God. The debt of the church April 11, 1880, was $38,600. This was slowly diminished and finally by the aid of the great debt destroyer, the Rev. Edward Kimball, D. D., it was entirely paid off. The membership of the church also increased wonderfully."

After the closing hymn had been sung and the benediction pronounced, the entire gathering was invited to the room below, where a reception was held. The desire of everyone seemed to be to make the day a memorial one in the history of the church.

NOMINATIONS MADE AND CONFIRMED AT TRENTON.

Adrain Eats Crow with Alacrity, if not Grace.—Only Three Democratic Senators Absent.

TRENTON, N. J. March 22.—Governor Werts to-day sent to the Senate the following nominations:

For Chancellor—Alexander Rice McGill.

For Justice of the Supreme Court—Wm. J. Magie, to succeed himself.

For Justice of the Court of Errors and Appeals—Col. E. S. Simms, in place of Judge Clemmens.

The first two nominations were confirmed.

The Judiciary Committee is considering that of Col. Simms.

All the Democrats but Senators Winston, Miller and Martine were present to-day.

Adrain was the first to arrive and the first to address Rogers as "Mr. President," in reference to a bill he wanted to introduce.

JOSEPH LANG'S WILL SET ASIDE.

Judge Rice Decides That it Was not Witnessed, nor Properly Made Out.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., March 22.—Judge Rice, to-day in a lengthy and learned decision, set aside the will of the late Joseph Lang of Dunellen. His decision was that Messrs. Wm. H. Cole and Crick, whose signatures are on the will, did not witness it and that it was neither properly attested nor properly made out.

Nelson Runyon was counsel for the proponents and Craig A. Marsh for the caveators.

JAMIESON FOUND GUILTY.

May Get Sentenced to Two or Ten Years.

NEW YORK, March 22.—The jury in the case of Andrew Scott Jamieson, the Coney Island Constable on trial in the Brooklyn Court of Oyer and Terminer, came into court at 11:25 o'clock this morning with a verdict of guilty of perjury.

The penalty to which Jamieson is liable is imprisonment from two to ten years.

The Borough in Darkness.

Owing to an accident at the electric light station the borough was left in darkness last night. During the day two new gaskets had been put in. Just as they were ready to start up another gave way near a valve. This made them shut down until the repairing could be made.

Not only the street lights but the private lights were also out.

The Township Committee conducted business by the light of four kerosene lamps borrowed from Collector Spencer.

TOWNSHIP BUSINESS.

MEETING OF THE NORTH PLAINFIELD TOWNSHIP COMMITTEE.

The Township Officers Sworn In.—Dr. Carman Appointed Township Physician.—Other Matters.

The North Plainfield Township Committee met last night in Spencer's Hall. Township Clerk Horace J. Martin called the meeting to order.

Mr. E. M. Fountain was unanimously elected chairman.

Mr. Martin read his report of the recent election in the township.

Mr. W. C. Smith was elected township treasurer.

The matter of appointing a township counsel was laid upon the table.

A communication was received from Dr. J. R. Carman offering to serve as township physician and render medical aid to the poor for $150 per year, the same as last year.

Mr. W. E. Mattison offered to act as township physician for $125 per year.

Mr. Allen said he thought Mr. Mattison was too old to attend to the duties and render satisfactory aid to the poor. He therefore moved to accept Dr. Carman's offer.

In seconding the motion Mr. Smith said as Mr. Mattison was getting very old, he did not think he could properly render medical aid to the poor. In case a call was made upon him in the night to go to a remote part of the township he would have to hire a rig to get there.

He said he didn't think he would be doing his duty as a township committeeman if he didn't second Dr. Carman's appointment. The position would prove a detriment to Mr. Mattison if he should get it.

Dr. Carman was therefore declared elected township physician.

The bond of Overseer of the Poor D. R. Weaver, of $500 with Messrs. William Blodwell and L. E. Barkalow as sureties, was accepted, and he was sworn in.

Constable Geo. N. Stewart's bond, of $500, with Messrs. T. W. Bilyer and R. M. Clarx, Jr., was accepted. He was after wards sworn in.

The bond of Constable J. W. Van Horne, of $500, was accepted. The sureties were Messrs. Thomas Rutledge and John Pearson.

Other officers sworn in were Assessor J. H. Conger and Commissioners of Appeal Jonathan Clawson and Israel Stout.

Collector H. N. Spencer's bond, of $1500, with H. N. Spencer, Elias Allen, N. B. Smalley and W. C. Smith as sureties, was accepted.

The $7,000 bond of Township Treasurer W. C. Smith was accepted. The sureties were W. C. Smith, J. H. Cooley and H. N. Spencer.

The following bills were ordered paid:

Chas. Willis	$5 00
H. J. Martin	43 45
E. M. Fountain	26 0
T. W. Harrison	19 50

The bill of Frank Mobus for carting stone to Chatham street was ordered returned, as the work had been done for the borough and not the township.

The report of the Overseer of the Poor was read and accepted.

The salaries of the township treasurer and Overseer of the Poor fixed were at $150 per year.

It was decided to meet in Spencer's Hall for the ensuing year at the same rent.

It was agreed that the same rate of wages should be paid to men working on the roads as last year—15 cents per hour for men and 40 cents per hour for teams.

On motion Acting Overseer of the Poor Horace J. Martin was authorized to turn the balance in hand of the poor account over to the new overseer, D. R. Weaver.

The members discussed at length the advisability of levying a dog tax the coming year. It was finally decided not to.

Mr. Smith said that this was the first year in the history of the Township that there was a balance on hand.

It is provided for by the law of the swearing township officers for one week. The clerk was instructed to so notify Constable Samuel Taynor, Commissioner of Appeal Harrison Coddington and Surveyor of Highways Joseph F. Humble and Michael Powers.

Mr. J. S. French's proposition to take the land on Johnson's drive bought by the township for taxes, was accepted, he agreeing to take it for 20 years and pay the taxes on it. The plot he takes consists of several acres.

The meeting adjourned for one week.

Big Moire Bows Still Popular For Street Costumes.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—

The number of the pretty things that are always appearing as accessories of the toilet—dainty arrangements for the neck and shoulders, such as fichus, collars and plastrons—is evidently increased by the influx of spangled bows that have burst much into popularity this spring. Guipure and lighter laces in black, ecru and white are thrown in all widths, the pattern traced in spangles of gold, silver, steel or jet. In need not be said that the rage for glitter does not affect the position of the real lace, which reappears this season in the form of wide, flat collars, which are sometimes almost capes. Many a woman has such collars which she has laid away as fashionably hopelessly out of date, yet now they have again become the extreme of the mode. Nothing except a return of the sloping shoulder line could have produced such a change, and as the alarming tendency shows no sign of decreasing we may yet have to make up decided a stand against the 12 inch shoulder seam as we have lately done in regard to balloon sleeps.

If there is anything in evolution, we must have never again to be betrayed into the extravagance of any unnatural fashion, whether it be of monstrous skirts, shoulder seams elongated so as to bind the arm or shallitate crowns. It rather behoves the evolutionary theory, however, to be faced by the fact that the ancient Greeks were far ahead of us in matters of waistcoat, they modeled the garment to the body and not the body to the garment. But mankind must accept its fate of salvation, and womankind as well. Perhaps the more we run to extremes now the more quickly we will learn the ethics of dress in the future.

To return to the original subject. Some very pretty accessories are shown. For instance, a wide collar, almost a small cape, is made of bands of black satin ribbon bordered with jet or spangles, alternating with bands of corn lace insertion. The edge is trimmed with lace to match, and a ornamental collar finishes the neck. The big moire bows worn with street costume still prevail. At first they were made of sash ribbon, but now they are shown in piece silk cut on the bias and lined with a contrasting color. An illustration of two styles is given. The first is of black peau de soie with colored satin. It has a folded collar, and the ends which fall below the waist are cut square and bordered with heavy ecru lace. The second is of silver. The ends are cut obliquely, and the lace is sewed on in stitches way as to give a label effect.

Central Railroad's First Hospital Car.

The Central Railroad of New Jersey has just fitted out and put into service the first hospital car in the history of railroading. It was turned out of the Ashley shops a few days ago and is now stationed in Mauch Chunk ready for use. It is divided into two compartments, both of which are fitted up for hospital use. There are cots for the patients, inter, a good supply of bandaging and linen and other necessary articles for the care of the injured. The car is painted a light cream on the exterior and is made bright and cheerful. Skilled and experienced physicians can now be tenderly cared for and treated as well as at home.

GOV. WERTS FILES THE PASSED BILLS.

Acts as Soon as the Chief Justice's Decision is Given.

TRENTON, March 21.—Gov. Werts was informed of the decision almost as soon as the Chief Justice rendered it. He immediately sent for Assemblyman Cross, Chairman of the Committee on Passed Bills. "Mr. Cross," said he, "I am now ready to file as laws the bills which you have been so anxious about."

"Glad to hear that, Governor," Mr. Cross said: "they are good bills."

The Governor filed them later. Among the bills which, by the Governor's action, became part of the statutes of New Jersey, are first-race-track-law repealer, a repealer of the act creating a subway commission, and the following:

No. 60, Mr. McEwan—Repealing act giving the Secretary of the State Prison Board $500 a year; Nos. 70 and 71, Mr. Schenck—Regulating the lots creating county excise boards; No. 96—Repealing the act under which John P. Feeney was appointed Chief the State Police; No. 73—Repealing an act giving second-class Freeholders power to fill vacancies; No. 74—Repealing the act giving the Governor power to approve and pay bills for which no special appropriations have been made; Nos. 29, 30 and 31—Repealing the acts creating the offices of Police Justice and Police Commissioners in Trenton, Camden and Paterson.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Frank B. Booth of Newburgh, N. Y., formerly of this city, is visiting friends in this city.

Mr. George E. Stillman has moved from West Fifth street to his new residence on West Seventh street.

Mr. Simmonds has left the Hillside Tennis Club and has joined the Larchmont Club of Long Island.

Mrs. Brady and family have moved from East Fifth street to one of the Manning flats, on West Front street.

Mrs. Lindsley Woolley of Westfield is visiting her mother, Mrs. Henry Van Middlesworth, of Kinwood place.

Mr. Albert Hedden moved to-day from East Fifth street to the Clifton flats, corner of Fourth street and Park avenue.

Mr. H. E. Kerr, road agent for the United States Express Company, has moved from Bloomfield to College place, this city.

Mr. J. W. Reinhart is having his Belvidere avenue residence improved and it promises to be one of the most attractive on that avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Ryder, who have been living for the Winter with Mrs. Ryder's mother, Mrs. Gillies of Madison avenue, will move to their own house on Central avenue, next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Janstein of New York, friends of Mrs. Reed of Myrtle avenue, North Plainfield, were in Plainfield yesterday hours hunting as they intend to locate here in the Spring.

An evening sociable was given in the A. M. Frazee house stand on Second street and Watchung avenue, last evening. Some fifty or more were there, and the young people danced to Prof. Frazee's music until four o'clock this morning.

May Yet Apply to Plainfield.

It is quite evident that more cities than Plainfield are having trouble over the appointment of postmaster, according to the following dispatch from an exchange:

COLLEGE SPRINGS, Iowa, March 20.—A mass meeting was held last night and a committee of safety organized to guarantee protection to Postmaster I. A. Royce. He was appointed against the wishes of the citizens, and has been systematically annoyed to compel him to resign. Monday night the Post Office was painted blood red, and he threatened to appeal to United States troops.

The Feast of Purim.

Purim (the feast of Lots) will be celebrated by the Hebrews, beginning last evening and continuing until to-night. This festival is among the most joyous in the Hebrew calendar and the plan of rejoicing is almost cluster around it. Year after year the interesting story is related of how the Jews in the 127 provinces ruled over by King Achashverosh were delivered from the slaughter intended by Haman, the wicked prime minister of Media and Persia.

Mr. Reese Elected School Trustee.

Mr. S. M. Reese was elected school trustee over James E. Connolly at Washfield, Tuesday, at the largest attended school meeting ever held in the village. Mr. Connolly was supported by the Rev. Mr. Patton of the Congregational church, who has taken great interest in the management of the school. Both candidates are Republican. The vote stood: Reese, 126; Connolly, 127—a majority of 61 for Mr. Reese.

ONLY ONE SENATE NOW.

Trenton Muddle Decided In Favor of the Republicans.

THE DEMOCRATS MUCH SURPRISED.

The Kaiglon of the Two Senates Ends the Long Fight—Opinion of Chief Justice Beasley Opposed to Governor Werts' Argument—One Dissenting Vote.

TRENTON, March 21.—The supreme court of New Jersey, with but one dissenting voice, decided that the Republican majority alone has the authority to organize the state senate. The dissenter was ex-Governor Leon Abbett, who will file a minority opinion within a few days.

The decision, which was read by Chief Justice Beasley, completely annihilates all the contentions made by Governor Werts, Attorney General Stockton and the minority members of the senate. Not a single peg is left upon which to hang a hope for the Democratic contention, and there seems to be nothing left for them to do but to bow to the inevitable and come into camp as gracefully as possible.

This will probably be done today, and before another sun has risen and set Senator Rogers will doubtless wield the gavel over a reunited senate.

This form of affairs was a complete surprise to the Democrats, all of whom professed the utmost confidence that they would win the quo warranto proceedings which had been put in motion at their own suggestion. Not an inkling of the nature of the opinion had reached any one save the members of the court until it was read by the chief justice. In fact, it was not until the last paragraph was reached that the hopes of the minority under Senator Abbett were seen to have been utterly crushed. Then ensued deep gloom among the losers and great glee in the ranks of the victors, although all hands evidently shared in the feeling of relief that the long fight is over.

The effect of the decision is to have all the bills passed by the Republican senate and laid on the governor's desk become laws without the chief executive's sanction or objection, the state constitution providing that any law left with the governor which is not vetoed within a period of five days shall become a law.

Justice Beasley's Opinion.

The opinion of the supreme court, delivered by Chief Justice Beasley, closes as follows:

In fine, after a very careful study of the constitution of the state, my conclusion is that its intimations are all to this effect—that the claim advanced for the first time on this occasion that there can be a senate organized as a body is without any valid foundation, nor has there been forged any more substantial basis for the doctrine just discussed in the past practice of the senate in respect to its yearly organization.

The practice may be thus generally described: In the first instance the senate, under the new constitution, was organized by the joint assembly now in the action of all its members. Then for some years afterward, upon the assembling of each succeeding legislature, and of all the senators was called. But in subsequent years the practice was to call the name only of the senators holding over. This was not an unnatural course, as these senators had taken the oath of office, and their credentials had already been inspected. In this condition of things the custom obtained for the incoming members to present their credentials to the body of senators holding over, and upon their approval they were sworn in.

The office thus performed by the old senators was in substance purely formal; as much so as though they had been a committee appointed by the body of senators to inspect and to report upon the credentials of the new senators. On no occasion did they exercise any other power, nor did they ever pretend to be possessed of another power.

There is not an instance in which they undertook to adjudicate on the right of a senator-elect to his seat, nor did they ever hold such right in abeyance. If all were in the absolute power now asserted for the first time and after a lapse of half a century; it certainly would be a most singular circumstance that during this long period the existence of such power was never manifested by a single word or a single act. The claim of such an imperial authority made at this late day is an entire novelty, and it cannot receive its legal matters. It is not well founded.

Practical View the True View.

In local affairs it is the practical and common sense view that in general is the true view, as neither the affairs of men nor of state can be regulated by considerations which have not their origin in the law ends. When I accept, therefore, the understanding that plainly appears to have prevailed for so long a time, I feel great confidence that I have not fallen into error.

The doctrine in general stands, as I think, condemned both by the intimations of the constitution itself as well as by a long continued and practical exposition. The result of the inquiry before us is that we have concluded that the senate is not a body which is continuous body, but that it expires annually in the same sense that the assembly does. Therefore, our opinion is that it belongs to the senate itself to the office that he ostensibly holds and that the appropriate judgment must be entered against him. With respect to the title of the opposite claimant, Mr. Rogers, we hold that his title must be regarded as constitutional and valid.

Our resolution in this regard is founded entirely on the power that, touching the act of reorganizing the senate body, the majority of *the senators are the absolute masters of the occa*sion. Such action, is taken by a body coordinate with ourselves, and whose proceedings, when not violative of the constitution of the state, we have no capacity to supervise or control.

In our opinion, when a majority of the senators organized the senate and elected Mr. Rogers as president, such action was and is conclusive upon this court, as well as upon all departments of the government. Let a judgment be entered accordingly.

AGAINST PRENDERGAST.

Supreme Court Denies a Supersedeas, and He Must Die Friday.

OTTAWA, Ills., March 22.—The supreme court has refused to grant a supersedeas in the case of Prendergast, the murderer of Carter Harrison, who is sentenced to be hanged on Friday.

Chief Justice Baker filled the last hope of Prendergast for further movement in the courts for either a stay of proceedings or a new inquiry by which he may escape outraged justice. The judges filed notes of concurrence, and after a few unimportant decisions of motions in civil services Chief Justice Baker opened the docket at the criminal page and said: "People No. 5, Prendergast versus the people; motion for a writ of error and that the writ be made a writ of supersedeas. The court has recently examined the record, abstract and briefs in full, and it has concluded to deny the application."

This was all, but it decided that the judgment of Judge Brentano's court and the conduct of the trial of the murderer of Harrison had been fully indorsed by the highest court of Illinois and that the case was practically closed forever. All that can now intervene between Prendergast and death on Good Friday is the governor's executive, and the latter is absent from the state.

CHICAGO, March 22.—Prendergast was searched by the authorities at the jail immediately after the announcement came, and all he had in his pockets was taken from him. He made a great protest when they took his pencil. "It's all I am going to die, I will need that," he said. "I have some writing to do."

MOURNING FOR KOSSUTH.

He Will Be Buried In Hungarian Soil Shipped to Italy.

BUDA-PESTH, March 22.—The whole city is in mourning for Kossuth. All the public and many private buildings and all the fashionable shops display flags at half mast and bound with black crape. The students in the city are wearing black plumes in their hats.

The refusal of the authorities to order the closing of the Comedy theater as a mark of respect to the memory of the great Hungarian patriot has greatly irritated the students, who have threatened that they will mine the theater as the entrances and request the public not to enter. It is feared that disturbances will occur on account of the stiff tude of the students.

The Hungarian people are determined that the body of Kossuth shall be buried in Hungarian soil. A sufficient quantity of earth that has a sanctities sent from various parts of the kingdom has been shipped to Turin, and in this soil the coffin containing the remains will be interred.

Maniacs Love Tragedy.

DURANGO, Mexico, March 22.—At Cacaria, 60 miles south of here, Rafael Lopez was engaged to marry Miss Forlia, the pretty daughter of a wealthy rancher. The young lady went to cut their engagement. Lopez called upon her and pleaded to be reinstated, but she refused. The father of the girl invited the disappointed lover to remain for supper. The three sat down to eat, and Lopez secretly put poison in several dishes of food. With the others he partook of the mixtures, and in a few minutes all three were dead.

WANT THE BILL VETOED

Many Protests Against Coining the Seigniorage.

UNCLE SAM'S BIG GUN TESTED.

The Senate Indulges In a Short and Unsuccessful Session and Adjourns Early. Some Interesting Gossip From the Nation's Capital.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—The pressure being brought to bear upon President Cleveland in regard to the action he shall take upon the Bland seigniorage bill is not confined to senators and representatives, for he is in receipt of letters and telegrams from all sections of the country upon the subject, and, contrary to the belief that seems to prevail, a very large majority of these communications urge him to exercise the veto power. Many of the most emphatic of the letters in the urgency for a veto are from Baltimore, New Orleans, Richmond, St. Louis, Charleston and other cities, and they represent boards of trade and leading business men.

Similar communications have been received from the cities of Chicago, Pittsburg, Allegheny City, Detroit, Boston, Philadelphia, Rochester, New York and Providence.

Poor Loss of Credit.

The prevailing sentiments contained in these appeals are the expression of an apprehension that should the bill become a law there would result a loss of confidence in the credit of the government, a fear that the gold would be drained from the treasury and a feeling that the government would be unable to maintain the parity between gold and silver, thus placing its financial status on the same footing with Mexico, the South American republics and India.

The president is carefully listening to the arguments, political and other presented to him respecting the seigniorage bill. The best information obtainable is that he has not yet made up his mind what action he will take, and no one can state what he will or will not do.

Messrs. Tracey, Dunphy and other anti-silver congressmen say they believe the bill will be vetoed. On the other hand, the Democratic senators who voted for the bill are generally very hopeful that the president will sign it. The message which the president sent to the New York delegation advising them not to come to Washington, they think, indicates that he has decided to approve the bill and does not consider it necessary to consume time in arguing the point—a view quite different from that of the New Yorkers themselves. The latter will wait until the last to decide what he shall do with the bill.

The Big Rifle Gun Tested.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—A distinguished party of public men and departmental officials and a number of ordnance experts accepted the invitation of the secretary of the navy to visit the naval proving ground at Indian Head to see the official test of the 12-inch rifle, the 13 inch gun which has been completed at the government works. This is the biggest gun ever built in this country, and a vast amount of interest was manifested in seeing it operated.

The enormous mass of metal was minutely inspected by everybody on arrival at the proving ground with something like awe and with great admiration.

The 1,100 pound cast steel shot was hoisted up to the muzzle by a hydraulic pulley and rammed home by a hydraulic ramming apparatus. The 698 pound charge of powder was then put in behind the shot. The powder is in prisms, each grain being an inch or more in diameter. The massive breechpin was then swung into place and the warning given for the coming discharge.

Many a spectator stood stot on his dignity, but retreated to retired points and held his fingers in his ears while the gunner, from a neighboring shelter, pulled the lanyard of the great gun and sent the half ton of metal screaming and tipping and turning and raging into the inmost recesses of the opposite hillside.

Postmasters Nominated.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Among the nominations of postmasters sent to the senate were the following:

Connecticut—Willimantic, Julius Pinney.

New Jersey—Trenton, Frank H. Lalor; Jersey City, Robert S. Jordan.

Pennsylvania—Greensburg, William R. Turney.

The following fourth class postmasters were appointed:

New York—Crown Point Center, J. K. Trimble; East Penfield, J. W. Conklin; Hale's Eddy, Jason Hale; Tompkins Corners, ——.

Pennsylvania—De Golia, Mrs. Viola Ward; Elroy, W. G. Gehman; Gideon, Mrs. Annie L. Geary; Harrison City, P. J. Kline; Llewellyn, W. S. Reinhold.

Quiet Day In the Senate.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—The shadow of death hanging over the senate was referred to in the chaplain's prayer when he offered up thanks for the recovery of Senator Colquitt of Georgia. The day's proceedings were very tame and uninteresting, being confined chiefly to the passage of unimportant bills.

The senate took up the unfinished business, which was the bill to simplify the form of deeds of conveyance and trust and release of land in the District of Columbia, and after debating it for an hour without result it went into executive session and adjourned early.

Senate's Relief Committee Ready.

BOSTON, March 22.—The Boston citizens' relief committee has practically finished its duties. During the past three months $100,000 has been expended, and 7,000 poor people have been given work.

Lessy Marvis Sentenced.

CHICAGO, March 22.—Five years in the penitentiary at hard labor was the sentence imposed in the United States court in the case of Lessy Harris, the Buffalo money order forger.

Clinton Cabinet Resigns.

ROME, March 22.—A dispatch received here from Santiago states that the ministry has resigned.

GLADSTONE'S PLANS.

He Will Retain His Seat In Parliament by Request.

LONDON, March 22.—Mr. Gladstone recently received an address from his constituents in Midlothian in which he was requested to continue to represent that parliamentary borough in the house of commons. Replying to this address, Mr. Gladstone has written a letter declaring that his chief desire will be to follow the wishes of the constituency he represents.

He adds: "I will not finally be a change in my attendance at parliament. I cannot yet judge how far my sight and hearing will debar me from performing parliamentary duties."

The latter continues: "Whatever the merits or demerits of my career—and certainly I have been chargeable with many errors of judgment—I hope it at least has been governed by uprightness of intention and a desire to learn. I am sanguine that Scotland will continue to cherish a lofty and enlightened sense of duty, and that undoubtedly she will be able to obtain without difficulty every satisfaction of her specific wants. For myself I carry out of office the same political opinions I professed while in it.

"It is a great satisfaction to me, after more than 60 years of a highly contentious life, that I can be honorably relieved from some active participation in political conflict, that I can escape the great and growing demands of these cognizance for the satisfaction of their legislative wants, and I trust that the unoccupancy of sentiment between the two houses of parliament has received during the past year such development as to raise a question between the two houses which will not be decided in the chamber totally irresponsible to the nation in such form as to early necessitate a conclusive judgment from the country. I am glad to think that until the just demands of Ireland are satisfied, as the house of commons tried to satisfy them, neither will the legislative wants of any portion of the United Kingdom be adequately met, nor will the empire attain its maximum union and power, nor British freedom its largest growth and its deepest historic stain ever attached to it."

New Light on the Fuller Tragedy.

NEW YORK, March 22.—Superintendent Byrnes declares that the mystery that has enveloped the killing of Miss Fuller in Lawyer Mallory's office on Saturday has been dissipated. He claims to be in possession of sufficient evidence to show exactly how she was killed and intimates that she was murdered and did not commit suicide. But more important and positive still is the declaration made by an officer of the Oak Street station that a letter was received by Captain Slevin in which the writer says that he was an eyewitness of the tragedy and saw Magee fire the fatal shot.

New Phase of the Negro Question.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 22.—Three thousand representative negroes from every part of Alabama were in attendance upon the state convention recently called by Rev. A. J. Warner and others to consider the question of emigration to Africa. It was the sense of the meeting that the best thing for the 1,500,000 negroes in this country should return and establish there a great nation. It was agreed, however, that as time while men had brought the negroes to America they ought to pay their fare back to their native land. Resolutions to that effect were passed.

Shot Two Men and Has.

HAMMOND, Ind., March 22.—James Conroy and William Cleary, who were employed as watchmen in the Tolleston Shooting Park, engaged in a fight in the park in a quarrel with Albert Tooker, and the latter drew a big navy pistol and fired six shots, killing both men. After the shooting Tooker took to the woods. A vigilance committee was immediately organized. Tooker will be lynched if captured.

Three Killed In a Street Fight.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., March 22.—Meager details reached here today of a bloody street duel which occurred at Eutaw, Guin county, and resulted in the death of three men. Sheriff E. L. Henegan attempted to arrest two negroes and was accompanied by a posse of deputies. They fired on him, and he returned the fire, killing both men and receiving wounds from which he died soon after.

Careless Use of Gasoline.

BELVIDERE, Ills., March 22.—As the result of a gasoline explosion here Mrs. J. Westfall, Mrs. Barney Manley, Mrs. Grath Barker and a two-year-old son of Mrs. Manley were frightfully burned. The women were cleaning a carpet with gasoline, and a coal stove in the room ignited the gas.

Ferdinand Ward Married.

GUYANNO, N. Y., March 22.—Ferdinand Ward of New York and Miss Belle Storer of Staten Island were married at the residence of Dr. J. A. West in this village. Rev. George K. Ward of Dansville, a cousin of the groom, officiated.

Senator Colquitt's Condition.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—Senator Colquitt's condition is about the same. The present attack is said to be the result of the progress of the paralysis from which he has suffered for a long time rather than from any recent attack.

Think Chinaman Did It.

NEW YORK, March 22.—A new theory regarding the butchery of 11-year-old Susie Martin is being considered by the police. It is that the crime is of oriental character, and the murderer was a Chinaman.

Guyguenay Acquitted.

NEW ORLEANS, March 22.—A. Guyguenay, who was on trial before the criminal court, charged by the American Express company with stealing $60,000, from a package of $50,000, has been acquitted.

Commissioners Indicted.

JERSEY CITY, March 22.—The Hudson county grand jury handed up 71 indictments, including five counts against each of six county commissioners for malfeasance in office.

Postmaster Hanged Himself.

SOMERSET, Pa., March 22.—William Zimmerman, postmaster and a well known merchant at Stoystown, committed suicide by hanging in the stable of Rife's hotel.

TO WED PRINCESS MAUD

Rosebery and the Prince of Wales' Daughter Mated.

QUEEN HAS GIVEN HER CONSENT.

The Effect on the Radicals of the New Premier's Alliance With the Royal Family. Is Doubtful—Something About the Bridegroom.

LONDON, March 22.—It is learned from authoritative quarters that the queen and the Prince of Wales have given their consent to the marriage of Rosebery with Princess Maud of Wales, and the official announcement may be expected any day.

This was the business which caused Rosebery's urgent summons to the queen's presence on the Saturday before the announcement of Gladstone's retirement and the mysterious holeobbing of the ministers on the Sunday following.

How the Radicals will relish the leadership of the Prince of Wales' son-in-law, who presumably will be peculiarly susceptible to court influences, remains to be seen.

Maud Like Her Mother.

Princess Maud, or "Harry," as she is often called at home, was only a wee babe ago to be growing prettier every day and more like her royal mother. She is a very bright, lively girl and full of fun. There was a report as long as four years ago that she would probably marry Viscount Chelsea, the eldest son of Earl and Countess Cadogan, who gave them as a present Oxford Hall estate, which comprises 10,000 acres in Suffolk. There was nothing in the rumor, however. For about a year past it has been the gossip in fashionable London that Lord Rosebery was likely to wed the princess.

Princess Maud is 24 years old and is next to the youngest of the six children who have been born to the Prince and Princess of Wales.

The youngest was a son, who died the day after his birth in 1871. An English writer said of the three daughters just after the eldest, Princess Louise, was married to the Duke of Fife:

"The uneventful, yet happy and diversified lives of the three young daughters of the Prince and Princess of Wales can hardly be considered especially, for the short have been very loving to each other, though the eldest, Princess Louise, of course was the first to become her mother's right hand and companion. The trio were educated by Mlle. Vautier and Frankein Nodel, and, as befits the daughters of our royal house, they have learned to be proficient in several languages at once and will consequently be at their ease in every European court. They are also very well read not only in English, but in French and German literature, and have decided musical talent and artistic proclivities.

A Well Trained Girl.

"The Princess of Wales, like every other right minded English lady at the head of a household, has diligently taken her family to church. She usually goes to the parish church; in London, not only to the Chapel Royal, St. James, but also to Berkeley Chapel, Mayfair, of which the Rev. Teignmouth Shore is the incumbent, and it was he who was selected to instruct the princesses in the principles of the Christian religion. Such education has always been paid to the physical development of the older girls. They can fence and generally make use of the muscles of their body to a very grown frame. They also enjoy a romp among themselves and are not ignorant of the pleasures of a bolster fight in the seclusion of the bedroom they have till recently shared together—at all events in Marlborough house.

"They thoroughly enjoy a country life, and, like their mother, have the cool hands that can make firm butter, which they have continually done in the dairy at Sandringham home farm, where the Prince of Wales has her pet Aldderneys and all the daintiest dairy furniture her heart can desire.

"The walls are tiled with exquisite porcock blue Indian tiles, the churn is silver, and the milkpans are also of that precious metal, lined with porcelain, while a tall mill jug painted to match the tiling by the Marchioness of Lorne is in constant use."

"Under the same roof with the dairy is a tearoom with a green paper on the walls and a matted floor. It is furnished with light carved oak, and all the ornaments have been put up by the 'house proud' princess herself. Here, in fine weather come mother and daughters, who make their own butter, and spread their own bread and butter, and have their tea often in the company of a few friends. All the three princesses are very fond of animals and of flowers are also almost as much interested in the kitchen garden at Sandringham as in the flower beds. They have their especial pets among the dogs and birds and horses."

Father and Son In Jail.

BOSTON, March 22.—James Malnes, Sr., aged 69 years, and James Malnes, Jr., 28 years old, two notorious crooks and ex-convicts of the state prison, were arrested here on suspicion. In the house was found a valuable set of the finest burglars' tools

WOMAN AND HOME.

HOUSES FITTED FOR SOCIETY AND THOSE FOR FAMILY USE.

Sensible Dress Change—Women In Burmah and Japan—Dressing on Time. Flowers of Dinner Parties—Her Pitiful Condition—Reading For Children.

There are two kinds of homes—those fitted and meant for society and those for pleasure for homely comfort and family use. The greatest compliment one can pay the first is to say they are fine and in the height of refining fashion. The greatest compliment one can give the second class is to say they are cozy and individual. The young woman who on a bride limit has a chance to make a home should possibly overestimate her influence and power.

Love all long ago taught us the simple lesson "not the many make the home-child, but only one the home." If that one is accomplished and naturally refined, these traits will show in every picture, every bit of china, in every detail. Though it is plain that one small salary is needed for these other than artistic, yet the touch of true refinement like in the tasteful Venetian photographs and centers in the "Aurora" of Guido Reni over the mantel, which is be some an inexpensive artotype. If she is it thrown and sacrificed, no matter how much money she has at her command, her home is sure to show these characteristics.

Money hasn't much to do with the interior of a home these days, when a vase or plate of modern pottery is as fair and lovely as the rarest of porcelains used to be and when a really excellent photograph of a famous painting can be had for a trifle. In the society home the blue silk paper hangings and delicate upholstered chairs are kept hidden between company periods with enlow coverings, while closed shutters and carefully drawn shades exclude every ray of sunlight.

The renewal aspect of such a house is quite a contrast to that less pretentious one, where the half worn easy chair, the somewhat tattered table and the streaming light all indicate pleasing comfort. Of course things wear out in this kind of a house, but the cheery atmosphere makes it a place dear to inmates and friends. She can but be an unlovely, uninteresting woman who fails to give character to her home.

There is little less a garment's rustle.
"Is nothing that I can phrase,
But the whole dumb swelling grew conscious
And pulses her locks and waves."
—Brooklyn Eagle.

Remedies From Change.

The thing that a woman needs most essentially to keep up her health and spirits is change—not necessarily a constant variation of dress and occupation, but a joyful relaxation once in awhile from the humdrum duties of her routine existence.

No thing thrives well that is not occasionally transplanted to some other spot, there to take in new ideas, to acquire fresh strength, to store up something that will be food for reflection when once more the burden of regulation existence is shouldered. There is a most harmful idea existing among certain good housekeepers and mothers of children, that if they were to leave home for one day everything would at once collapse into a state of utter ruin.

This is a species of false conceit that prevents many a tired brain and body from obtaining the respite from grinding care that is necessary for them to receive. Husbands should take it upon themselves to provide certain little pleasant happenings to vary the monotony of the domestic drudgery that is the wife's heritage. This does not necessitate undue outlay of money, for a change, bright, pleasant and inspiring, may frequently be obtained in many ways when not a cent is required to secure it.

If it is possible, a little trip taken once in awhile is the best tonic ever prepared. Seeing new faces, new scenes, has stimulated the imagination, braces up those forces that have been exhausted in the ceaseless round of household duties at home, and helps her to build up the body in the pleasantest manner possible.—Phil.delphia Times.

Women In Burmah and Japan.

Burmah is the land of free woman. She is the lord of the soil. Thebaw lost his kingdom because Queen Supayalat reigned in his stead. The graceful figure of the Burmese woman clothed in rustling silks, her beautiful hair decked in beautiful roses and jasmine, her neck and fingers adorned with valuable rubies and diamonds—she will not be fascinated by her charms? The Burmese girls are seen in their best attire only on festivals or in their temples. The promenade of the grand golden pagoda in Rangoon on a festival day is an impressive spectacle. Hundreds of gay young girls, some laughing and chatting, some distributing food to the pilgrims, some offering flowers before the stainless shrines of the gentle Buddhas, come almost more the burden of regulation existence is shouldered. There is a most harmful idea existing among certain good housekeepers and mothers of children, that if they were to leave home for one day everything would at once collapse into a state of utter ruin.

This is a species of false conceit that prevents many a tired brain and body from obtaining the respite from grinding care that is necessary for them to receive. Husbands should take it upon themselves to Dressing on Time.

A woman of the world almost invariably can effect the most rapid changes of toilet, for it is a part of her creed to dress quickly and appropriately for any function. The youthful beauty may require an hour or so in which to dress for a ball, may linger over her Sunday dressing until she is late for church and may keep the other members of the family waiting whenever she is to appear in public. Milady, on the contrary, serves in the conscientious of being perfectly attired for every occasion, considers 15 minutes to be an ample allowance for the most elaborate toilet, and if needs be can be dressed in five minutes. This is not a really a mark of good form, did the tardy ones but know it, and indicates a familiarity with the usages of the world to be able to dress with rapidity and at the same time well.

Young people should be taught that it is not only selfish, but bad form, to keep people waiting, for it is unhappily true that we are so constructed that it would trouble us more to unmask any social solecism than to feel our conscience accuse us of any want of consideration to others. Some people seem to have a constitutional inability to be ready on time, and they go through life causing more discomfort and exciting more irritability than a little. They are ghastly selfish and aggravatingly self satisfied while their victims fret and time and lose steadily fixed on some point about two feet above their level; inhale slowly and with great energy pull the extended arms down and well backward. At the same time bend the body forward, but do not transfer the weight of the body.

The head bends backward in opposition to the torso. Hold the position for a moment; then withdraw all unnecessary nerve force from the muscles and exhale as the body returns to its original position. During this exercise one should imagine that by means of two ropes one is pulling some heavy weight that must not be jostled, but moved with care. The shoulder, nape in the arms and brace firmly with the forward foot, but do not strain with the back. This exercise educates the arms and the less in lifting and so relieves the overworked back, which often ages under burdens not its own.—New York Herald.

The Cearina.

One likes to read how the cearina constantly accompanies her husband in his rides and drives. Not only does it indicate wifely devotion, but it proves an intrepidity too often denied as an attribute to woman. It is said that she thinks her presence is a defense from nihilists. Certainly she knows that a dart aimed at him might reach her; that a bomb under the carriage would not be discriminating. Yet she hopes that her presence may protect him from the throwing, and she equally hopes that the bullet may reach her, if so it be that she saves his life.

But one of the pleasantest things to read about her is her motherly devotion to the moral welfare of her children. In this she is an example to all mothers. She allows the governess, but employs teachers, who, coming for a few hours a day, and those days not consecutive, have not time to make a lasting impression on the moral natures of her children as would one employed constantly.

She is very small, and the contrast between her figure and that of the czar, who is almost gigantic, is very remarkable. Her oldest boy is like her in size—a fact that somewhat troubles the Russian people, accustomed to great size in rulers. But his mother's training has developed in him a strong, resolute character, conscientious and studious and capable of standing by a conviction.—American Woman's Journal.

Woman as a Citizen.

Professor Joseph French Johnson of the Wharton school says:

"As a citizen woman is under quite as many obligations as man. Duty is measured by the power to do, and there can be no question about woman's ability to do helpful work for the state. As a mother and teacher she has opportunity to mold the character of the rising generation, and should instruct her children most thoroughly and practically in the relationship existing between citizen and state.

"Especially is this sort of instruction needed in the public schools. There is considerable complaint of the service rendered by politics in our schools, teachers too often owing their appointment not to fitness, but to the favor of politicians. One of the surest ways to get politics out of the schools will be to put politics into them, or dropping the paradox, to take politics out of their management and put civics into their courses of study.

"When it dawns upon men that women are attending to the duties of citizenship more faithfully and unselfishly than they themselves, the war of words over woman's rights will suddenly end, and woman will be a voter."

For the Candle Party.

The table at the "candle party" is a small one covered with an open work cloth laid over pink. The plates are pink, and if possible the center of each one should represent some ideal baby face. The centerpiece at the affair which I attended represented a swan in bisque being driven by a dear little baby boy. The back of the swan opened between the wings, and this space was filled with tiny moss embankments that overflowed into a circular mirror that was surrounded by smilax, caught here and there by pink satin ribbons that wandered off over the cloth in loops and ends, holding at short intervals tiny clusters of lilacs and of white hyacinths. The reins by which the swan was driven consisted of pink blooms also.

The candles in pink were covered by little paper shades formed of a row of baby faces that seemed to laugh in genuine enjoyment as the light shone through from the back. Each shade was a full head baby's pink kid shoe filled with moss rosebuds, and the almonds and bonbons reposed in little pink glass cradles. Of course in giving such a party original ideas present themselves and can be carried out both inexpensively and daintily.—Edith Townsend Everett in Ladies' Home Journal.

Women In Washington.

Society in Washington grows more complex every year. Alas for the democratic simplicity which in the rural mind characterizes our government and has its reflex in the good old Democratic party! No politician ever played the great game of politics more assiduously than do many women the social game in this city. I know of one woman who spends from $5 to $10 a day on stock. Isn't that devotion? Six times 27-183 calls. And she told me how relieved she was to get out and make a few calls; how heavy she felt on the days of rest, and what a pleasure it was to be entertained instead of entertaining.

There lone half way in Washington. One must either let Penelopelike at home and spin or go one's whole length in the mad plunge. As society draws its distinctive caste line closer, the race becomes the keener.

It is becoming as much of a profession and fine art to be an accomplished society woman as it is to be an able politician or a lawyer. I wonder whether a woman can really be a society leader and be sincere and frank and free from hypocrisy and do her duty as mother or wife in this world?—Washington Post.

A Lady.

A writer in the New York Press undertakes to answer the question, "What is a lady?" This is the result:

A lady is a woman who is honorable, truthful and refined; who regards the comfort of others first; who never forgets how important are little courtesies to the happiness of life; who is loyal to her friends and never betrays a trust; who scorns to think a mean thought or speak a mean word or perform a mean act; who never gossips, protects weakness and maintains her own womanly self respect.

In European countries the title is generally confined to women who belong to the nobility and gentry. In this republic it justly belongs to every woman, young or old, rich or poor, unrefined or plain, who possesses the qualifications we have named, and the term should not be made meaningless by indiscriminate or unthinking use.

Housekeeping.

When I hear of young married people "going to boarding," I always think of what Colonel Inderson said in his speech on patriotism. It was to this effect: "We can never hope to recruit patriots from boarding houses. What man could be expected to get up and fight in case of war for his boarding house? while from instinct men will battle for their homes."

Go to housekeeping, young people. It's better than boarding, much better than living with your or her folks.

Start a home of your own somewhere, but a little out of the city if you can. It's better for the children if you have any, and I hope you will have, for it isn't much of a home without them.—Polly Pry in New York Recorder.

Rugs.

Those who possess a superfluity of rugs can make a charming effect by hanging them against the wall in the corner of a room, one at the head and two or three on the side. Another rug is suspended lengthwise to form a top. A narrow divan seat with four or five large cushions is arranged at each end, and two or three chairs filled with a small eastern octagon table (on which are laid cigars and cigarettes, matches and a silver tray) complete the couch. Odd shaped chairs. A Turkish lamp, with a red glass shade, gives just the amount of light desirable, and a few eastern arms arranged in the background of rugs will add greatly to the effect.—New York Ledger.

Baby's Shoes.

The material to be employed is chamois leather. Cut the shoes in the shape of a tiny sock. Sew them up with the seams on the inside and then turn them so that they edges may be on the outside. Do not make an opening in the front, but rather let the top be wide enough to admit the little foot and ankle easily. Now crochet a scallop with bright wool or silk around the edge and cut a few little slits just under it at a distance of about half an inch from each other. Run a ribbon through those, the same color as the scallop, and, drawing it enough to keep the little shoe firm, tie a bow in front. These make nice house shoes for little folks.—Washington News.

Creamed Canned Salmon.

Canned salmon is made into a palatable and dainty dish for luncheon or tea when creamed. Free the fish from skin and bones, break into large flakes and add a teaspoonful of lemon juice. To make the cream, rub together a tablespoonful of flour and the same quantity of butter and cook in a saucepan until the mixture bubbles, add a cupful of milk and stir until you have a thick, smooth mass. Season with half a teaspoonful of salt and a dash of white pepper, or a quarter of a teaspoonful of paprika, put the fish in the cream and simmer slowly five minutes. Garnish with a border of parsley.—Boston Post.

Deviled Eggs.

Boil five eggs hard. When taken from the hot water, cover with cold water to prevent the whites from turning dark. When cool, remove the shells and cut in two. Take out the yolks and rub smooth with a tablespoonful of olive oil. Add salt, pepper, mustard and vinegar to taste. When well mixed, fill the whites with the mixture, rounding it over on top. Serve on water cress or lettuce leaves dressed with French dressing, or serve with water cress or lettuce sandwiches.—New York Mail and Express.

Ellen Terry's Philanthropy.

People who are so fortunate as to be asked to visit Miss Ellen Terry at her South Kensington home need not expect that they will be permitted to sit and twirl their thumbs in idleness. The philanthropic actress has a basket of work always on hand. It is filled with unfinished garments for the poor, and every feminine visitor may choose between knitting and sewing, while the unaccomplished man may hold zephyr or furnish supplies.—Spinning Wheel.

Women In China.

Grimly significant is the notice set up at the side of a piece of water in Fuchau, "Girls must not be drowned in this pond." One day of summer has not dawned in China. The calamity of a daughter is a serious one, and it is not infrequently mitigated as we lessen the kitten and puppy nuisance by drowning. They have a proverb out there that "the worst son is better than the cleverest daughter."—Exchange.

Liquid Blacking.

The recipe given below is thoroughly reliable, as it was given by one of the best blacking makers in Rochester and is used by a large number of housekeepers there: An ounce of sulphic blue, a gallon of hot water. Put your soluble blue into an earthen dish, pour on the hot water and allow it to stand until the blue is thoroughly dissolved. Strain through two thicknesses of flannel, bottle, and it is ready for use.

A Devoted Sister.

Miss Balfour is said to be as untiring in her work for her brother as the wives of some other members of parliament are for them. She accompanies him on his tours, reads his new papers for him, visits his constituency with praiseworthy regularity and devotes herself entirely to his interests.—London Standard.

The musical editor of the Boston Home Journal has a letter from Patti, and he says it is as well put together as is her wonderful vocalism. It is written on heavy white linen glossed paper, the sheets being 6 inches wide and 9 long. The handwriting is exquisitely fine.

For pimples on the face bathe it occasionally in a soothing lotion composed of a weak solution of borax and warm water. At night use very warm water on the face, then dry and rub into the pores an ointment made of flower of sulphur and lard.

Turkey red makes the very nicest table cover for a room which is cosy rather than elegant. It will not fade if properly laundered, and the tint is the most brightening known for such purposes.

Even when shapely fingers terminate in pretty oval nails their beauty is utterly destroyed if the nails are allowed to grow in points beyond the finger tips.

Ginger applied to the cheeks warms and gives them a natural glow, and therefore adds a luster to the eyes.

The society of women is the element of good manners.—Goethe.

Blue with brown is particularly pretty on a Titian haired girl.

BRECKINRIDGE'S DEFENSE.

The Counsel For the Congressman Outlines His Case.

WASHINGTON, March 22.—It was a field day for the colleagues of Representative Breckinridge of Kentucky. Congress had taken a recess extending to call down the Potomac on an excursion and witness the trial of some big guns at Indian Head, but the trial progressing in the circuit court held greater charms for many than the banks on a government gunboat. Gray heads and bald heads were in a majority in Judge Bradley's court, but the spectators were disappointed by one of the least sensational days of the trial, although they heard the defense of Colonel Breckinridge outlined by his law partner and attorney, Colonel John J. Shelby, and the last words of Madeline Pollard's story. Then they slumbered through the monotonous reading of a long deposition.

The defense will be partly denial and partly explanation—denial that Colonel Breckinridge seduced Madeline Pollard; that she gave birth to a child at the Norwood convent, and explanation that she trapped him into a promise to marry her on the mutual understanding that this promise was only a device by which she was to be drawn from his life and be able to break off her relations with Mrs. Blackburn.

The long continued illicit relations between the two are admitted without excuse or palliation except a reference to the inherent weakness of human nature, but the orator's spokesman represents that he was either a victim or a brute then or all, but was always inveigled into continuance by the young woman; that she followed him, demanded money from him and compelled his presence at Norwood her under threats several times repeated and emphasized by a display of pistols. Moreover it is promised to be shown that Miss Pollard's early life had not been one to draw from him silver tongued orator crossed her path. This in substance is the defense, but it has many branches and side issues.

Killed by a Woman's Revenge.

DU BOIS, Pa., March 22.—John Danver was stabbed and killed by William McClelland with one thrust of a common clasp knife. Then with the same weapon McClelland had attacked his wife. She is badly wounded, but may recover. McClelland says he surprised Danver and his wife in a very compromising position.

UNITY 11 YEARS OLD.

ANNIVERSARY CELEBRATION BY THE KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

A Special Programme of Singing and Recitation, Prepared by the Committee, A Dance Follows the Entertainment. — All Took the Four Degrees.

UNITY Lodge, Knights of Pythias, was eleven years old last night, and in celebration of the event an entertainment and dance were held in Holetz's Hall. A special programme had been arranged under the following committee: Messrs. A. B. Donovan, chairman; Frank Hampton, secretary; Charles DeGraw, Frank Putnam, J. M. Hawkins and J. M. Wickoff.

After a musical selection, Mr. Horace J. Martin made an address explaining the objects of the Knights of Pythias in general and Unity Lodge in particular.

Unity Lodge was instituted by Mr. N. B. Gutteson, in 1883. He was the District Deputy.

Then there was more music, after which Miss Raybert, the talented elocutionist, kept the audience in a continual roar of laughter for some time by her recitations.

Miss Wyckoff and Miss Sears then favored the audience with a vocal duet. Samuel Kramer, though not down on the programme, took the place of some one who failed to put in an appearance, and it is needless to say that he "filled in" admirably. His recitation pleased his hearers so well he was compelled to respond to an encore.

The smallest Knight in the State, George Liable, was the next on the programme. He was as funny as he always is, and that he is popular was evidenced by the applause he received. He was kept responding to encores until he had to stop singing on account of his throat.

Mr. Horace J. Martin sang a selection in an excellent manner. That Mr. Liable's throat had become "rested" that little Knight again favored the audience. His singing of "Christopho Columbo," kept the audience convulsed with laughter.

The programme concluded by an explanation of the fourth degree in the Knights of Pythias by Mr. C. M. Ulrich.

The password of this degree at the outer door was "eating" and at the inner door it was "drinking." As the ladies could take the latter degree, they invited all the fair sex to remember what he had said and exemplifying the degree when the refreshment committee brought fourth the refreshments. It is needless to say that all took the degree, and if it is as pleasant to take the other three degrees, no doubt all present would have been willing to "ride the goat."

After the refreshments the floor was cleared for dancing, music for which was furnished by Prof. Rogers on the piano, and Prof. Guttman on the violin.

BREVITIES.

—Hot cross buns.

—To-day is Good Friday.

—Fourth Assembly at the Casino, Monday night.

—A union service will be held in Grace church to-night.

—A trustees election is to be held at the Methodist church next Monday night.

—Easter music was rendered at the Park avenue Baptist church last night.

—A boy was run over by a carriage with two ladies in it, on Somerset street this afternoon. He was not seriously hurt.

—Nisgah Lodge, U. O. of I. O. O. L. will hold an entertainment in the Sons of Temperance meeting room, on Monday next.

—On Tuesday evening next, the members of Winfield Scott Post will have as guests the U. S. Grant Post, G. A. R. of New Jersey.

—This morning Justice Nodyne gave a decision in the landlord and tenant case of Cortell vs. Stockman for possession of the premises.

—All persons having bills against the city are required to have them in the office of the city clerk by the 25th, if so dired to be acted upon at the next meeting.

—The young people of the Church of the Heavenly Rest will give an entertainment in the parish house, for the benefit of the piano fund, on Thursday, March 29th.

—The organizers of St. Paul's Episcopal church, Westfield, have been offered the ground upon which to erect a new church in case the Bishop approves the organization.

—Yesterday afternoon, Julius Lesardi caught a big rat in a steel trap. Before it was killed, however, it managed to bite the finger of a man who was in the store at the time.

At the Charity Benefit.

At the charity entertainment to be given at Music Hall next Thursday night, for the benefit of the poor of Plainfield the following artists will appear: Minnie Rowland, the queen of serpentine dancers; John F. Dillon, dialect humorist; Little Frank, in recitation and dances; "Billy" Williams, the Negro impersonator; and Lolia Thorry, the Spanish dancer of Eden Musee. There will also be dancing by pupils of Madam Ida Lozier's dancing school.

THE LAW OF WILLS.

THE OPINION OF THE COURT'S OPINION IN THE LAING WILL CASE.

It is Considered by Lawyers to Settle a Difficult Point, and Incidentally is Important to Every One of the Many Heirs Among "The News'" Readers (!)

The decision of the Laing will case reported in yesterday's News was regarded by the court as of such importance that Judge Dice prepared an opinion of 29 pages all devoted to the decision of one legal point made by Craig A. Marsh, counsel for the executors. The point was sustained and the will set aside. The head notes to the opinion were prepared by the court and are as follows:

1. In New Jersey four things are requisite in the execution of a will: (1) It shall be in writing; (2) it shall be signed by the testator; (3) The signature shall be made by him in the presence of two witnesses, or the making thereof acknowledged by him in their presence; (4) It shall be declared by him in their presence to be his last will and testament. Each and every one of these requisites must be proved to have been compiled with. They are not in the alternative. The third requisite contains an alternative, but one of these must be proved to exist in connection with the other three requisites named. None of them can be dispensed with.

2. In this state the rule as established by the Prerogative Court is that the testator's saying to the subscribing witnesses that a paper signed by them as witnesses to his will is not an acknowledgment of the signature within the meaning of the statute.

3. The Orphans' Court is bound to follow the construction of the statute regarding the due execution of wills as made by the Prerogative Court, rather than to follow the views adopted by courts of other jurisdictions, even though it be suggested that the views enunciated by them are more modern and more in conformity with the spirit of the times, leaving it to the Prerogative Court to decide whether it will continue to follow the construction of the Statute heretofore given by it, or not.

4. The object of the law in requiring that the signature of the testator to a will shall be made by him, or the making thereof acknowledged by him in the presence of two witnesses, in addition to requiring that the testator shall also declare the paper to be his last will and testament in the presence of those two witnesses, is to have proof of the genuineness of the signature by the subscribing witnesses without being obliged to resort to other evidence in addition to theirs as to whether the paper offered for probate contains the signature of the testator or not.

5. In the present case the subscribing witnesses had no knowledge whether or not the signature attached to the paper offered for probate was that of the testator, not having seen him sign it, or heard him acknowledge it (so far as the nature, or even being familiar with his signature. In the New York cases in which a different rule is held from that adopted by our courts in the construction of their statute (which is very similar to ours), the witnesses, or at least one of them, had seen the testator sign his name to the will, and this seems to be the ground on which these decisions are founded.

ANSWERED A PERSONAL.

AND NOW HE HAS A BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT ON HIS HANDS.

Miss Mary Stickle of this City, Sues Dennis P. Johnston of New York. — She Inserted a Personal in a New York Paper and He Answered It.

[New York Sun.]

Four years ago Miss Mary V. Stickle, a trained nurse and massage operator, inserted the following advertisement in a New York newspaper.

PERSONAL.—A country woman desires the acquaintance of a gentleman. Mary Stickle, Plainfield, N. J.

The advertisement was answered by Dennis P. Johnston, at that time an agent for electrical supplies in New York. Mr. Johnston paid several visits to Miss Stickle at Plainfield, and Miss Stickle claims that he promised to marry her, and has brought suit to recover damages for breach of promise, and in addition, $1,500 for loss of services during the time she was preparing for their marriage.

Miss Stickle tells a pathetic story of her treatment by Johnston. She says that he passed as a single man, and after winning her confidence borrowed about $400 from her for use in his electrical business in New York. She heard that he had gone out of business, and on coming to New York to investigate was stunned by the intelligence that he was a married man, and had a wife living and a daughter 12 years old.

Johnston denies that Miss Stickle loaned him as much as $400. He says that after several visits to Plainfield he told her that he could not afford to go there so often, and she gave him a commuter's ticket. Some time after that he told her what business he was in, and that he needed money to carry it on, and she loaned him $131, which he promised to repay in monthly installments of $10 each. As to the promise of marriage, Johnston says that Miss Stickle did not know how to account to her mother for his visits, and that at her suggestion he wrote a formal proposal of marriage, on which letter she bases her suit for breach of promise. After writing that letter Johnston thought he was treading on dangerous ground, and decided to sacrifice Miss Stickle's acquaintanceship. Miss Stickle, however, refused to be sacrificed, and visited Johnston's wife and told the whole story to her. After that Johnston says that paid all but $50 of his indebtedness to Miss Stickle, and offered the balance to her lawyers, but he refused to receive it until he had seen his client.

F. L. TAYLOR IS IN JAIL.

LOCKED UP FOR CONTEMPT OF COURT.

He Absolutely Refused to Answer the Ithaca Grand Jury's Questions on the Chlorine Case.—He Had Testified that he Knew Nothing of the Act.

Ithaca, N. Y., is again stirred up in the Cornell chlorine poisoning matter by the commitment to jail, late yesterday afternoon, by Judge Forbes, of F. L. Taylor, a Cornell Sophomore, who was a roommate of C. L. Diugens, who is suspected of being the guilty chlorinizer. Taylor resided in this city. He was sent to jail for contempt of court in refusing to answer questions put to him by the Grand Jury room.

Taylor was taken before the Judge for refusal to answer questions, and, after giving him some advice, the Judge sent him back to the jury room. He would not talk, and the Judge gave him some kindly advice, and mixed with it the law and his duty, and concluded with the privilege of having until two o'clock to make up his mind as to what course he would take. At two o'clock Taylor entered the Grand Jury room, but persisted in his refusal to answer questions.

The Judge then told Taylor of the danger of the course he was taking, and the trouble it was liable to get him into.

Taylor had testified that he knew nothing of the nature of the act, did not know how access was gained to the room in the building where the crime was committed, and had not seen the jug on the day or evening of the banquet. When he heard this Judge Forbes was more determined than ever to isolate that the witness answer questions put to him, as this showed that he was not implicated in the matter.

Taylor's attorney, Mr. Stanchfield, made a long argument in defense of the position which he had taken. He claimed that the Judge could not force a witness to answer.

The Judge then ordered Taylor committed to jail for contempt. Sheriff Seaman took Taylor in custody.

ENTERTAINED BY THE Y. P. S. C. E.

Of the Seventh-Day Baptist Church in the Sunday-School Room.

The Christian Endeavor Society of the Seventh-Day Baptist church held a social in the Sunday school room of the church last night. The unfavorable weather kept the attendance down, for excellence of the entertainment warranted a large crowd.

The programme consisted of an instrumental duett by Miss Mabel Potter and Miss Bessie Titsworth; reading, by Miss Ernestine Smith; recitation, by Miss Dorothy; a comic reading, by the Misses Mary and Lulu Lewis; Pantomime "Lord Ullin's Daughter."

At the conclusion of the programme abundance of refreshments were served.

Harold Tomlinson had charge of the entertainment. One feature was that each one attending was expected to give a cent for each letter in his or her name.

—The corner stone of the Emmanuel Baptist church will be laid Sunday afternoon.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Bills Passed and Introduced in Senate and House.

TRENTON, March 23.—The Senate met in the Senate chamber at 10:45 a. m. President Rogers in the chair, and was opened with prayer by Rev. John Handley.

All Senators were present except Messrs. Martin, Miller and Winton.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

No. 9, Mr. Bradley (by request, appends act relative to railroad crossings and to prevent accidents approved March 28, 1891.)

No. 10, Mr. Skirm, provides for the election of freeholders in second-class counties between 25,000 and 30,000 by wards and townships instead of by assembly districts.

No. 11, Mr. Voorhees, repeals the constabian act passed March 31, 1894.

No. 12, Mr. Voorhees, repeals the ferry monopoly act and provides that members of assembly to be voted for in each county by all legal voters of the county, according to the recent Supreme Court decisions.

No. 13, Mr. Stokes, prohibits the issuance of tax exemption from discrimination between white and colored persons in placing risks.

No. 14, Mr. Thompson, provides that road overseers shall be appointed from the road districts in which they live.

No. 15, Mr. Thompson, amends road act.

BILLS PASSED.

Senate 7, allows assessments for construction of sewers to be paid in ten yearly payments, with interest.

ORDERED THIRD READING.

House 49, provides for patriotic services to be held in the public schools on Fridays preceding Washington's Birthday, Fourth of July and Thanksgiving Day.

Adjourned till Monday night.

HOUSE.

The House met at 11 a. m. and was opened with prayer by the Rev. John Handley, of Trenton.

BILLS PASSED.

These bills were passed: House 6, the Belmar Sewer bill. House 175, amends the game law relative to rabbits. House 165, repeals the law requiring the Boards of Freeholders of Hudson and Essex counties to publish each month, in newspapers, a statement of the receipts and expenditures. House 39, compels itinerant "bankrupt sale" merchants to take out a license from municipalities.

Mr. Flynn's resolution, directing the Committee on Corporations to report in session until Wednesday of next week. House No. 48, was adopted. The bill provides for the erection of a bridge between Bergen Point and Elizabethport. It was passed on Wednesday, but Mr. Flynn stated that several members desired to further examine the bill before it was sent to the Senate.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

No. 203, Mr. Conrow, empowered the towns and township committees to third-class counties to make contracts for public lighting for a term of years.

No. 209, Mr. Salinger, provides that gas meters shall not be moved from buildings without the consent of the owners of such buildings.

No. 210, Mr. Salinger, makes it unnecessary to make affidavit to a plea when an affidavit of merits has been filed.

No. 211, Mr. Storrs (for the speaker) provides that the laws must be published in the Daily State Gazette.

No. 212, Mr. Olcott, abolishes public road boards in Essex and Hudson counties, and puts the control of such boards in boards of freeholders.

No. 217, Mr. Olcott, abolishes the present Board of Freeholders in Hudson and Essex counties on April 30th, 1894, and provides that a new board shall be elected on the second Tuesday of April, 1894, to consist of fifteen members, elected in each county at large, five to be elected for one year, five for the term of two years and five for the term of three years, the terms to commence on May 1st next. Each Freeholder elected to give a $10,000 bond on taking oath of office, bond to be approved and oath taken before a Justice of the Supreme Court. Salary of Freeholders to be $1,000 each per year.

Of Interest to Plainfield Photographers.

The wonderful power of a photographic camera to bring out details that are invisible to the naked eye was referred to by W. Lewis Fraser in his lecture at the Academy of Fine Arts recently, and he vouched for a remarkable instance of this kind which occurred in New York. A photograph was taken of the new American liners, and on receipt of the proof the owners were disturbed to see a hand-bill pasted on the side of the boat. An examination of the ship showed no hand-bill there but another photograph revealed the same result. A more thorough inspection revealed the presence of the mysterious paper under not less than four coats of paint so completely as to defy the scrutiny of a human eye, except within the closest quarters.—Philadelphia Record.

A Similar Tendency is Noticed in This Locality.

Each to its kind. "Fathers" belong to the Roman Catholic church, rectors and doctors and curates to the Episcopal church, ministers and clergymen to the other Protestant churches, rabbis to the Jewish church. Therefore, for any Episcopalian to be called "father" is simply to make an from a nothing sense. It's a good time for members of organizations to obey the rules of their common companionship. If they find the regulations irksome, it is a very easy matter to drop out. Gentlemen don't insist upon club membership where they are not wanted. Why should elected "father" insist upon remaining in associations where they are not congenial, and where no one seriously would see her absence if they were to resign?—Record in N. Y. Sunday.

AND NOW ITS TROUSERS.

A TEA GOWN SUGGESTION BY AN AUTHORITY.

A Novelty Indeed, Would be Full Turkish Trousers with Muslin Over-Dress—This Letter will Interest Every Reader.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—

There is no article in the modern woman's wardrobe that combines ease and beauty quite so completely as the tea gown. Its lightness, looseness and freedom from stiffening render it eminently comfortable, while it offers opportunities for the daintiest and most coquettish ornamentation. It may have a round skirt or a train; it may be low necked or high necked; it may be short sleeved or long sleeved, just as the fancy of the wearer dictates and as is most becoming to her. For the more simple styles chenille is a favorite material, as it combines well with silk, lace and ribbon; but in spite of the theoretical simplicity and informality of the garment there is no limit to the amount of money that may be spent on it or the ways in which it may be elaborated.

In respect to the general mode of making, princess, empire and watteau styles are all seen, while some rather new blouse effects are shown this spring. Of course the popular bolero jacket is seen applied to tea gowns as to everything else, and since the introduction into this country of the genuine Japanese kimonos, with their winged sleeves and wide sash, there seems to be no hope of further novelties unless indeed women decide to adopt the fashion of wearing Turkish dress—full trousers and muslin overdress—to the 3 o'clock tea table. As this is a season of spangles, the costume would be trimmed in an appropriately glittering manner, and the fashion would have the merit of offering an excuse, on the ground of characteristic national custom necessarily followed, for that blackening of the eyelids so frequently seen here without any excuse at all, unless ill judged vanity be one.

The Parisienne deals rather more fancifully with the house gown than we venture to do in spite of our many vagaries. Where we shorten the sleeves she dispenses with them altogether, and where we contest ourselves with a slight round, pointed or square shaping of the neck, back and front, she has the bodice cut away almost as much as a ball corsage. The effect is often undeniably pleasing, as is the gown of which a sketch is given, but it ought to be seen only by artificial light, which is in itself a sort of cloak. The garment is composed of yellowish cream silk laces in Turkish trench. The skirt of lace over satin falls full and straight. A white satin ribbon crosses the corsage above the bust and is carried around to the back, where it is tied in a watteau bow. Another ribbon surrounds the waist and is taken up under the bust, where it forms a rosette on each side, from which falls a long end. A knot of ribbon adorns each shoulder. Two deep lace flounces form a Nehu pointed back and front, veiling the ribbon trimming.

FINISHED FIFTH AGAIN.

The Chimney Gun Club Becomes the Same Position as in the First Shoot.

The springtime weather yesterday attracted a big crowd to the monthly tournament of the New Jersey Trapshooters' League on the grounds of the Maplewood Gun Club, at Orange. The sport began at 9 o'clock in the morning and ended abruptly with a downpour of rain that came as 5 o'clock in the afternoon. The conditions were five men to a team, each to shoot at seventy-five blue rocks under the rapid-firing system. The team scores follow:

Maplewood Gun Club—Wickliffe Smith, 13; Zeemann, 24; Hickley, 24; Van Dyke, 26; Drake, 24; Total, 111.

South Side Gun Club of Newark—Hoffman, 21; Thomas, 24; Hedden, 24; Hedden, 27; Schaefer, 26. Total, 122.

Union Gun Club of Springfield—McAloon, 31; Richmond, 29; J. L. Smith, 34; Ogden, 30; Miller, 30. Total, 154.

Brunswick Gun Club of New Brunswick—Johnson, 23; Hoagland, 26; Quinby, 19; Carnegie, 29; Van Dyke, 31. Total, 128.

Saw Dust Replaced by Tan Bark.

Contractor M. Udahl has almost completed the work of replacing the saw dust and dirt track as the Crescent Rink and putting it in good condition with tan-bark. Last evening the new track and surface was tested, and proved to be very satisfactory. Mr. John I. Holly led the march.

Owing, however, to the disagreeable weather, there were only fifteen riders, and five of these were ladies. All the riders present, the ladies to be by-speed in horsemanship and went through the various evolutions with both skill and grace. With the exception of another cartload of tan bark and some slight fixing of the gates, the riding surface will equal that of any similar enterprise in the State. Prof. Guttman's band furnished the music last evening.

Stover Talked of for Judge.

[Elizabeth Journal.]

There is some talk in political circles that the vacancy on the bench of the Union County Court, caused by the death of Judge James L. Voorhees, will be filled by the appointment of Rowland M. Stover of Plainfield, the disappointed aspirant for postmaster. There are others, however, looking for the position.

Presented with a Past Master Workman's Jewel.

Central Lodge, No. 43, Ancient Order of United Workmen, held a meeting last night in Odd Fellows' Hall. During the evening a Past Master Workman's Jewel was presented to Mr. F. C. Smith. At the next meeting a similar one will be presented to Mr. L. E. Blackford. The report of the Committee on By-laws was laid over until next meeting. The receiving of the report of the Grand Lodge representatives was also left over.

Crushed Stone One Cent Per Ton.

The Westfield Township Committee met Wednesday evening. The bonds of Collector Gale and Treasurer Conant were accepted and filed. A communication from Thos. G. Cochran, offering to sell the township 40,000 tons of stone for road-making at one cent per ton, was filed. The board voted to relieve from further expense the parties who contracted for the hydrants.

To Continue the Celebration.

On Sunday the Crescent avenue church will continue the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of organization. There will be an Easter service at 10.30 a. m., and a historical service at 7.30 p. m. The pastor, Rev. Wm. R. Richards, D. D., will give an historical address in the evening. The Easter choir of twenty voices will furnish special music.

BRECKINRIDGE LAST.

His Testimony Will Not Come Until the Close.

ATTACKING MISS POLLARD'S STORY.

Much Evidence Given by Depositions Which Proves That She Was Not In the Convent and In Older Times She Admits—Judge Bradley's Letters.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Counsel for Colonel Breckinridge have decided to follow the example of their opponents by reserving their client's testimony for the closing word in their case. Accordingly the affair halted congressmen disappointed many people by failing to go upon the witness stand, and one of the disappointed was Madeline Pollard herself, who left court as soon as she learned of the programme for the day. The entire day was dragged out by the reading of depositions all aimed at the plaintiff's character. To prove that Miss Pollard did not give birth to a child at the Norwood convent in 1885 and that she is older than she represents herself to be.

There will be nothing more for the jury until Monday, as the court intends to observe Good Friday, and the session Saturday will be devoted to arguments over the admissibility of depositions to show that Miss Pollard had been intimate with other men than the defendant, to which, the plaintiff has given notice of objections.

Some Depositions Read.

The first deposition was that of Sister Augustine of the Norwood Convent asylum, where Miss Pollard was at first confined. The sister had been for years at the convent, did not recognize Miss Pollard as one who had been at the convent and said there never had been but one Louise Wilson there, and she gave birth to a child there last fall.

During the time Miss Pollard claimed to have been in the building there had been a young woman there veiled most of the time. There was a rather unusual incident when Mr. Stoll read out the name of this young woman, who had claimed to be from a northern state, then apologized and explained to the court that the sister had only given the name under the condition that it was to be kept secret and not to be repeated.

This sister had been present at the interview in the convent between Miss Pollard, Attorney Carlisle and Johnson and Sister Agnes, whose deposition had been read yesterday. Sister Augustine also failed to recognize Miss Pollard. Her recollection of Miss Pollard's explanation of her motive for bringing the suit was that it would secure justice.

The entries on the convent books under the name of Mrs. Burgoyne corresponded with the dates which Miss Pollard and Dr. Street had given of her admittance to the asylum, the birth of the child and her departure. The name of the child on the record was M. Gertrude Burgoyne. According to the recollection of the sister, Miss Burgoyne left the convent twice after the child was born.

The child, Marie Gertrude Burgoyne, had died in July, 1885. When Miss Pollard was first told of the child's death she said she had thrown up her hands and run from the room; but when she returned there were no evidences of grief in her face.

Miss Pollard's Motive.

The second deposition read by Attorney Stoll was by Lena Schmidt, who had been employed for 18 years in the Norwood convent, who had no recollection of a woman in the convent in 1885 under the name of Louise Wilson and had never seen Madeline Pollard until last December. She had then been present at the interview between Sister Agnes and the plaintiff, but as the witness' best testimony failed to identify Miss Pollard as one she had ever seen. According to her remembrance, Miss Pollard had said of her motive for the suit, "I did it to vindicate and to disgrace Mr. Breckinridge."

The deposition of Dr. W. E. de Course, physician at the Norwood convent, was objected to by Mr. Carlisle on the ground of immateriality, but admitted by the judge. The physician testified that he did not know Madeline Pollard or Louise Wilson, but there had been a girl in the convent named Wilson in 1884 and 1885, whose first name he did not remember and whose face he would know again.

The deposition of Orrin G. Brown, president of Quinn Valley college in Ohio and son of the president of Wesleyan seminary, which Miss Pollard had attended, was read. He was a young man in those years of Miss Pollard's schooling and from the records of the seminary he found that her bills had been paid by James C. Rhodes.

Mr. Brown on redirect examination, declared that Miss Pollard was old enough when in school and had sufficient general knowledge to resist improper advances from a man. It was a part of the curriculum to teach girls what sort of treatment they should expect from gentlemen. When it was seen that this master was to be gone into at further length, Miss Pollard's attorneys objected, and Judge Bradley excluded it, remarking:

"That's expert testimony," thereby stirring up a laugh.

Miss Pollard's Age.

The deposition of Dr. C. B. Williams, who had lived in Bridgeport, Ky., in 1885, was objected to, but eventually admitted with the exception of one question and answer. In the year mentioned he had attended Mrs. Pollard when she gave birth to a child. There were then three other children, one of them a little tot called "Mattie" or "Madie," and the child born then was also called "Madie." The doctor, on cross examination, suggested, is a member of the board of pension examiners.

Judge Bradley has been the recipient since the opening of the trial of an unusually large correspondence, all concerning this case. Many letters come from religious people, urging him in the interests of the cause of the community to exclude newspaper reporters from the court—a power which the judge says is not his to exercise. One of the letters caused the judge to smile as he read it when signed by a woman member of the bar, who suggested that since he had excluded all women from the court room that Miss Pollard get her testimony the men should be debarred and the women admitted when Colonel Breckinridge takes the stand.

I Would Never Be Well.

My physician advised me to use Hood's Sarsaparilla. After taking it in half doses for two weeks I felt better, so at different times afterwards I used it awhile and during the last year I have again been restored to invigorated health by it. I attribute my restoration to health to the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla. My son has also been greatly benefited by it. He had rheumatism while attending school, he used two bottles of

RIOT AT SANTANDER.

The Outbreak at the Funerals of the Victims of the Explosion.

SANTANDER, March 23.—The authorities decided that the funerals of the explosion victims should be held at once, and the bodies were hurriedly prepared for burial. Some of the victims were so horribly mangled that it was impossible to identify them. Notwithstanding the presence of the military, the excited populace manifested an ugly disposition. Large crowds gathered along the streets through which the bodies of the victims were conveyed on the way to the cemetery, and many and bitter were the threats made against the authorities for what the crowd declared was their criminal carelessness.

It was evident that it would take but a spark to light into flame the impassioned fury of the populace. The spark was furnished by the appearance of the hearses conveying the dead. As though they acted upon some preconceived signal, the crowds began to riot, and for a little time it looked like the city would be given over to mob violence.

The authorities, however, were prepared for an outbreak of this sort, and soon a strong force of soldiery was on the scene of the disturbance. Orders were given to clear the streets, and the cavalry rode down on the howling, cursing and fighting mob.

No further attempt will be made to raise in the hulk of the Cabo Machichaco. The authorities believe that no dynamite remains in it, and are satisfied with a view to satisfying the public demand that no more lives be endangered, either in attempting to save dynamite or what remains of the steamer. It has been ordered that the hulk be destroyed by means of petards.

HOUSE DEADLOCKED.

Republicans Refuse to Vote on Contested Election Cases.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—The house spent the entire day in filibustering over the O'Neil-Rop contested election case from the St. Louis district. The report of the committee on elections is in favor of unseating Mr. Rop, Republican, and the Republicans are determined that this shall not be accomplished unless the Democrats produce their own quorum.

For five days they succeed and kept the house deadlocked. The highest number of Democratic votes cast during the day was 168—18 short of a quorum. An attempt was made to adjourn at 5 o'clock over Good Friday, and the struggle will be resumed today.

The bill for the purchase of a site for the new government printing office consumed nearly the whole morning hour, and much to the surprise of nearly everybody an amendment providing for the purchase of what is known as the "Malone site" was passed. Notice for a motion to reconsider the vote was given, however, and at some future time the matter will be reopened.

The McGarrahan bill, which was to have been taken up, went over until Monday, and the bill for the extermination of the Russian thistle met a like fate. Mr. Sherman introduced a resolution directing the committee on judiciary to investigate the charges of "mutilation" of United States coins or of the coining of standard silver dollars, but it went over under objection. After a brief executive session the senate adjourned until Monday.

Pennsylvania Presidential Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—Among the nominations of postmasters sent to the senate by the president were the following for Pennsylvania:

W. F. Daly, Dupont; Evan T. McGaw, Royersville; Albert R. Saylor, Royer's Ford; Willis W. Kirch, Starpeville; John A. Fry, Ephrata; Oliver L. Jackson, Coatesville; Jason Uhl, Somerset; Patrick J. Langan, Hastley; Alexander M. Dick, West Newton; R. J. O'Donnell, Port Carbon; Charles S. Schmidt, Homestead; Frank H. Stratton, Blossburg.

Destructive Fire In Denver.

DENVER, March 23.—One of the most destructive and at the same time spectacular conflagrations ever seen in this city broke out in the recently finished six story Champa building on Champa street and threatened for a time to sweep the entire block. The fire department responded the flames after about a quarter of a square was destroyed at a loss of $157,000.

Tragedy at a Funeral.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., March 23.—While the body of Andrew S. Seyfried was awaiting burial in his home in Shoenpus in the lower Harry, about 3 years of age, got hold of a bottle of carbolic acid used as a disinfectant and drank some of the fluid. A physician was summoned and a stomach pump applied, but the child died about an hour later.

Public Sympathy With Her.

NORFOLK, March 23.—Mrs. Henry Hugo, who shot and killed Frank Watts for the betrayal of her 15-year-old daughter, has been placed under $1,000 bail for her appearance before the grand jury. Public sentiment seems to indicate a verdict of justifiable homicide when the case comes to trial.

In Prohibition Maine.

MILTON, Me., March 23.—Joseph Stevens was shot and killed by George Ryerson, who had been drinking. The charge was from a shotgun, and entered Stevens' left side. Ryerson handled the weapon with a hammer, which was taken away. He then caught up his gun and fired with deadly effect.

Iowa No Longer a Dry State.

DES MOINES, March 23.—The senate passed the house liquor bill which has been so long under consideration, thus removing the third policy of state prohibition. The law provides for taxation of saloon property, and many conditions are required before liquor can be sold.

Florence Hawley's Sentence.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., March 23.—Mrs. Florence Hawley, the convicted murderess of Miss Mary Munson of Shelton, was sentenced to nine years in the state prison and ordered to pay a fine of $1. John Hawley, her husband, is now serving a life sentence for the crime.

Poisoned by Canned Shrimps.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., March 23.—Joshua C. Nickerson, proprietor of a fish market, and his son, George C., as a result of eating canned shrimps were taken violently ill. The elder recovered, while the son died in great agony.

Steamer Lost.

CROWLEY, La., March 23.—During the storm the steamer Olive, running between Morganston and Grand Chenier, sank in Lake Arthur. No lives were lost.

LONDON, March 23.—Dr. Nettleship, the well known oculist, believes that an operation will fully restore Mr. Gladstone's normal powers of vision.

MRS. MOUNT IS WANTED

New Clew In the New York Murder Mystery.

THE DIVORCED WIFE DISAPPEARS.

Police Have a Theory That She Visited Magee In His Office the Afternoon of Miss Fuller's Death—A Screen and a Towel Missing.

NEW YORK, March 23.—It has leaked out that the police are working upon a new theory in the matter of the mysterious shooting of Martha J. Fuller.

It is a theory based upon information that a third person was present in Mullen's office on Saturday afternoon when the unfortunate young woman was killed.

The autopsy indicated that the brain was hypersemic—full of blood—showing that the girl lived for some time after the passage of the bullet through her brain. It has been proved that an unknown man procured a glass of whisky in Flynn's saloon, opposite 114 Nassau street, at or about 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon, explaining that it was for a woman who had suddenly been taken across the way.

Witnesses will swear at the inquest that they saw Magee coming from the general lavatory in the north corridor of the building shortly after half past 5 o'clock. He was not then agitated; but, if his own story is true, Miss Fuller was then dying in the office.

Theory of a Third Person.

Now the police base their belief that a third person was present at the time of the shooting, whoever that may have been, partly upon the circumstance that the alarm was not immediately given, partly upon the incident of the glass of whisky, which they believe to be connected in view of the showing of the autopsy that Miss Fuller lived some time after the shot, and also upon the fact that Magee had Saturday afternoon sent all of the office employes whom his fellow employees in Mullen's office had never seen before.

It is also the theory following that the shot was fired on the impulse of the moment, it may be that the murderer or his confederate repented of the deed and sought to revive the girl by applying whisky to the nose, the serious nature of her wound, finding this impossible, they decided upon the adoption of the suicide ruse and laid all their plans carefully before sounding the alarm.

It is said that Superintendent Byrnes has instructed the detectives to look for Mrs. Theresa Mount, or Magee, the divorced wife of the suspected prisoner, and bring her before him. While it cannot be ascertained that the police have Mrs. Mount suspected of having been in Mullen's office at the time of the tragedy, it is certain that the police are looking for her and that her testimony will be required. She made a flying visit to Far Rockaway, where Mrs. Mount was rumored to have taken refuge.

Tried for a Stranger Woman.

The cause of these extraordinary efforts to find the divorced wife of Lawyer Magee was the statement of an employee of Mr. Mullen. He said that shortly before 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon Miss Fuller went out for a short walk. She was about to begin eating her luncheon in the office when a strange woman entered and asked for Magee. Magee went into the reception room and held a whispered conversation with the woman. After a few minutes' talk with her he put on his hat and coat and left the office with her. It was then that Miss Fuller seemed to lose interest in her luncheon, and leaving it untouched on her desk donned her hat and wrap and started out after them.

Now, the description given of Magee's visitor tallies in many respects with that of his divorced wife, of whom Miss Fuller knew and whom perhaps she had seen before. One account says that Miss Fuller had a telephone message at 5 o'clock, after half past 4 o'clock and that she then appeared to be much agitated.

Nobody so far as can be learned, saw the strange woman again, but she, too, may have returned and taken part in the altercation which Captain Slevin's anonymous correspondent says he heard in the office on his way down stairs.

A Missing Screen.

The employees of an establishment which has offices on the second floor of the building 115 Nassau street, which is directly opposite the windows of Lawyer Mullen's office, say that they frequently noticed that between half past 4 and 5 o'clock in the afternoon Miss Fuller was in the habit of drawing a three paneled screen in front of the windows and then retreating behind it. This was of so frequent occurrence as to occasion remark, so that the actions of the occupants of Mullen's office were more closely observed than they would otherwise have been.

These witnesses say that to the best of their recollection the screen was drawn between 5 and 6 o'clock on the afternoon of the tragedy. If they are correct in their recollection, this may account for the fact that nobody in 115 Nassau street or the building adjoining saw anything unusual through the large window of the office occupied by Lawyer Mullen's managing editor and typewriter. What has become of this screen? No one could be found yesterday who had seen it since Saturday night.

Another singular circumstance is the disappearance of a towel which hung on a rack over the washstand in the room where Miss Fuller met her death. This article, also not included in the list of things gathered together by the police and may have an important bearing upon the tragedy.

Peixoto Wants Blood.

RIO JANEIRO, March 23.—President Peixoto has received the imperial decree of 1822 and 1861. These decrees authorize the execution, without formal trial, of all persons who have taken up arms against the government, as well as those who have encouraged, aided or indirectly the cause of an insurrection.

Rare Knuckle Fight.

NORFOLK, March 23.—Eddie Hagan, lightweight champion of Philadelphia, defeated George Smith, lightweight champion of Norfolk, four rounds with bare knuckles at Newport News for a purse of $200 a side and the championship of Virginia.

Miss Sarah M. Carpenter Dead.

PORTSMOUTH, O., March 23.—Miss Sarah M. Carpenter, a member of the state board of charities, died at her home in this city. She was prominent in philanthropic work and while in office visited all the state offices alone and inspected them.

Revolution In Honduras.

DALLAS, March 23.—General W. L. Cabell has returned from Honduras. He reports two or three revolutions on hand and one general election for president.

BRIGHT SAYINGS OF LITTLE TOTS.

Harold—Because I am always put to bed when I'm naughty.

MADE THE BEST OF HIM THERE.

"Hoh!" jeered Willie to his sister. "I'm a boy, and can climb trees."

"Pooh!" retorted the sister. "I'm a girl, and can sit still without wanting to climb trees."—Harper's Young People.

Alice's Alphabet.

A is for wise little Alice herself,
Who wants to read All the big books on the shelf.

Her wonderful Appetite truly has she,
For study—and Apples between you and me.

B is for Bob one of Alice's Brothers,
He put on a Bonnet that once was his Mother's,

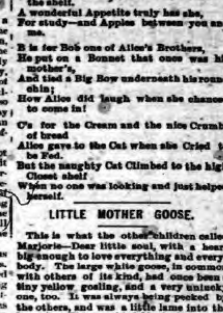
And tied a Big Bow underneath his round chin;
How Alice did laugh when she chanced to peep in!

C's for the Cream and the nice Crumbs of bread
Alice gave to the Cat when she Cried to be Fed.

But the naughty Cat Climbed to the high Closet shelf
When no one was looking and fast helped herself.

LITTLE MOTHER GOOSE.

This is what the other children called Marjorie—Dear little soul, with a heart big enough to love everything and everybody. The large white goose, in common with others of its kind, had once been a tiny yellow gosling, and a very untinky one, too. It was always being pecked by the others, and was a little lame into the bargain. This troubled Marjorie's tender heart, and, in the daily visits she paid the farmyard with her nurse, she took the most particular care of her special protection, and he gradually grew up to be a great pet, though an odd one for a little girl to have.



Her father and mother were highly amused over her droll choice of a pet, and once had her picture painted with her beloved goose. When her little cousins came up from the city they did laugh at it. Little Mother Goose," as they used to call her, and sing:

"Goosey, Goosey, Gander, Whither will you wander."

But Marjorie didn't mind; she only smiled her sweet little smile, as much as to say they didn't know all about its dear self. And the goose was very fond of her, and did very peaceably one day, much to Marjorie's grief; indeed, it was a long time before she would take her notice of the antics of the pretty "tumbler" pigeons her father bought to console his little girl for the loss of the poor old goose.

Not a True Story.

There is a funny little girl, who reads me every day.

She met surprising travels from a volume worn and gray,

In lands where monkeys buy and sell, and bears are in control,
And dreadful savages men who build great palaces out of bones,

And drawls, whose woods are bits of moss, their mountains pebble-stones.

But this book is what she reads about their travelers of renown
Is the Family Receipt Book, and she holds it upside down.

—Youth's Companion.

Perry's Query.

Perry has a very musical father and mother and the little lad knows good music from bad. His parents live in a city flat, and in the flat just above it one afternoon a young lady was trying to sing and not succeeding at all. Perry listened with a frowning brow for some time, and then said to his grandmother, "If this keeps up much longer, grandma, I shall ask her what she will do you think you'll do?"—Detroit Free Press.

The Advantage of Being Grown Up.

Ronald had been put to bed early to take tea. As night drew near she began to grow sleepy. "I shall be glad when I am a big woman," she said.

"Why will you?" asked auntie.

"Because I won't get sleepy so soon then," she answered.

"Perhaps you will," ventured auntie.

"Well, if I do," said Ronald, "I won't have to go to bed."—Harper's Young People.

An Offer.

Boy—Want a boy, sir?
Hobson—What for?
"Why, he gives dollars a week to Saturday night."
"For doing what?"
"Why, for waiting all the week for it."—Jury.

KEEP THE DOORYARD CLEAN.

Fine Health Reasons to Rot Our Aggregate Sake.

Where the dooryard is not the little piece of the family during the winter, it is not a difficult thing to get it in order in the spring; yet there is always a great deal to be done to the yard when the snow melts off and the ground begins to soften. Careful people go over the flower beds and lawn in the autumn when they set their plants and shrubbery which need it, in order that they may be dressed and removed in the spring. Even in the most careful families, it will be found necessary to sweep the yard in the vicinity of the house, as decaying leaves and vegetation are most unwholesome, breeding miasma and disease. There are always ashes and dozens of various kinds to be cleaned away, which belong essentially to the house. It is always better to attend to such matters as these as early as possible, before the spring cleaning comes. The use of whitewash in the cellar and disinfectants everywhere, should be insisted on at this time. There are many decaying vegetables which can be sown very early, as soon as the ground is fairly opened, if, indeed, they are not sown in the fall—such as sweet peas, pinks and many other hardy annuals. Nothing shows the care and neatness of a good house keeper so much as the condition of the dooryard. Keep the yard in the vicinity of the kitchen door.—N. Y. Tribune.

To Cure Beef at Home.

The housewife who buys her meat intelligently can often find pieces of fresh beef sticking to the bones after cooking. It is quite as economical to do the pickling at home so as to take a choice from those pieces. Rub into a dozen of the ribs kept till on the verge of spoiling before being thrown into the brine.

Brine is easily made and needs only to be kept in a warm place for a short time to be ready for use. Take five teacups of salt, four quarts of water, one-half teaspoonful of saltpetre and one tablespoonful of brown sugar. Heat the mixture for ten minutes and then put it into the firkin. When perfectly cold the meat must be put into it and will be ready for use in five or six days.

If the meat has been long in the brine, soak it an hour in cold water before cooking. Then put the meat into a large pot, cover it with cold water and boil it slowly and steadily, skimming it frequently. A half hour should be allowed for each pound in the boiling and longer if the meat does not rend easily with a fork at the end of the prescribed time.

Your Napkins.

Napkins should be so fine that they are creamy to the touch, and don't have large initials embroidered in the corner. The latest idea is to write one's own initial in a letter a half inch high across the corner of the linen, and embroider it in over-and-over stitch, adding, if desired, a sprig of jasmine or forget-me-nots underneath the initials.

A Corner Table.

A PRETTY PIECE OF FURNITURE.

Here is a convenient table to occupy one of the useless corners in a room. The illustration shows how it is made so well that a description is unnecessary. It will be seen that the decorated portion of the top hangs down as a leaf, which when lifted discloses a receptacle below. It is a handy table for the sick room, or for playing cards.

New Furniture.

Combination furniture is a new fad in the furniture world and has been brought to a mechanical perfection. A single bed, the front of which is composed of a wardrobe, a toilet case and a chest of drawers, may afford ample room for toilet articles, etc. This bed is let down from the bed by a spring that is easily managed with one hand.

To Render Canned Goods Safe.

If you are the least bit nervous about canned goods, soak them open, lobster, anything—for an hour in iced water before heating them. This will remove any tinny taste that may be noticed in them, and take away the last shade of poisonous that may cling to that best friend of the busy housekeeper, the canned article.

German Trifle.

Put a pint of strawberries, or any other fresh fruit, in the bottom of a dish, sugar the fruit, put in a layer of macaroons and pour over the dish enough of a quart of fresh milk and the yolks of eight eggs, beaten to a broth, sweetened and flavored to taste.

For Fire in the Chimney.

When a chimney catches fire throw salt upon the fire below, shut off all the draft possible (a piece of old wet carpet held before the grate is an excellent thing to use in shutting off the draft), and the fire will slowly go out of itself.

Wall Paper Should be Light.

Recollect that light wall papers often appear much darker after they are hung, especially near the corners of the wall. In selecting your wall paper let it be light and cheerful looking, but not so colorless as to be free from expression.

Onion Flavoring.

To extract the juice of an onion for flavoring: Remove the skin and cut off the bottom. Press it hard against a grater and draw it quickly up and down, allowing the juice to drop from one corner of the grater.

For Rusty Stoves.

A stove that has become rusted from disuse will be restored by rubbing it thoroughly with kerosene. Stoves may also be preserved the same way.

Napkins Cleanse Glove.

Unbroken kid gloves may be cleansed by washing them in napkins. Wash on the hands and hang them out in the air to dry.

A simple, timely dessert is formed of red bananas, sliced in thin round slices, with sugar and orange juice mixed together, and served with a dish of whipped cream.

DOUBTFUL HONORS.

Nominations Probably Blunders in Their Haste to Adjourn.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—The senate began the day with the request to be excused by it to the memory of Kenneth that it has decided to be held upon the state building, the national flag at half mast and 9 guns. The Students of this city, all of whom are great admirers of the great general, are apparently determined that the people of Plainfield and Dunellen shall not forget or else suffer the consequences. Crowds of the students went about the city flourishing the windows and doors in front of business houses which no mourning was displayed. Performances were being given in the theaters as usual, and the students invaded these places and drove from the stage with missiles of all sorts the actors taking part in the performances.

They then turned their attention to the saloons and threatened in no gentle case to drive them from the buildings. The police made attempts to arrest the disturbers of the peace, but the students, of whom there is a strong force and who were aided by the rough element, resisted them, and a number of sanguinary street conflicts took place.

Postmasters Appointed.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—The fourth class postmasters appointed were:

New Jersey—Alfred S. Dey, Dey.

New York—Altay J. R. Simonson: Crary Mills, Rollin M. Wilcox; Hartsville, Lemuel Lee Salmon; Lyons, Mrs. M. B. Beckwith; Serbia, Riel Street; Vernon Center, E. C. Treen; West Bloomfield, Sheldon Sisanson; West Sangerties, W. J. Schoonmaker.

Pennsylvania—Grimville, P. J. Rebenhold; Oakdale Station, L. E. Adams; Waluthe, M. L. Keck.

A Belle In a Pauper's Grave.

DANBURY, Conn., March 23.—Mrs. Sarah Newton Blanchard, at one time one of the most prominent of Washington society belles, was buried in Danbury as a pauper at the expense of the town. She was 85 years old.

No Gold Payment on a Cruiser.

WASHINGTON, March 23.—The treasury today ordered the payment of $659,000 in gold on account of work on the government cruiser now building at San Francisco.

GOOD HEALTH

HOW TO SIT.

A Simple Exercise For Establishing a Healthful, Graceful, Restful Pose.

Nothing more quickly demonstrates the lack of physical training as the fashion in which one sits. Many people think that if they sit fast upright, looking like animated mannequins, they are sitting properly. Such a position may be proper, but it is not comfortable and therefore seldom assumed, save with company manners. At other times women let their shoulders fall forward, thereby depressing the chest and bumping the back, and declare that position to be comfortable, when in reality it is almost fatiguing, to the body and ugly.

You may herself for a new or write if you like, but you must bend from the hips, not from the waist. In sitting, as in standing, due attention must be directed to the backbone and chest. When the backbone retains its double curve, the chest will be high, and all the internal organs will be free. This is the position to be maintained when one sits upon a piano stool or other seat without back support.

Women who always sit upright and never lean back are of the tense order, and sooner or later they will suffer the consequences of their abnormal rigidity. The backbone was evidently designed for versatility of movement and not to be always held in one position. The backbone must not be allowed to lose its flexibility and should be relaxed whenever a support permits.

The New York Herald, discussing abdominal exercises, says: "Any exercise which makes a low waist in a healthful, graceful, restful manner. Sit erect and free the torso muscles from tension. Place one hand upon the chest and one at the small of the back. Slowly curve the back until the back rests against the back of the chair; then sway forward to the original position. If this exercise be correctly taken, the body always backward curve at the small of the back. The chest will lower a little, but will not be sunk deeper. In sitting never hold the hands upon the abdomen. Do not clasp or hold them at all. If they are free from tension, they will relax and take care of themselves.

Cleak Your Ears With Your Elbow.

"On no area of the human body is the legend 'handle with care' so plainly stamped as upon that narrow wax guarded canal and the little cavity called 'the drum' just beyond it. Yet it is poked at, scratched, scooped out and irritated heedlessly, when an organ of such delicate abuse, if directed against the eye, would cause the destruction of sight," is the opinion of an eminent aurist specially reported by The Rural New Yorker. He further says:

"Two distinguished writers on this subject record some classic things. The chemist gets 'the wax out of the ears' who packs for most part into their ears.' In explanation, the nervous passage to the ear drum is far from being straight. Just inside its opening is an an apt angle, so that particles of wax and dead skin are easily forced back to a point where they are apt to lodge and form a hard mass for a large collection of debris, too, has the effect of which is to cause temporary deafness. 'Clean your ears with your elbow' is the advice of a still more distinguished physician. In other words, the ears do not require cleaning ex

STAY FOR PRENDERGAST.

Judge Chetlain Postpones the Execution Until April 6.

CHICAGO, March 23.—Judge Chetlain has postponed the time of execution of Prendergast until Friday, April 6. When the federal judges announced that they would not grant a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in the case of Prendergast, the assassin's attorneys renewed their efforts by raising the question of their client's insanity. The latest move is based in that Prendergast has become insane since the trial. So they applied to Judge Chetlain, and he consented to hear arguments to-hour that he could properly take up the matter.

Judge Chetlain at first refused to extend the time for hearing beyond 11 o'clock this morning—the hour set for the execution.

It was nearly 10:30 last night before the attorneys concluded their opening arguments, and Judge Chetlain decided that he could rightfully take up the case. The regular court venire was then summoned, and the work of securing a jury began.

Having heard the arguments, Judge Chetlain announced his decision extending the time of the execution of the sentence two weeks—to April 6—and setting the commencement of the trial of the question as to the prisoner's sanity for Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

Springfield, Ill., March 23.—After the refusal of the supreme court to grant a stay to Patrick Eugene Prendergast, sentenced to hang at Chicago today for the murder of Mayor Harrison, the attorneys for the defense decided to appeal to Governor Altgeld. Clarence S. Darrow telegraphed the governor at Biloxi, Miss., asking him to grant a respite. Governor Altgeld telegraphed Darrow that he "declined to interfere with the duties belonging to the lieutenant governor of Illinois." A petition for a respite was then drawn up by Mr. Darrow, and he secured the names of nine circuit judges of Cook county to it. The petitioners state that they are moved to make the request on account of doubts existing as to Prendergast's sanity and in order that a fuller investigation and consideration of the case might be had. Lieutenant Governor Gill was telegraphed to at Murphysboro and answered that he would hear the case. He arrived in this city and heard the addresses, but late last night decided that he would not interfere.

ART for AMATEURS

IN CHINA PAINTING.

Gold Over Color In Traceries and In Washes Finds Increasing Favor.

Gold over color in traceries and in washes is often a desirable finish on decorative work. For this use the unfluxed gold is desirable. The color contains flux, and in laying fluxed gold over this it would fuse into the color, and uniting with it leave but little luster. The unfluxed gold in the same heat would not sink in so deep and all its luster be perceptible. For green gold and red gold browns and the dark color of a desired shade may be laid and fired, after which a medium thin wash of unfluxed gold may be laid over this, giving the effect of gold browns at a much lower cost than by using pure metal.

The perfection in firing gold over glaze color is attained by a test fire the first time to drive the paint deep into the glaze. After applying the gold use a less strong fire, that it may not quite reach the color, but attach itself to the upper portions of the glaze.

Gold tracery, either on the white china or over color, is finding increasing favor. This kind of finish requires a great amount of time compared to the method prevalent a few years ago. Pointing out the advantages of the forgetting, Art Amateur says that the amount of gold used is trifling in comparison with the stippling finish, and this is one point in its favor. The principal one, however, lies in the beauty and perfection that may be attained in such work.

How to Set the Palette in Oils.

"Adopt a uniform system of arranging colors, so that in the absorption of painting one need not look for a certain color or tint, but know instinctively upon what part of the palette it is to be found," advises a writer on oil painting. "A simple and convenient method of arranging the colors is to begin at the top at the right end of the palette near the thumbhole and near the outer edge. Place the white, following with yellows, reds, blues, browns and blacks respectively, putting each color in a small pile by itself, so that it will not touch and mingle with its neighbor. This outer edge of the palette should always be reserved for the pure tones which are taken direct from the tube, placing mixed tones and shades on an inner row."

Peach Dumplings.

To a pint of sifted flour sift in 2 teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Mix a heaping tablespoonful of butter through the flour, slowly add sweet milk to make a soft dough, roll thin and cut with a biscuit cutter. With a spoon and the hand make a hollow in the biscuit till it is the shape of a tart, fill with halves of canned peaches and add dumplings in a hot oven until baked. Serve with cream and sugar.

Cozey Recruits Arrested.

PITTSBURG, March 23.—Eight men who were on their way to join Cozey's army were arrested in the Pan Handle Wayne yards in lower Allegheny. They were taken before Alderman Schellman, and a charge of trespass was lodged against them. They default of a fine of 6 and costs they were sent to jail for five days each. Seven of them registered at the jail. The majority were from New York, which place they had left Monday.

In Gonna a Prisoner on Shipboard.

LISBON, March 23.—Advices received here from Buenos Ayres show that the Portuguese warships having on board Da Gonna and his insurgent companions touched at that port on Thursday. In accordance with instructions the ship's commanders had received from the Portuguese government, the fugitives will not land in Rio Janeiro, the insurgent refugees were not allowed to land.

Buried Up to His Neck.

POTTSVILLE, Pa., March 23.—Joseph Wedemiller was digging a well into an abandoned hole when the sides caved in, burying him to his neck in earth. He managed to keep the earth off his head until assistance arrived about two hours later. He was injured internally, and his mind is affected by the strain.

Army Stores Missing.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 23.—A sensation has been caused at the army post on Angel Island by the discovery that a large quantity of gunpowder and coal oil stored on the bluff at some distance from the barracks had been removed. It is thought that both citizens and soldiers are concerned in the robbery.

The Cozey Ranks Are Thin.

MASSILTON, O., March 23.—The Cozey "Army of Peace" does not materialize. Not to exceed 20 men have yet put in an appearance here. The leaders of the movement still profess to believe that at least 1,000 men and maybe more will be ready to march when the army moves next Sunday.

SEED AND BULB MERCHANT.

Killed Herself With a Shotgun.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., March 23.—Mrs. Fanny Moore, wife of Hon. Jasper Moore, clerk of the United States district court for West Virginia, committed suicide here. Mr. and Mrs. Moore had returned from a pleasure trip to Atlantic City during the night. Mrs. Moore was very restless and arose early. When Mr. Moore arose, he stepped into another room and was horrified to find his wife sitting on the floor dead. The whole top of her head had been blown off by a charge from a heavily loaded shotgun. She had placed the butt of the gun on an angle of the walls of the room and pushed the trigger with a long handled shoe buttoner. It is supposed that brooding over domestic difficulties had temporarily unbalanced her mind.

Three Persons Shot Down by a Desperate Pole.

BESIEGED BY A MOB IN HIS HOUSE.

Sanders Killed a Baby In Its Mother's Arms, Fatally Shot a Man and Then Turned the Rifle on His Wife — Narrowly Escaped Lynching by an Excited Crowd.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., March 23.—A bloody tragedy occurred at Midvale, this county. Midvale is a village of 250 inhabitants, and the majority of settlers are foreigners, the Polish element predominating. John Sanders keeps the large boarding house in the place. He is a big, burly Polander and is greatly feared by his countrymen.

He had a quarrel with a Polander named Mike Boshop. The latter is alleged to have said, "You big tyrant, I am not afraid of you." The words had hardly left his mouth when Sanders ran to a corner of the room and picked up a rifle. Boshop tried to escape by running out of the back door, but he was not quick enough. Sanders took aim and fired.

Turned on His Wife.

The first shot missed Boshop, but it found a target in the arms of 3-year-old Willie Hendershot, who was reclining in his mother's arms in the adjoining room. The ball pierced the little fellow's brain, and he expired without a struggle. The mother fell in a swoon, and at first it was thought that both mother and child were dead. The second shot fired Sanders entered Boshop's body near the heart, and he fell to the ground. Sanders, thinking he had killed Boshop, returned to the house and attacked his wife, accusing her of being intimate with the boarders. He fired two shots at the woman, both of which took effect, one ball lodging in the fleshy part of the right leg and the other in the neck. It is thought that the latter wound will prove fatal. Boshop and the woman were removed to a hospital.

The man can live but a few hours, and there is but little hope for the woman. After the shooting Sanders barricaded himself in the house. The news of the tragedy spread rapidly, and in less than an hour over 500 people had gathered in the vicinity.

The crowd began to storm the house, and Sanders raised a window and fired two shots from a revolver into the crowd. This made the people more desperate than ever, and the cry went up: "Burn the house down! Lynch the scoundrel!" Several attempts to burn the house were made, but they were not successful, and the mob began to tear the house down. All the windows were broken, but nobody had the courage to enter the house and capture the assassin.

Crowd Wanted to Lynch Him.

County Detective Whalen and Patrick McGroarty entered the house at one of the windows, but the whiz of a bullet from Sanders' revolver drove them back.

Later Squire Perkins of Wilkesbarre headed a party which entered the house. They found the murderer helpless, his ammunition having been exhausted. He was found lying under a bed, with the rifle and two empty revolvers lying by his side. Blood was streaming from a wound in the back of his head, which is thought to have been inflicted by a stone thrown through the window.

When the murderer was brought out of the house, the crowd wanted to lynch him to the nearest tree, but Sheriff Walters appealed to them to let the law take its course. Several men attempted to take the prisoner by force, but the wisdom of the better element prevailed, and Sanders was finally safely lodged in jail. The house is almost a complete wreck. Every window is broken, and one side of the building was torn away by the mob in their frenzy.

A Proposed Animal Fight.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 23.—A large and fierce grizzly was captured some time ago and was purchased by Colonel Boone, the lion tamer. Among the other animals owned by Boone is a lion named Parnell, which has a record of killing numerous keepers. It is proposed to put Parnell and the grizzly in the big cage of the arena at the Midwinter fair and let them fight to a finish.

Wrecked by an Open Switch.

NEWPORT, Pa., March 23.—An open switch at Sylvan station, on the Newport and Shermansdale railroad, caused a passenger train to leave the track. The engine plunged over an embankment and upset. The engineer and fireman both jumped, the former escaping, but the fireman, James Stair, received injuries from which he died.

Shea Held For the Grand Jury.

TROY, N. Y., March 23.—Bartholomew Shea, found guilty by the coroner's jury of killing Robert Rose, was arraigned on a charge of murder in the first degree and held for the grand jury. John H. Bolaud, accused of the same crime, was discharged. Shea was taken to jail and hissed as he was walking along the streets.

Street Car Strike In Toledo.

TOLEDO, March 23.—A strike was inaugurated on the lines of the Robison Electric Street Railway company. An injunction restraining the strikers from interfering with the operation of the lines was granted by the common pleas court, but notwithstanding this the wires have been cut in many places.

Police Turnover In Camden.

CAMDEN, N. J., March 23.—The control of the police department of Camden has passed from the Democratic commission to Mayor Wescot. The repealing of the police law legislates Police Justice Paul out of office. The police commission adjourned sine die.

Student In Jail For Contempt.

ITHACA, N. Y., March 23.—The only important development in the Cornell poisoning case was the commitment of F. L. Taylor to the county jail for contempt of court because he had refused to answer the questions put to him by the grand jury.

Veil Dead at a Fire.

PERRY, N. Y., March 23.—Fire broke out in Dow's warehouse, and 5,000 bushels of grain were destroyed. George J. Watson fell dead from heart disease while watching the fire.

State Senator Duncan Dead.

CHAMBERSBURG, Pa., March 23.—G. M. Duncan, ex-state senator and for many years a prominent Democratic politician, died here, aged 66 years.

A Veteran Dead.

AUSTIN, March 23.—Colonel D. J. Degrasse died here. He was a distinguished officer in the United States army during the war.

DIXON KNOCKED OUT.

Kentucky Rosebud Put Him to Sleep For Ten Seconds.

PHILADELPHIA, March 23.—If the second round of the bout between George Dixon, present featherweight champion of the world, and Walter Edgerton, familiarly known as the Kentucky Rosebud, of this city, had been allowed to continue for three minutes, Thomas O'Rourke's prediction would have been completely knocked out. As it was, it took him a minute and a half to recover his senses, while in the meantime the 2,000 persons who were present were wild with enthusiasm.

The two friendly took place at Industrial hall, where an athletic entertainment was in progress for the aid of the poor of this city. After a few preliminary bouts, including one between Jim Daly and Joe Butler, the two colored lads made their appearance in the ring. Dixon was cared for by his sparring partner, Jack Lynch, while Jimmy McHale, the Rosebud's backer, looked after his interests.

Neither man attempted to do any slugging in the first round, which was of two minutes' duration, but the fun came in the second round. The old enmity which exists between the two men cropped out. They went to each other at it like a pair of fire for a minute. The Rosebud had Dixon in the latter's corner, and the little champion seemed to be wary of his antagonist. Edgerton had his left, and as Dixon parried the blow with his right the Rosebud swung his big right glove on George's neck. Dixon went down like a log, his head striking the floor a hard blow, which probably stunned him.

Referee Cole picked him up and sat him on a chair in his corner. It was just a minute and 10 seconds before Dixon realized what had happened. The bout lasted a minute and a half. Dixon, by careful handling, was able to go out and finish the scheduled three rounds. Tom O'Rourke said that it was the first time that Dixon had ever been knocked down.

Jersey Senates United.

TRENTON, March 23.—Everybody was in a great handshaking mood in the senate chamber. Seven members of the old Democratic senate came in, and nearly all the Republican senators shook hands cordially with them. Ex-President Abbett was never a sign of worry, flurry or discomposure. President Rogers was applauded by the galleries and the spectators in the lobbies when he assumed the chair.

GOOD FRIDAY SERVICE.

AT GRACE EPISCOPAL CHURCH LAST NIGHT.

The speakers were Rev. Dr. Yerkes, Rev. C. L. Goodrich, Rev. E. M Rodman, Rev. G. K. Newell, Rev. Dr. Lowry, Rev. Dr. Richards, Rev. C. E. Herring and Rev. C. Schenck.

The Good Friday service in Grace church last night was attended by a large congregation. Camp stools had to be used in the aisles to seat them all. The service opened with a hymn, which was followed by prayer and scripture reading.

The service consisted of meditations on words from the cross.

"The writing was 'Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews.'".....Rev. D. J. Yerkes, D. D.

First Word—"Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do."..... Rev. C. L. Goodrich

Second Word—"Verily I say unto thee, to-day shalt thou be with me in paradise."..... Rev. E. M. Rodman

Third Word—"Behold thy son, behold thy mother."..... Rev. G. K. Newell

Fourth Word—"My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?"..... Rev. Dr. Robert Lowry

Fifth Word—"I thirst." Rev. W. R. Richards, D. D.

Sixth Word—"It is finished." Rev. C. E. Herring

Seventh Word—"Father, into thy hands I commend my spirit."..... Rev. C. Schenck.

"Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews," was written Dr. Yerkes said, by Pontius Pilate. He wrote this title and placed it on the cross. It was written in Hebrew, Greek and Latin, so that it could be read by every person that could read. The son of God died on the cross, the just for the unjust. Just turn your eyes back to that spectacle. See Jesus of Nazareth with his hands and feet nailed to the cross. The Jews denied that he was king, so that the title written by Pilate was barren. He had no army; no court and not even where to lay his head. It would seem then that this title was a misnomer. Weak and helpless he hung on the tree. They said to let him save himself, but Jesus endured his cross, and his name shall endure forever.

The Rev. C. L. Goodrich was the next to speak. His was the first word "Father forgive them for they know not what they do." He said in part: "They had stretched Jesus on the cross and nailed his hands and feet. He did not plead for mercy nor cry out with pain, but his only thought was of others; not of his friends, but of his enemies. His love of humanity was beautiful. It's a moment of pain he prayed from his heart with love. The Jews didn't realize what they did, did not know they were crucifying the Messiah. I do not feel the sadness of the occasion to me it is one of glory. There shines out the glory of God."

Dr. Barnes was to have taken the second word, but Mr. Rodman explained that he had been suddenly called away, and was therefore unable to be present.

Mr. Rodman said in his place: "Verily, I say unto thee, to-day shalt thou be with me in paradise." This Jesus had said to the robbers by his sides, who had prayed to be saved. This man had sinned and then asked to be saved. It is supposed that he had heard Christ speak at some time when he was with the disciples, and had heard the sweet words "Come unto me and I will give you rest."

The Rev. G. Kennedy Newell then took up the third word. "Looking up," he said, "Jesus had seen his mother." He said unto her 'woman behold thy son.' Then he said to the disciples 'behold thy mother.' "For," he said, "we are all brothers and sisters."

The Rev. Dr. Lowry said that in all his forty years of preaching he had never dared to take this text "My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" but when words came to me to take that for my word to-night, he wouldn't say no. There is something tremendously fascinating about it. It is as fascinating as for a man to look over a cliff for a mile down below. I don't talk around it all night, or skip over it, but I won't. There is no bottom to the text. The first word began tenderly, but with the fourth the entire attitude changes. God didn't forsake Jesus, yet he was forsaken by disciples and friends. He went to have his work and experience. He had become separated from his father and now cried to God "Why hast thou forsaken me?" He was in utter darkness.

The next speaker was Dr. Richards. His text "I Thirst." He said, "When Jesus had uttered these words a sponge was filled with vinegar and placed to his lips. I would walk half way round the world to look into that face. When Jesus shall come again and say to you 'I thirst,' may he also say, 'and ye gave me drink.' It is he who suffered on the cross who is saying to you 'I thirst.'"

"It is finished" was the sixth word, said the Rev. C. E. Herring in part. "These words," he said, "mean more than life ended. They mean perfection; they mean redemption. They mean everything to us. Christ was crucified not that we might accept revelation, but that our punishment might be changed to chastisement. The next lesson we learn is 'Be thou faithful unto death' and then come."

The Rev. Cornelius Schenck was the last speaker from the word "Father, into thy keeping I commend my spirit." He said that first and last Christ uttered prayer, beginning each time with that endearing term, father.

The services closed with prayer and benediction.

The offering was for the Children's Home.

—One beneficial association, with headquarters here, has paid out in this district $2.60 since October last, for sick benefits alone.

—This evening at eight o'clock, all the tickets are here for No. 2 Engine Co.'s fair are to make returns at the new engine house. The one selling the most tickets is to be presented with a rubber outfit.

FRED TAYLOR STILL IN JAIL.

Other Cornell Students Leave for Home, but he Must Remain.

The incarceration of F. L. Taylor of this city in the county jail at Ithaca, N. Y., for refusing to testify in the chlorine poisoning case caused much excitement among his fellow-students of Cornell. They had not anticipated such vigorous methods after the matter was seemingly dropped early in the session of the Grand Jury. They had settled down to the conclusion that Taylor could evade answering questions, as he had been thought implicated in the affair. It is evident that Taylor thought to himself, for in the face of the warnings of the Judge and the expostulations of the Grand Jury, he was as close-mouthed as he had been before the Coroner.

When Taylor testified that he knew nothing of the nature of the act—that he did not know how access was gained to the room where the gas was generated and that he did not see the jug on the day in question—he knocked away a prop, and it placed him in a position where the court could rightfully demand that he give such facts as he knew. Contrary to the claim of the students' counsel that Judge Forbes could not show any authority for thus committing Taylor to jail, the best lawyers in the county believe that his course was perfectly justifiable.

Notwithstanding the fact that it was announced that Taylor would be released by habeas corpus proceedings no such relief came. It is said that an application for such a writ had been made, but at the adjournment of the Grand Jury until Thursday of next week no such writ had been presented to the court. Taylor steadfastly refuses to give the information desired.

The University term closed yesterday and a large number of students left for home. The general subject of conversation at the depot was Taylor's imprisonment and what was styled the "game" way he had stood by his friends. There were many expressions of regret made by the home-going crowd—concerning the unfortunate outcome of a college prank.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE

THE RAID ON DOCTORS.

The Corpses of Two Infants Found in One House.

New York, March 4.—In the Yorkville Police Court this morning there were arraigned the five men and ten women who were arrested by the Central Office police yesterday for malpractice.

Of these all were held under $1,500 bail for examination on next Tuesday, with the following exceptions: Dr. Seldon, W. Crowe, 217 West Forty-ninth street, $2,500 bail, examination Friday; Dr. Newton Whitehead, $2,000 bail, examination Thursday; Dr. Benjamin Hawker, 116 West Sixteenth street, $2,500 bail, examination Thursday. The other prisoners were:

Lee Randall 29, 154 East Thirteenth street; William Kruel, 24, 216 East Seventeenth street.

Caroline Becker, 227 East Thirty-fourth street; Louise Schoot, 244 East Thirty-ninth street; Bertha Schwab, 215 East Seventy-seventh street; Amelia Winkleman, 234 East Eighty-first street; Elena Landgraf, 249 East Sixty-seven street; Ella Lauchlin, 220 West Fifty-third street; Mrs. Karch, 306 East Seventy-eighth street; Christina Rathkraus, 169 East Eighty-first street, and Wailey Fromberg, 923 Second avenue.

One of the charges of malpractice against Mrs. Eliza Schroeder of 318 Twentieth street, who says her name is Lipden, and in whose house the corpses of two children were found yesterday, was changed to one of manslaughter. On this complaint she was placed under $10,000 bail for examination on Tuesday.

All the prisoners furnished bail with the exception of Mrs. Schroeder.

The prisoners were arrested through the agency of Britton's Society for the Enforcement of Criminal Law, who reported the accused persons to Superintendent Byrnes.

EASTERLY WINDS FOR EASTER.

Mr. Dunn Says To-morrow will be Fair, but Chilly.

New York, March 24.—Local Forecast Official E. B. Dunn was downcast this morning because he could not promise ideal weather for to-morrow. "The weather will be fair to-morrow," said Mr. Dunn, "though it is likely to be somewhat cloudy."

"The winds too threated to be rather unpleasant. They will be easterly, appropriately enough varying to southeasterly, and will be high."

"It will be warmer to-morrow morning than it was this morning, however. Even at that it will be a little chilly."

BREVITIES.

—The Elizabeth Herald says: "Why not Judge Stover? He is an able man and a good Democrat."

—The Bible Training Classes of the Y. M. C. A. will meet this evening at 8 and to-morrow at 9.15 a. m.

—Patrick Agney of Westervelt avenue, had a hand badly, while splitting wood a few days ago.

—There will be a ball at Sangerbund Ball, on Somerset street, Monday night. It is to be given by the Ancient Order of Hibernians.

—There were special services yesterday in the Roman Catholic and Protestant Episcopal churches in observance of Good Friday. The ritual in all was marked by solemnity and impressiveness.

—Paper flying from the yard back of G. Q. Packer's store at Park avenue and Second street, yesterday afternoon, frightened a horse tied nearby. Theo. Smith caught the animal just in time to prevent a runaway.

—The case of Martin vs. Miller, on contract, will be tried before Justice Nordyne Monday morning, at 10 o'clock. It will be a jury trial. Lawyer William M. Stillman will represent Mr. Martin, and Geo. W. De Mera will appear for the defendant.

—Some people have difficulty in getting hats that fit and feel comfortable. Mr. U. B. Crane says that there is one place in Plainfield where customers never have that trouble, and that is his place, No. 125 West Front street, and he certainly has the goods and prices that sell them.

Going to Sue for His Wages.

William Calloway of South Plainfield is about to bring suit against Coddington Bros., the ice merchants, for an alleged claim of $72 due him. He has consulted counsel. Calloway claims that he was employed by the Coddingtons on contract for one year, from April 1, 1893 to April 1, 1894, at a stipulated sum of six dollars a week, including house rent. He says he was kept at work during the busy season, but three months ago he was discharged, and he is now going to sue to recover, what he claims, the three months wages due him.

—Good Friday services were held at the Holy Cross church yesterday morning and evening.

BEAT HIM WITH A CLUB.

An Evona Boy's Charge Against Thomas King.

Late yesterday afternoon Thomas King of Evona was summoned to appear before Justice Mosher, on complaint of Harry Witters, a 17 years old boy, who charged King with beating him with a club. He made a complaint against George Stevens also.

A hearing was set down for to-night at eight o'clock. King says that he beat the boy for circulating scandalous stories about respectable young woman. The boy was badly bruised about the head. Mr. King says he took the club away from King.

City Court Cases.

In the city court this morning a number of cases came up for trial.

Joseph Kearns, arrested for being disorderly was adjudged guilty and fined $5.

The case of Laurence Green for alleged peddling without a license, was adjourned to next Saturday.

David Hooper, charged with being disorderly by being profane, language and fighting, in Prudon's alley, on the night of the first of March, pleaded guilty and was fined $10.

Three boys, William Drake, Louis Bullock and Edward Holmes, were charged, entered with being disorderly at the Bryant school, by calling the teachers names, throwing stones and climbing on the out buildings. They all pleaded guilty.

Mrs. Mingo, mother of one of the boys, was present and pleaded for her boy's release, but the Judge remained firm and said he was determined to break up this practice among the boys. Persons were continually annoyed by them. He therefore held William Drake and Louis Butterin to appear before Judge McCormick at Elizabeth to be sent to the Reform School. Ammon was fined $5.

The case of the city against those who participated in a fake on West Second street on St. Patrick's Day, was postponed until next Saturday.

Mrs. Schenck Gets Judgment.

Yesterday at New Market, before Justice Sterns, the case of Mrs. John Schenck, administratrix of the Schenck estate, vs. Freeman Gue, on contract, came up for trial. As the defendant failed to appear judgment was reached in Mrs. Schenck's favor for $39.10.

HOW TO CARE FOR THE HAIR.

A Few Simple Measures For Beautifying It, and a New Coiffure.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—

How to care for the hair is a never settled question. The market is full of nostrums for beautifying, restoring and preserving it, while there is an unending supply of contradictory recipes for its treatment. One writer mentions sage tea as a dressing, but does not add that it should be used only by brunettes, as it is inclined to darken the hair. Other authorities state that lemon should always be dissolved in the water in which the hair is washed. But borax, although it keeps the hair soft and clean, makes it fall out as fast as it grows in.

Somebody else advises the use of vaseline and glycerin. These articles may be beneficial, but they make the hair damp and oily and effectually prevent anything in the way of curls or waves, besides collecting all the dust and dirt that are afloat in the air. Brushing has time out of mind been considered the best sort of treatment, but not long ago an innovator came out with the assertion that it is most injurious, disarming the tar balls for they have a chance to grow. This may be taken with a grain of wholesome doubt.

It is much easier to say what should not than what should be done. Oil or grease of any kind makes the hair straight, strings and unpleasant to the touch and is an opportune time. Soda dolls and dries it. Sulphur stimulates its growth, but is too odoriferous to be pleasant. Simple measures in this matter are in most cases the best. The hair may be washed as frequently as necessary, for if it is quickly dried the bath does it no harm and greatly improves its appearance. A little ammonia, salt, distilled soap, ammonia or alcohol may be added to the water and the hair afterward be dried in the sun or by artificial heat. It should not be touched with brush or comb until it is thoroughly dry. This treatment will keep it clean and soft, and no hair is beautiful without these attributes, no matter what its color or thickness.

A sketch is given of an evening coiffure in which the front hair is curled and the back hair is arranged in a twist reaching in five puffs on the crown of the head. The left side is ornamented with four erect wings or ears.

FUDIC CHOLLET.

Use Printed Envelopes.

The Postmaster General has sent out a general order to all the postmasters in the country which asks that everybody sending letters put his or her name and address upon the envelopes, so that if the letter be not delivered it can be returned to the sender. The reason for this order is the fact that of late the dead letter office at Washington has become overcrowded with letters. The notice sent out reads as follows: "Don't omit your letter or valuable packages without having your own address written or printed upon the upper left hand corner. This will insure its return to you if not delivered and will prevent its being sent to be opened at the dead letter office."

Smith Defeated by Woodruff.

The shooting match at Marion yesterday between Charles Smith of this city and Aaron Woodruff of Elizabeth was a lively contest from start to finish, with 50 odds in favor of either man. A big crowd of spectators were on hand, among them being Dan Terry, T. H. Keller, W. S. Pierson, W. Squires, W. Terry and Ed. Campbell of this city.

Kent Agger was referee, and "Tee Kay" Keller kept the score, which was as follows:

Woodruff—18, 19, 18, 20, total 73.

Smith—21, 13, 19, 19, total 71.

Entertained Visiting Red Men.

District Deputy Wetzlake accompanied by fourteen members from Leola, Omenne and Apeetokee Tribes of Elizabeth were guests of Miantonomo Tribe last night. There was a very large attendance of paleskins. After the business an elaborate programme of songs, recitations and addresses was much enjoyed. One of the most enjoyable features of the programme was an excellent collation.

Strange Young Women.

Wonderful things are all the time happening for those who have eyes to see them, and sometimes the same thing is wonderful in more than one respect.

A little girl climbed into a chair fronting a duplicate mirror. Of course she looked at the reflection of her own pretty face. But instead of feeling pleased, as might have been expected, she turned to her mother with something very like petulance.

"Mamma," she said, "every time I try to look at the glass my face gets in the way!"—Youth's Companion.

FOUR BLOWN TO ATOMS

Ten Thousand Pounds of Dynamite Exploded In a Flash.

A GIRL KILLED 100 YARDS AWAY.

The Acme Powder Works In a Ravine Near Hulton, Pa., Wiped Out of Existence In an Instant—Watches in the Mill the Probable Cause.

PITTSBURG, March 24.—Ten thousand pounds of dynamite blew up at Black's run, near Hulton, and the only four people who knew anything about it are scattered in fragments over a quarter of a mile of territory.

The dead are William Arthur, aged 28; Mrs. Bell Arthur, aged 17, wife of William Arthur; Sadie Remaiye, aged 21, sister of Mrs. Arthur, and Charles Robbins, aged 19, all employes of Hillegas' mill, who was employed as a puncher. Nellie Remaiye, aged 19, sister of the other women, was fatally injured and taken to Pittsburg, where she died in the West Pennsylvania hospital.

Foreman William Mooney of the dynamite house was hurt by a flying splinter. Mat Feintzel, engineer, and Simon Bradley, helper, although near the scene, escaped uninjured.

Had Just Begun Work.

The Acme powder works, the scene of the disaster, were located in a ravine about one mile above Hulton. There were four houses down near the creek bottom. The employees had just begun work. Twenty minutes after the first explosion occurred, blowing the two young women and two men into eternity. About 100 yards away from the packing house, where the explosion occurred, stood the boarding house where the victims lived.

Nellie Remaiye, the injured girl, was blown across the ravine. The boarding house was blown down and resembles a heap of broken lumber, and from the debris the young woman was rescued, being the only survivor. She died two hours later at the hospital without having recovered consciousness.

The scene of the disaster resembles a battlefield, debris and cartridge wrappers being scattered all over the hillside. The ground was torn into a bowl shaped depression, trees were stripped of their branches and buildings were blown into splinters. The warehouse of the company, 500 yards away beside the railroad track, was crushed in, and the roof was blown off.

The remains of the four victims were picked up on the hillside in pieces. Part of the leg of a man, torn and stripped of all clothing, was found on the top of a bluff nearly a quarter of a mile away. It is supposed that a match had been carried into the works, contrary to orders, and in some manner ignited the powder. The loss is estimated at $15,000. The work of rebuilding will commence as soon as the debris is cleared away.

The shock of the explosion was heard for miles up and down the river. Immediately afterward came a swaying earthquake motion that shook houses and furniture, and in the residence portion of Sharpsburg, Pa., and Parnassus, five miles up the road, windows were broken. Rocks, ties and solid lumps of earth were thrown 600 yards into the river by the force of the explosion.

Some One Had Matches.

Mr. McAfee, one of the proprietors of the firm, was on the scene soon after the explosion and made the following statement: "The cause of the explosion was fire. Only one conclusion can be reached, and that is that some of the dead had matches in their possession, and one was dropped and ignited. The living positively declare that they had no matches. One of the strictest rules of the company is against striking matches and carrying fire or smoking in five puffs on the crown of the head. The left side is ornamented with four erect wings or ears. No one is allowed on the premises. This is an unusually large *stock, but we were working on a car*load to be shipped on Monday."

Explosion at Rochester.

ROCHESTER, March 24.—An explosion of dynamite occurred in the east side sewer which injured four men and destroyed considerable property. A laborer entered the boiler house at the corner of East avenue and Culver park and lighted a cigar. When he emerged the wind blew some of the fire from his pipe into a box of dynamite located several feet distant. A terrific explosion followed.

The engine house was torn to pieces and the boiler destroyed. The debris was scattered for 150 feet around. The house of James Barlendorf on Culver street was badly shaken and every window shattered. A young son of Barlendorf was blown from the street by the concussion, but was not seriously injured.

Engineer Charles Brond received a cut on the head, but was not seriously injured. Two Italians and a Pole on the work in the building attempted to escape, but were too late. All three were badly mangled. They are now in the hospital, and it is stated that they will die.

Boats Were Good Shots.

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., March 24.—At Golden, a mining camp north of this city, Jim Cheeves, insanely jealous of his divorced wife, quarreled with Al Perry over the woman. Pistols were drawn, and both fired simultaneously. Cheaves was shot dead, and Perry cannot live.

No Appeal Made to Pelzotle.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—If there has been any joint action of the representatives of foreign powers at Rio toward securing clemency from Pelzotle for the fugitive rebels now on the Portuguese men-of-war, the United States government is not a party to the action.

Sir Philip Cunliffe-Owen Dead.

LONDON, March 24.—Sir Philip Cunliffe-Owen is dead. In 1873 he went to the United States as executive commissioner to the Philadelphia International exhibition and organized the British section there.

Gaudaur Challenges Harding.

TORONTO, March 24.—Champion Oarsman Gaudaur announces that he will row Harding, the English professional, three miles for $2,500 a side, the race to be rowed in Austin.

Miscreants Cut Fire Hose.

DENVER, March 24.—Over 1,000 feet of hose were destroyed at Thursday night's fire by cutting. It is not known by whom or for what purpose it was done.

Chester Trolley Lines Consolidated.

CHESTER, Pa., March 24.—A railway deal has been effected whereby all the trolley lines operated in this city will be consolidated into one system.

Dr. Seofield a Maniac.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., March 24.—Dr. Seofield, a well known homeopathic physician of Ocean Grove, was taken to Trenton asylum a raving maniac.

NO QUORUM YET.

Democrats Give Up the O'Neill-Joy Case For a Time.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—The house was in session, but its industry profited it little. The Democrats were again without a quorum, and the attempt to consider the O'Neill-Joy contested election case was abandoned until next week.

The unanimous report of the elections committee in the Wheatley-Cobb case, confirming the title of the sitting member to his seat, was adopted, and the Military academy appropriation bill was passed practically without debate. The Military academy bill carries $460,438—a reduction of $62,000 compared with the amount appropriated for the current fiscal year. Today the house will take up the postoffice appropriation bill.

Congressmen have in no degree been relieved of anxiety as to the fate of the seigniorage bill. The situation at the White House presents one strong feature of novelty in the fact that it appears to be the scene of a bloodless battle just now between congressmen, on the one hand, the large majority of whom are urging the signing of the seigniorage bill, and the great commercial interests of the country on the other, for 29 out of every 30 of the communications coming from them pray for the veto of the bill.

There are all sorts of stories afloat as to the president's disposition toward the bill, and some have gone to the length of reciting that he has already prepared a veto message. If this be true, he has not taken the members of the cabinet into his confidence, and at the last meeting the subject was discussed from all points of view, with a distinct impression in the minds of the members of the cabinet that the president is still open to conviction. He has up to and including next Thursday to make up his mind.

MINERS' NATIONAL STRIKE.

One Hundred Thousand Are Preparing For a Grand Struggle.

PITTSBURG, March 24.—President John McBride of the United Mine Workers of America has issued a circular call for the fifth annual convention of the organization to be held at Columbus, O., commencing April 16. The convention will be the most important convention yet held, for at that convention a national movement will be considered. This means the total suspension of work by miners through America from Colorado to eastern Pennsylvania.

If adopted and a success, the greatest strike in the history of the miners of America will be inaugurated. There are in America fully 100,000 miners who are attached to the United Mine Workers' organization. For several months the officials have been preparing for the national movement. Organizers and state and district presidents have been working ceaselessly at the organization, and with such success that it is estimated that fully 100,000 additional miners will be brought into the union already, and by the time the convention meets at least that many additional miners will have become initiated.

It is expected in the Pittsburg district alone that the 12,000 miners and coke workers of the Connellsville region and the 8,000 river and railroad miners will be organized. Meetings are being held nightly, conventions called and no means left undone to arouse enthusiasm among the miners for the national encampment. The same applies to the Ohio, Tennessee, West Virginia, Indiana, Illinois and Missouri coalfields.

Battle With Tramps.

INDIANAPOLIS, March 24.—Fourteen picturesque tramps giving various names were arrested here after a rather fierce battle with the police. Several shots were fired, and the tramps were clubbed into submission. In the police court the tramps received sentences that will keep them in the workhouse until long after Jon Coxey's army, of which they all claimed to be recruits.

Jokers Loaded the Cannon.

LEXINGTON, Va., March 24.—Some practical jokers heavily loaded one of the cannons at the Virginia Military Institute and attached a slow fuse to it. During guard mount a terrific explosion took place, shattering all the glass in the front windows of the laboratory. An investigation has been instituted.

Strikers Become Violent.

KEY WEST, March 24.—The cigar makers are again on strike. They made their demands yesterday morning, and when he refused to grant them they attempted to mob him and smashed all the windows of the factory. The police were called out, and after a sharp conflict the mob was scattered.

Role Left Suddenly.

PITTSBURG, March 24.—Role Tefft, one of the most expert sneak thieves in the country, escaped from Washington on a diamond robbery, escaped from the Allegheny central lockup by sawing his way out. The Washington officers were in the building at the time and intended returning with him.

Ties on the Track.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., March 24.—An attempt was made to wreck the north bound train on the Boston and Maine railroad at a point between Williamsastt and Chicopee by placing ties across the track. The obstruction was discovered by the engineer in time to avert an accident.

Lace Plant at Auction.

PATCHOGUE, N. Y., March 24.—The entire plant of the American Lace Manufacturing company of this place will be sold at receiver's sale on April 5. The mill made money until the general business depression came on.

Cowboys Have a Rolling Out.

LANDER, Wy., March 24.—Bill Galle, a cowboy, was shot and killed by Jos. Whitham, another cowboy, whom he attempted to shoot for interceding for a woman whom Gallagher was beating.

Crushed Under His Wagon.

KINGSTON, N. Y., March 24.—Alva Clements, a farmer, was found dead on the roadside near Hurley. He drove off the road, upset the wagon and was crushed under the heavy wagon plank.

Murderer Higgins Hanged.

CHICAGO, March 24.—Murderer Higgins, who killed old Fred Gehrig while trying to rob him, was hanged in the Cook county jail. He died game, professing repentance.

Four Years For Having Three Wives.

BOSTON, March 24.—George W. Pepper, the New Bedford bigamist, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to four years in state's prison. Pepper's three wives were in court.

Chippewa Dog Is the Historian.

MICHIGAN, March 24.—Reports from the reservation indicate that there is some probability of an outbreak among the 300 Chippewa Indians there.

THOSE POWDER STAINS.

They May Play a Part In Solving the Fuller Mystery.

FOUND IN THE WALL OVER A DESK.

Alleged That Magee Had Made Persistent Advances to the Pretty Typewriter — Mrs. Mount Still Absent, but Her Whereabouts are Saturday Accounted For.

NEW YORK, March 24.—A discovery has been made in the office where Miss Martha J. Fuller met her death which completely overthrows the theories of the shooting heretofore advanced.

It has already been stated that marks resembling blood stains were found upon the wall over Miss Fuller's desk. Some of the more pronounced of these marks were dug out of the wall at the time by the police for examination.

There were numerous other marks left, however, whose character was considered doubtful and therefore insignificant. They were at first believed to be bits of hair, next infinitesimal splashes of blood and finally spatters of ink.

An examination of these marks under the microscope revealed the important fact that they are powder stains. They are spread over an area of at least 2½ feet upon the board partition separating Mulley's private office from that occupied by Magee and Miss Fuller.

What the Powder Marks Show.

The person who fired the pistol must necessarily have been near the typewriter's desk when he did so. The necessary conclusion from these premises is that Miss Fuller must have been standing at her desk when struck and not beside the radiator, as has hitherto been claimed. Otherwise the powder marks could never be where they are unless the pistol was discharged by one standing behind the far side of the desk from the window and close to the wooden partition.

It is said that the position of these powder stains will form an important element in the case of the prosecution. It was hinted that the police had based a theory upon them to the effect that more than a single shot was fired—in other words, that one bullet killed Miss Fuller and another was fired in the direction of the radiator to disarm suspicion. Mr. Brooke's attention was called to the powder stains. He said he had noticed them, but was unable to account for their presence there.

The theory that considerable time elapsed between the shooting and the time when the alarm was first sounded by Magee is still further borne out by testimony of several persons. If what these persons say is true, then it is probable that fully half an hour elapsed between the firing and the call of Magee for help.

Miss Carrie Klock, a typewriter employed in the law offices of Wessels & Speir at No. 2 Wall street and one of Miss Fuller's few intimate friends, states that Martha last frequently complained to her of Magee's too solicitous attentions. On one occasion she threatened to report him to Mr. Mullen if he did not cease annoying her.

Mrs. Mount Still Missing.

Mrs. Theresa Mount, Magee's divorced wife, has not yet returned to her boarding place, 23 Schermerhorn street, Brooklyn, from which she mysteriously disappeared last Monday morning.

It was settled that she was at home on the day of the shooting. Mrs. Gulbilly, who keeps the boarding house at street boarding house, says that on Saturday afternoon Mrs. Mount was sitting in her room looking out of the window.

The search began on Monday morning at 11 o'clock and will probably be held in one of the rooms of the city court, owing to the scant accommodations afforded by the coroner's office. Dr. O'Sullivan is pretty certain that Magee will be held for the grand jury. He understands that the prosecution will call only a few of the witnesses.

The defense, however, will produce no witnesses at the inquest and will ask no questions of the witnesses for the prosecution.

Entire Women's Ticket In the Field.

ABILENE, Kan., March 24.—At a mass meeting the women of Enterprise, a town of 1,200 people, in this county, put up a complete delegation ticket composed of women. Mrs. M Kohler, wife of ex-State Senator Kohler, was nominated for mayor, Mrs. Ada Haines for police judge, and a full quota of council men, all women, were named. All are married, and they propose to purify the city's politics.

Lovers Dueled With Daggers.

RIO GRANDE CITY, Tex., March 24.—At Roma, 15 miles above here on the Rio Grande, an old fashioned duel with daggers was fought by two youths of 15. One of the combatants, Teodosia Saens, was fatally hurt, receiving wounds in the left side and neck and lies at the point of death. His antagonist, Emilio Garcia, was slightly cut on the wrist. The quarrel was over a senorita.

Trying to Prove Prendergast Insane.

CHICAGO, March 24.—The Prendergast insanity hearing came up in Judge Chetlain's court this morning. The state objected to the case under protest, but is preparing to introduce expert testimony to show that the assassin is of the present time responsible for his acts.

Recovered $17,300 Damages.

UTICA, N. Y., March 24.—In the United States circuit court at Rochester, Hutchman received a verdict against the Vermont Central Railway company for $17,300 for damages sustained in a collision near Rouse's Point.

HARTSHORNE GAVE UP.

The Professor Has Pleaded Guilty and Ended the Trial.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 24.—The lovers of the sensational had a feast in the startling wind-up of the trial of Professor Hartshorne. The prosecution had put up a strong case, and when the defense was resumed it was manifest even to the crowd of visitors that the professor's counsel, as well as the prisoner at the bar, realized they were making a losing fight. The defense had relied greatly on the testimony to be given by Miss Mollie Jenkins, a new Hungarian who had worked at the Robinson House, but her testimony was a bitter disappointment to Hartshorne and his lawyers. In the suppression her testimony contradicted Miss Robinson's, but in no particular affecting the guilt or innocence of the accused in this case.

Hartshorne was a picture of abject hopelessness. When the witness referred to left the stand, his collapse was imminent. He had leaned over and pinched the sleeve of one of the attorneys. His lead colored face was drawn with despair, and his voice was hoarse and weak.

"It's no use now," he said, with an effort to speak intelligently. "It's of no use to try any longer. I must as well give up."

Suddenly the counsel for the prisoner changed front, and, drawing them within whispering distance of each other and began a conference, after which they held a conference with the court. The crowd soon began to become so quiet that the silence was almost audible, and the situation was intensely dramatic. For fully half an hour there was no sound save the murmur of voices in the council with the judge. Then Attorney Anderson presented the following written request to the court, "I, R. C. Hutchinson, counsel of the court, to withdraw my plea of not guilty in this case and to enter a plea of guilty."

This was granted and immediately the attorney entered a nolle prose in the case of Fornix. Then District Attorney Emory stated that the evidence in the murder case pending against the defendant would be substantially the same as that in the case in which the plea was made asking the court to permit a jury to return a verdict of not guilty. A jury was sworn and immediately entered a verdict of not guilty. This ended the most sensational trial case ever tried in the Lawrence county court. Hartshorne went back to jail to await sentence.

SHREWD SWINDLERS.

Eight St. Louis Banks Victimized by an Elaborate Scheme.

ST. LOUIS, March 24.—A series of forgeries of the most remarkable kind has just been unearthed in this city, and there are still further borne out by testimony of several persons. DESPERATE MAN'S DEED

Shot Dead the Cashier Whom He Could Not Scare.

CRIMINAL IS A MUCH WANTED MAN

Former Confederate of Chris Evans Makes a Demand For Money, Shoots When Refused and Is Quickly Captured—He Has Killed Three Men.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 24.—A man went into a branch office of the San Francisco Savings union and presenting a written demand to Cashier William A. Herrick. The demand was refused, whereupon the desperado murdered the cashier and fled, but was captured a few blocks away.

The note presented to the murdered cashier read as follows:

Mr. Cashier:

SIR—After considering my unfortunate condition I am convinced that this life is not worth living without desperate means, and therefore I am resolved to make one more effort to seek help to relieve my miserable existence. Should you not comply with my demand, I'm compelled to employ my last remedy—a bottle of nitroglycerin—and to bury myself under the ruins of this building, blasted it to everlasting nothingness. Yours respectfully,

A DESPERATE MAN.

This note was penned with red ink, and at the bottom was roughly sketched a skull and crossbones.

Cashier Was Plucky.

Afterglancing at the document Herrick returned to the main room a shake of his head. The man quickly drew a revolver and fired, but his aim was bad. Herrick seized his pistol, which lay beside the desk, the cashier and desperado fired at each other almost simultaneously. The former missed, but the latter's second shot found its mark. The bullet passed into Herrick's heart.

As the murderer turned to flee Bookkeeper C. S. Melvin threw a pistol and sent a number of bullets after him, two of which, as afterward discovered, took effect. The assassin was pursued from the scene by a large crowd of people, among whom was a number of police officers. The fugitive jumped into a wagon and drove several blocks. Finally he turned into a blind alley and jumped from the wagon. He then jumped over a fence into a yard and crawled into a vacant lot.

There the officers located him, and though the murderer had a pistol in his possession he surrendered. Upon the prisoner were two 45 caliber pistols, a belt full of cartridges, a dirk knife, a razor and a fuse, such as is used to ignite dynamite. Upon being taken to the city prison he gave his name as Fred Bennett and said he came here from Portland last week. He was not seriously wounded by Melvin's bullets, one striking him near the eye and the other lodging in his left shoulder.

A Much Wanted Man.

The police soon recognized in their prisoner a desperate criminal, for whom the authorities throughout the state had been searching for some time.

He proves to be none other than the notorious Fredericks, an ex-convict who was a former associate of Chris Evans. Chief of Chris Evans. He killed Sheriff Pascoe. He subsequently killed a Northern Pacific brakeman named Bengamin Bunce and is said to have supplied the arms to George Sontag and his companions at the time they made their futile attempt to escape from Folsom prison. Fredericks, Cashier Herrick, was 35 years of age and resided in Oakland.

Postmasters Appointed.

WASHINGTON, March 24.—The fourth class postmasters appointed were:

Illinois—Ira O. Phillips, Henryville, H. F. Fellenbaum; Jamestown, N. E. Webb; Mount Nebo, Samuel Alexander; Nottingham, R. J. Cameron.

Dug Up the Money.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., March 24.—Deputy United States Marshal Cole returned from Matagorda county, Texas, where he obtained money from the government on a fraudulent pension. The woman took Cole to a remote part of the county, where she had buried the money. Cole dug up $500, which will be turned over to the government.

Eighteen Sanitarium Victims.

MADRID, March 24.—The people of Santander remain in a state of indignation and alarm, fearing that there may be a further explosion. Open disorder is only checked by the forces of the civil guard which is present in the city. The victims of Wednesday night's disaster numbered 18.

Sutherland In Toronto.

TORONTO, March 24.—A local paper says that Joseph Sutherland, the Gravesend justice, who is busy just now in keeping out of sight of Uncle Sam's detectives, is supposed to be in this city. His brother, Robert Sutherland, is also looking for him and is expected here.

Joshua Was a Bad Shot.

FALL RIVER, Mass., March 24.—Joshua H. Cornell and his brother quarreled over repairs to the homestead. Yesterday Joshua had been duck shooting, and he fired seven loads of shot after his brother. None of the shot took effect. Cornell was arrested and is held here.

A Will Reed Highwayman.

CLARKSVILLE, Tenn., March 24.—A sensation was created here by the arrest of James Swift, a member of a leading family of this section, for beating A. Cooper, a wealthy planter, probably fatally, in an effort to rob him.

Hanged Himself to the Bedpost.

ODDENSBURG, N. Y., March 24.—Walter French hanged himself in his room at the Delack House. He made a noose of a washrag, tied it and fastened it to the top of the high bedpost.

A HUNGARIAN MOB.

More Rioting In Buda-Pesth Against the Government.

BUDA-PESTH, March 24.—Cavalry and infantry patrolled the streets during the afternoon and night, but their presence was not sufficient to preserve order. Shortly after darkness had set in crowds began to gather in certain places and other places of public resort, the proprietors of which were in sympathy with the mobs. Soon the crowds took to the streets, where their numbers were rapidly augmented, and began acting in a riotous manner in different parts of the town.

The most serious disorder occurred outside the opera house. The black flag that had been hoisted under protest had been hauled down again after the military had succeeded in driving the crowd from the vicinity of the building late in the afternoon, and when this news spread it excited the deepest indignation among the populace. It was said that the flag had been hoisted not out of respect for the memory of Kossuth, but simply for appeasing the fury of the mob.

Andrassy street, close to which the opera house is located, and the other streets in the immediate vicinity were filled with a mob, the members of which bitterly denounced the government and the director of the opera house for what was termed the disrespect shown the memory of the great son of Hungary.

For a time no overt act was committed, and the military stationed along Andrassy street made no attempt to disperse the crowd. Finally some men in the crowd began to throw stones. As soon as the crowd began to riot the cavalry and police charged upon them with drawn swords. The mob resisted, and, though driven back, they stubbornly defended every inch of their ground. The officers were pelted and their hands full, and it looked after the first charge as the rioters would turn the tables, unarmed as they were, over the police and chiefs, swoop down on the ranks of men opposing them.

It was not until several charges were made that the mob began to break up.

The soldiers and police used their swords unsparingly, and many of the rioters were so badly wounded that it was necessary to remove them to the hospital. Several of the troops and also a number of the police were injured more or less severely by being hit by stones thrown by the rioters. It is known that 40 persons were injured during the rioting. Thirty-six men who appeared to be leaders in the movement were arrested.

Late at night a crowd proceeded to the Ketten bridge—the one near the palace—but was turned back by the cavalry without much trouble. Some of the mob shouted, "The king should also mourn!" showing that it was the intention of the crowd to proceed to the palace and hoist a mourning emblem.

Money Point In Ashes.

BALTIMORE, March 24.—A special dispatch gives particulars of the almost total destruction of the village of Money Point, just outside of the city of Norfolk. The fire broke out in the sheds of the Roanoke Lumber company and raged fiercely for nine hours, destroying the entire plant of that company, as well as that of the Old Dominion creosote works. The three masted schooner Elias Moore, lying at the lumber company's wharf, was destroyed. Only six houses are left standing in the village, and the loss will foot up at least $800,000.

All that's Yellow is not Cottolene.

There's hardly a housekeeper in the country but has heard of Cottolene the new vegetable shortening. It is a strictly natural product; composed only of clarified cotton seed oil, thickened for convenience in use, with refined beef suet, pure and sweet. So composed,

COTTOLENE

Was bound to win, and to drive out lard from the kitchens of the world. When housekeepers wish to get rid of the unpleasant features and results of lard, they should get Cottolene, taking care that they are not given cheap imitations with vegetable names, spuriously compounded to sell in the place of Cottolene.

It's easy to avoid disappointment and ensure satisfaction. Insist on having Cottolene.

Four Methods of Making Needles and Pins Float on Water.

Let fall upon a sheet of glass a drop of water; the drop will spread and flatten. Let fall upon the glass a drop of mercury; the drop will retain its spherical form. These different effects arise from the fact that the water wets or moistens to the surface of the glass; the mercury does not.

Now take an ordinary pin, thoroughly dry. This is an object which water can moisten, but not easily than glass. If by some means or other you can manage to lay it on the water without wetting it, you will see the water take a convex shape on either side of the pin, and this latter, displacing a proportionate body of water, will float on the surface just as a lucifer match would do.

The same experiment may be performed with a needle, and it must not be supposed that a very fine needle or pin alone is suitable. With the precautions hereafter indicated you may succeed even with a darning needle. It only point to be explained is how to lay the pin or needle on the water so lightly that it shall not be wetted. There are various methods of doing this.

You may suspend the needle or pin from two loops of thread, one at each end, gently withdrawing them when the article floats. A good deal of time will, however, be necessary to prevent the thread in the act of removal displacing the needle.

Again, you may, if you are sufficiently adroit, take the pin by its point and let it sink down gently on the water, releasing it at the moment when the pin and its reflection in the water merge into one another. An exceptionally steady hand is needed for this method.

A more simple plan is to lay the pin across the prongs of a fork, which you lower gently into the water, bringing it gradually from the horizontal to the vertical position. This is much more practical method than either of the two preceding, but nevertheless it requires a good many rehearsals before it can be made use of with success.

In conclusion there is a final "wrinkle" by the aid of which a child might perform the experiment with ease. You have only to place on the water a cigarette paper, lay the pin upon it and allow the paper as it becomes saturated to sink to the bottom, when the pin will float upon the water without the least difficulty. You may then gently remove the paper with a spoon or wire, thereby concealing from the spectators the artifice you have employed.

To Replace the Trolley Wire.

The Boston Journal of Commerce describes a magnetic street railway system just introduced into Salem, the purpose of which is to do away with the peril and inconvenience of overhead wires. The wires corresponding to the present overhead structure are buried between the rails in an insulated conduit, over which is laid a brass rube that projects a trifle above the pavement. This tube is filled with wood, in which is a slot containing a quarter inch iron rod lying loosely and connected with the feed wire in the conduit. This tube is in lengths of 10 feet, carefully sealed at the ends and separated from each other by intervals of six feet.

The car equipment, besides the ordinary motor, has near each end of the car an electric magnet and a metal brush hung to run on the surface of the brass pipe. As one of these magnets comes over the brass tube it attracts and lifts up the iron wire resting in the slot in the core. This closes the circuit with the feed wire, and the current is taken up by the brush running on the brass pipe and transmitted to the motor. The "live" condition of the brass pipe is maintained only while an end of the car is over it, and at all other times it is as harmless as the rest of the pavement. As soon as the magnet passes off from a section of pipe the iron wire in the slot drops away from contact with the pipe and destroys the circuit of that particular section.

Milk and Thunder.

Science has disproved the rural belief that thunder sours milk. It is now known that the souring results from a fungous growth, and that the fungus is peculiarly fatal to nursing children. The old time rural belief was that the concussion from thunder acted mechanically upon the milk and first soured and then solidified it. The theory is a plausible one, easily derived from observing one set of facts without knowing about the existence of others more important to the situation. It happens that milk does sour during or just after thunderstorms because the atmospheric conditions then prevailing are usually of a kind favorable to the rapid development of the fungous growth that sours milk, says an exchange.

An Important Contrivance.

A London photographer is said to have invented and patented an instrument that is termed a photocorrector. It is a well known fact that the nearer an object is to the lens the larger it appears in proportion. For this reason the hands and feet, unless skillfully arranged, appear about double their natural size. The photocorrector consists of a large lens of transparent material that has the power of varying the direction of any part of the whole of the image. By this means it is possible to reduce the size of a lady's head or increase the length of her neck or waist or of the skirt of her dress, or to lengthen a gentleman's legs and impart greater dignity to the figure.

Glass Bricks.

Glass bricks have been introduced by an architect of Lyons. The bricks are hollow, being blown like bottles, and are given forms such as cubes, hexagons, etc., that permit of ready laying. A bituminous cement, with a base of asphalt, is used with them.

LEGENDS OF THE EASTER EGG.

The Gift of a Red Egg Brings Love—Why You Must Break the Shell to Bits.

The old custom of presenting colored eggs on Easter day is quickly going the way of other old world customs in the civilized western world. As the dainty little baskets of former days in which the Easter eggs were displayed lying on a bed of moss, where they peeped out between primroses and violets, have vanished before the pink sugar egg and other triumphs of the confectioner's art, so the charm of the legendary lore which surrounded the former has almost entirely disappeared.

It is pleasant, however, to notice that some of the unnumbered stories, quaint, grotesque and fanciful, which were handed down through many centuries from generation to generation are still being preserved by those who see more than mere old wives' tales in the tales which were told by our grandfathers and their fathers before them concerning customs kept nearly all over the world. To these readers we recall one or two legends, remembering which they will have a care to conciliate the occult powers watching over the use or abuse of their implements, the eggs.

For instance, when the Easter egg has done its duty and been played with till the shells are slightly chipped, and when the time comes for "finishing" it with a pinch of seasoning, it should never be forgotten that the witches (and goodness knows they are with us still if we but knew them), if they can get such shells unbroken, by muttering spells cause them to grow so large that they can use them as boats. And when witches are provided with conveniences for traveling about folks may well look out for squalls!

A gypsy girl once asked a wise person why the eggshells must be broken. The reply was:

You must break the shell to bits, for fear
Lest the witches should make it a boat, my dear.
For over the sea, away from home,
Far by night the witches roam.

The girl, however, did not see why witches should be prevented from taking boating exercise and furnished one of the latter ladies with the shells of an egg she had just been eating. And the graceful witch rescued the gypsy in the same eggshell, which had meanwhile grown into a bottle boat, when she was in danger of being drowned.

It is generally supposed that witches think more of attendance in churchyards on midnight than of going to church while the services are going on. Nor is their presence at all to be desired. And it is therefore well that the lover Ahasuerus have discovered the following virtue in Easter eggs. If a man will take an Easter egg into the church and look about him, they say, if there be any witches in the congregation he may know them by their having in their hands pieces of pork instead of prayer books and milkpails on their heads for bonnets.

Since, next to the terra cotta colored Easter egg, that owes its beauty to a handful of white lime, the cochineal dyed red egg is most popular, it is interesting to remember that lovesick maidens can secure a man's love by giving him a red Easter egg. At least so the Tyrolese lasses are taught to believe.

A Timepiece For the Heavens.

A very ingenious celestial clock has been recently constructed by an Englishman. The entire face of the clock rotated under a wire bar representing the equatorial portion and is regulated to perform one revolution in 23 hours 56 minutes 4 seconds, this being the time in which the earth turns once upon its axis. The apparent annual motion of sun, moon and planets in the opposite direction is effected by movable plates, while the two north and south polar stars, that do not rise or set for us, revolve simultaneously with the rest by a separate movement. Thus may be seen the entire heavens, with sun, moon, planets and constellations in their actual places, ever rising and setting as they rise and set in the heavens.

Seasons For Marriage.

With regard to the seasons for celebrating marriage, the church was formerly very strict. An English parish register contains the following entry under date Nov. 25, 1641:

When Advent comes do thou refraine
Till Hillary set ye free again.
Next Septuagesima saith thee nay,
But when Low Sunday comes thou may.
Yet at Rogation thou must tarrie
Till Trinitie shall bid thee marrie.

The above appears to have been a popular verse to inscribe in registers, for with slight variations it is to be met with in several parishes. Philomath's almanac for the year 1676 contains similar rules in prose.

Marriage comes in on the 13th of January, and at Septuagesima Sunday it is out again until Low Sunday, at which time it comes in again and goes not out until Rogation Sunday. Then it is forbidden until Trinity Sunday, from whence it is unforbidden till Advent Sunday, but then it goes out and comes not in again till the 18th of January next following.

Why Easter Is Irregular.

Easter day is always the first Sunday after the full moon which happens upon or next after March 21, and if the full moon happens on Sunday Easter day is the Sunday after, on that by this arrangement Easter may come as early as March 22 or as late as April 25.

Although great importance was attached to the celebration of Easter among the early Christian churches, much difference of opinion existed also as to the time of observing the feast. The discussions and controversies on the subject led to the adoption by the council of Nice of this rule for the whole church.

The Legend of the Narcissus.

Narcissus, a beautiful youth, son of Cephisus and the nymph Liriope, was born at Thespis, in Boeotia. He saw his image reflected in a fountain and became in love with it, thinking it to be the nymph of the place. His fruitless efforts to reach this beautiful object so provoked him that he killed himself. His blood was then changed into a flower, which still bears his name.

FASHIONS

A SEASON OF SILK PREDICTED.

Taffetas, Latestrings, Foulards, Bayadere Stripes and Chines Revived.

A season of silks approaches, judging from the marvelously attractive shows of the shops and the predictions of fashion authorities. Old time taffetas—moire, bayadere striped and pin dotted—will figure especially, not only in dresses, but for the convenient separate silk waists and blouses, which are to be more than ever in vogue.

In the new patterns for the year are they fancy stripes and brocades thrown on shot grounds curiously mixed. Fawn and blue, violet and brown, peach and gold, are often blended together, and some of the new Arab bayaderes, with spots thrown on them, show a mixture of peach green and gold, blue and white and many direct contrasts.

Pin points appear on some of the new merveilleuses, and large vandykes of one color, such as green, are introduced on another—terra cotta, for example.

A glace make of silk, shot and brocaded with soft, pretty figures, is new, and so are the interwoven primroses on a ground of combined colors, such as gold and blue, and, as a broad rule, we must accept the fact that small effects will be adopted.

We have not at all done with moires, and these are shot and spotted and show the 2 travers lines. One curious pattern among the new silks is a boldly watered moire, on which are garlands of tiny blooms running across the material, while another has chintzlike stripes of pompadour flowers in horizontal lines. Black moires show colored pin points all over, sometimes interspersed with a brocade of flowers, and pink and light sky blue are among the favorite colors. Large wide stripes, three or four inches across, of satin and moire show a bold contrast of color, such as dark pean and light shrimp, dark heliotrope and light, dark green and light blue.

Last year was a year of chines, and they will continue to be worn this season, beautiful large bunches of flowers appearing on shot light colorings and on surah grounds. Poult de soie is shot, and moire antique appears with colored stripes of two tints placed side by side, while others have the prettiest white lace bayadere stripes. Brocaded satins are to be worn, shot moires with diamond designs thrown upon them, shot surahs with interlaced grasses and opaleseque moires with satin stripes.

The close fitting tea jacket in the cut is made in brocaded silk, with revers and cuffs of white moire. Double frills of silk chiffon finish the sleeves, while the blouse front of crepon is framed in a lace jabot finished with bows of moire corresponding with the folded collar.

The Advantages of a Veil.

"Do men like veils?" was the subject of discussion at a friendly tea party the other day. We were not able to arrive at any definite conclusion on that subject, opinions being fairly well divided, but I have pursued the interesting matter a little further and elicited the following opinion:

"Do men like to see us in veils? O, course they do," replied a pretty flirt of 20. "For one thing, a veil always keeps a girl so neat, and neatness is ever a charm to the well regulated masculine eye. Then they certainly seem to improve or show off your complexion, and when they have pretty half moons or a few big spots dotted about them they are distinctly 'fetching'—at least have found them so," she added, with a wicked little smile.

An Easter Effect.

The stylish garment is of black satin edged with jet passementerie and has a high collar. The double cape, open at the back,

SPRING WRAP AND HAT.

is in black moire trimmed with jet. The hat is an Alsatian lace bow, with paste ornaments, French plumes, rosebuds and violets.

Fashion's Echoes.

Moire ribbons two inches wide will be used on girls' cotton dresses for fall, tied in a large bow with short ends, also for shoulder knots.

The wreath as pin and chatelaine is putting in an appearance for the spring.

The new overskirts have deep points front and back, where they are double the length of the sides.

Oval platinum sleeve buttons, highly polished, with a raised broken edge of gold, are new and chaste.

Mantles will be worn short; so will jackets.

The sword will keep its popularity in jewelry for the next season.

A DAMP EASTER.

WRAPS MORE COMFORTABLE THAN SPRING OUTFITS.

Although Wet and Dreary Outside, There was the Same Joyous Atmosphere Inside the Churches.—Once Inside the Beautifully Decorated Edifices, the Bad Weather was Forgotten.—Special Easter Music and Sermons.

Easter was anything but pleasant. It rained at intervals all day and instead of wearing Spring clothes, Winter wraps were more comfortable. It was a dreary day for those anticipating the pleasure of appearing out in Easter dresses and hats.

Inside the churches, however, there were the same joyous services, and once inside the beautifully decorated edifices all else was forgotten. There was no dreariness in them, and there was the same celebrations as if the sun were shining. Appropriate services were held in all the Plainfield churches.

Holy Cross Church.

The services at Holy Cross church were well attended both morning and afternoon. The pretty interior of the edifice was made more attractive than ever by the tasteful floral decorations which consisted of Easter and calla lilies, potted plants and cut flowers. Pulpit, lectern and font were ornamented with Easter lilies and white flowers. In the morning the rector, Rev. T. Logan Murphy preached the Easter sermon from the text, "Come see the place where the Lord lay, he is not here but is risen"—Matt 28.

The music by the vested choir of men and boys was excellent. Among other selections rendered were the "Hallelujah Chorus" and an Easter hymn composed by choirmaster F. H. Chesewright entitled "Lift your glad voices."

The children's service in the afternoon was particularly enjoyable. The Sunday school children entered the church carrying their class banners and, preceded by the choir, passed down the side aisle and up the center aisle, when the choir took their accustomed position in the chancel. A number of pretty Easter carols were sung and the rector made a short address. Five of the choir boys were presented with books as reward for good conduct and presence at rehearsals during Lent. The people of the church are highly gratified by the attendance at both services and the amount of the Easter offering which proved to be one of the largest ever taken and greatly exceeded the one of last year.

Trinity Reformed Church.

The members and scholars of Trinity Reformed church had arranged a fine Easter programme, which was well carried out last night. At the opening of the service the scholars formed in a line to go by two in the Sunday-school room and preceded by the choir marched up the centre aisle, singing an Easter carol entitled "Come to the temple rejoicing." When the front of the church had been reached, the choir proceeded to their places, while the Sunday-school separated, one class going to the right side of the church, and the other to the left. The music rendered by the choir was of a very fine order, and the scholars who took part in the service did splendidly.

The floral decorations of the church were most beautiful. Large white calla lilies, on their slender stalks, showed above a mass of green foliage, and exhibited a very fragrant odor. Large pots of roses, pinks and hot house plants also helped in the decorations, and made the pulpit seem one dense bank of flowers. A pretty floral cross was hung above the organ directly back of the pulpit, with the words "He is risen." On one side of the pulpit was a large cross and on the other a star composed of white flowers build with green. There was a large congregation present.

Monroe Avenue Chapel.

The Easter exercises at the Monroe Avenue Chapel were very appropriate to Resurrection Day. At 11 a. m. the third anniversary exercises of the chapel were held. There was no sermon. The report was read by Mr. James McGee and a summary follows: Total average attendance Sunday school, 310; teachers, 15; receipts for the year, $280.87; expenditures, the same. The school contributes $30 to Foreign Missions.

The report went on to say that the auxiliaries known as the Epworth League, the Sewing School and other societies were in a flourishing condition and doing much good. During the past year seven have been received into the church, or chapel, on probation and four by letter; the attendance at the regular service averages 100. The receipts and expenditures for the chapel last year were about $1,200.

The ladies who furnished the elaborate display of Easter lilies and plants are: Miss Charlotte Aldrich, Miss May Palmer, and Miss Kittie Ackerman. Walter McGee is the Superintendent of the Sunday school, and Mr. Hicks assistant. Raymond McGee was the cornetist, Miss Lottie Bowkman the pianist and a selected choir furnished the music.

First Presbyterian Church.

The decorations at the First Presbyterian church were very simple consisting entirely of three clusters of lilies the largest of which was placed in front of the altar. There was special Easter music, rendered by eight voices. Miss Sarah E. Bates was first soprano, Miss Lucie M. Bates, second soprano, Miss Mary E. Dana, first alto; Miss Agnes Blair, second alto; Mr. Crouch, first tenor; Mr. Teel, second tenor; Mr. Camp, first bass; and Mr. H. Williams second bass. The organist was Mr. W. H. Clarke. In the morning the Sunday-school occupied seats in the balcony and sang two hymns in chorus, Miss Josephine Petrie accompanying on the piano. The pastor, the Rev. C. E. Herring, preached an appropriate sermon from Matt. 28-6 "He is not here; He is risen, as he said." In the evening his theme was: "The King of the Jews."

Crescent Avenue Church.

In the Crescent Avenue church yesterday morning and evening beautiful Easter music was rendered by the choir. The church was elaborately and beautifully decorated with flowers, and the pulpit was almost hidden beneath solid banks of Easter and calla lilies, which filled the church with their sweet fragrance.

At the morning service the Rev. Dr. Richards took for his text: "I am He that liveth and was dead; and behold I am alive for evermore."—Rev. 1:18. At the evening service, which was partly an Easter and semi-centennial service, the pastor preached an historical sermon and took for his text: "As thou hast sent me into the world, even so have I also sent them into the world"—John 17:18.

The Sunday-school of the church held their Easter service in the afternoon.

Grace Church.

The children's service at Grace church last evening was largely attended. The processional by the surpliced choir was a feature. Rev. E. M. Rodman read the scripture from John 20, and took his text from the 20th chapter of St. Paul. He spoke with reference to Sunday-schools and favored educating the children to a half-hour self-denial on Saturday afternoon to study the following day's Sunday-school lesson.

Each class, as the teacher's name was called, presented a floral offering in the shape of a rune for "Jacob's Ladder," it was a most beautiful sight. The ladder had 16 rungs.

Mr. Grinnell, the superintendent made an address, referring to the ladder of faith and repentance, charity and self-denial.

Grace M. E. Church.

At Grace M. E. church, at 10:30 a. m., there were anthems by the chorus choir and an Easter sermon by the pastor, the Rev. Herbert Randolph. His text being 1 Cor. 15:17—"Evidences of the resurrection." There were special exercises, consisting of singing and recitations, in the afternoon by the Sunday school, at which time Dr. H. K. Carroll made an address.

Mr. Randolph's text at the evening service was taken from the third chapter of Judges and the thirty-first verse. His subject being "Shamgar and the Ox-Goad."

Calla and Easter lilies in profusion formed elaborate decorations, some being on the altar and others in front of the chancel rail.

First Baptist Church.

The decorations at the First Baptist church were very elaborate. In front of the pulpit were calla lilies, while on the sides were Easter lilies and roses. The morning services consisted of anthems, hymns and a sermon. The scriptures were from the 20th chapter of John. The pastor, the Rev. Dr. Yerkes, took his text from John 20:20—"And when he had said so, he showed unto them his hands and his side. Then were the disciples glad when they saw the Lord."

In the afternoon at three o'clock the anniversary meeting of the Sunday school was held and the ordinance of baptism administered.

There was no evening services.

St. Joseph's Church.

Masses were held at St. Joseph's church yesterday at 5:30, 8 and 10:30, and were well attended. A large number of people approached the sacrament of the Eucharist at the 8:30 mass.

At half past ten high mass was sung. The music rendered by the choir was unusually fine. The selections were from La Hache Mass Two Hearts, and from Millard's Mass. A Regina Coeli by Ginza was sung at the offertory. The choir was under the direction of Mr. Bayley and Mr. George Hughes, organist. The soloists were Miss Smith, soprano; Miss Walsh, alto; Mr. Bayley, bass. The decorations consisted of Easter lilies, and choice plants loaned for the occasion.

First Methodist Church.

There was no special services, with the exception of three solos, at the First Methodist church. Miss Kate Mitchell, of Philadelphia, sang the first solo, "An Easter Song," by Dexter. Mr. Louis Bond also sang a solo, "The Resurrection," by Sheily. The reading of the scriptures was from the 24th chapter of Luke. The Rev. C. H. Barnes preached an Easter sermon, in the morning from the text: "But now is Christ risen from the dead" —I Cor. 15:20. After the sermon Miss Mitchell sang another solo, entitled "The Angel Gabriel," by Howell. Beautiful calla lilies, roses and palms formed the decorations. They were arranged by the Ladies' Aid Society.

Congregational Church.

Easter was observed at the Congregational church yesterday morning by a special sermon by the pastor, and some fine Easter music rendered by the choir. The preacher took for his text: "But, thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." 1 Cor. 15-57.

The speaker gave a glowing account of the great victory which Christ had won and said there was nothing else which could compare with it in modern history.

The church was prettily decorated with hot-house plants and lilies.

Park Avenue Baptist Church.

At the Park avenue Baptist church special Easter services were held. At the morning service the Rev. J. W. Richardson preached an eloquent sermon on the subject: "Christ's Triumph," which was listened to by a large congregation. In the evening a beautiful instrumental and praise service was led by the amphion orchestra and augmented choir. This service was also attended by a large congregation. The decorations were very elaborate.

Church of the Heavenly Rest.

At the church of the Heavenly Rest yesterday there were services appropriate to Easter Day. In the morning the pastor Rev Dr. Page preached from the theme "I am the Resurrection and the Life." The choir sang special Easter music, and the pulpit decorations were exquisite. In the afternoon the Sunday school held special services and at the evening service the pastor preached.

German Reformed Church.

The German Reformed church, on Craig place, had no special Easter music. There was a sermon in the morning by the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Koechli, from the text: "Because I live, ye live also"—John 14:19. In the evening he preached from Romans 4: 25—"Who was delivered for our offences and was raised again for our justification." The floral decorations were beautiful.

Hope Chapel.

The floral decorations at Hope chapel were very pretty. Rev. G. K. Nowell preached an appropriate sermon on the resurrection yesterday morning, and in the afternoon the Sunday school held commemoration exercises. Addresses were made by Rev. Mr. Newell and F. H. Andrews.

Mt. Olive Baptist Church.

At Mt. Olive Baptist church, yesterday morning, there was only a sermon by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Gibson, the pulpit decorations were not elaborate. In the afternoon the Sunday-school united with the mother church, the First Baptist, and held interesting exercises.

St Mary's Church.

As usual St. Mary's church altar was literally banked with calla lilies and potted plants, and the music by the regular choir of boys and men was appropriate for the Easter Day services. Four masses were held in the morning, and to the evening there was a sermon.

BREVITIES.

—Capt. Marsh, of Peekskill N. Y., led the Salvation Army meeting last night.

—Wednesday night there will be an election of deacons of the First Baptist church.

—Mr. Luthman has severed his connection with the firm of Pearson & Luthman, and Mr. Pearson will continue the business.

—The Young Ladies Mission Band of the First Baptist Church will hold their annual election at three o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

—The work of grading for the new block being built on Randolph Road, was begun this morning. Mr. Samuel Bentley has the contract.

—About May 1st the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum will give a play in Music Hall, entitled: "Arrah Na'Pogue; or, the Wicklow Wedding."

—There is to be a "clipping off" sociable at Grace M. E. Church, North Plainfield, Tuesday night, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society.

—The C. Y. M. L.'s will go to Jersey City to-morrow night as guests of the St. Joseph's of that place. There will be a bowling match, supper and dance.

—There is something in Edsall's new "ad" to-day that will, doubtless, be extremely interesting to the ladies of this vicinity, in regard to metropolitan styles in new Spring bonnets.

—The annual meeting of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the First M. E. church will be held in Vincent chapel on Tuesday, at three p m. All members are requested to be present.

—The attendance at the Salvation Army last week was as follows: Monday, 230; Tuesday, 220; Wednesday, 180; Thursday, 200; Friday, 241; Saturday, 325; Sunday, 765; Total for the week, 2,061.

—The Camera Club's next lantern slide exhibition will be held in the lecture room on Wednesday evening, March 28, at eight o'clock. The slides are the work of the Appleton Academy and are said to be excellent.

Jephtha Wagoner Around Again.

Jephtha Wagoner, the old farmer who assaulted City Judge William A. Coddington last Winter, in front of the Judge's office, and who was adjudged insane and sent to the asylum, has regained his liberty and was noticed upon the streets of Plainfield Saturday.

DECLARED INVALID.

THE SUPREME COURT SO DECIDES THE LAW IN THE PEACE STREET EXTENSION.

The Proceedings and Assessments were Made, However, as the Faulty Law Prescribed.—The Street Has Meanwhile Been Opened Nearly the Entire Length.

Notice was received Saturday by Mr. Charles Reed, counsel for the Township of North Plainfield, defendant, in the suit to set aside the assessment in the matter of the Peace street extension.

It will be remembered that Mr. William E. Brock of Mountain avenue and others certiorated the proceedings, claiming that the Township at large should pay the expense.

While the Court holds that the proceedings and assessments were made according to the existing law, the law itself is invalid.

The result is a victory for the objectors.

Since the suit was begun, however, all but three blocks of the street have been opened by individual owners on the North Plainfield side on their own account. There is one block on the Plainfield side which would only need grading.

The three blocks could be opened without being a burden to the township, and would greatly add to the attractiveness of both city and borough, in that it would give a straight broad avenue across the city and borough up to the mountain, and it would be generally a wise expenditure.

OUTWITTED A SWINDLER.

A Man Who Engages Board for Four and then Wants to Borrow $2.

On Friday morning a neatly dressed stranger called at Pearson's boarding house on West Second street and engaged board from Miss Pearson for a party of four for ten days.

In about an hour the man returned and told her that he had just been to the United States Express office, where he found that in order to get his baggage he would have to pay $10 in expressage. He said he only had $8 with him and asked Miss Pearson if she would loan him the other $2. Miss Pearson said she didn't have the money but that she would go to her father's store, on Watchung ave nue, and get it.

On the way to the store Miss Pearson stopped at the express office to see if there was any baggage there for her prospective boarder. She was told there was some there and that the man was probably a swindler.

Miss Pearson returned home but the man hasn't come for the $2 yet. He had followed her down the street, and when he saw her go into the express office he skipped.

Dismissed it to Bring it up Again.

Saturday night at eight o'clock the case of the Whitters boy against Messrs. King and Stevens came up before Justice Mosher for a hearing. Ex-Judge W. R. Codington appeared for the defendants and Mr. W. Anderson for the plaintiff. Mr. Codington moved to dismiss the proceedings on the ground that the warrants had not been drawn right. Seeing his mistake the Justice dismissed the proceedings. He issued new warrants to-day. The dismissal was on technical points.

CRESCENT AVE. CHURCH.

REV. DR. RICHARDS PREACHES AN HISTORICAL SERMON.

Reviewing the Work of a Ten Years' Pastorate.—How the Great Church Has Grown from 66 Members in 1884, to 1,080 and a Sunday-School of 1549 Members—Its Generous Contributions for Religious Objects.

Last evening Rev. Dr. Richards preached an historical sermon in the Crescent avenue church, of which he has been pastor since 1884, ten years ago. There was a large attendance, despite the rain and the services generally were exceedingly interesting.

The pastor took his text from John 17: 8, "As thou has sent me into the world, so have I sent them into the world." He elaborated on the following points: The mission of a church that the world may be saved through Christ.

This church was organized March 21, 1844, by 66 persons, meeting in the house No. 5 numbered 229 East Front street.

A church edifice was built in 1845 on the lot now occupied by the City National Bank.

Rev. Wm. Whittaker was pastor from 1845 to 1854. The Rev. Theo. S. Brown was pastor from 1854 to 1867, membership growing from 96 to 236.

Rev. J. C. Bliss was pastor from 1867 to 1883. Membership growing to 526, and a new church was built on Crescent avenue and dedicated Feb. 26, 1880.

Rev. W. R. Richards was installed July 8, 1884.

In 1884 the women's work of the church was systematized under a Ladies' Aid Society.

CRESCENT AVENUE CHURCH.

In 1890 Mr. W. D. Murray succeeded Mr. H. B. Newhall as Sunday-school superintendent. The chapel was partly destroyed by fire Nov. 23, 1888. Ground was broken for an enlarged chapel, June 4, 1889, and the building was dedicated Feb. 26, 1885. The cost was met by voluntary subscriptions at the Sunday morning service, May 12, 1889, $12,389 being subscribed, and April 12, 1891, $12,8 3.

The growth in church membership has been uniform, some coming at almost every communion. On June 27, 1886, 29 made confession of faith, and Jan. 4, 1891 45. The whole number received at the home church in ten years was 371 on confession of faith, and 386 by letter, present membership, 803; or including the changes that have been reported and wishes to return, the cordial fellowship of sister churches; recalling especially prompt offers of hospitality after our fire, and the Sunday-school services held in the Seventh-Day church, and the prayer meeting in Grace church. It was our privilege to open our doors for the first and second of the Good Friday services in 1890 and 1891.

The church has believed in, and tried to do its share in supporting the local organizations for work of charity and reform; and the Union evangelistic efforts, in 1886 under Major Whittle and Mr. Moody, and in 1890 under Mr. B. Fay Mills.

The contributions for the ten years, for various home mission causes, $55,501; for foreign mission, $26,318; for other forms of benevolence, $97,696; for congregational purposes, including enlarging the chapel, $149,690.

A chief development for the ten years has been through our several chapels.

The Bethel was organized Nov. 20, 1884, Mr. S. Adams, superintendent, on the corner of Fifth and Washington streets. The present chapel was dedicated Dec. 28th, 1887. Mr. W. A. Alexander, was called as pastor Nov. 18, 1890.

Members received on confession of faith, 86; by letter, 25. Sunday school membership, 216.

Hope Chapel was opened Jan. 1, 1888, with Mr. H. C. Squires as superintendent, in the old Bethel building transplanted. Up to this time several additions have been made to the chapel. The Sunday school membership is 550. Rev. G. R. Newell was called as pastor in the spring of 1890. Members received, 152, on confession of faith, 20 by letter.

Warren Mission requested us to adopt it last year. After it had been ascertained that no other church saw its way clear to assume such responsibility, we consented. Necessary legal steps were taken to incorporate the property. Mr. J. W. McKelvey was called as pastor, Mrs. L. N. Lovell was appointed superintendent. At the last communion 12 were received on confession of faith, and seven by letter. Sunday-school membership, 250.

At the chapels this year 57 have made confession of faith.

We have believed that in these methods of chapel work God has been showing us how to apply the resources of our church where they were needed most.

Present organization of the church includes 4 places of worship, four clergymen, 7 choirs, 5 deacons, 4 Sunday schools with their officers, a total church membership of 1080. Total Sunday school membership of 1549.

BUTTONS OF ALL SORTS.

The Popular Ones Are Made of Dresden China, Cut Jet and Pearl.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—

The button maker's craft is susceptible of quite as surprising a development as any other branch of industry. Buttons, originally a strictly utilitarian article, now often form the safe trimming of gowns or coats and are amply sufficient for that purpose. We have long been able to have our cloth and silk buttons made to order of the same material as the costume for which they are intended. More recently we have been supplied with composition buttons, which are an astonishing imitation of the silk and serge covered article and wear is definitely, which the latter do not.

This being a season of buttons, a great variety is shown in more expensive styles, as carved mother of pearl and cut jet, while with the fashion of Dresden china umbrella and parasol handles have come Dresden buttons of various sizes, decorated in the same manner as on the china, and, especially on coats. Where buttons are adopted as a garniture, if they are intended to give the effect of fastening anything together, it is much the best way to have the corresponding buttonholes made and really button the thing instead of merely securing it by the thread with which the buttons are sewed on. It is more trouble, but well made buttonholes are a decoration in themselves, and there is something anomalous in the position of a button without a buttonhole.

Although the double skirt or overskirt is steadily advancing in popularity, the plain skirt refuses to retire from public favor, and it is to be hoped that it will continue to hold its place, for it is lighter and more convenient in every respect than the draped skirt. The latter appears to advantage in muslin, and this evening and summer, but in woolen goods for street wear it is undeniably weighty. It is being used for all sorts of gowns, however, and probably by next winter it will be firmly established in the ruling mode, and we shall see heavy cloths and even velvets made up in this style.

A sketch is given of a double skirted toilet in silver gray vigogne. The plain underskirt is of checked silk to match, while the second skirt is draped in box plaits over the hips, confined by a strap, which is buttoned in place. The vest, tight sleeves and revers are also of checked silk, while the upper half of the sleeve consists of a balloon puff of vigogne surmounted by a wide epaulet of the same material buttoned down the top of the shoulder.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

EXERCISE THE EYES.

A Precaution that is Necessary to the Preservation of Sight.

[From the Philadelphia Times.]

When the eyes are treated fairly they are strengthened, not weakened, by work. Just as the arms of a blacksmith grow the stronger for his trade, so the eyes of watchmakers who work under healthy conditions are found to improve and not to deteriorate in vigor and quietness. It is the abuse of the eyes, not their use, which is to be avoided.

If a man is aware either that his eyes need no artificial correction or else have received their proper adjustment, and if his work, whether literary or mechanical, is done in a light both steady and sufficient and with a due regard as to orientation, position, etc., he may feel sure that he is strengthening his eyes, not weakening them, by hard work. Men of intellectual pursuits sometimes are afraid of losing their mental powers in old age because they have drawn so much upon them when young. The reverse is nearer the truth, and if they have not overtaxed their brain the fear is absolutely groundless.

The man whose intellect goes first in old age is generally some farmer or laborer who has never strengthened and invigorated it by use; not the politician, the lawyer or the man of letters. So with the eyes. Those who had strengthened their eyes by using them properly keep seen sight longer than those who have never strained them. In the case of the man who has neglected to give his eyes full development they will but in power along with his other bodily functions. When, however, the man who, born with good eyes, has kept them to command hard work and yet never strained them reaches old age, he may find them capable of retaining their functions better than any other organ of the body.

Postponed the Corner Stone Laying.

The laying of the corner stone of the Emanuel Baptist Church was postponed yesterday on account of the stormy weather to Sunday, April 8th. Services were held in Reform Hall, at which the speakers were Rev. Mr. Dixon of Brooklyn and Wallace of Cranford.

A WRIT FOR TAYLOR.

Counsel Secures the Release of the Imprisoned Cornell Student.

John B. Stanchfield, counsel for F. L. Taylor of this city, the Cornell sophomore, in jail at Ithaca, N. Y., for contempt of court in refusing to answer questions in regard to the Cornell chicane possessing case, obtained a writ of habeas corpus Saturday, from Judge Walter Lloyd at Elmira. The writ directed the sheriff to take Taylor to Watkins this morning. Sheriff Seaman had the papers served upon him at about 9 o'clock Saturday night.

MORE FILIBUSTERING.

That Is the Programme For the House This Week.

REPUBLICANS WILL FIGHT HARD.

The Fate of the Seigniorage Bill Expected to Be Known Soon—Coming Tariff Debate In the Senate Promises to Be One Sided and Long Winded.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—The house will devote the coming week to the contested election cases. Today is District of Columbia day, and it is probable that a portion of the time will be given to the consideration of bills reported from the District of Columbia committee, after which the postoffice appropriation bill, which was nearly discussed when the house adjourned Saturday, will be called up and disposed of.

According to the arrangement made Friday, the O'Neill-Joy contested election case will be called up on Tuesday. Inasmuch as the Republicans are already committed to the policy of filibustering against the election cases, they will consume the entire week. The Republicans will demand the presence of a Democratic quorum at every stage in the parliamentary proceedings, and if the Democrats refuse to parliamentary law will be used to prevent the seating of O'Neill and English, the Democratic contestants from the Eleventh Missouri and Fifth California districts respectively.

Should the cases by any chance be disposed of before the end of the week, the house will resume the consideration of the appropriation bills. The army appropriation bill will be next in order. These routine matters will probably occupy the attention of the house until the tariff bill returns from the senate.

The Senate's Programme.

The probabilities are that the week in the senate will be given up largely to matters of minor importance. The Nicaragua ban bill is on the calendar as unfinished business and will have the right of way after 2 o'clock today. There will be an effort to dispose of the bill before the close of the week, and Senator Hansbrough has given notice that he will again call up the Reuben Shiels bill immediately after the disposal of the McFarrahan bill.

Senator Dolph also intends to make an effort, if opportunity arises, to have the bill for the relief of certain settlers on the public lands considered. The fortifications appropriation bill is now on the calendar and in a position to be taken up for action at any time. Senator Harris may also move, in accordance with notice given, for a reconsideration of the printing bill, but it is presumed that no action in this matter will depend upon the attendance of senators, many of the friends of the bill being absent.

Senator Turpie has evinced a desire to have his resolutions concerning the annexation of Hawaii voted upon before the tariff bill is taken up, but it is doubtful, in the face of Senator Dolph's opposition, whether this can be done.

Probable Duration of the Tariff Debate.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—Inquiry among Republican senators as to the policy they will pursue with reference to the tariff bill when it shall reach the senate develops the fact that they are as yet undecided as to whether they will move to recommit the bill upon the commencement of the debate Monday week. This was the first plan when the bill was received from the house and the Democratic majority of the finance committee refused to grant hearings, but there are indications that they have reconsidered and will not move in this direction—at least not at the beginning of the debate.

There is no indication, however, that they have abated their purpose of contending for every advantage and forcing, if possible, full debate on every proposition contained in the bill. They expect the general debate to continue for at least a month and hope to have every schedule discussed paragraph by paragraph afterward. Some of them intimate that they consider it may be possible by this course to delay action so as to render it impossible to pass upon the bill during the present session. The purpose of the Democrats is to permit the Republicans to do the greater part of the talking.

The Seigniorage Bill's Fate.

WASHINGTON, March 26.—The letters and telegrams which for the past week have been pouring in upon the president in regard to the seigniorage coinage bill continue to fill the White House mailbag—if anything, in increasing numbers. As has been the case from the first, these communications are very largely appeals to the president to exercise the veto power. It is stated, in fact, that there are 10 requests for a veto to one asking the president to sign the bill.

The 10 days at the expiration of which the bill would become a law, should the president take no action, begin from the date of the receipt given by the president's private secretary. Sunday, however, is not counted in making up the 10 days. The president may, therefore, hold the bill until Friday, March 30, and on that day return it to the house with his veto or signature, as the case may be. The indications are, however, that there will be no occasion to count the exact number of hours or even days, as the president will not allow the 10 days to elapse with the bill to become a law without executive action.

After Typhoid and Malaria

Hood's Sarsaparilla Purified and Built Up the System.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Gentlemen—Two years ago I was taken with a very severe illness, beginning with erysipelas, and then had typhoid and malaria fever. After I got up and out of bed I thought I was cured, but was mistaken. In a short time a tumor broke out on my face, at first causing the skin to be very much inflamed. It gradually developed into sores, which spread until

COXEY'S CHILLY MARCH

The Army of Peace Goes Into Camp In a Snowstorm.

MANY TRAMPS ARE IN THE RANKS

Less Than One Hundred Leave the Town rowns Camp for Washington, but Coxey Is Hopeful—Rumor That the Commander-in-chief Intends to Travel by Rail.

CANTON, O., March 26.—In the face of a sharp, cold wind that brought shivers to the frames of well clad people Coxey's army marched eight miles on the road to Washington. There were left here less than 100 of them. Not to exceed a dozen had overcoats or gloves. They had slept on pallets of straw in the airy and choseless cityless cells, and they were greeted by the disagreeable discovery that no detailed arrangements had been made for feeding them.

Several hundred persons watched their departure from Massillon. About 3,000 persons assembled at the temporary camp at Beach Run, and a host greeted the colleaders at Canton. Last night they rested at Camp Lexington, in the eastern part of Canton. A heavy snowstorm set in before the entire company had been completed, and the trampers are huddled around roaring campfires.

Almost hundreds of the men enlisted made the trip. Coxey has buried his disappointment at the nonappearance of the myriads he expected and is exultant over the handful who reported for business.

Scenes in the Camps.

The Massillon camp on the Tuscarawas presented an odd sight early in the morning. No fire was permitted in the big tent, but there were huge log heaps blazing log side. Every few moments the flaps of the tent were parted by a soldier of the commonweal, who visited the fire to drive away the chills. Soon he would hurry back to burrow in the straw for another nap, and others would take his place. The robes in the party became known just before leaving. They had soup. Some of them washed at the river brink, and others carried water in pans and heated it over the fire. They turned straw and frolicked about like a troop of boys.

A bugle call to breakfast brought them together at the tent with a rush. The bill of fare comprised lunch coffee and raw meat. The latter was affixed to the end of pointed sticks and roasted over the fire. One group of five ran away in a body after breakfast and boarded a passing freight train. Thirty of the common wealers spent the night as lodgers at the Massillon police station. They comprised two entire groups who could not be found when they were needed for picket duty. They were on hand for breakfast.

When Marshal Louis Smith, otherwise the "Unknown," summoned the men to camp together, they were found to number 1 groups. They were organized into a company, drilled and left them on the meadows for half an hour. He has added several formalities of military discipline to the order of the commonweal. One of them is the plan of having them march in files of two, and a more surprising innovation is the adoption of military salutes. A marshal in command, like Governor of the California reformer half way across the field was given a raking over by Smith.

The Chicago Commune.

Among other things he said that the proper caper was to ask for Chief Marshal Carl Browne and salute when his attention is secured. This the despised military system is being introduced, even though companies are called communes and though communalism. The 1,000 people are called the Chicago commune. Two hours before the time for departure the tents were pulled down and preparations made for the march. The men were ordered to leave the field and await the commonweal on the main streets of the town.

Camp wagons and saddle horses were brought in from Coxiana, and the soldiers had a busy time of it. A diversion was caused by a bulletin from Coxiana announcing that a strong force had left recruits had just passed that point from Canton. The steamer made the trip of nine miles in 2½ hours, but only a few men from Canton were enrolled.

Will Coxey Desert?

ALLIANCE, O., March 25.—The followers of Coxey in this city were disbanded at first after seeing the number of recruits that started with the commonweal army in its march, but were somewhat disgusted later when told that most of the number were tramps. Mayor Excell has appointed 12 special policemen to assist the regular force and the army may leave here Tuesday. He said that while he did not apprehend any trouble whatever with the army he made the appointments as a cautionary measure.

There is a well defined belief that Mr. Coxey intends to desert the army here next Tuesday and go to Chicago on the evening express. Last Thursday, while returning from Pittsburg, Coxey asked a railroad official at what time the evening east bound train was due to leave here. When informed that it left at 8:30, he said he would probably be compelled to go to Chicago on Tuesday night, as he had several important matters that he wanted to settle at a horse sale on Wednesday. He said that he expected to return and take charge of the army again at Beaver Falls on Friday. Bets were offered in the hotels at 2 to 1, with no takers, that the army would disband before they reached Pittsburg.

Financial Troubles For Coxey.

MASSILLON, O., March 26.—In contradiction of the generally accepted belief that Coxey is wealthy Massillon people told those with them that he is hard up. Two days that his property is heavily encumbered. The reports culminated in the statement that Coxey will be obliged to mortgage a new home or see everything despite by next Wednesday or suffer foreclosure. He bought the horse from Colonel E. H. Pepper of Kentucky for $40,000, and paid $10,000 cash.

A son of Colonel Pepper was in Massillon last Monday and gave notice, as the report goes, that ample security would have to be given for the debt of $30,000, or there would be legal proceedings on Wednesday. The mortgage is said to include much of Coxey's property, as well as the horse.

Army Tries Up a Railroad.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., March 26.—The Southern Pacific railroad officials here received word that the "United States Industrial Army" of several hundred men was put off the trains at Spofford near Findlay Station, on the El Paso division, and that trains were run through without stopping. The so called army broke the lock on the switch and threw it open, causing the next east bound train to take the siding. The men climbed upon the cars and Conductor Martin pulled them to Findlay, where he tied up the train pending the arrival of orders from General Superintendent Van Vleck. The order came for him to keep the train tied up, as the company had decided not to carry them. Several other trains have arrived at Findlay since, and all are tied up, as the army shows no disposition to let any of the trains depart without them.

Armed Recruits In Waiting.

SALEM, O., March 26.—An officer who is covering the Ohio route for the Pennsylvania authorities claims that if Coxey can keep going and hold the men who are waiting to join him he will cross the Pennsylvania line with about 3,000 men. He learns that at least 50 per cent of the Ohio recruits will go into the crusade carrying firearms, "to be prepared," as one captain said, "to protect themselves in case they were imposed upon."

Fell by the Wayside.

HAZLETON, Pa., March 26.—Not one of the 200 men whom Aster Evans claimed to have enlisted for the commonweal army responded. John Hammond, the colored recruit arrested here for vagrancy, was sent to the workhouse. His fate had been frozen and the whole of one foot and the toes of the other will have to be amputated. He has furnished a wholesome object lesson to fellows who might have attempted the march.

ADRIFT ON THE ICE.

Fifty Seal Hunters Reported as Having Perished—Fatal Cost to Sea.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., March 26.—A large body of ice was driven off from here Saturday night, carrying with it a party of 40 or 50 men who were killing seals. It is feared that many have perished. Two dead bodies have been brought ashore, and steamers are searching for the remainder of the party.

It is feared that at least two vessels went down in the bay of Fundy during Friday's severe storm. The schooner Star, Captain Snyden, left Parrsboro on that day for this port with a full cargo of coal. The schooner Greville, Captain Baird, just arrived, reports being in company with the Star and losing the Mary Deloine on Friday off the island of Haute. It was blowing a hard gale from the southeast. The Greville put into Quaco for harbor, and nothing has since been heard of the Star and Delphine. Both vessels have had lots of time to reach here since, and the captain of the Greville fears they have gone down with their crews, all of whom belonged in Nova Scotia.

Murdered by an Italian.

ROCHESTER, March 26.—Spencer Howe aged 32 years, the United States Express messenger running between Rochester Junction, was murdered by an Italian named Nicollo Denardo at a camp used as a boarding house for Italians who are employed on the new Hemlock lake conduit. Howe's brother-in-law, M. Ketchum, had been drinking at the Italian camp. Late last night Howe hurried to his assistance. The foreigners pitched on Howe, and Denardo stabbed him in the back with a dirk. The murderer fled. He is the wood and has not yet been captured.

Murder, Robbery and Arson.

SHARON, Pa., March 26.—Wheatland, the deserted iron town, two miles south of here, was the scene of either a terrible accident or a terrible tragedy. The fire department in the residence of William Laird at Wheatland and destroyed five of the company's houses. Parties searching in the ruins found the bodies of two of the women who was subsequently identified as William Laird. His watch and chain were gone. The authorities have strong suspicions that Laird was robbed, killed and his house fired to conceal the crime.

Spilled a Load of Converts.

HOLLIDAYSBURG, Pa., March 26.—Twenty-eight converts to the church in this place were baptized by immersion in the Juniata river. The converts were all returning to town in an omnibus the horses became unmanageable and upset the load upon the highway. Miss Ella McManamy and Mrs. Wetley Elliott sustained fatal injuries, and four others were badly bruised.

An Earl as a Beggar.

LOUISVILLE, March 26.—A man named Thomas Edwards, who claims to be a brother of Sir Wilfred Lawson, the famous London surgeon, is in jail in New Albany, Ind., charged with begging. His own title, he says, is Earl of Grayson. He says he came to see the World's fair and has been on a spree ever since.

Killed In a Railway.

NEW YORK, March 26.—John Delmore who lived with his wife and five children at 302 East Fifty-first street was killed and instantly killed in the hallway of 438 East Seventy-ninth street. Bull Powers the man's supposed murderer, made his escape. Delmore and Powers had long been enemies.

THE MARTIN MURDER.

New York Police Think They Have the Right Man.

A CHINAMAN IS UNDER ARREST.

He Is Accused of Chopping Up and Rolling a Little Girl—A Blood Stained Saw and Ironing Board Found In a Laundry—Two Suspected Accomplices.

NEW YORK, March 26.—After a week of untiring effort the central office detectives, aided by those of the West Thirty-seventh street station, have, or think they have, run to earth the murderer of Birdie Sash Martin, whose mutilated body was discovered seven days ago in the coal cellar of the tenement at 317 West Thirty-ninth street. The suspected murderer, who is locked up in police headquarters, is a Chinaman—Sam Sing by name—who runs a laundry at 539 Tenth avenue.

The police also have in their possession a handsaw, such as is used by carpenters, and an ironing board, the latter, it is supposed, constituting the implements by the aid of which the mutilation of the child was accomplished.

Two Other Suspects.

Justice Ryan admitted, although reluctantly, that the accused Chinaman had been arrested on suspicion of having been implicated in the murder of little Martin.

"The police," said the justice, "have the right man this time, and there are two others whom the police suspect of being accomplices. Both Chinamen and who will probably be captured before very long."

It appears that Detective Hay of the West Thirty-seventh street station received a letter handed in at 467 McCann on Friday night last, in which the writer stated that on the day following Susie Martin's disappearance he had seen a Chinaman leave a tenement in Twelfth avenue with a suspicious looking bundle under his arm and hurried by walk over to the tenement at 317 West Thirty-ninth street. McCann followed close behind.

The Chinaman, the writer said, went down into the cellar of the tenement, left his bundle there and hurried back home. The writer further stated that he could point out and identify the Chinaman in question. This was a fair piece of detective work, and was communicated to the central office. The trio then started out to find the writer of the letter.

In a rear apartment on the top floor of the tenement at 463 West Thirty-ninth street early Saturday morning they found Mrs. Martin. Sisters became somewhat complicated from the fact that McCann, who is 22 years old, is both deaf and dumb. They found the deaf mute intelligent however, and were able to converse with him by means of a writing pad.

The mute led the detectives to a Chinese laundry kept by Sam Sing and Sang Long at 539 Tenth avenue. By signs and profuse gesticulations McCann made the detectives understand that Sam Sing, who was inside doing a wash at the time, was the man they were after.

A Blood Stained Saw.

The half dozen Chinamen in the place were rounded up and the entrance of the detectives, Crowley seized Sing and guarded the door while the other detectives ransacked the place. They overturned tubs and rummaged among the bedding and other effects until Rogers finally exclaimed, "Great Scott, look at this!"

In the hand of the latter was a carpenter's handsaw and an ironing board hidden beneath a pile of rubbish in a rear room. There were dark, suspicious looking stains and discolorations on both the saw and the board.

When Detective Crowley seized Sam Sing, the latter resisted. The detective wanted to make the arrest as quietly as possible, so they tried their powers of persuasion on the Celestial, but with little or no success. The other Chinamen rushed to their aid Mrs. Brophy, who keeps a news stand next door.

Mrs. Brophy's son owns the laundry building. She herself is well known to Sing. At Crowley's suggestion she explained to Sing that the detectives only wanted to question her about Susie Martin. When this was made clear to Sing, he consented to go with the detectives without further remonstrance. The ironing board and saw were also taken along.

ALBANY GOSSIP.

A Lively Week's Programme Ahead of the Legislature.

ALBANY, March 26.—The week promises to be an exceedingly lively one in legislative circles, a great many important measures being set down for the various days. The probability is that there will be evening sessions of the assembly each night except Tuesday, upon which evening the Republican senators will meet with assemblymen of the same political faith to caucus on the question of electing a regent.

Tonight the senate will take up the O'Connor nonpartisan inspector of election bill which the assembly returned Friday. If the bill went into effect at once, as the assembly provided, it would cut the spring elections in two and legislate all inspectors out of office without providing for the appointment of others, and so Senator O'Connor proposes to fight the amendment.

The ballot bills are in the same shape, the senate having passed one with an individual poster allowed and the assembly one with no poster. It is said that the Republicans in the assembly Monday evening will not only consider the question of a regent candidate, but will caucus on the bipartisan election bill, the latter bills and the New York bipartisan police bill. The reports in the rest of the contested seat cases will be handed in to the assembly this week. The supply bill is ready for a special order in the same body, and the senate will have the appropriation bill to consider.

On Wednesday the joint committee of the assembly and senate will give the final hearing on Senator Persons' bill to reduce the price of telephones inside cities. The telephone companies will present their carrying books to show that they are not making large profits.

KILLED HER FATHER.

Fifteen-year-old Girl Acquitted of a Charge of Parricide.

HOMER, Ga., March 26.—Mr. F. Willis was killed last week by his daughter Lillian and his wife. The news of the tragedy did not leak out for several days until Francis, an 11-year-old son, told it to neighbors. Daughter and mother were both arrested and given a preliminary trial.

The boy testified that a difficulty arose between the father and mother, but the former sat down before the fire, and Lillian, a girl about 15 years old, struck him with the ax, cutting his head in his skull. Willis threw back his head, and she mother took the ax from the girl and cut him across the throat with it. Willis died a few minutes later.

The girl says she struck the blow with the ax after having cut her father's throat with a razor while Willis was choking her mother to death. After drawing the razor across the throat of her father and seeing that he was not dead she picked up the ax and finished him. Her plea was that she did the deed to save her mother's life. The jury, after being out for some time, rendered a verdict of not guilty.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS

AN INTERESTING BIRD.

Of Singular Accent, Extraordinary Appetite and Astounding Digestion.

This remarkable bird is a native of India and is notable for its enormous beak. With this beak he can swallow objects as big as a pig of moderate size, and a fowl or even a full grown calf in India he is protected with great care and performs most useful service. He thoroughly cleans the streets and public places of the refuse and offal.

THE ADJUTANT.

which otherwise would putrify and become a danger and annoyance. He is also very expert in dealing with snakes and other unpleasant reptiles, giving them no quarter. He knows them over before they can strike, and after battering them well with his bill he swallows them whole. The services of the adjutant are also invaluable during the inundations, numbers of them following the course of the rising waters and making prey of the reptiles which are driven from their lairs by the floods.

The appetite and digestion of this bird are truly wonderful, his stomach being endowed with extraordinary powers. Having swallowed a needle and steel torpedo, for instance, all the soft and digestible parts are quickly dissolved, and the other parts, such as the shell and bones, are ejected. In some respects the adjutant resembles the vulture tribe in that it has the naked head and neck. The habitudes of this bird are varied, some are amusing and nearly always comical.

Its way of cooling itself when the day is hot is curious. It will stand with its enormous beak resting or bending on the ground, the wings spread out straight from the body. It will remain in this odd attitude for a long time perfectly motionless, as if carved in stone. The birds then the appearance as if thinking out some deep and important question. Sometimes it squats on the ground with its head tucked under the body. At other times it walks about in a menacing manner, head and neck thrust forward and its huge bill open, looking very formidable indeed, but, notwithstanding all this assumption of bravery it is a poltroon and will run away from a child if boldly faced. The adjutant is easily tamed.

The Little Brown Hands.

They drive home the cows from the pasture,
Up through the long, shady lane,
Where the quail whistles loud in the wheat-field,
All yellow with ripening grain.

The pen of the author and statesman,
The noble and wise of our land,
The sword and the pallet and palette
Shall be held in the little brown hand.

—Mary H. Krout.

They Would Rather Stoop Than Not.

There are no tables in the houses of the Eskimo, and the women are therefore in the habit of placing everything on the floor. This causes them to do so much stooping that they would rather stoop than not, as to which Dr. Nansen, the Greenland explorer, tells an interesting anecdote. A Danish lady had employed several Eskimo women to do some washing. Entering the wash house, she saw them all bending over the washtubs that stood on the floor. To make them more comfortable she had some stools fetched and placed the tubs upon them. By and by she looked in to see how they were getting on, and to her astonishment discovered the women standing on the stools and assiduously still rubbing laboriously over the tubs, which still remained on the floor.

The Disappointed Sailor Man.

Sailor (to old salt)—Is she safe?
"A quiet life was my plan,
While surrounded with juvenile faces,
I'd rig little boats,
And tell nice anecdotes
Of ships, storms and strange furrin races—
The old sailor don't you know?
But, oh, dear, it won't go,
For those kids know all I know and more
With the steamin and travel.
When yarns I unravel,
They rises and votes me a bore!

"Their papas and mammas
Takes them on the steam cars
And the kids with their bandanas twin screws—
North, south, east and west,
Till, my timbers be bust,
If anything I tell 'em 's new!
They have met the khedive,
And they laugh in their sleeve
Cause his cockle stories they know.
I'll weigh anchor again,
And I'll search for the isle main
For the land where the real children grow!

—St. Nicholas.

The Month of March.

March, the first month of the Roman year, was named from Mars, the god of war. It was considered as the first month if the year in England until the change of style in 1752. The Anglo-Saxons called it lityd monath, stormy month, and Hood month, second month.

REPAIRING THE LINEN.

How a Deft Hand Accomplishes Neat and All but Invisible Darns.

In the first place, prevention is better, as elsewhere, is the part of wisdom. When there is any reason to suppose that a given article may be getting thin in texture, it should be carefully scrutinized whenever laundered, and if any spots show signs of giving way they should be re-enforced by neat and careful darning. It is remarkable how much this may be practiced by carefully selecting embroidery cottons or floss to match the material of the linen and using a deft hand with the needle.

Sometimes it is necessary to stitch a bit of foreign fabric on the back side of the article to be repaired, to serve as a base for the mending operations; or, to hold the parts in place, a piece of stiff paper may be basted on the back side, over which the work of rebuilding the fabric with proper material, carrying the anchoring stitches an inch or more into the firm cloth, may be performed. When the hole is mended, the paper is removed, and if care has been exercised it will require close scrutiny to detect the spot.

Sheets which have been worn thin in the center may, if taken in time, be cut through the middle lengthwise, and the outer edges being brought together to form a new center, additional wear will be secured. Table linen which has become too much worn for further satisfactory service will generally be found to have considerable sections of firm fabric, which should not be wasted. This will very likely furnish still soft and pleasant towels and even when quite thoroughly worn will provide exceptionally pleasing dish towels and cloths for similar use, says Good Housekeeping.

Eggs In Various Guise.

Egg Cutlets—Boil three or four eggs for 10 minutes, dip them in cold water for a moment or two and strip off the shells. Cut off the ends of each egg and divide it into four slices. Dip each piece in the well beaten yolk of an egg, then in bread crumbs rather highly seasoned with pepper and salt and a teaspoonful of very finely minced parsley. Fry in boiling butter until brown. Serve with a thickened gravy around them.

Eggs au Gratin—Have ready some buttered scallop shells. Nearly fill them with chopped blouter or smoked salmon or any other salted and smoked fish. Pepper it well and sprinkle it with a pinch of finely chopped parsley. On the top break an egg without spoiling the yolk. Put it into the oven and set sugar when the whites have set.

Eggs In Purgatory—Melt a little butter in an omelet pan, sprinkle salt upon it and break into it as many eggs as may be required. Try for a few minutes, being careful to turn up the edges to keep them from spreading. Sprinkle pepper over them and send to table covered with tomato sauce.

Deviled Eggs—Boil some eggs quite hard, then throw them into cold water after removing them from the saucepan, and the shells will come off quite easily. Cut them in half and slice a piece off the end that they may stand upright. Take out the yolks, mash with a little butter, and pound them with butter till they form a soft paste. Stir or work into this one teaspoonful of anchovy sauce (this is the right allowance for four eggs) add some cayenne, fill the whites with the mixture, piling it up in the center. Serve with parsley garniture and eat them cold or hot.

A Centerpiece For the Table.

Modern Priscilla says this centerpiece showing a design of oats may be worked solidly with green or yellow filo floss.

DESIGN FOR A CENTERPIECE.

Only the palest shades should be used, and the scolloped edge is worked with the lightest shade in long and short buttonhole stitch.

Hot Cross Buns.

Mix together 3 pounds of flour, three quarters of a pound of sugar, one dessertspoonful of mixed spice and 1½ pounds of currants (these can be omitted according to taste). Pour into the center a claret glass ful of thick yeast and work the mixture into a batter, stirring in about three-quarters of a pint of warm milk. Stand the pan, well covered with a blanket, in front of the fire. When the contents begin to ferment add three-quarters of a pound of butter just melted, one teaspoonful of salt and enough milk to work the whole into a soft paste. Sprinkle it well with dry flour and let it rise for half an hour. Form the dough into buns, and lay them on buttered tins at intervals of one or two inches, and stand them in a dry place while for another half hour. Make a cross on each with a floured knife and bake in a quick oven. They will take about 30 minutes. The above proportion ought to make about three dozen buns.

The Successful Visitor.

"If a woman of the world, you will know, without an intimation hint, that it is only the visitor who is deaf, dumb and blind to household bickerings, family differences and the like, who may reasonably count herself a success. Nowhere under the sun do you so constantly need to exercise tact as when under a stranger's roof. If you are so unfortunate as to be tactless, the sooner you pack your srunk and start for home the better.

"Home again, you must not allow more than three or four days to elapse before acknowledging to your hostess in some form your appreciation of her kindness," says The Household.

Egg Biscuit.

These are very much like plain Biscuits, only a little richer. Mix a teaspoonful of baking powder with a pint of flour; add a teaspoonful of sugar and half a teaspoonful of salt; rub an ounce of butter into the flour; make a hole in the center; pour in a well beaten egg and a gill of milk. Make into a very soft dough, adding more milk if necessary. Roll the paste quickly to the thickness of half an inch. Bake in a quick oven.

Women Who Do Not Need Work.

Several ladies, writing to me on the subject of women's work, complain most bitterly of those who, not being under the necessity of working, do yet take work, crowding out those who really want it. This is a very serious question. There can be no doubt that if A. and B., who are rich enough to be idle, take paid work, then C. and D., who do very much want the work, cannot get it. And since A. and B. have no need to haggle over a price or wage they naturally become lowered.

On the other hand, A. and B. may say: "Oh, but we like work! We cannot sit idle all our days. It is very nice not to be dependent, but it is also very nice to do the work." Are we to expect such a lofty standard of altruism in A. and B. that they should consent to sit in idleness against their inclination, in order that they may not injure C. and D., whom they have never seen? Or, again, A. and B. may say: "Yes, we need not work. But then it is very nice to have a little more money to spend." This difficult point is one which should be submitted to the consideration of an archbishop or to a church congress at least. I am not equal to it.—London Gentlewoman.

To Remove Freckles.

Grate horse radish fine; let it stand a few hours in buttermilk; strain it and wash with it night and morning. Lemon juice used freely is also efficacious. In the country girls wash their faces in fresh buttermilk, rinsing in tepid water. A common remedy in Europe is a frequent application of nitre in water. One of the widest and best known of the patent toilet articles which is most commonly used in this country is made by dissolving three grains of borax in five drams each of rosewater and orange flower water.

You can make it yourself at a cost of 5 cents a bottle, instead of paying $1 per bottle, if you wish to try it.

A remedy for freckles alone is half a dram of muriate of ammonia, two drams of lavender and half a pint of distilled water. Apply with a sponge four times a day.

The means used by the celebrated Lola Montez for tak ng freckles and sunburn from her face was a lotion made by mixing a tablespoonful of muriatic acid with an ounce of rosewater, a pint of water and an ounces of rectified spirits of wine.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Rights of Children.

"I have a good deal of sympathy for the little people," writes Mrs. Kate Douglas Wiggin in a paper on "Children's Rights," "during their first 8 or 10 years, when they are just beginning to learn life's lessons, and when the laws which govern them must often seem so strange and unjust.

"The child has a right to a place of its own, to things of its own, to surroundings which have some relation to its size, its desires and its capabilities. How should we like to live half the time in a place where the plano was 12 feet high, the doorknob at an impossible height and the mantelshelf in the sky; where every mortal thing was out of reach except a collection of highly interesting objects on dressing tables and bureaus, guarded, however, by giants three times as large and powerful as ourselves, forever saying, 'Mustn't touch,' and if we did touch we should be spanked and have no other method of revenge save to spank back symbolically on the inoffensive persons of our dolls?"

She Uses Salt.

I know a woman who at the age of 40 has the complexion of a peach and the health and vigor of an Irish peasant, who is out in all sorts of weather and will walk about all day in snow or rain with feet and ankles wet and never take cold.

"How do you keep yourself in such splendid condition?" I asked.

"Salt," she laughingly answered. "It is salt that preserves my health. I use it in my bath, as a dentifrice and to gargle my throat.

"You know, first of all, I come from good stock and am naturally strong, but without proper care the best of health will not last.

"Immediately on getting up I take a vigorous scrubbing with hot water, soap and a stiff brush; then I give myself a douche with ice cold water, which I have made thick with salt, using a coarse flesh towel to thoroughly dry my body. Salt is a great purifier. I use it in my throat and nostrils, and it is the only dentifrice I ever use."—New York Herald.

Modjeska's Childhood.

Mme. Modjeska, speaking of her youth, said the first 10 years of her life were spent in a dream. Her first recollection was stealing off into a church which was near by her home in Moscow, a bare, empty place, without beauty, without even good music to inthral her, and dreaming the whole day away. Her nurses or governesses would try to rouse her, but always without effect. If they gave her a book, she would make it an excuse to go off into a reverie. Only music and sculpture stirred her. The moment she saw a bit of clay she was seized with a desire to model a figure or a flower, and her deep, rich voice, had it been cultivated, would have given her high place on the operatic stage. "But," said the great actress, with her inimitable smile, "even then I knew that the opera singer must have eternal youth, and so I chose this other art that will ripen, not decay, with years."—Hartford Courant.

Bride Day Complexions.

A girl would give or do or endure anything for the sake of looking her sweetest and prettiest on the day which ends her maidenhood and pronotes her into a matron, except—and the exception is so easy, too, a mere negation—to avoid overfatigue and anxiety in her preparations.

Many a girl serves herself back in her determination to have her regulation dozens of lingeries and to possess gowns of every conceivable shape and color. She thriftily reckons that she can have twice as many by making them herself or by sewing with twice the nervous energy of a paid seamstress with her bona fide dressmaker. So she has the gowns at the expense of her color and roundness and nerves, and goes to the altar pale and worn, and often with an uncomfortable tendency to nervous irritation, which promises ill for the beginning of her wedded life.—Philadelphia Press.

The Overgrown Girl.

The overgrown girl, the "miss," as she is termed in the dress and cloak departments in the shops, is a trial to herself and her mother. She is too old for girls' frocks, not old enough for the things that women wear. If she affects the latter, she is in danger of looking too old, and that is ruinous to the prospective debutante. If she continues to adhere to the styles she has been wearing, she is more than likely to appear awkward. She is too old to wear her hair down her back; her mother is not sure if she is old enough to do it up. She feels as uncomfortable as her friends do for her, so be generous to the big little girl and don't heap reproaches on her for not being younger or older than she is. She would gladly oblige you if either way.—Philadelphia Ledger.

L. Saunders, Mr. Colburn, of Metuchen, Mr. A. L. Marsh, Mr. F. L. C. Martin, Mr. Edward Fields, Mr. Clifford McGee, Mr. Roger Erickson, Mr. James Hallock, Mr. Whiting, Mr. Fred Walz, Mr. Julius Erickson, Mr. Walter Murray, Mrs. Louis Warting, Mr. Orville Warting, Mr. Fred Yates, Dr. W. Van D. Hodges, Mr. Chesney Wright, of New York, Mr. Lewis, Mr. Cox, Mr. Bliss, Mr. John Moore, Mr. Joseph Sandford, Mr. Percy Stewart, Mr. Harry Munger, Mr. Lawrence Van Buren, Mr. West, Mr. Streuli, Mr. E. A. Van Buren, Mr. Fouts, of Fanwood, Messrs. Van Boskirk, Mr. A. Wadsworth, of New York, Mr. John P. Munn, Mr. A. Z. Huntington, Mr. Lowe, Mr. Lemuel Serrell, Mr. Tyler, Mr. Fouch, Mrs. W. S. Potter, Mr. W. T. Kaufman, Mr. Anthony, Mr. T. A. Wicks, of Elizabeth, Mr. Jos. E. Murray, Mr. Brizes, Mr. Marshal Adams, of Brooklyn, and Mr. Benford, of Philadelphia.

BREVITIES.

—The weather promises to be warmer to-morrow.

—Stop at Rand's—if you need one—and see his baby carriages.

—There will be a hearing to-night, at eight o'clock in Justice Mosher's office in the Wittersboy vs. King and Slocum's matter.

—"Jessie" Hetfield's car jumped the switch at Fourth street and Monroe avenue Sunday at 11.20. The car was delayed for some time.

—Car No. 4 of the street railway was taken to the car house to-day for new brakes, as while the other cars will be run on 15 minutes headway.

—A settlement was reached yesterday between Mr. Faulkstell, whose tailor shop was burnt out in North Plainfield recently, and the insurance company. Mr. Newcorn had the matter adjusted.

—Fred Rendish of East Third street has constructed an incubator and intends to hatch out Spring chickens for market. Last night he bought a ten cent. thermometer with which he proposes to regulate the temperature of his enterprise.

—The boys of the Y. M. C. A. will debate this evening on the questions "Resolved, That England is a more desirable place of residence than France." William Cornwell and Edward Kline will take the affirmative, and Joseph LaBoyteaux and Philip Suffern the negative.

—While Mrs. J. S. Jones of West Third street was airing her blanket yesterday morning, a full grown New Foundland dog went into the yard and caught one of them from the line and carried it away. The blanket was subsequently found at Mrs. Martin's boarding house on West Fourth street. Mrs. Martin very willingly gave up the blanket, and hereafter Mrs. Crane will keep her dog home.

—"Spalding's Official Base Ball Guide," for 1894, is out to-day, and is without doubt the most complete Base Ball Guide ever published. The Guide is officially recognized and bears the official stamp of President Young of the National League and American Association of Professional Base Ball clubs. This year's Guide contains statistics of interest to every one connected with base ball: It contains the new rules as adopted at the last meeting of the National League.

Odd Ladies' Entertainment.

Mizpah Lodge, United Order of Independent Odd Ladies held an entertainment and lunch box sociable, in Sons of Temperance Hall, last night.

There was a short programme consisting of a recitation, entitled "The Murderer," by Miss Mattox; recitation, entitled "Yes; I'm Guilty," Miss Bertha Chase; recitation, "The Pride of Battery B" "Bob" Mattox solo, "Beautiful Gates Ajar," Miss Bell Swain; of Summit; recitation, Miss Mattox.

At the conclusion of the above, the lunch boxes were auctioned off.

These followed a donkey party, and dancing.

The committee in charge of the entertainment composed Mrs. Andrew Cox, James Bushby and Mrs. R. Mattis.

Grace Church Election.

At the annual meeting held in Grace church last night the following persons were elected to serve as wardens and vestrymen for the ensuing year:

Wardens—Charles F. Bull and Wm. E. Lowe.

Vestrymen—John B. Dumont, O. T. Waring, B. Fleming, W. E. Cook, A. J. Woodruff, S. A. Cruikshank, and Geo. M. Randall.

Delegates to Convention—Messrs. J. B. Dumont, Wm. E. Lowe and C. P. Bull.

Alternates—Messrs. H. Fleming, H. B. Ely and Geo. M. Randall.

WILL TAYLOR GO FREE!

His Counsel has the Cornell Student in Court on a Habeas Corpus.

F. L. Taylor of this city, the Cornell student who refuses to testify before the Grand Jury at Ithica in the chlorine-gas case, and who was sent to jail for contempt, was before Judge Smith of the Supreme Court in Watkins yesterday on a writ of habeas corpus.

The application for his discharge was argued by his counsel John R. Stanchfield of Elmira, on the plea that no man can be compelled to testify to anything that would tend to incriminate himself or disgrace him in the estimation of the public.

The prisoner was remanded to the custody of Sheriff James Auble until such time as the case shall be decided by the judge. The opinion prevails that Taylor will be discharged.

PERSONAL.

Carl Kaerth is home again after a few weeks in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Fulton of Liberty street is confined to the house with the grip.

Miss Minnie Wilson of North Plainfield is the guest of Mrs. Arnold of Philadelphia.

Mr. Coe of Hartford, Conn., is the guest of Mr. A. T. Huntington, of Franklin place.

Messrs. Charles Potter and David M. Titsworth have returned from the South.

Mrs. James De Graff of Central avenue will give a tea Saturday afternoon, from four to seven.

George A. Whitlock, now of Watchung avenue, will hereafter reside on West Second street.

Mr. and Mrs. Hogan of New York are guests of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Scott of Seventh street.

Mr. Henry Phillips' house on Grove street having just been painted presents a very attractive appearance.

Mr. and Mrs. J. P. McQuaide have moved from North Plainfield to the Thomas house, on Seventh street.

Mrs. Edgar of Atlanta, Ga., formerly Miss Kate Potter of Mt. Pleasant, returned home to-day after a visit with her parents.

The Rev. Arthur Crane has accepted an invitation to conduct the services of the Strovey place Baptist church, Brooklyn, N. Y., until May 1st.

Messrs. George H. Burgess, J. W. Jackson and Henry A. McGee were re-elected trustees of the First M. E. church at a meeting held last night.

Mr. George M. Churchward, of New Brunswick, who has been spending the last three weeks with Dr. Geo. C. Bodford, of this city, has returned home.

An afternoon tea was given by the Junior Class of the Plainfield Seminary to the Senior Class and their friends at the home of Mrs. A. W. Haviland, on Rockview avenue.

Mr. Joseph Martin, for several years connected with Mr. I. H. Boehm's dry goods establishment, has accepted a position with Mr. Edward White. He will go into the dress goods department.

Mr. Leggett of Princeton, father of Manager Leggett of the Central pharmacy, is visiting his son, and last night he made an address at the Salvation Army meeting here, telling of the good work that the Army is doing in Princeton.

Among the speakers at the Newark Conference Epworth League anniversary which is to be held on April 5, in the Centenary M. E. Church, Newark, W. C. Kinsey, of Dunellen, and the Rev. E. A. Selah, general secretary. The anniversary will occupy the afternoon and evening.

The date set for the marriage of Mr. Henry Windham and Miss Josie Harold is to-day at four p. m. The ceremony will take place in St. Joseph's church rectory, and the best man will be Godfrey Harold, and the bridesmaid Miss Clara Harold. After the ceremony a reception will be held at the Arlington Hotel, after which the bride and groom will leave for a trip to Washington, D. C.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Schroder, who are to change their residence this week from Grove street, North Plainfield, last night entertained a number of friends in honor of their daughters, Miss Jennie and Miss Julia, in a most pleasing way. Games were present from this city, Brooklyn and Rahway. Among whom were Miss Adams of Brooklyn and Miss Roy of Rahway. Dancing was the principal feature of the evening. After a bountiful supper, all departed in the "wee small hours of the morning," regretfully bidding their kind hostess good night, but consoling themselves with the pleasant idea of a repetition of last night's reception.

THE FIREMEN'S FAIR.

A GOOD CROWD PRESENT ON THE OPENING NIGHT.

Central Hall dressed in Red, White and Blue.—Those at the Tables.—The Contestants.—The Committee in Charge.

FOR their opening night Plainfield Engine Company No. 3, had a good attendance last evening, at their fair in Central Hall, corner of Park and North avenues. The decorations show that Plainfield firemen are patriotic, for at every point are "Uncle Sam's" colors in the shape of flags or bunting.

At either end of the hall are two immense American flags, the largest of which was loaned by Winfield Scott Post, No. 75, G. A. R. On the side walls there were also flags, in fact the stars and stripes seemed to be everywhere. The centre posts of the rooms were encircled by strips of bunting wound around in pretty and tasty manner.

Of course they couldn't be first class firemen unless they had lanterns, so strings of them hung lengthwise and crosswise of the hall. The globes of these had also been painted to represent red, white and blue.

The credit of the artistic draping and placing of the flags, bunting, etc., belongs to Messrs. Willet Marsh, H. H. Connett and A. T. Marsh. The decorations show that they spent much skill and taste in arranging them.

In a very appropriate position, underneath the largest American flag, sets the old cannon, bearing the inscription "Old Ore Hora." This cannon is to be given to the most popular G. A. R. Post in the State.

A long table, reaching from one end of the hall to the other, in charge of Mrs. William Chamberlain, Mrs. Charles J. Newman, and Mrs. Freda Sutterlin, is loaded down with useful and fancy articles. A line extends along above this table on which dry goods hang.

Miss Spitnagle presides at the candy table.

"Wet goods"—soda water, sarsaparilla, etc., are displayed by Messrs. H. H. Connett, C. Wilson and A. Marsh.

Musical goods were offered for sale by Miss Ella Sebring and Messrs. J. Newman and Charles Bell.

Among the gifts to the firemen for the fair are an umbrella stand in the shape of a beautiful vase, from the Fitzgibbon & Crisp Co., of Trenton, boxes of oranges from Capt. Hand, a barrel of flour, from Vincent Frazee, toilet set from Edward White, canned goods from Fred. Dunn and slippers from Horace Sherwin, musical goods from Garret Dreier's, and a silver and gold cake basket from A. Salzman.

The following committee has the fair in charge:

General Director, Frank Hand; Treasurer, H. H. Rogers Secretary, William Chamberlain; A. T. Marsh, H. H. Connett, W. S. Marsh, James Dawe, Frank Schuck, Charles W. Newman, Charles Smith and Adolph Kabrman.

Miss Laura Rollin, Gussie Newman and Carrie Sutterlin are contesting for a gold watch. The contest closes Friday night at nine o'clock.

For a gold ring Miss Lottie Chamberlain, Miss Mabel Bonnet and Mabel Smith are the contestants. It closes Wednesday night at eight o'clock.

A driver's uniform is offered for the most popular driver in the Plainfield or North Plainfield Departments.

Frank B. Randolph of Engine Company No. 3, and David Allen of Warren Engine Co. No. 1 of North Plainfield are contesting for a rubber coat and boots.

Mr. Theodore Smith, of No. two's, won the rubber coat and boots, as a prize for selling the most tickets. He sold 453.30 worth of tickets. Charles Smith was a close second for the prize.

The dancing will begin to-night. The Independent Fife and Drum Corps will be present to-night and Friday night. On Friday night Guttman's band will also be present.

The following officers were elected:

President—L. E. Barkalow.

Vice President—Henry Lietke.

Secretary—Frank Cornell.

Treasurer—W. B. Codington.

Directors—L. E. Barkalow, John Hickey, W. B. Codington, Henry Lietke, W. A. Codington, Henry Lietke, W. A. Woodruff, Wood, Titsworth, John Chandler, Friend Cornell, J. E. Flannery, J. P. Homan, Edward Fluck and Jacob Voehl.

Finance Committee—John Chandler, Jacob Voehl and W. A. Woodruff.

The Lecture Postponed.

The lecture announced as the fifth and last of the series under the auspices of the Friends' Entertainment Committee, to be given by Mrs. Elizabeth Powell Bond, Dean of Swarthmore College, on Wednesday evening the 28th inst., in Watchung Meeting House, is unavoidably deferred to a later date, on account of her recent serious illness.

25 YEARS AN ODD FELLOW.

A 25 Year Veteran's Jewel Presented to David B. Weaver.

Mr. David B. Weaver of Plainfield Lodge, No. 44, I. O. O. F., has been an Odd Fellow for 25 years, and at last night's meeting of Plainfield Lodge he was presented with a handsome 25 year veteran's jewel.

In making the presentation, Mr. Charles M. Ryrbert, expressed the high esteem with which Mr. Weaver is held by the lodge, in the following terms:

On behalf of Plainfield Lodge No. 44, I. O. O. F., I have been requested to express to you our sincere thanks and kindest regards for your labors with us. You have filled every office of confidence and trust pertaining to the order. You are one of the foundation stones upon which this structure has been erected. You form one of the links by which we are bound together. Twenty-five years of your life have been spent in spreading the principles of Odd Fellowship. You have enjoyed its prosperity and shared in its adversity. Your counsel and advice has been eagerly sought and freely given. Duty brings reward. This truth is inscribed on the pages of sacred and profane history, and it is our desire to reward you in a more substantial way than mere words. Sterling metal seems to be the most appropriate tribute to sterling worth, therefore the expression respect and esteem has taken this shining form, we know that you will prize the gift for its associations and not for its intrinsic value. It represents the feelings and sentiments which time can no more change or dim, than it can impair the lustre of the jewel. I perform the duty allotted to me with genuine satisfaction, greeting you on behalf of Plainfield Lodge No. 44, who have selected me as their spokesman, as one whom they delight to honor, and express the hope, in their name and my own, that you may live to wear the jewel which I commit to your keeping for many happy years.

ON THEIR HONEYMOON.

A Bridle Couple from Bernardsville Visit Plainfield.

Yesterday afternoon at about four o'clock a team of black horses decorated with yellow ribbon, drawing a buggy, drew up at the City Hotel. A gentleman and lady alighted and made their way into the hotel.

Shortly afterward the gentleman returned and drove to Bedden's livery stable, where he left his team and returned to the hotel.

To-day at one o'clock the ribbon bedecked team and buggy were again brought forth and the same couple climbed into the vehicle and drove off.

It was not generally known who this couple were but on the q. t. it was learned that it was Mr and Mrs. Henry Mullen of Bernardsville. They had been married at 10.30 a. m. at the home of the bride, Lemuel Thomas of Bernardsville, and then started for Plainfield on a honeymoon.

Easter Election at Holy Cross.

The annual parish meeting of the Church of the Holy Cross was held in the church last night. There was a large attendance and the following church officers were unanimously elected to serve during the coming year:

Wardens—John G. Musgrave and John H. Carmany, M. D.

Vestrymen—Joseph B. Platt, Robert S. Miller, Harry Bartling, Benjamin R. Western and Horsley Barker.

Delegates to Diocesan Convention—Joseph H. Still, Joseph B. Platt and Clarence D. Murphy.

Alternates—William L. Saunders, J. Edward Turrell and Thomas E. Warman.

An Evening With Charles Dickens.

A large number of people gathered at All Souls' church last evening for the purpose of spending an evening with Charles Dickens. The subject for last night's entertainment was "Bleak House." The book was introduced by a paper, by Mrs. E. W. Conklin, after which a free discussion of its people and incidents took place in which all present took part.

City Court.

Charles Conklin, arrested for drunkenness, was given the choice of paying a $5 fine or going to jail for 15 days.

Richard Manning was fined $3 for riding his bicycle on the sidewalk. A young man named McCann was also fined $1 for a like offense.

TIRED OF DRINKING SEWERAGE.

Rahway Wants Cranford to Stop Polluting Its Drinking Water.

Chairman Horton, of the Cranford Town Committee, and Mayor Lesly and City Attorney Vail of Rahway, held a conference last evening in relation to the sewage that Cranford is dumping into the Rahway. The water supply for Rahway is taken from the river a couple of miles below Cranford, and the officials of Rahway have about determined that the city shall not be compelled to drink diluted Cranford sewage any longer. An act passed by the Legislature of 1893 was framed with a view to fitting this case. It provides a heavy penalty for polluting the streams or water ways of the State with sewage or any other matter. Rahway delayed action under the express promise from Cranford that other sewage facilities would be provided at once, and the pollution has continued, but the promise has not been fulfilled, and no steps have been taken other than the joint conferences held with Westfield and Linden Township Committees to discuss the sewerage question. Now Linden has practically withdrawn from any further consideration of a public sewerage system. The people of Rahway are anxious to know what is going to be done about it, for they do not want sewage in their drinking water during another summer.

Dunellen News.

Edward Gray of Grant avenue has removed to West Dunellen.

Miss Nellie Hetzler of New York is visiting friends on Prospect place.

A peach tree on the Conover place near Dunellen was in full bloom on Saturday.

Mrs. Hannah Drake died Saturday, aged about 85. She had been ill for some time, and her death is attributed to old age.

A Titus who now lives on the "Jim" Dunham farm will on April 1 move to Elisha Cortell's place at the foot of Lincoln street.

Mrs. Catharine Doremus of Montville, Morris County, N. J., is a guest at Tayler's Hotel. Mrs. Doremus is the mother of Mrs. Taylor. She is over 80 years of age, and is still hale and hearty.

J. Decker of New Market died Saturday night, aged 59 years, from old age. He had been a long resident there and enjoyed fair to good health. Less than a week ago he walked from Dunellen and returned.

The spot at Dunellen on Saturday nights should be protected by an officer. Boys gather there, smoke cigarettes and chew tobacco, expectorating on the floor. The odor in the waiting room is foul, and drives many passengers out.

Capt. Cox has been a faithful and efficient pastor for 30 years of the Central Avenue M. E. church at the "lower crossing," where he has been for the past 12 years. He has attended to many services and says he has never had an accident for three years but Williams was a trifle lame, and for five years he was a watchman near the round houses. He was the first watchman in Dunellen.

Theatrical Notes.

During the past year thousands of people have been to Hoyt's and Aldrich's Gaiety theatre to see "1492." Now they will have to see it again because of the startling novelty to the Adelphi theatre. The fun is not the only attraction, but the clever specialties and the beautiful scenery and costumes. This is rendered possible by the most complicated and ingenious stage mechanical devices. The Japanese bridge is about six tons, and includes floating bridges, stage carpenters and electricians are employed to handle it properly. The blending of the living figures with the colored lights is startling. The deception is so perfect that it is difficult to tell where the pictures are living and breathing, and where they are simply stage effects, beautiful and appeal to the highest artistic taste. It must be remembered that this is the original Raleigh company which created so great a sensation throughout Europe and for the past eighteen months at Hoyt's and Aldrich's theatre, Business at the Garden theatre is booming, which is the reason that it is not deemed wise to withdraw from after eight weeks, and it is certainly to be congratulated on its good judgment in so doing. The new bill presented is more fascinating than at present and is always full of good things. Manager Hoyt's next new feature offered will be given at the 30th performance April 9.

Miss Jennie Shoemaker.

The talented young lady, Miss Jennie Shoemaker, who will appear with the Schumann Quartette under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. in the Stone on Friday evening, has been from the poetry certain songs which she has arranged as "readings" set to music and through the unique and distinctive performance she gives the exquisite rhythm of "Delsartean movements."

The Pittsburg Dispatch says: "The reading entitled 'Asleep at the Switch of Time,' was a difficult selection, but was faultlessly given by Miss Shoemaker. It displayed to advantage the lady's graceful appearance and expressive manner, and made her at once a favorite with the audience. She responded to an encore and later in the evening was her Delsartean exhibition in the second part of the programme, in which she introduced a novelty in a series of graceful Delsartean gestures, poses and attitudes, accompanied by music.

TRIM TOQUES AND CAPOTES.

Nearly All Spring Headwear Has Jet, Metal and Lace Ornamentation.

To the Editor of The News:—

The display of millinery this spring is as gay and varied as any one could desire. The manufacture of artificial flowers has risen from a handicraft almost to an art, and blossoms that are really wonderful imitations of nature crowd the counters of the shops and adorn the fanciful hats that this season has introduced. Violets and red roses are the reigning favorites, repeating the purple and carmine tints so fashionable in gowns. A very evident tendency on a period of frank coloring, for the half tints and subdued shades which have been considered "the thing" heretofore are giving place to brilliant hues. Near blues, vivid greens and unmistakable yellows.

Some very beautiful mixed straws are seen, mainly in combinations of green, pink, black and cream, and plain unspotted braids are also shown almost as flexible and soft as muslin. Many of the wide hats have the brim shaped in startling points, while in others it is bent and twisted in every conceivable fashion. Spangles always appear in the trimming and are used immoderately. A black medallion flat trimmed all with black had the best brim covered with black spangles of all shapes and sizes, while in lace hats the pattern is followed out on the net by them. The lace is gathered very little, of course.

Besides the large hats, a number of toques and capotes are shown. The trimming is often allowed to fall on the hair at the back. Sometimes it is ribbon bow, sometimes two or three jet ornaments with pendants, sometimes only of bunch of violets. There is scarcely a hat or bonnet to be seen into the construction of which lace of some sort does not enter, while everything glitters with metallic or jet decoration.

A stringless capote is shown with a crown of spangled guipure. A scant ruffle of lace takes the place of a brim and is arranged to droop upon the hair behind. A black rosette is placed in the middle and on each side, and in front are two black ostrich plumes. JUDIC CHOLLET.

Amherst's Coming Glee Club Entertainment.

An announcement was made some days ago of the entertainment to be given by the Amherst Glee, Banjo and Mandolin Clubs at the Casino, Thursday, April 5th. More attention is given, it is said, at Amherst, than at most colleges, to the cultivation of the musical clubs. The result of this year's training has been such that Miss Ellen Terry's brother, has engaged to take them on a trip abroad during this Summer vacation through England and Scotland, something entirely new for American college clubs.

Their concert at the Casino is about the last on their eastern trip in this country. After the concert a number of people will remain for the supper and dance, which will follow as soon as the audience can be cleared from the hall. Elliot, of New York, will furnish the music as for the Assemblies. The tickets for the dance are in the hands of the patronesses. Concert tickets are on sale at Reynolds' and Leggett's drug stores, at Martin's bicycle store and at the club. The general interest taken in the entertainment promises to make it one of the pleasant social successes of the Easter holidays, for which the committee may well thank the patronesses who have been so kind to the Glee Club, and at whose houses the clubs will be entertained while in town.

Nothing to Eat and 20 Miles More to Drive.

A pitiful sight was seen on East Front street last evening, when two boys drove up with a team of mules and a wagon load of chickens and turkeys and ducks. The oldest boy was bright and intelligent. He said his father, S. Heist, was moving from Lititz, Lanc. Co., Pa., 20 miles West of Allentown, to a farm near Lyons Farms near Roselle. The cost of transferring the live stock by freight, he said, was too great, so his father let him drive down with it. The two boys left Little Gap at four a. m., Sunday and put up at Easton over night; they reached here at nine p. m., last evening, hungry and without feed for the mules. The boys, however, were chucky, and at ten o'clock started again on their journey to Lyons Farms.

MADIE'S BLIND LOVER.

His Deposition In the Breckinridge-Pollard Case Read.

SHE WAS ALSO ENGAGED TO WOOD

Some Evidence Meant to Injure the Maiden Reputation of Miss Pollard Produced by the Defense — The Mock Marriage at Squire Tinsley's — Celebrities In Court.

WASHINGTON, March 27.—A miscellaneous aggregation of celebrities was attracted to the Pollard-Breckinridge trial. In a front row opposite the jury sat the governor of Indiana and several members of his staff, who had come to Washington to see the sights and who gazed ecstatically upon the silvery beard of the Kentucky orator newly cropped over Sunday, with expressions which betokened that they had not journeyed here in vain. Behind them was Captain Philip King of the Princeton university baseball team, supported by his warriors—athletes whose names are known throughout the land. Further in the back ground was the usual mixed audience of lawyers, talkers, smoking room loafers who come and go with every day of the trial.

There were no ladies, because the sex is outlawed from the room, but after the court had adjourned two fashionably attired women slipped in at a side door under the guidance of a bailiff and stood for five minutes in the shadow of suspicion upon her maiden character.

In the objections to the depositions for defense both sides were even. Judge Bradley considered several and expressed regret that he had not power to quash them all because of their needless obscenity. Being a staunch Presbyterian, moreover, he suggested that the newspaper correspondents should expurgate their reports in the interest of public morality.

The deposition of Sister Marie Hyacinthe, who was 74 years old and said that her memory was very bad, showed that she could not remember that Madeline Pollard had attended the Notre Dame convent at Reading, O., of which the sister had been superior in 1883.

From the records of the convent shown to her she recollected Miss Pollard's presence there. The present sister superior, Agnes, had identified the records showing the attendance of Miss Pollard.

Mr. Richard Rhodes of Wilkins, Co. Wood of Lexington, a carpenter, was one of those admitted by the court, subject to specific objections, to the hall of the White House of a Mrs. Keen, who pastured some stock for him, he had been introduced to Madeline Pollard, who played for him on the piano. When he came to leave, the young lady called him back. Afterward he called on her nearly every Sunday for some time. Two months after they were engaged to be married.

Her Engagement to Wood.

"She told me she loved me and all that," was the remark of the deponent. "When we came to fix the time, I told her I could not take her on a trip to Europe, as I had promised, because I was broke. She got mad, threw my ring at me and ran up stairs. She said that I was rich, insinuating that I had not told the truth when I said I was poor. I went back the next Sunday, but she would not see me."

"How old was she?" was the question. "Well, I could not say."

"Was she a child or a woman?"

"I should say she was a young woman. She never would tell her age."

The engagement ring had the initials of himself and Miss Pollard engraved on it. The question whether he had ever talked about Miss Pollard with James Rhodes was objected to, and all that conversation was ruled out.

In the cross examination the dependent said that Miss Pollard had seemed at that time to be a nice, virtuous girl, and he had heard nothing against her. His brothers had objected to the proposed marriage, threatening to keep property away from him, and he had gone to see her on the subject of separation, intending to break the engagement.

"You were in love with the girl, were you not?" he was asked.

"Yes, sir," was the answer.

"And would have married her but for the interference of your brothers?"

"Yes, sir."

Madeline's Blind Lover.

Perhaps the most interesting of the depositions was that from Alex Julian, the blind lover of Madeline Pollard, who figured as substitute husband in the mock marriage at Squire Tinsley's house on the Christmas of 1893. The cross examination of Attorney Stoll that he would read this deposition created a sensation.

Julian stated that he was 40 years old; had always lived in Ridgeport, Ky.; became blind in August, 1892, and had known Miss Pollard three or four years before that. He said:

"She was a young lady the first time I met her; must have been 15 or 16 years old; was receiving visits from young men. That's how I came to know her."

"Where did you spend the night of Dec. 24, 1893?"

"At Squire Tinsley's, about a quarter of a mile from Graffenburg."

"On Christmas morning did they have anything to drink?"

"Yes, sir."

"Who was it for me to have was Tom and Jerry. I understood that they had eggnog."

"Who were they?"

"Squire Tinsley and his family and Madie—Madeline Pollard."

Continuing, Julian testified: "After breakfast we were talking about matrimony, and somebody suggested that I should marry Madie. Owen Tinsley, the squire's brother, was pretty hilarious. He said he would marry her, and they stood up, and I married them. After awhile he left, saying he would leave her in my charge. We were talking, and then one of us suggested that the people were married they usually went somewhere. The other one concurred. We went up stairs, and I began drinking, and I had not helped her to drink and laid down beside her."

Squire Tinsley's eldest daughter had discovered the absence of the two and came bounding up stairs. While relating how he had once before that kissed Madeline Pollard the witness had increased it by saying his laudanum boy had replied: "I'll tell if I was kissing her, I must have just had

COXEY'S TRIBULATIONS.

Musicians Desert, Winds Blow, but the Army Moves On.

FOOD AND THE MILITIA AWAIT HIM

The Commonwealers Are Due at Alliance Today. Where There Are Forty Recruits. Coxey Will Not March His Men Back.—A Feast Preparing at Economy, Pa.

LOUISVILLE, O., March 27.—But 72 of Coxey's commonwealers had the courage to march away from Canton in the face of the wintry blast that was blowing at the time set for the start. The band deserted at that point also, and that took much of the spirit out of the soldiers. The march from Canton to this place through two inches of snow and in a temperature 20 degrees above zero was anything but a pleasant experience for the thinly clad wanderers, who had imagined that the entire trip to Washington would be a sort of springtime frolic.

Fifty tramps were picked up between Canton and this place, and when the army went into camp it numbered 123 aside from the officers. The claimed enlistments are 300.

Much excitement was created by the announcement that three of the tramps had robbed a man named John Ruegg of a watch and $10 in money. This was the first attempt at lawlessness, but no arrests were made.

No enforcements at Alliance.

The Coxey crowd is due in Alliance at noon today, and the excitement there is unbounded. There are many people who sympathize with Coxey, and the army will be reenforced there. Several assignments of food arrived from nearby country villages.

There is anxiety about the possibility of a row while it is there. It is stated that the men in the ranks—the privates—have said that if Coxey tries to abandon them on the pretext of going to a Chicago horse sale there will be a smashup of the whole business and a scrap to finish it. The members of Company E, Eighth regiment, understood that they may be called on at any moment, and if trouble occurs this afternoon the militia will be called out at once.

Forty destitute men, hungry and half frozen, arrived at Alliance on freight trains and sought shelter in the city lockup. They said they had come to join the commonweal army. Colonel Rickard, manager of the fair grounds, where the army camps, says that 14 men from Berghoht, a mining village in the northern part of Jefferson county, applied to him for lodgings until the army arrived.

Coxey and his army of the commonweal will get a royal reception when they strike quaint old Economy, Pa., if they ever get that far on their way to Washington.

This was decided on by the board of trustees of the Harmony society. A wagonload of potatoes, several hundred loaves of bread and a lot of good, old fashioned ginger snaps, such only as can be found at Economy, have been set aside for the army of peace. Furthermore it has been settled that a steer is to be slaughtered, dressed and cooked in the hillside ox-way for the eye Quixote and his followers approach the village. A member of the board says Trustee Rose met Coxey last week and extended an invitation to the commonweal to dine there. During the conversation Mr. Duss asked Coxey if he was going to march his army into Washington back to Massillon if his mission failed.

"March them back?" said Coxey in astonishment. "Not by a jugful. I will get on a train and come home myself, but the army must get home as best they can. To my mind this is the worst feature of the enterprise, that the army breaks camp in Washington, the men will start home in gangs. It will be simply a case of foraging all the way back. I am not bothering coming home than they will do on the way to Washington."

Coxey's Reply to Stewart.

CANTON, O., March 27.—Before leaving here Mr. Coxey gave out the following answer to Senator Stewart:

I have seen your letter addressed "General" Coxey. I am not a general. I am simply the president of the J. S. Coxey Good Roads association of the United States and ex officio of the Christian army of Christ. I am not leading an army, no matter how much a subsidized press, at the dictation of the money power, tries to make it appear. We are a band of pilgrims buried at us as being anarchists or a mob get more vagabondism ill advised admissions by our friends than by our enemies. The warfare of the silver men against gold and bonds under your leadership in the United States cannot be magnificent. Dispatches state that even the president of the United States is engaged in a deal with all stewed to make the Black Hills the sole interest of gold. So the die is cast. We shall march on peaceably and depend upon the organized labor of the country to defend us from Pinkertons, either as policemen, militiamen, United States soldiers or petty party politicians.

This is a nonpartisan movement, and he who is not with us is against us. We have no room for neutral ground, and "A house divided against itself cannot stand" is as true today as when our forefathers had use for it in the dark days of the civil war by Abraham Lincoln, the father of the Republican party. The Ruhlen has been crossed by the silver forces, and we will not falter. The fat must go forth now—"Pinnacle mentation of gold as well as silver."

J. S. COXEY.

Railroads Refuse Transportation.

DENVER, March 27.—Ben Hamilton's Denver contingent of Coxey's army will have to walk out of town unless they pay their fares. It was announced that the Santa Fe would be called upon to furnish a train for the pilgrims. At the Santa Fe office it was said that the company had refused to furnish a train to the California division of the army and would undoubtedly repeat the head should the Denver sentiment make its promised demand. The other roads will also decline to give free transportation.

Coxey's Veiled Goddess.

ALLIANCE, O., March 27.—A tremendous sensation was created here by the appearance of a veiled woman on a train from the west. She claims to be the wife of "The Unknown," the general executive commander of Coxey's army.

The Bridge's Maiden Voyage.

law and was admitted to the bar in 1845. He served during the Mexican war as a staff officer with the rank of major. In 1852 he was elected to congress as a Democrat, serving one term. He was a member of the legislature in 1859 and a presidential elector in 1860 on the Breckinridge ticket. He was a member of the secession convention of Georgia and entered the Confederate army as captain. Later he was chosen colonel of the Sixth Georgia infantry, promoted to be a brigadier general, and after serving some time in that grade he was commissioned a major general.

In 1876 he was elected governor of Georgia for four years, at the expiration of which term he was re-elected for two years under the new constitution. He was then elected to the United States senate and re-elected in 1888.

The house adjourned after a brief session on account of the death of Senator Colquitt. Some routine business was transacted pending the arrival of the resolutions adopted by the senate.

The death of Senator Colquitt of Georgia was announced to the senate by Mr. Gordon, the colleague of the dead statesman. In a few touching words he briefly recounted the services of the dead senator in the field, in politics and in his domestic life. The customary resolutions of regret was adopted, and a committee of 10 senators was appointed to accompany the remains to Macon.

COLONISTS WANT A VOTE

American In the Mosquito Reservation Make Demands.

COLON, March 27.—The American colony of the Mosquito reservation, through the United States consul, formally demands from the Nicaraguan commissioner, Senhor Lacayo, the formation of a provisional government in which the American colony shall be represented. The Americans desire to form part of a council, which, it is proposed, shall have the power of naming public officials, organizing the police, making the laws and creating courts. The Americans also demand the withdrawal of the Nicaraguan troops and the autonomy of the Mosquito reservation.

A delegation, headed by the United States consul, Mr. B. R. Seal, and Mr. Samuel Weil of Bluefields, should be now in Washington, and the view of placing the matter before the president of the United States. The British warship Canada is at this port awaiting a cable dispatch from the British admiralty and is expected to return to Bluefields shortly.

GEMS FOUND IN A BOOK

Attempt to Smuggle In Wedding Gifts Failed.

SENT TO MR. J. PIERPONT MORGAN.

An Indiscreet Friend of the New York Banker Who Tried to Evade Paying Uncle Sam $400 In Customs Duties—Bracelets Seized, but Allowed to Be Redeemed.

NEW YORK, March 27.—Secretary Carlisle has directed Collector Kilbreth to hand over to Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan a diamond and sapphire bracelet, appraised at $4,000, on payment of the duties, which amounted to $800. It transpired in this transaction that Mr. Morgan was the victim of a very peculiar transaction on the part of an old friend.

A week ago Deputy Collector Wilson, in charge of the customs bureau at the New York postoffice, received a package in the mail from Florence addressed to Mr. Morgan. It is necessary for the deputy collector to open all packages for the purpose of determining the customs duty on the contents. It turned out that this package addressed to Mr. Morgan was a beautifully bound volume of Dwight L. Moody's sermons on "The Higher Life."

Hole In the Book.

Mr. Wilson looked through the book, and he discovered that a square, say about 3 by 3 inches, had been cut out of the center, leaving a receptacle in which was the aforesaid diamond and sapphire bracelet. No invoice accompanied the book. Mr. Wilson carried the book and the bracelet to Collector Kilbreth.

The latter, being convinced that Mr. Morgan had no knowledge of this proceeding of his friend, sent to him and explained to him the nature of Mr. Wilson's discovery. Mr. Morgan was greatly alarmed. It turned out that the book was sent by Mr. Fabbri, at one time a well known New York newspaper man, who is now in Florence. The bracelet was intended as a wedding gift for Mr. Morgan's daughter, who is shortly to be married, and Mr. Fabbri had sent the gift to the city by he had, much to Mr. Morgan's annoyance.

The Bracelet Released.

Collector Kilbreth required Mr. Morgan to make a statement of the case, so that it might be forwarded to Secretary Carlisle, with a request that the bracelet be released on payment of duty. The bracelet had been appraised at $4,000, and with the duty of 10 per cent on diamonds the full duty on the bracelet would be $800. Mr. Morgan, in his statement to Secretary Carlisle, made it plain that he was not responsible in any way for the attempted fraud of Mr. Fabbri. This document was forwarded to the secretary, and Collector Kilbreth received authority from Mr. Carlisle to release the bracelet to Mr. Morgan on the payment of the $800 duty.

CHICAGO, March 27.—The state's attorney will request a continuance in the Freedergast hearing for 10 days.

DENVER'S MUDDLE.

More Legal Decisions, but No Peace In Sight.

DENVER, March 27.—Judge Gitpen, sitting in the district court, quashed the injunction issued by Judge Graham against Governor Waite, Mayor Van Horn and Fire and Police Commissioners Rogers, Barnes and Mullins, restraining them from attempting to take possession of the office or interfering with the duties of the other commissioners, Messrs. Orr and Martin, whom Governor Waite removed, and dismissed the contempt proceedings. The court holds that Orr and Martin, in endeavoring to hold office by force and after having been notified of their removal by the governor, are violating the law themselves and are usurpers, and that Mullins and Barnes have the right to peacefully assume at once the offices to which they have been appointed. Immediately after the decision was rendered, upon the advice of their attorneys, Mullins and Barnes went to the city hall and requested Orr and Martin to turn the office over to them.

This they promptly refused. The new board met in the mayor's office and organized. They immediately discharged Chief of Police Stone and appointed John Farley in his stead. The lieutenants likewise were dismissed, and it is understood that decapitations in the fire department will begin today. Chief Stone and his officers refused to recognize the authority of the new board, and the department is still under his control.

Attorney M. F. Taylor, for Orr and Martin, claims that Judge Glynn's decision does not settle the matter, but the case stands just as it did the day the appointments were made and before the injunction was granted. He has advised his officers and Chief Stone to ignore any orders of the new board. If the old board persists in its refusal to give way, the counsel for the new board will apply for a writ of mandamus, by which means the old members can be speedily ousted.

An "Ill Star's" Luncheon.

A physician can go a long way without eating, but he will only get a few inches at what is called a square meal, they make short work of it. It doesn't seem to matter much to the alligator what the square meal consists of, so long as he can get it down. Anything that he can devour without hurting his teeth or unduly stretching his swallowing apparatus is food for him.

An instance of this is mentioned in a recent issue of the Christian Union. A number of people visiting the Zoo in the Central Park, New York, were gathered about the alligators' tank watching the large reptiles disporting themselves in the water. Suddenly a gust of wind caught the broad-brimmed hat of a young girl in the watching crowd, whisked it off her head, and landed it on the edge of the tank. Before it could be recovered, one of the alligators caught sight of it, his intentions manifested no doubt by the beautiful artificial rose with which it was trimmed. He gnashed it, rapt in admiration for an instant. His jaws slowly opened, and then closed with a snap over the hat, which disappeared down the creature's throat—all except a single rose, which, however, did not escape, for in a moment the alligator's eye rested upon it, and it as quickly followed the rest of the hat into the scaly creature's capacious maw. Then, the alligator winked his other eye, as much as to say: "That was fine. Give me a dozen more."

Every one enjoyed the spectacle except the young girl who lost the hat, who is still, as she was then, undoubtedly of the opinion that alligators are very impolite creatures, whatever other virtues they may possess.—Harper's Young People.

WOMAN AND HOME.

HOW TO MAKE A PLAIN GIRL ATTRACTIVE IF NOT PRETTY.

How to Keep Bread—Women and Accident Insurance—Physical Culture at Home—The Curtice—Woman as a Citizen—For the Candle Party.

She never thought she had any points. She had quite made up her mind to the irremediable ugliness which, she had been told, was her lot. Then spoke a good, clever, wise woman. "Ask your mother to let you come to spend the day with me when next you are going to a party, and we will see what can be done." So the poor, ugly duckling went, and this is what her fairy godmother did for her:

She took her first for a short expedition, which interested and amused but did not tire her. Then she gave her a thoroughly comfortable lunch and made her lie down in a warm room for two or three hours. The short, refreshing sleep induced by the warmth and quiet ended and a cup of tea enjoyed, the dressing began. Now, at home the routine of the day had never been interrupted because there was to be a party that night. The regulation work and afternoon walk having been taken, the girl reached home tired, but in time to have a tasty cup of tea and dress. The operation of dressing was carried on in a cold room, giving time to get thoroughly chilled, so that the transition to a warm drawing room sent the blood with unbecoming force to the face.

But the wise woman did nothing so foolish. She made the girl dress leisurely before a good fire. She taught her it is a great mistake to stand before a looking glass to do the hair. It is better to sit and take it easy, else a tired expression comes into the face. She allowed no hasty washing with water to irritate the skin, but refreshed the face gently with a cloth dipped in rosewater. She kept up a running commentary on the girl's points as she brought them out one by one.

"Your hair looks bright as the light falls on it. I admire that pretty chestnut brown, with shades of red and gold in it. There, now, your complexion looks as clear as possible. My dear, how bright and rested your eyes look! Now, do not use the hand mirror to see how pretty that curve of your neck is, with those little curls just waving about it."

And the fairy fingers of hope and happiness touched the girl's eyes with light, and tinged her cheeks with soft color, and gave her gait a firmness and elasticity which prevented all awkwardness, and when she entered the crowded room she was able to look people in the face and let them see her eyes with the newborn light of pleasure, and satisfaction dancing in them, and the rest of this girl's story—is it not written in the chronicles of her happy life, and is not the name of this dear, judicious woman engraved upon her heart?

The moral of my little preachment is that if a girl is plain she won't make her any prettier by dinning into her ears that she is plain, and that attractiveness, if not pretty, is within the reach of all women who realize their good points and that it is a mistake to tire one's self out before a party.—Housewife.

How to Keep Bread.

One hears a great deal of talk about moist bread, and a large number of housekeepers shut their bread in airtight boxes to keep it moist. Such barbarous treatment of bread may be efficient in keeping it moist, but bread from which fresh air is excluded always has a disagreeable, clayey flavor and is unpalatable to people of cultured tastes, who appreciate the nutty sweetness that is a prominent characteristic of all good bread.

The foolish notion of keeping bread moist had its origin in bad cookery. Most of the stuff made by bakers has to be eaten fresh and moist, or not eaten at all. It is so light and woolly that if exposed to the air a few hours it grows dry and husky and is almost as unsavory and unnutritious as chips.

The breadmaker of good conscience bread is similar in character and is affected in a similar manner by exposure to the air. But properly made bread—such bread as ought to be in every intelligent home and on every Christian table three times a day—grows sweeter by exposure to the air and is not at its best until two or three days old.

Bread should be kept in a well covered box or jar, but it should not be wrapped in cloths, and the box or jar in which it is kept should have small holes in the top or sides, through which the fresh air can have access. Associations of bread are taken from the oven they should be exposed freely to pure air, and at no time afterward should they be excluded from it. Make good bread, put it in a well ventilated box after it is perfectly cool, and it will keep sufficiently moist at least a week.—Mrs. Emma P. Ewing in Jennes-Miller Monthly.

Women and Accident Insurance.

Two young ladies, teachers, en route for the west, mindful of the perils of the trip, thoughtfully purchased two accident policies for $5,000 each in favor of their widowed mothers. In large type on the margins is printed "$5,000—$25 per week," while on the face is printed conspicuously, "In the sum of $5,000 for death or $25 per week for immediate, continuous and total disability." Following this is printed, "Subject always to conditions indorsed on the back hereof." These policies were purchased at the railway ticket office just prior to the start of the train, and the ladies were happy in their thought that if they were killed on the way their mothers would be provided for, or if they were injured their expenses to the limit of $25 a week would be met.

But would they?

Not much, for among the "conditions" on the back is one which reads, "This insurance does not cover persons under 18 or over 60 years of age, nor cripples nor women, except for death."

Queer, isn't it?

How many purchasers of accident policies read the "conditions on the back?" The large red lettered $5,000 and the conspicuous $25 weekly are what catch the eye and fool the public. So these young ladies might have lost their arm, foot, leg or use of all, but, being "women," would not have benefited in $25 a week or any other sum—although, being women, they were permitted to pay premiums just the same.—New York Recorder.

Flowers at Dinner Parties.

The art of decorating dinner tables has developed all its glory in the last few years. Formerly a plateau of flowers for the center of the table and a little smilax on the chandelier were thought to be sufficient. Now dinners are large and elaborate, possibly three plateaus, a large design in the center of the table, nicely obstructing the view across, were added. Sometimes there was a large pyramid of fruits made up of red bananas and apples, yellow lemons and oranges, bunches of grapes dangling down, and perhaps a little cactus or some hardy ferns to give the finishing touches.

All this is changed. Nothing should obstruct the line of vision. Flowers should either lie close to the table, or when high effects are wished narrow shafts of medium height containing long stemmed flowers carefully arranged should be used. Sometimes clusters are made and arranged on a plateau, then given to the guests after dinner. It is far more graceful to toss flowers with long stems arranged in a cut glass bowl, and if it is wished to give them to the guests it may be done informally, or bouquets may be tied in each lady's glass and boutonnieres at each gentleman's.—H. H. Battles in Ladies' Home Journal.

Her Pitiful Condition.

"One of the most pitiful cases of necessity," said a New York minister's wife, "that I encounter is that of the middle aged woman forced to become self supporting. There is almost nothing that she can do One who came to me had taught music years ago, before she was married, and she spoke of taking that up again. I dared not encourage her, for in the competition with modern methods her old fashioned knowledge would have no chance.

"She knows some stitches of fancy work and lacemaking, valueless by the side of the art needlework of today. She had painted on china and wood, she says, but I felt there would be no demand for the products of her brush. Another thing was that when she had on and it was with a feeling of hopelessness that I undertook to reply to her very hopeful question, 'Now, what, Mrs. Davis, would you advise me to start in upon?'"

Reading For Children.

Mr. Horace Scudder believes that reading would become delight to children if after they had learned the rudiments the same form of great imaginative literature" were given them for a reading book and other works continued year after year until they have finished high school courses. Such reading should be done, he believes, without analysis or extensive comment to turn it into a lesson book, but should be used to stimulate the imagination of the child while his mind is most impressionable.

Of teaching the young to write English, he says, among other things: "It is a blunder, I am convinced, to set a child to reading Hawthorne's 'Wonder Book,' for instance, and then to call him to tell the story over again in his own language." One may do this with great profit when a child has been reading a historic fact or a biographical sketch, but when a piece of literature is a work of art the thought, the fancy and the language in which it is couched are inseparable. The latter may we set the child to copying patiently and carefully the whole story or poem, that we may impress upon him the whole integrity of the production."

Tight Gowns and the Heart.

A doctor has made an experiment to determine the influence on woman of tight clothing as regards the action of the heart. The test was the running of 440 yards in loose gymnasium garments and covering the same distance with the corsets on. The resulting time was 3 minutes 30 seconds for each trial, and in order that there should be no cardiac excitement or depression following the test the second trial was made the next day.

Before beginning the running the average heart impulse was 86 beats to the minute. After running the above named distance the heart impulse was 152 beats to the minute, the average natural waist girth being 25 inches. The next day corsets were worn during the exercise, and the average girth of waist was found to be 26 inches. The same distance was run in the same time by all, and immediately afterward the average heart impulse was found to be 168 beats per minute.—Medical Journal.

Elderly Women and Round Hats.

Isn't it a pity that so many elderly women will persist in wearing round hats? No where does an ugly bonnet show more plainly than in the curve of the cheek and neck, that is so charming in youth, so unattractive in later life. The telltale line is shaded by the kind, becoming strings, and some women recognize this and take advantage of it. Many others continue on their way, generous to behold, in the unbecoming hats that would be quite appropriate in women 10 or 15 years the juniors of the well satisfied wearers. And the worst of it is that there is absolutely no help for it. You may tell a woman that her husband drinks, her son bets and her daughter flirts, that she herself is extravagant or has the reputation of being a scold, a coquette or a blue stocking without seriously affecting her equanimity. But as you value her good will never dare to hint that she wears a hat too youthful for a matron of her years.—Kansas City Times.

American Women.

Mrs. Eleanor C. Gregory, in an article on English and American women, shows her good taste and good sense by her discrimination by a frankly expressed preference for the Americans. She thinks we have better manners than the English and says so in these words:

"Let me wind up by expressing a hope that English girls may soon enjoy universally the social training which is the portion of their American cousins, for I do not believe that a better school for readiness and grace of manner exists anywhere. It is to this training that I would attribute the greater average in America of women who exhibit a graceful self possession, while maintaining that in England the highest ideal and standard of good breeding is less rarely attained."

Selecting Wall Paper.

The housekeeper whose inclination and pocketbook point to selection of wall paper, curtains, etc., without advice of decorator, should remember one point. Small figure, gives a chaste, characteristic effect to a room. A certain freedom of design is required, and the eye of experience will at once turn from what is termed a "weak hanging" without giving it second consideration. Harmony is defined as furnishings in one color, hands of the rose and thread are overtaxed and weakened. One day the person notices that the hearing is less acute than usual, and the sense of smell seems defective. This is of course put down to a cold, and but little is thought of it. After a time the entire head becomes affected, and there are the nerves and lungs complicated which are likely to end in chronic if not fatal illness. Smelling salts are a prolific cause of deafness. All strong and pungent odors, particularly those which act upon the secretory processes, should be avoided as far as possible.—New York Journal.

The Care of Food.

So few cooks or housekeepers seem to know what every article of food should be kept covered until it appears on the table. Milk and butter, for instance, should be kept in airtight vessels and kept covered. They both take up every odor flying in the air and are positively harmful to take into the stomach after standing uncovered for an hour or two, for not only odors, but the animalcula that fill the air are attracted to milk and butter. Uncovered jelly is a menace to family health. It is in gelatin jelly that expert bacteriologists imprison germs of disease to watch them propagate. They seem to thrive better on that kind of food than on any other, yet in two-thirds of the pantries in the city will be found half used dishes or glasses of jelly standing uncovered.—Montreal Star.

Coal Oil Lamps.

Some people think that because coal oil lamps often give off an odor it is one of the concomitants of that illuminator, which is not a fact. A lamp has to be as regularly and carefully cleaned as a furnace, and if either gets clogged up there is no comfort to be had. Coal oil makes the best light for reading purposes by all odds. The lamp should be emptied of all the oil once a week to cleanse the bowl of all impurities. It should be carefully filled each day, for when the wick has to be sent from too great a depth the lamp is sure to smoke. The wick should be trimmed every morning and the burner carefully freed from bits of charred wick. Use only the best oil. If these directions are followed, you will have no trouble with your lamps.—Exchange.

Scalding.

Scalding is worse than useless. With children it arouses antagonism, if only because many kinds of scalding are contagious. One should wait until the irritation subsides before correcting any one. A reprimand given in the presence of others is apt to arouse a feeling of mortified pride that quite nullifies any impression that might otherwise be made, and it is an exceptional person that can be trusted to take the boner of a scolding. It is apt to gather force en route. Argument between parents and children is unseemly, and it is always best to avoid letting the spirit of contest become too important.—Exchange.

The Nails.

All the sayings that trimming the hair hang loose will break the ends are ridiculous. The natural provisions for the healthful growth of the hair do not necessarily include a ribbon or even a shoestring for tying up the braids. The ends of the hair should be clipped off once a month, precisely as people trim their nails and for the same reason—that the ends, being the oldest part of both hair and nail and farthest from the roots and farthest from the vitalizing power, may be dead, dry, brittle and likely to split with the wearing.—New York Mail and Express.

Handy In the Kitchen.

One of the handiest pieces of furniture about a kitchen table is a thick lipped oyster shell. It makes a much nicer pot and skillet scraper than an "iron dish cloth." The chain arrangements which are used for that purpose are all abominations. They get full of infinitesimal bits of cabbage, burned potatoes, bits of fried onion, broiled steak and the like, and only a bath of concentrated lye and the application of scrub brush will clean them. An oyster shell can be kept as clean as a silver spoon.—Philadelphia Call.

A Sewing Machine Rug.

A good thing in household economy is a sewing machine rug. It should be made of crash or something of that nature and be about six feet square. A worn sheet might be colored some neutral shade and cleverly utilized. Set the machine near the middle of the rug; then you can keep all your snippings and threads on the rug, and in the evening pick it up and shake off the litter without having to sweep and dust the whole room.—Detroit News.

The Suffrage Question.

Some men think women do not want enfranchisement, but they do. They do not always show a fight, but every night 30,000,000 women in the United States offer up a prayer for their political rights. They will feel degraded until these are given them. We want to see the vassal male expunged from the voting clause of the constitution of this nation, and of every one of its sovereign states.—Mary Lynde Craig.

Women's Bonnets a Blessing.

Men become bald. Why? Because they wear close hats and caps. Women are never bald except by disease, and they do not wear close headgear. Men never lose a hair below where the hat touches the head, not when the hair has been cut from too great a depth the lamp is sure to smoke. The wick should be trimmed every morning and the burner carefully freed from bits of charred wick. Use only the best oil. If these directions are followed, you will have no trouble with your lamps.—Exchange.

BOMB IN CHURCH.

An Explosion Which Lifted Pastor Crane From His Feet.

SMITHTOWN, N. Y., March 27.—The wildest excitement prevailed here when it became known that an attempt was made to blow up the little Methodist church at St. James, a few miles from here. The explosion occurred while Pastor Crane was delivering his sermon.

A bomb or cartridge had been placed directly under the floor of the alcove in which the minister stood.

When the shock came, the pastor seemed to be lifted from the floor, and immediately there was a wild scramble for the door. Several men were knocked down in the mad rush for the door, but no one was hurt. When the excitement subsided, investigation showed that aside from the jar to the building no damage had been done.

Under an alcove in the rear of the church, which is accessible from the outside of the church, were found the smoking remains of a curious looking machine which is said to be a bomb. Pieces of charred waddling were found in the hole made in the ground by the explosion. The trustees have offered a reward for evidence which will lead to the conviction of the guilty party.

New Railroad Opened.

PITTSBURG, March 27.—The new Pittsburg, Morgantown and Fairmount railroad was opened, the first train load being a delegation of 50 West Virginians, including ex-Governor Fleming, to this city. The new railway connects with the Monongahela Valley road and will tap all the lumber districts of West Virginia. Coal on its way to the lakes can now be conveyed cheaper.

More Penniless Pedestrians.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., March 27.—Three young English gentlemen who left Derby, England, on Feb. 6 in the attempt to make a penniless trip from Derby to Monterey, Mexico, and return, reached here today; March 17, 1895, with $5,000 earned on the pedestrian trip, left here for Albany by the highway.

Buried In One Grave.

READING, Pa., March 27.—Henry M. Hoffman and his wife Catharine were buried in this city in one grave. Mr. Hoffman died suddenly in the west of heart disease, and when his wife heard of it she fell dead before its arrival in this city she, fell dead beside the coffin.

A SILVER WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. William M. Runyon Celebrate the 25th Anniversary of their Marriage.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Runyon of East Front street, was a glow with lights from cellar to roof, last Monday evening, the occasion being the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage. Those invited responded generously and the house was filled with people, old and young, who came to extend their congratulations to their host and hostess, and wish them continued happiness as they start upon another period of a quarter of century life. Guests were present from New York, Brooklyn and other places, besides a goodly sprinkling of Plainfielders. Several tables were covered with the many handsome presents for silverware is always in order when the wedding day has come and gone twenty-five times.

Besides the gifts from friends, Mr. Runyon was munificently remembered by the United States Leather Co., of New York, with which firm he is connected. After a bountiful supply of the best of the good things kept by caterers had been served, the young folks gilded through the spacious parlors to the enchanting strains of the violin and piano. The music was in full evidence that some of the older ones were vividly brought back to the days of yore and joined the dancers, in old time form.

But perfection before a good time, and the hospitality tendered made time slip away so rapidly that Tuesday morning stole a march on all hands before the usual order of things was restored, and peaceful slumber stepped in to take possession and quickly do what mirth had tried to steal the late hours of night.

—Two Central Railroad employes, an engineer and fireman, were discharged on Monday for not stopping at Avenue A., Bergen Point, according to orders.

—The work of digging the cellar for Mr. Cox's new Queen Anne house at Netherwood, was begun to-day. The building, when completed, will cost about $6,000.

—The Ladies' Aid Society of the Monroe avenue chapel has taken charge of the financial affairs, and under their care taking the chapel and its congregation are prospering

—Mrs. Francis of Elizabeth will speak in the W. C. T. U. rooms Thursday afternoon at 3.30 of the World's and National W. C. T. U. convention. Everyone is invited to be present.

—One young man, who joined the Salvation Army a few days ago, has been given until to-night to either leave the army or leave home. The boy still claims allegiance to the army.

—The election of officers of the Crescent avenue Sunday-school was postponed last night, as there was not a quorum present. The election will be held Sunday afternoon after Sunday-school.

—A boy horse broke loose from a post on Richmond street yesterday afternoon and ran around through Third street to Fourth street, where it was caught and taken into Seddon's livery stable. The owner called for it later.

—An apron sale and afternoon tea will be held in the parish building of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Evens, on the afternoons and evenings of Thursday and Friday of next week. The proceeds are for the help Dpaidate the debt on the parish building.

The Pullen-Coode Case.

Last Summer Jacob Coode threw hot water on a dog belonging to Mrs. Pullen, sending it to that life in some out. Mrs. Pullen brought suit against Coode before Justice Nodyne and secured a verdict for damages. The case was appealed and is being tried at Elizabeth to-day.

A SCHOOL OR A SEWER.

THAT'S WHAT THE LEGISLATURE IS TO DECIDE FOR PLAINFIELD.

Two New Bills.—One to Abridge the Powers of the Board of Education.—The Other to Enable Simply a Majority to Decide for Sewers.

Another effort is to be made to compel the Plainfield Board of Education to consult Common Council before incurring liabilities to such an extent as is involved in the erection of a new school building. To this end a bill is now before the Legislature requiring that for sums larger than say $300 the question is to be submitted to Common Council, which shall decide upon the expediency of making the appropriation and included in the annual budget of taxes, instead of having no option in the matter.

This is the fight of two years ago renewed. The contest is revived by the proposal of the Board of Education to erect a new high school, which is nominally to cost $75,000, but which it is claimed will cost including furnishing not less than $75,000, and require an increase of $10,000 per year in the taxes to run it. In this connection a petition is now being circulated among taxpayers to request the Board to defer for another year the proposed building operations, because people do not feel they can afford the expenditure at this time, even though the money may be raised by bonds and paid off in installments each year.

Right on top of this, however, those interested in the sewerage question have a bill before the Legislature making simply a majority of the property owners owning the land to be improved sufficient, instead of requiring three fifths as at present before such a work can be undertaken. It is meant for Plainfield, where those in favor of a sewerage system have been unable to secure the necessary two-fifths, though they claim to have a majority.

The one move is intended to prevent at this time an expenditure of $30,000 to $75,000, the other is to make an expenditure of from $60,000 to $120,000. It is not deemed wise to try and undertake both expenditures together. Therefore those who want the sewerage system begun want the high school put off. Deferred, and those who want the high school want the sewerage system deferred. The referendum would solve such a matter most pleasantly all around.

The Common Council wish to have the sewerage system pushed forward as quickly as possible, if at all, so that after streets are once put in order they will not be torn up again for the pipes, and thus make to cost the tax payers double what they would otherwise.

A Clipping Sociable.

The "clipping" sociable at Grace M. E. church last night was much enjoyed. Packages of unknown contents were hung on strings around the room. By paying ten cents anyone could take his choice of the packages on the line, and clip it off.

After the "clipping off" there came the funny part of it to unwrap large quantities of paper which would oftimes result in the discovery of a hair-pin or a clothes pin.

Mr. Taft purchased a rather lengthy package only to be rewarded with finding a bunch of "jumping jacks" when the bundles of paper were removed.

Someone else secured a cabbage.

The sociable was under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. The following committee had charge: Mrs. John H. Carney, chairman; Mrs. W. H. Griffen, Mrs. Anna Moss, Mrs. L. A. Hummer, and Mrs. E. J. Winckler.

Officers of the Mission Band.

The Young Ladies Union Band of the First Baptist church held a meeting yesterday afternoon and elected the following officers:

President—Mrs D. D. Brokaw.
First Vice President—Mrs. George H. Batchelor.
Second Vice President—Miss Laura Rungon.
Corresponding Secretary—Miss Ida Yerkes.
Treasurer—Miss Edith Harold.
Recording Secretary—Miss Grace Yerkes.

Entertained Grand Army Men.

Winfield Scott Post No. 73, G. A. R. entertained Grand Army Men from U. S. Grant Post, of New Providence, last night in their hall on East Front street. Remarks were made by several of the veterans.

A collation prepared by the ladies, was enjoyed. After the meeting the members and visitors accepted an invitation to attend the Veteran's fair, to take a look at "old one horn" cannon which is to be given to the most popular G. A. R. Post in New Jersey.

STEVENS RELEASED.

But King is Held in $300 Bail for the Grand Jury.

There was a hearing last night before Justice Mosher in the case of Harry Witters vs. Thomas King and George Stevens. The latter was charged by Witters with atrocious assault.

The complainant was the first witness. He testified that on the evening of March 20th, he had been called out of Brittin's Hotel, by King. When he came out, he said, King knocked him down and then took hold of his coat collar and placed him on his feet again. He then escaped from King and ran down the street, with his assailant in pursuit. King caught him and again he got away and started to run into Brittin's Hotel, when he was stopped by George Stevens, who stood in the doorway and prevented him from escaping. The boy said King then came up and struck him with a stick, at the same time saying that he would kill him. Mr. Stevens then interfered and took the club away from King, while Witters escaped into the hotel.

The boy was corroborated in his story by Charles Johnson, John Wenzel, Samuel Krisey, Charles Randolph, Fred. Sauns, Herbert Pound, and Bennet Brittin.

The defendant, King, was not put upon the stand. George Stevens and Walter Manning testified to the assault. Each admitted that King had said he would have killed the boy.

Justice Mosher released Stevens but held King under $300 bail for the Grand Jury, deciding that it was simple assault.

Lawyer Aogleman appeared for the complainant and Ex-Judge Codington for the defendant.

Charmed and Delighted the Audience.

The concert of the Schumann Lady Quartette at the First Baptist church, was one of the finest musical entertainments ever given in Harrisburg. The singing of the Quartette was marvelous. Sweeter, stronger, more musical voices were never heard in this city and the audience was charmed and delighted. From the opening number "Lein du Bae? given with precision and sweetness to the closing "Slumber Song" the quartette sang enchantingly. Those who did not attend missed a rare treat.—Harrisburg, Pa., Telegraph.

Hetfield or Nobody.

[Elizabeth Herald.]

The storm that has been raised by the recommendation of John L. Hetfield for Postmaster of Plainfield is not disturbing the serenity of Congressman Dunn. He says he has no doubt that the Department will appoint Hetfield, but if it does not, he will make no other recommendation for that office. He says he believes Hetfield is a proper man for the place and thinks his appointment will strengthen the Democratic party in Plainfield by its freedom from faction influences.

A Trip to Ireland.

The members and friends of the East Third Street Mission were taken on a trip to Ireland last night, by Mr. C. E. Hepburn and his stereopticon. After the trip was finished he showed some comic views.

Miss Bessie Blair sang a solo and Miss Florence Dodge rendered a piano solo during the evening.

Still Another Will Case.

The Catharine Craig will case is now under way. R. V. Lindabury and Craig A. Marsh are the lawyers in the case, the former appearing for the caveators and the latter in support of the will. The Surrogate heard evidence yesterday and adjourned the hearing to Friday.

Taylor Still in Jail.

F. L. Taylor of this city, the Cornell sophomore who refuses to testify, is back in the county jail. The decision has been received from Judge Smith in the habeas corpus proceedings, and Taylor's lawyers are far less confident than they were of a favorable issue.

Decided in the Affirmative.

The debate under the auspices of the Boys' Branch of the Y. M. C. A., last evening, was decided by the Rev. W. E. Hoagman. The question: Resolved, "That England is a better place of residence than France" was decided in the affirmative.

THANK THE NEWSPAPERS.

Firemen Grateful for Aid from the Daily Papers.

There was a marked increase at the Firemen's Fair last night over the night before, and if the crowd keeps on growing each evening in proportion the hall won't be big enough Saturday night. All that are able to should attend and help make the affair a success, for no one deserves more than the fire laddies, who often times risk their lives to save property.

Several merchants contributed articles for the fair yesterday, among them G. Q. Packer, who gave two elegant tables, and F. M. Demarest, who sent up numerous boxes of breakfast tea.

Mr. D. A. Woodhouse has sent the firemen a fire hat and a fatigue hat has been received from Mr. Smith, a New York firemen.

Ladies are admitteed free. There is dancing every night.

The company has procured handsome badges for the floor manager, assistant floor manager and floor committee.

At a committee meeting a vote of thanks was extended to the daily papers for their aid in publication of items about the fair.

Woman and Soul.

Once upon a time there lived a woman, and the woman was lonely, so she cried to the gods: "Oh, I am very lonely! Give me some one to comfort me." And the gods heard and were sorry for the woman. And they took a beautiful human soul, perfect in every part, and clothed it in the garments of a man, and brought it to the woman.

When the woman heard them coming, she was very glad, for she said: "Now I shall be no longer lonely. Now there will be one to keep me company." But when she saw the soul she gave a great cry and fell down as one dead. And when she had come to herself she cried: "Oh, take it away! I cannot bear it! It wears an old fashioned coat, and, behold, I see a speck of grease upon it."

Then the gods were wroth with the woman and took the soul away and left her lonely. So the woman sat and lamented. Time passed.

"Oh, ye gods!" cried the woman once again, "I am very lonely. Give me some one to comfort me."

Then the gods had compassion on the woman, and they took a block of wood, and carved out of it a beautiful human form, and dressed both in the latest fashion, and gave it an eyeglass and a flower for its buttonhole, and brought it to the woman.

When the woman saw it, she rejoiced greatly, and she opened her arms and took it, and kissed it, and fondled it, and was satisfied. And the woman called the figure a man, and she thought it was alive.—New York Recorder.

The above is an extract from the News of Monday, March 19th.

SEQUEL.

A Plainfielder sends us the following sequel of the above:

Time passed:

"Oh ye gods! cried the woman once again.

"I still long for something."

And the gods heard and were sorry for the woman. And they took a beautiful human soul, perfect in every part fashioned it into the form of a fawn. And with joy brought it to the woman.

When the woman heard them coming she was passing glad, for she said now I shall have that same thing for which I longed.

But when she saw the babe she gave a great cry as formerly and fell as before. And when she had a little recovered she again shrieked, "Oh! take it away, I cannot love it, it is helpless."

If cannot take care of itself and behold ye gods it is naked and must needs be clothed.

Then the gods were exceeding wroth with the woman and took the sweet babe away, and left her longing for a something still.

Time passed.

Then again the woman for the fourth time besought the gods to send her a something.

Then the kind gods again had compassion upon the woman and took a Tommy Pug with a curly tail and put a ribbon on him and a collar about his neck and brought him to the woman.

When the woman saw him her soul was in ecstacies and she opened her arms, and took him and kissed him and fondled him and was satisfied with him at last the woman called him sweet names and carried him under her arm wheresoever she went, either upon the promenade or on her carriage and devoted her whole time and thought to him; also he ate at her table and she was sure he was alive, and her whole soul was thereby satisfied.

WELL STRAPPED IN.

Why the Round Waist Continues Popular With Women Wearers.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—

The round waist promises to continue in favor and to be used not only for thin summer goods, but for street suits made up in heavier materials. Only a modder waist can bear the tight belt confining a gathered bodice, but as long as gowns are made in two pieces so long will the tight belt hold its own and be worn by the masses of women, irrespective of their size. From an artistic point of view, the loose, dropping girdle is infinitely preferable, being more natural, but it can be worn only with the one piece gown.

The general public of today, however, is not particularly artistic. The feminine part of it likes to feel itself well strapped in and comfortably boiler plated, while the masculine part approves the custom as "neat" and having "go," so the round waist found favor as soon as it appeared, and it seems to intend to remain as the only alternative of the long coat, which is a matter more formal by, suited especially for middle aged and elderly women, although not confined to them. There is a juvenile air about the belted bodice, and nobody who is no longer young does well to assay it. Nearly all the separate silk waists are made in this fashion, although in trimming and finish they show such variety. The round gathered bodice is of course made over a fitted lining in all cases, as it otherwise becomes baggy and shapeless.

The great objection to this mode lies in the difficulty experienced in preventing the fastening of the skirt from slipping below the belt. Nobody has yet invented an infallible method for keeping it in place, and it is doubtful if any skirt can be persuaded to stay up by any means short of having it sewed on the skirt band all the way around and fastened in the back, the dress bodice to be worn over it.

A Parisian model shows a street costume made of gray pongee de soie. It has a perfectly plain round skirt and a round bodice gathered at the waist under a belt closing in front with a large steel buckle. The sleeves, consisting of a large balloon puff, gathered on the middle of the outside of the arm under a deep cuff, extend only to the elbow, where they are met by long gloves. A directoire cravat in white silk muslin trimmed with lace falls over the front of the corsage. A wide black hat trimmed with ostrich plumes is worn.

The Missive Contradicts Part of the Plaintiff's Evidence, and Madeline Has Sworn That It Is a Forgery—Judge Jere Wilson Does Some Cross Examining.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—The defense in the Pollard-Breckinridge trial took a new tack and ventured upon the troubled sea of expert testimony. Two witnesses well known in Washington—Dr. E. M. Schaeffer, the deputy coroner of the District of Columbia, and Mr. Edwin B. Hay, an attorney who is something of a local Chesterfield—appeared for the Kentucky congressman, and their statements were directed to the support of the contention that the hand of Madeline Pollard penned the black bordered letter in 1885, which she has most emphatically disavowed twice over on the witness stand.

Great stress is laid by the defense upon the authenticity of this letter—not because it runs counter to the testimony of the plaintiff Miss Pollard. Breckinridge first called upon her at the Wesleyan academy of her own volition, but because they think if she can be proved false on one important detail her whole statement will be impeached. The signature to the letter also goes to support the opening statement of the defense on a minor detail—viz: That Miss Pollard had adopted at that time the middle name of Breckinridge. This letter, which has figured so conspicuously in the case and which the defense will fight to get before the jury, is as follows:

Miss Pollard's Letter.

WESLEYAN COLLEGE, July 20, 1884.

DEAR COLONEL BRECKENRIDGE—Your letter came to me this morning. I am glad to tell me it would be inexpedient to come out here to the college, for if you had gone to ever such a place you would be the same unconscious burdens a schoolgirl's mind you might be inclined to be jealous with yourself. I respect her opinion of little affairs of mine would cause premature gray hairs, where your opinion might clear up all doubts and fears and I would me be quite free hearted again. I think I have prepared you for a divorce case; but, listen, it is worse than that.

If a certain person should advance funds for my tuition here at school for three years under the promise that I marry him at the expiration of the time, could he do anything if I would not marry him, but teached refusal? He has demonstrated I know you think, "Why the deception?"

But on no other terms will he agree. When a girl wants nothing but a good education and means to obtain such are denied her, what is she to do but take the only chance she is ever likely to have. I liked your face, and I am sure I would like you, and if at any future time you are in the city and would care to come around remember that home faces are always welcome. I am very respectfully yours,

MADELINE B. POLLARD.

For the first time the keen cross examining power of Judge Jere Wilson, whose work has been awaited with interest by his fellow lawyers, was brought into play. It was first exercised on Major Moore, the chief of police, who was called back to dispute some of Miss Pollard's statements regarding the latter's visit to police headquarters during which Colonel Breckinridge repented and his promises to marry her.

Major Moore denied that in either of the two interviews Colonel Breckinridge had said, "This is one of life's tragedies," or that he had said anything about Miss Pollard's bearing and manner being a proper one. In neither interview had Colonel Breckinridge said, "She knew I was a married man when it occurred," nor had Miss Pollard said, "Yes, I gave myself to him."

"How long did that interview last?" asked Judge Wilson in cross examination.

"Fifteen or 20 minutes."

"Is that all you said that you don't remember?"

"Yes, sir."

Answering further questions, the major said that he had only made notes of what impressed his mind after the interview was concluded; that Miss Pollard and Colonel Breckinridge were the only ones Miss Pollard seeming excited and doing most of the talking, while Colonel Breckinridge seemed cool. He would not pretend that he recalled everything. Much had been said which he could not remember, as that part of the conversation he had recorded in his memorandum would not have occupied more than half a minute. His attention had not been called to the conversation for three months afterward.

Judge Wilson and Major Moore.

The second interview, it was developed under cross examination, had lasted nearly an hour, had been less excited than the first, Miss Pollard doing most of the talking.

"This was the interview of the 17th of May, when Miss Pollard was lying prostrate on the sofa, Colonel Breckinridge sat beside her, and afterward he took her hand in his and your hand and promised to marry her?" asked Judge Wilson, aiming to emphasize an old score.

"Yes, sir."

Then when Judge Wilson asked if anything had been said or done to indicate that the promise of marriage was merely a scheme between the two parties not made in good faith the defense was strenuous in its objections, protesting that it called for an opinion which should be the province of the jury, not of a witness.

Judge Bradley admitted it, however, and the major said nothing had been done of the sort to indicate a scheme such as had been described.

After some minor points had been discussed Dr. Schaeffer was called. Mr. Wilson stirred up such a cloud of verbal dust around the expert's testimony that the spectators hardly knew whether the letter purported to have come from the plaintiff to the defendant or the reverse.

During the cross examination Mr. Wilson endeavored almost successfully to make Dr. Schaeffer assent to the proposition that from a number of letters dissimilar he had drawn the conclusion that the two letters were written by the same person. He discovers the admission that handwriting was sometimes so skillfully forged as to deceive experts.

From the word "July" in the contested letter he tried to obtain an admission that it had been written by a person having free use of the hand, while the figures following, "1884," were by an unskilled, inexpert hand, but the expert would not agree to the hypothesis.

Finally Judge Wilson challenged Dr. Schaeffer to point out similarities between the alleged forgery and another letter. He noted the words "and" and "suspicion," also the letters "I" and "n," referring to his notebook, in the other handwriting. While he had not been told what the defense wanted to prove by him, Dr. Schaeffer concluded, he had inferred. He would not have permitted any one to tell him that they wanted him to testify to any particular thing.

Fun With Colonel Hay.

A brief redirect examination brought this testimony to a close and brought to the stand the portly form and beaming face of Mr. Edwin B. Hay, who gave his occupation as member of the bar; said that he had devoted special attention to comparison of handwritings for 25 years, and among other cases had been retained as an expert in the celebrated Oliver-Cameron case, in which the late Senator Simon Cameron of Pennsylvania had been the defendant.

"Now, Major Hay," began Mr. Butterworth.

"Not 'major,' thank you," interrupted Mr. Hay, with a graceful wave of the hand.

"Colonel, if you please," put in Judge Wilson.

"He is not from Kentucky," explained Judge Bradley.

"Then he is not armed," Mr. Butterworth added.

Beginning his testimony, Mr. Hay said that an examination and comparison had convinced him that the "Wessie" Brown letter and the "July" letter were written by the same hand. There was a freedom, ease and carelessness about the latter which displayed the idea that it was a stupid imitation. The lower loops of both letters exhibited the same characteristics. The "u's" were the same, and the capitals exhibited a peculiarity of style not found in forgeries. Upon a blackboard which was hung beside him Mr. Hay proceeded to give an exposition, and he was about to exhibit to the jury when Mr. Butterworth objected that the letter had not yet been placed in evidence and was sustained by Judge Bradley. Mr. Shalby protesting that it was customary to show disputed letters to the jurors in the first instance and permit them to judge for themselves.

Judge Bradley ended the controversy by saying that letters were not now submitted until they had been made evidence bearing on the genuineness of the documents to justify it. Expert Hay talked like a writing master before his class, handling the different specimens of Miss Pollard's hand and explaining how they had been made at different times with different pens and with pens held in different positions.

"Colonel, colonel," began Judge Wilson in cross examination, whereat another laugh at the expense of Mr. Hay traveled among his professional colleagues in court.

Judge Wilson Quizzes Hay.

Judge Wilson was proceeding to inquire about the number of experts in the Cameron case when Mr. Edwin B. Hay objected, Colonel Phil Thompson protesting: "We are not trying the Cameron case. This may be a case of hers, but it ain't the same woman."

Judge Wilson explained that he wanted to show that there were experts on both sides in every case. Major Butterworth declared that two can howling at a dog fight would testify differently.

"But the difference in the case of the dog fight," retorted Mr. Wilson, "is that I would be looking at the under dog and my friend Butterworth at the upper dog."

The question was finally admitted, and Mr. Hay said that he was on the side of Senator Cameron in the famous case and that a majority of the experts were.

"Call it the Oliver case," remarked Mr. Thompson.

"Probably because Senator Cameron had the greater resources he was able to secure a majority of the experts," ventured Mr. Wilson.

Judge Bradley rapped sharply on his desk, warning the attorneys that their side remarks and laughter must be stopped.

Mr. Hay gave it as his opinion that handwriting could not be successfully imitated in a long letter, and Mr. Wilson asked him if he had not given himself away by a too free use of the pen in the word "July."

Mr. Hay denied that such was the case. Miss Pollard's was a difficult hand-writing to imitate, if not an impossible one. Imitators in some places must show nervousness, but in the letter before him there were no traces of it. Mr. Hay said that Desha Breckinridge, son of the defendant, had brought him the letters, but young Breckinridge had asked if he might not be explained to witness what was expected to be proved until witness had made his investigation, although he had surrendered it, understanding that no person could have the nerve successfully to imitate another's handwriting through a long letter. The declaration which involved sparring over the moral and physical aspects of the word "nerve"—Mr. Hay bowed himself from the stand, and court adjourned.

HOUSE LACKS A QUORUM.

The Democratic Resolve to Put a Special Rule in Force.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—There was another day without progress over the Joy-O'Neill election case in the house, owing to the absence of a quorum of Democratic members, and at the close of the proceedings it was as far from a conclusion as when the deadlock began. Bull calls followed one another in rapid succession, but while there were Democrats to the 204 members on the floor the nearest the majority ever came to a quorum was 172—seven less than enough.

Late in the afternoon the Democratic leaders held a consultation, and the result was that the committee on rules was directed to come to the assistance of the house, and this morning a special rule was to be brought in covering not only the Joy-O'Neill case, but probably also the Hilborn-English case from the Third California district.

Seven of the 10 days allowed by the constitution for the consideration by the executive of a bill have expired since the Wilson tariff bill was laid before President Cleveland, and still there has been no action upon the measure. It had been assumed in some quarters that the president had made up his mind what disposition he should make of the bill and would yesterday announce his decision to his cabinet. A lack of discussion in the cabinet over this bill has practically ceased, for it has been made clear that throughout the pendency of the bill at the White House the president has given it careful consideration for the opinions of his constituents and advisers, and the present occasional discussions between them are absolute proof of lack of foundation for the talk of resignations by members of the cabinet.

Exciting Scene In a Shot.

ROME, March 28.—A porter who was attached to the cannon shot when expecting to be dismissed rushed into the office occupied by the director and the secretary, and after abusing and threatening them he drew a knife and savagely attacked the director. During the struggle both of the shot officers were wounded, but they succeeded in disarming him and were thus saving him from being torn to pieces when the half mad man suddenly drew a revolver and shot and killed himself almost at the feet of the people he had assaulted.

Remarkable Railroad Accident.

GRAHAM, N. C., March 28.—One of the most remarkable accidents on record occurred near here on the Norfolk and Western railway. As the east-bound vestibule was running at full speed the engine left the track, plowed the earth for 300 feet and turned completely over. The engineer and fireman jumped and saved themselves. The passengers did not turn over, and no one was injured.

KEARSARGE IS NO MORE

Wreck Blown Up and Stripped by Islanders.

THERE IS NOTHING LEFT TO SAVE.

The Wrecking Party Sent to Preserve the Hulk on Roncador Reef Nothing but a Few Charred Timbers — General Regret In Washington.

WASHINGTON, March 28.—The gallant old war vessel Kearsarge, which went ashore on Roncador reef on Feb. 27, has been destroyed, notwithstanding the heroic efforts that have been put forth to save her. Telegrams conveying this information reached Secretary Herbert. One came from Mr. Alfred Winsor of Boston, the president of the Boston Towboat company, which contracted to save the Kearsarge, if possible and sent the Orion to Roncador reef with this object in view.

It read as follows: "Orion arrived at Harbor. Found Kearsarge burned and broken up."

The second dispatch was from Mr. F. W. Houghton, the superintendent of the Marine Department of the New York, as follows: "Steamer Orion, which sailed to assist the Kearsarge off Roncador, reports from Havana that the Kearsarge burned and is a total wreck." Official information regarding ing the burning of the vessel is lacking, and these two telegrams are all that has been received by Secretary Herbert concerning the matter.

The news of the destruction of the historic old vessel was a subject of genuine regret on the part of those officials of the navy department who were apprised of the contents of the telegrams late in the evening. They had sincerely hoped that the efforts that had been undertaken to save her hull would be successful and that she would yet be serviceable as a training ship or could be set aside for exhibition as a relic.

Heyerman Still on Trial.

The Kearsarge was wrecked on Roncador reef on Feb. 2. Admiral Stanton was on the vessel, which was then the flagship of the North Atlantic squadron, and Commander Oscar F. Heyerman was in command. The latter is now being tried by court martial in New York as a result of the wreck. The crew consisted of 200 sailors and marines. The navy department took prompt measures to save the officers and crew and the vessel itself. A fund for the purpose. All these on the vessel except one sailor were successfully taken off the reef and safely landed in New York. Measures were at once instituted to save the wreck of the gallant old vessel.

Congress without delay authorized an appropriation of $40,000 to be used for this purpose. Secretary Herbert awarded the contract to the Boston Towboat company, which dispatched a steam screen on their vessel Orion. The towboat company will secure some remuneration for the expense entailed, but the limit was fixed by congress within $40,000.

The Kearsarge was built at the Portsmouth navy yard, New Hampshire, in 1861, and she belonged to the same class of vessels as the Oneida, Tuscarora and Wyandotte and was one of the old style wooden ships of the navy. In fact, it has been rather in commemoration of her past glory that she has been kept in commission. It was on June 19, 1864, that she fought and conquered the rebel ship Alabama.

Blown Up by Natives.

BOSTON, March 28.—A dispatch, dated Havana, to President Winsor of the Boston Towboat company from the captain of the steamer Orion says that the United States steamer Kearsarge has been blown up and wrecked by the natives.

The Orion, which is a steamer of 2,400 tons, left here on March 13, being fitted out with every appliance needed to float the wrecked vessel off Honsdapo reef. The steamer reached the reef on the 21st inst. and found matters as above stated. She arrived in Havana yesterday. The remnants of the Kearsarge were then on the natives of San Andreas island rifled the wreck of everything movable.

Bought a Pistol and Shot Himself.

BALTIMORE, March 28.—John Conway, a stove manufacturer, walked into a store on Harrison street, bought a pistol and some cartridges, loaded the weapon and fired a bullet into his right temple, causing instant death. Failure in business is assigned as the cause.

GLOUCESTER DESERTED.

Hooded Horses, Trainers and Jockeys Leave for Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, March 28.—That the final gleam of hope of horse racing at Gloucester has expired was evidenced when the last of the racers which have been wintering in the stables at the track were shipped to the west. The only horses now remaining are those in the hands of the sheriff, held to satisfy feed bills contracted by their owners. Hospital's big string of about 30 horses was the last to be shipped to St. Louis. Many of the horses are of the best blood, and not a few of them have won big money at Gloucester.

At one time in the history of the Gloucester track not less than 1,500 race horses were stabled there and in the immediate vicinity. Now there are about 50 specimens left at the place, and they are likely to be disposed of soon at sheriff's sale.

There were 366 days of actual racing at the Gloucester track, lasting from Jan. 25, 1892, to Nov. 30, 1893. There was but one day of intermission in all that time. Over 12,000 people witnessed the closing race, and it was estimated that the average daily attendance was 3,000 from the first day. It is further estimated that Mr. Thompson derived a revenue of not less than $1,000 a day from the track.

Gloucester is now a deserted village. Some of the men are on the oyster fisheries —and they belong to Thompson—and some manufacturing interests which afford a scant living to its inhabitants. It is rumored that Thompson proposes to make it a summer resort of unique character.

More Charges Against Mrs. Meyer.

RACINE, Wis., March 28.—A startling discovery has been made in the case of Mrs. Meyer, who was recently brought back from Brooklyn on a charge of poisoning her former husband, Herman Groenke. About two years ago an adopted son of the woman died very suddenly here. The district attorney caused the body of the child to be exhumed, and the liver of the little one was found to be in a perfect state of preservation, and, it is claimed, contained large quantities of arsenic. The body of Herman Groenke was also exhumed, and the liver will be examined. Mrs. Meyer is in jail here awaiting trial.

Two Little Kittens.

Two little kittens, one stormy night,
Began to quarrel and then to fight;
One had a mouse and the other had none,
And that was the way the quarrel began.

"I'll have that mouse," said the biggest cat.

"You'll have that mouse? We'll see about that."

"I will not have that mouse," said the eldest son.

"You shan't have that mouse," said the little one.

I told you before 'twas a stormy night
When these two little kittens began to fight;
The old woman seized her sweeping broom
And swept the two kittens right out, of the room.

The ground was covered with frost and snow,
And the two little kittens had nowhere to go;
So they laid them down on the mat at the door
While the old woman finished sweeping the floor.

Then they both crept in, as quiet as mice,
All wet with snow and cold as ice;
For they found it was better that stormy night
To lie down and sleep than to quarrel and fight.

—Walter Hoffman (ten years old) in N. Y. Recorder.

THE CRADDEYS GATE.

This side of the Jerry Gate of Dreams,
In a gate made of Mother-of-pearl,
For the baby crew to toddle through,
And the baby crew are romping out
In rainbow radiance flashes and gleams.

His easy to find the gate which stands
At the end of the road beyond the hill,
Then kisses the day to the day to-morrow
In the silver dusk the wind is still,
And songs drift far through the twilight lands

Like a focused silk in the silk, green grass
All the way to the gate, the gate which stands
Gleaming a vane to the twilight mass,
And a pair of fairy dream-wings fix
To each little dreamer and take.

Into the country they fare away—
A wide country and the gateway knows;
Though they laugh or cry in passing by,
Though they sleep the hours, as the grass does
While the hour of light is made the day.

IS THE CORSET RESPONSIBLE

For Women's Loss of Silvery, Rippling Laughter—Sweet Girls Its Victims.

It has become quite the practice to ascribe to the wearing of the corset most of the sins of omission and commission, the ills and strife of womankind, and the latest charge to be laid at the door of the girdle of bone and buckram is that it is responsible for the decadence of women's laughter. Gone is it to a great extent, the "soft ripple," the "ringing melody," the "musical trill" of a woman's laugh is rarely heard save in a baby's lungs, and rarely indulged in by any woman outside the covers of the novel.

The woman out of the book smiles immoderately if she has pretty teeth, and cackles shrill accompaniment to the sharp staccato shrieking that fashionable women consider "talking," which makes the hysterical gesture of an afternoon tea like nothing so much as the pandemonium of a poultry show. But the low, musical merriment of a real laugh is indeed as rare as it is exquisite. And the prosaic people who go about the world classifying the colors of the rainbow and analyzing the ingredients of the bowl as that this rippling melody is produced by the vibration of the diaphragm and the elasticity of the other respiratory muscles. When this elasticity is bound down with bones and steels so that it is only by hydraulic power that it pumps enough air into a woman's lungs to keep her from dropping dead when she stands, it hasn't any strength to waste on getting up melodious laughter, it grows pantomimic and disgruntled, and doesn't see anything funny in this hard-working life to laugh at.

When the expression of any sense becomes difficult or impossible the sense itself becomes weakened, rudimentary; thus with the loss of the art of laughing comes a loss of the sense of humor, and so our women grow sadder, and a sad woman is the greatest mistake in the economy of nature. Women and flowers and sunshine were created, we are told, for the express purpose of making men glad. If they fail of this they are useless. Now some genius has invented a "substitute" which will prove a boon and a blessing to all those to whom the bereft wife or mother is supposed to sob out her sorrow unrestrained. Why not practice the deep laughter that brings sweet-hearted ness and smooths out wrinkles and age-confessing lines?—N. Y. Sun.

TAKE YOUR CHOICE.

An English Physician Says Women Must Marry or Take a Profession.

Dr. Arabella Kenealy, a noted physician of London, has from her special practice and experience among women, deduced the theory that women must make a choice between professional and married life. She says: "Women should not attempt to carry on a profession after marriage. I mean the women of the upper and middle classes who go into the professions. It is not necessary that they should be the bread winners; that duty should devolve upon the husband, and I am confident that the rising generation would be healthier and stronger in every way if the married women stayed at home more. I look anxiously at every baby that comes under my notice in the hope that I shall find some improvement in the type, some increase in stamina, compared with the generation that has preceded it; but instead of this there is only steady deterioration observable. This deterioration is particularly noticeable among the children of very active mothers. The cleverest and most highly gifted women, the women who take the most active part in public affairs, have the most weakly and puny children.

THE FEAST OF ST. AGNES'.

When a Woman can see the Face of Her Future Husband.

Sentiment and poetry are long been twined around the eve of St. Agnes' Day. This day from olden times has been a festival of women, a day when by proper divination a maiden may learn the knowledge of her future husband. While Hallow Een was more distinctively a Scottish festival, it was celebrated among the peasantry, St. Agnes' Eve was the day when similar divinations were practiced by high-born maidens. This fair women who would test the spell of St. Agnes' Eve need only stick a row of pins, one after the other in her sleeve, singing the while in patience, and if the bridegroom expects to be, when the form of him who was to be her future spouse would appear in a dream and salute her with a kiss. According to some authorities she must lie on her back with her hands under her head, looking neither to the right nor left.—N. Y. Tribune.

Is Marriage Falling Into Disuse?

If the good old custom of marriage is falling into desuetude through the higher education of women, it is time that something was done. If those sharp old heads of our day care less about marrying than their grandmothers, something is wrong.

Dr. Johnson once said that men did not want women to know too much, that they would be afraid of them.

However, there may be some truth in the words. The man who calls women silly, empty-headed and idle will pay his court to a silly little goose and marry her.

Perhaps the ratio of marriages among college women is smaller than among their less educated sisters because the former are more apt to think of matrimony without thinking. The college woman is apt to be particular as to her choice of a husband. Women of twenty-five will not marry the man that seemed an ideal to the girl of eighteen.

When Mamma Comes Home Again.

Sing a song of keeping house,
Mamma's gone away,
Having all the work to do,
I and sister Kate.
When the sun has risen,
Papa says loud and clear,
"It's time for every one
To get the breakfast, dear."

Washing up the dishes,
Scrubbing well the floor,
Cooking many wondrous things
Never seen before;
Dusting the furniture,
With all the bric-a-brac,
Running up the kitchen stairs
Forty times and back;

Hurrying to the garden
For berries for our tea,
Worn standing until evening
Busy's we can be.
Of course we think it's jolly
And lots of fun to play,
We know it will be jollier
When mamma come home again.
—Good Housekeeping.

On a Kitchen Larnery.

There are a great many kitchens that are not possessed of the luxury of a brush for cleaning potatoes. It is next to impossible to wash potatoes perfectly clean by hand. The use of a little scrubbing brush, such as may be purchased at from five to ten cents, will soon make their skins thin and clean, so that they will be fit to be brought on the table roasted. Roast potatoes should always have a little of the skin chipped off at either end to allow the steam to escape and to prevent their becoming sodden before they are thoroughly done. Save the brush for very useful in washing beets and various other root vegetables, all of which are probably just as well cooked in their skins, and peeled when they are done—the manipulation being the only exception to this rule, as it acquires a bitter flavor when boiled in its jacket.

Something for Luncheon.

"I wish I had something out of common for luncheon," said a lady one of the members of a large household.

"Have some fried apple sauce," said another. "It's very delicious and perfectly delicious. Put a bit of butter in your saucepan and let it get brown without burning. Wash the apples and slice them without paring. Put them into the heated butter and sprinkle on them a pinch of salt, also a tablespoonful of sugar. Then shake over the fire, not too long, lasting to taste. Add half a cup of water and cover closely. When the apples are tender add enough more sugar until they are well mixed and serve hot.

"This makes one of the most convenient and easily prepared dishes for luncheon, and is relished by almost every one, many indeed, preferring it to the ordinary popular apple sauce."—New York Ledger.

The Value of a Sandbag.

A sandbag is one of the most useful of household articles. Its virtues are equal, if not superior to, the hot-water bag, and the cost is considerably less. The sand should be fine and clean, and should be thoroughly dried out before being "bagged." It is better reserved for the flannel bag which holds the sand with a cotton one, as this prevents the sand from slitting through. A bag eighteen inches long and ten inches square is an available size. Mothers whose children are subject to earache will find those bags invaluable; they hold the heat for a long time and their composition is such that they are easily adjustable to the affected parts.

Lacquer for Brass.

After brass has been well polished it will keep bright for a long time by applying a solution of a quarter of an ounce of shellac to a quarter of a pint of methylated spirit. Set in a glass bottle and cork. Shake it well, and keep in a warm place for a few days. Pour off the clean fluid, apply to the brass with a camel's-hair brush, and when dry polish the brass, if possible, and again after painting over with the varnish.

Be Careful of Fire.

Commonplace but important is the suggestion, "Be careful of fire." Never take risk by lighting fire in stove or furnace not fixed to burn with coal, or by kindling or repairing one that the pipe holes in the chimney are tight and well protected from lath and siding by use of clay pots made for the purpose.

CHILDREN'S COLUMN

THE ARTIST'S EXHIBITION.

Pete Failed to Appreciate It, and His Comments Forget Something.

The artist had an exhibition of pictures in his studio, and Pete and I were asked to see it. Pete came, looking very fine. He had on a large new tie and his face was in the best fix. Strange to say, I forgot my bonnet, and I even carried my sewing to the door of the studio.

Here the frown on the face of the artist warned us of something wrong, and when he pointed to the unfinished apron I he'd and said, "What are you going for to do with that?" I ran back and got my bonnet without a word.

When I returned, the exhibition was in full swing. The pictures were principal close together on the walls, and the artist was pointing them out and explaining them to Pete.

"This," said the artist, touching a very remarkable drawing, "is where the man says, 'Woodman, spare that tree.'"

"But an ain't going to chop down no tree," said Pete bluntly.

"It is, too!" retorted the artist. "You don't know."

"Well, well," I hastened to say, "it is just as well. We don't want the tree chopped down. Tell me what is this dear little girl doing?"

"That isn't a little girl!" said the artist scornfully. "It's an old man. That picture is 'The Old Armchair.' These are the man's tears."

"Beautiful!" I murmured, but Pete was not so much impressed.

"De chair ain't got no arms," he objected.

The artist treated this with silent contempt, and went on:

"This is the 'Highland Fling.' Drawn from life," he added after a moment's pause. "They do it that way at my dancing school."

Pete remarked that "it wasn't nothing to the 'breakdown' old Uncle Jake could dance." But besides a scornful look the artist took no notice of him. There were a good many other pictures which were explained, and I was much pleased.

Everything went well in spite of Pete's criticisms, till I began to think. I should get through without a single blunder when the artist, turning to me suddenly, asked:

"Which of the pictures would you like, ma'am?"

I was so delighted with this generosity that I said without thinking:

"Why, any one of them, my darling, and thank you a thousand times."

"That's a strange way to talk," said the artist severely.

"I beg your pardon," I cried contritely. "I mean I am much obliged, Mr. Artist, and I will take 'The Highland Fling' if you please."

Then there was a pause.

"Well?" said the artist in an inquiring tone.

"Well," I answered, wondering what I ought to do.

"Why don't you go on?" said the artist.

"Go on what, my dear?" I cried, completely puzzled.

The artist threw down his stick with an expression of despair.

"The exhibition is over," he said, opening the door, and Pete and I went out feeling much subdued.

"Just tell me, please," I said to the artist that night after I had put him to bed, "what did you want me to do at the exhibition?"

"Why, ask the price of the picture, of course, and give me the money for it and tell me to keep it and to send it," said the artist. "Don't you see?"

"Oh, yes, I see now," I said as I kissed him good night.—Jessie Walcott in Youth's Companion.

Jamie's Danger Sign.

Jamie hated to have the baby touch his things, and the baby loved to do so. Jamie thought for a long time one day to fix on some plan to stop the mischief. Then he went to mamma and asked her how to spell "danger." She told him, and off he went. That afternoon when mamma went into the nursery she saw the baby standing thoughtfully in front of Jamie's toolbox gazing at a piece of white paper on which was printed in big black letters "Danger!"—New York Advertiser.

You can't get the money for your new home. Why not then have your money loaned and help build up your own home institution? Indeed, you will often save money by it. A good many people in town are doing it. Are you? Think the matter over, or come right along without thinking and see if we are not correct.

WHERE BABY IS KING

HOW THE NURSERY SHOULD BE FURNISHED AND MADE COZY.

High Art Is Quite Unnecessary—Little Ones Are Fond of Pictures, Warm Colors and Low Chairs and Tables—A Model Playroom and Bedchamber.

There are few women who at some time or another have not been bitten with the mania for "cozy corners," and few husbands who have not all too late discovered that coziness and comfort are not always synonymous terms, although they should be so.

My old fashioned idea is that while these corners, if artistically constructed, are extremely pretty, especially in a picture, they are only adapted to lovers or newly married people. In large families they have an air of selfishness—of "two is company and three is none."

As a charming factor in the home life they cannot be compared with the great table piled with books, papers and magazines, around which gather mamma with her sewing, papa with his reading, the big college boy with his Euclid, the smaller children with games or studies and even the baby with his blocks, although in every well regulated family baby is in bed when the lamp is lighted. It is for the baby and baby's nursery that I wish to enter a special plea.

A friend was recently showing me through her new home. The parlor was elegance itself; the reception or sitting room, all lightness, brightness and prettiness; the library comfortable; the dining room rich and perfectly appointed; the bedrooms all that keeping rooms should be, and the nursery everything that a nursery should not be. Its prevailing characteristic was that of a secondhand furniture shop. Its windows, to correspond with those in the other parts of the house, had dainty sash curtains and long white draperies. The former prevented the little ones from looking out, and the latter were of the "one-me-not order, looped back at just such an angle and not to be contaminated by childish fingers, for which dirt has such an affinity.

Imagine yourself for a single day in your child's place and see how its young life is fretted by the constant restrictions imposed. Bridget drives it from the kitchen, where its small fingers can only do mischief. It must not play stagecoach or steam car with the parlor chairs, nor drive nails in the dining room walls or furniture, nor "write letters and use the moodiage like papa" in the library. So if its nursery be not attractive its home is a nuisance and might almost as well be a prison.

It is not at all necessary that a nursery should be costly. Indeed a sense of the eternal fitness of things would suggest that it should be quite the opposite. But it should be bright and light, and all its fittings especially adapted to the use and comfort of its small owners.

A woman in up town New York, who hasn't a single or eccentric notion of high art furniture in her whole house, although everything is pretty and dainty, has my idea of a model nursery. There are four children whose merry voices fill it with glee, and each child has a whole side of the room to itself. The older ones drew lots for their choice of sides, and the young ones knew no better than to be content with those assigned to them.

The floor was stained a warm mahogany and varnished. In winter a large rug of Japanese ilet in deep blues and cream will cover the floor, so that unwary feet do not trip over its edges. In summer the floor is left bare and freshly waxed every day. A dado of warm red two toned cartridge paper is carried up about three feet, this to prevent soiling from childish fingers, and above a warm cream cartridge paper makes an admirable background for the works of art with which each child has liberally besprinkled its own domain. They are allowed to put up any pictures from illustrated papers or engravings that pleases their fancy, the only restriction being that mamma must be asked to tack it up neatly. If mamma sometimes begs them to let her substituting one picture for another, it is done with infinite tact, and wholesome jdeas of art are inspired thereby.

On Dorothy's side of the room—Doodles is 2 years old—is a frieze of Japanese dolls, the kind that street fakirs sell for two for a nickel and that may be bought by the hundred for even less. Doodles' frieze is in a most unorthodox place, too, for it runs just above the dado, but many an hour that infant spends in the contemplation of them and the other of the other of this curious assembly.

Each child has its own chair—nay, two, its chair and its rocker—all perfectly suited to the size and needs of its owner. That Dorothy is the "company chair," a great, roomy Shaker rocker in which mamma or papa can sit with a child on each arm of the chair and two on the lap, if need be. There are two tables of different heights—plain deal tables painted and varnished into a fair semblance of mahogany—and Ted's jackknife snips a piece off one corner to test the grain of the wood, if Mary upsets a bottle of ink over its surface, or the baby writes all over it with red crayons, no fault is found.

This wise mother never intrudes her own orderly ways, but on a sweeping day lets each child "put up" his or her toys in the way that may seem to it best. Efforts to guide and instruct are made, but there isn't a single "don't," except "don't quarrel," in this room.

This is only the day nursery, for with such a broad one room can scarcely do duty both by day and night. The night nursery opens into it and is furnished simply with white enameled iron cribs or bedsteads and low enameled bureaus mounted on casters to sit on while undressing. The closets for clothes have hooks which can be reached by those to whom they belong. One capacious bureau holds, in separate drawers, the wardrobe of each child. The boxes have hinged covers and hold shoes and slippers, rubbers, rubber boots and leggings.

The windows of both rooms have sensible shades and no sash curtains, but in winter long curtains of heavy, strong, bright material are put up, so much with reference to the merry game of hide and seek that goes on within their folds when the "children's hour" comes as for the warmth they give.—New York Herald.

Cleanliness.

A noted physician and chemist declares that the various different coats that are commonly used are not nearly as efficacious in preventing disease as simple and absolute cleanliness. "Let every vessel for water and every sink be scrubed off daily with a cloth wet with clean water and the cloth afterward boiled," he says, "and it will prove an absolute preventive and destruction of all microbes. Many people," he continued, "ignorantly believe that if they dilute a chloride or some other disinfectant and pour a little daily down the pipes they destroy all germs of disease. It really has no effect whatever, and the housemaid, with an old duster and washcloths, may scatter microbes in every direction."

COXEY'S HUNGRY HORDE

Missed a Meal on the March to Alliance.

COXEY LEAVES, BUT IS TO RETURN

Although the Army Had No Dinner, They Traversed a Free Lunch Route Twelve Miles Long—Honore Jaxon, the Eccentric Advance Guard.

ALLIANCE, O., March 28.—Twelve miles of the longest free lunch route on record were mapped out for the Coxey caravan. January weather was also on the programme, but the sympathy of people along the line of march is making it possible for the men to progress without any particular hardship. They were cheered by sausage, ham, dry bread and black coffee.

Soap is still among the things invisible, and there is no danger that anybody is going to mistake this for a turnout of plutocrats. Only the hotel contingent is provided with soap, it is not particular about using it. All luxuries are carefully treasured.

The health of the marchers has been remarkably good considering their experiences. Meals that are irregular when provided at all and sleeping on frozen ground with a scant covering of straw are not ordinarily considered conducive to a man's physical well being.

With the Army.

At noon the commonweal arrived at Maximo, the capital of Washington township. Walking was an agreeable experience, but the riders had a chilly time of it. Marshal Browne led his stallion over a large part of the route. The territory traversed presented a deserted appearance. A thin covering of snow was on the fields, and not to exceed a dozen people had assembled in the streets to see the commonweal march by. Flocks of chickens strutting around the big red barns of this section were the subject of remark, but no man undertook to molest them. Army songs were rendered under the direction of Astrologer Kirtland's newly organized glee club.

On the way the army passed the lonely camp of Honore Jaxon, the Chicago half breed. He is the queerest character in the camp, but there is method in his madness and time not thought to be advertising. He started from Massillon with only a sack of oatmeal as his food supply. His plan is to keep a few hours ahead of the regular army, and he is looked upon as a forerunner.

His fur cap, woolen coat, blanket and moccasins served as an excellent protection against the weather, and he carried a light ax to be used for carving firewood and possibly tramps. His camp was seen in a dense brush near the road leading to Maximo, but he had passed on to Alliance. He had cut down a lot of tree branches for the construction of a rude cabin, and beside it were the embers of his campfire.

As a rule people viewed the caravan from their houses, and not to exceed a dozen viewed it from the roadside. At Maximo about 50 men had assembled, but owing to the small number the plan of holding a meeting was abandoned. The march is conducted at the rate of about three miles per hour. At the end of almost every mile a halt is called to rest the men and horses. A score of men was all that witnessed the departure from Louisville.

The army arrived in Alliance footsore and weary and at once set out upon a begging expedition. Toes have begun to peep from shoes that have yielded to the hard service of the march, and the lack of clothes is still severely felt. Clothing and other supplies were asked for, but little was obtained. No dinner, and only cheese, bread, potatoes and black coffee on the evening bill of fare, have caused much grumbling and it may lead to open mutiny.

Coxey went to Chicago last night, but he will be back today. He and Browne addressed a crowd in the opera house. Browne's plausible defense of the crusade brought applause and $10.92. Camp Anna L. Diggs will be established at Salem today.

The army was tendered for sleeping quarters the Independent church and a vacant storeroom, but the invitation was refused. "We have plenty of fresh straw," said Marshal Browne.

D. W. Smith and W. H. Rickard have collected more food than can be carried in the commissary wagons, and the men are wondering, in view of the scant fare at supper, what has become of it. About 40 men were mustered in yesterday. Coxey's wife has caused rumors that the expedition is about to collapse. Unless he is ruined financially some sort of a procession will certainly reach Washington. The office of historian was created, and it will be filled by Henry Vincent, the Chicago reformer. The camp at the Alliance fair grounds is the best located of the trip. The tents are sheltered by a heavy wood, and there is plenty of water at hand.

Browne announced publicly that when Coxey left for Chicago he had barely money enough to buy his ticket. He left the commonweal treasury with a stock of supplies, but not a cent in the treasury.

General Frye's Army at a Standstill.

TOWNSHIP COMMITTEE MEETING.

Officers Sworn in and Bills Ordered Paid.

The North Plainfield Township Committee held a meeting last night in Spencer's hall.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

The bond of Constable Samuel G. Taynor, of $200, with Messrs. J. P. Emmons and Neil B. Smalley as sureties, was presented and on motion accepted.

A communication was received from Mr. Charles A. Reed, who acted as borough counsel in the Peace street extension matter, stating that the Supreme Court had decided against the proposed opening. Mr. Reed's communication informed the committee that the matter could be carried to the court of error and appeals, and the decision might be reversed, as the Supreme Court had decided this case according to an opinion rendered in a similiar action after the commissioners had made the assessment and reported to the township in the Peace street extension.

Samuel Taynor was sworn in as constable and Messrs. J. P. Humble and Michael Powers were sworn in as supervisors of highways.

The following bills were ordered paid:

W. E. Mattison	$5 00
N. C. Mason	10 00
D. L. Rulick	3 50
E. W. Smith	10 00
H. J. Martin	4 72

The following election bills were ordered paid as corrected. It seems that the bills contained charges for three hours more than the law called for. The Board of Registry had met at 10.30 on one occasion when they should have met at one o'clock according to law. The extra time the Freeholders, who pay the per diem fees, deducted from the bill. They also deducted from the bill their half for the joint meeting of the Board after election. The Township Committee also deducted their half from the bills for the hour and a half's work done before the legal time, but the committee decided to pay their half for the meeting held after election.

The bills as corrected are as follows:

D. J. Garner	$7 95
A. T. Marsh	4 60
I. E. Berdine	6 70
A. C. Sanderson	6 75
H. Conklin	6 60
D. D. Smalley	7 50
J. W. Cunningham	6 00
J. T. Case	9 10
W. H. Ludlow	6 75
A. R. Hall	6 10
Edgar S. Schenck	6 00

A resolution, offered by Mr. Smith, was adopted, authorizing the chairman and clerk to execute a lease with Mr. J. H. Brenner for the Johnston's Drive property which he had leased from the township.

Overseer of the Poor Weaver advised with the Committee in reference to his office.

The Committee then adjourned subject to the call of the chairman.

PERSONAL.

There will be a masquerade party at Miss May Thompson's, on Liberty street to-night.

Miss Jennie Randolph of Madison avenue is visiting her sister, Mrs. Smith, at Trenton.

Mrs. Robinson of LaGrande avenue will sail Saturday, accompanied by her son, for England.

Miss Libbie Bowne of this city has returned from a visit with Mrs. Theodore Smith at Freehold.

Mrs. Bowers of Newark has returned from a visit with Mrs. Seaman Williams of East Second street.

A patent on a toggle press has been granted to Mr. W. E. Brock of Mountain avenue, North Plainfield.

Mr. Frank Herbert of this city, has returned from a visit to Mr. Joseph L. Tunis, at Morganville, Monmouth county.

Peter Vanderwerp of Elm place, was obliged to give up work at Roselle yesterday, and return home, suffering from the grip.

Mr. L. W. Randolph has been re-appointed Superintendent of the Third Street Mission Sunday school for another year.

Miss Alice Smith of this city will give a musical concert at Madison next month. She will be assisted by a number of her pupils.

Dr. Searles of East Front street leaves for Bayonne, N. J., next week to take charge of the practice of Dr. Salter in that city, who will retire from active work because of ill health.

At the dance given by the Social Aid Society in Berckley Heights Hall, Tuesday evening, there were present from here, J. W. Bainbergen, Milton Meeker, Charles Barnett, and G. Broler.

It is soon to be simply Mr. Saunders. He will soon retire from the office of Mayor of North Plainfield which he has honored fully as much as any of his predecessor, and this is saying much when those who preceded him, are re-called beginning with lawyer Van Winkle, Democrat; and Dr. Cooley and Merchant Place, Republicans. If his successor does as well he will do very well indeed. Mayor Saunders has been a good and faithful servant of the people and well worthy of the reward which is his. Incidentally he has made the Republican boast of who he has been around for office. In the goodness of their hearts they seem to have thought him a Democrat too good to beat. In fact he ought to have been a Republican.

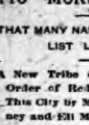
116 MORE RED MEN.

THAT MANY NAMES ON A CHARTER LIST LAST NIGHT.



RECENTLY Messrs. John H. Carney and Eli M. Odam, both members of Iron Mountain Tribe, I. O. R. M., and started out to organize a new lodge of Red Men. How well they have succeeded is told by a charter list of 116 names of well-known citizens presented at a preliminary meeting in Perseverance Lodge room last night. The meeting was called for the purpose of organization.

Mr. Charles M. Ulrich was chosen chairman and Mr. John H. Carney secretary.

The following officers were selected: Prophet—John E. Flannery.

Sachem—Charles M. Ulrich.

Senior Sagamore—Albert H. Neal.

Junior Sagamore—E. H. Cleverly.

Collector of Wampum—Eli M. Odam.

Keeper of Wampum—J. H. Blimm.

Trustees—Vincent W. Nash, W. J. Ford and E. W. Mills.

The other officers will be appointed at the next meeting.

The following committees were appointed:

To Receive the Great Chiefs—John H. Carney, Dr. D. C. Adams, Judge W. A. Coddington, F. X. Schoonmaker, Elmer E. Runyon, Geo. W. DeMeza, C. H. Harz, C. H. Schermerhorn, Louis S. Bond, and William Bullock.

To receive the instituting Tribe—D. R. Gulick, J. C. Blimm, C. J. Young, A. D. Pope, J. C. Van Dyke, T. J. Kurzhals, Jr., J. H. Becker, Jr., and J. E. Flannery.

Reception and Entertainment Committee—C. M. Ulrich, E. H. Cleverly, S. H. Seniff, J. H. Tier, Jr., Samuel Robinson, and Rudolph Kersting.

Reception Committee to visiting chiefs—J. H. Blimm, Fred Cansdell, T. J. Young, L. H. Clark, J. T. Odam and D. S. Dunavan.

Room Committee—J. C. Blimm, E. H. Cleavely and A. H. Neal.

Paraphernalia Committee—J. H. Carney, Eli M. Odam and E. H. Neal.

The Great Chiefs of New Jersey will be present at a meeting to be held on Wednesday evening, April 11, to institute the above Tribe. The objects of the Order are stated in the prospectus as follows:

The Improved Order of Red Men is a Social, Fraternal and Benevolent institution, founded upon the customs, traditions and history of the aborigines of this continent. Its origin is as the name clearly indicates, purely American, dating its history to the early days of the Revolution. It is the oldest protective and benevolent society of American birth and growth. It is a secret, but only in the sense that secrecy is proper in those matters which concern the private interests of a common family.

"Red Men administer no oaths binding you to any religious or political creed; they bind neither your hands nor your feet, as you enter their wigwam, so you depart—a free man.

The forms, ceremonies and lectures used in the adoption of members and conferring of degrees, are beautiful, interesting and instructive. Its emblems are drawn from nature alone, and are symbolized in every scene upon which the eye may rest when contemplating the wondrous works of the Great Spirit. The motto is Freedom, Friendship and Charity.

There are certain social advantages that accrue to men when associated in a common cause. Families are brought into closer relations with each other, whereby the links of Freedom, Friendship and Charity are more widely extended. In this Order are numerous Tribes where the families of members are as well acquainted with each other as the brothers of the Tribes themselves. This condition of things makes the Tribal bond complete in its fullest extent and the largest degree.

"A member of this Order can at pleasure visit any Tribe in the United States.

"Any member of the Order can propose you in his Tribe. You must possess moral character, be free from bodily infirmity or disease of any kind, have some regular modes of support, and believe in the existence of the Great Spirit, the Creator and Preserver of the Universe."

DESERTERS ARRESTED.

Chief Grant and Marshal Pangborn Take two Men to Governor's Island.

Monday Chief Grant received word from Col. Ernest, at West Point, to look out for Charles Duronmatt, who was supposed to be in this neighborhood. Duronmatt had secured a furlough for a day and skipped out. Duronmatt belonged to Cavalry. He was found in the borough and arrested.

The chief also received word to look out for William Allen, another deserter. He was a member of Co. E. Battalion Engineers. Chief Grant and Marshal Pangborn arrested him in Cooley's Sanitarium, where he had been engaged as a nurse.

Both Duronmatt and Allen were taken to Governor's Island this morning by Chief Grant and Marshal Pangborn and delivered over to Lieutenant Andrews.

COAL CARS WRECKED.

BAD SMASH-UP ON THE JERSEY CENTRAL IN BAYONNE.

Nine "Jimmies" Smashed and Gondolas Derailed. — Nobody Injured But Traffic Was Greatly Delayed.

There was a wreck at Bergen Point this morning on the Central Railroad, caused by a broken axle on an empty coal car.

Passengers from Plainfield and Elizabeth, however, were not delayed, as all express trains up to 10 o'clock were run over the Newark branch at increased speed, making up for the few miles extra distance.

The wreck, although no one was injured, was quite serious, nine coal "jimmies" being smashed to pieces, the engine tender disabled and a dozen or more cars derailed.

The train was made of "jimmies" and gondolas, about 150 in number, bound for the coal mines in Pennsylvania. It left the Jersey City yards at 2.45 o'clock this morning in charge of Theodore Shops.

In running through Bayonne at the rate of about ten miles an hour the train was stopped suddenly by the derailment of the tender. The nine cars, all "jimmies," were piled up on each other, and the fragments of the broked cars were scattered over the two West and one of the East bound tracks. A dozen or more "jimmies" and gondolas were derailed, some of them cross-wise of the tracks.

The tracks were not cleared until this afternoon.

There was also a wreck at Somerville this morning.

A coal train was wrecked at Elizabeth last night.

NUPTIALS.

Grannatt—Harris.

A very pretty home wedding took place at 7.30 o'clock last evening, when Miss Adelaide M. Grannatt and F. J. Harris were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Grannatt, of West Fourth street. The Rev. T. Logan Murphy, pastor of the Holy Cross church, was the officiating clergyman. The bridesmaid was Miss Mamie E. Grannatt, a sister of the bride. The best man was George W. Harris, a brother of the groom. The maids of honor were a very young niece and a three year old sister of the bride. A reception followed the ceremony.

The couple received many handsome and useful presents, but the usual supply of rice and old shoes was dispensed with. The bride couple left late last night for New York and Boston.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Stoker, Miss Mary Stoker, and daughter Kittie, of Brooklyn, Charles Grannatt, Mr. and Mrs. James Harris, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Harris, Benjamin Harris, Miss Boice, Mr. Fred Dunn, Mrs. Henry, Mr. and Mrs. W. B Grannatt, Jr., of this city, Mrs. G. H. Harris of Bound Brook, Miss M. E. Grannatt, and daughters May and Alice of New York and Robert Laurie of Dunellen.

Keller—Vroom.

The marriage of Mr. Edward Vroom and Miss Lena Keller, at the home of George Bremer, No. 60 Harrison street, last evening, was a quiet affair, only the immediate relatives of the bride and groom being present. The Rev. Mr. Sonenck tied the nuptial knot, after which there was an informal reception. Mr. and Mrs. Vroom will reside in Plainfield. There was no best man or bridesmaid.

GAMBLING AND LOTTERY MACHINES

Mayor Gilbert Warns Persons Against Using Them.

THE MAYOR'S OFFICE.

Plainfield, N. J. March 27, 1894.

To Whom it May Concern:

It having come to my knowledge that certain parties, in violation of the law's of the State, and the Ordinances of the City, are keeping and operating in their stores or places of business to which the public resort, certain devices, by which unlawful games of chance and hazard are played, I hereby warn such parties of my intention to cause the strict enforcement of the law against all who shall after the receipt of this notice, continue the use and operation of said device or devices.

Any machine, or device, in or on account of which money is deposited, or otherwise paid, or advanced, with the object of winning or securing prizes of money, candy, cigars, or other articles, is in its essence a gambling or lottery device and is prohibited by law.

Besides the penalty of a fine or imprisonment, at the discretion of the Court, the State law authorizes the confiscation of the furniture and implements unlawfully employed as aforesaid.

A. GILBERT, Mayor.

Miss Benner Secured the Gold Ring.

Last night was a good one for the firemen's fair. The hall was thronged and the articles went off lively. The contest for the gold ring was decided. It was awarded to Miss Mabel Benner, she having collected the largest sum of money. The three contestants collected $107.70.

LATEST NEWS BY WIRE.

Nominated a Citizens' Ticket.

NEW BRUNSWICK, March 29.—The City Club met last night and nominated Aldermen to run on a citizens' ticket. The candidates are pledged against ring politics. The Republicans also met and endorsed several of the City Club's nominees. The residents feel highly elated over this movement as they think it will mean the recovery of the city from "ring rule," which has predominated here for so many years.

A Supper to Help Pay for the Piano.

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Society for Christian Work of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, a supper was held in the Sunday school room of the church last night. The tables were arranged in the class rooms.

There was general sociability during the progress of the supper, for while some were eating others were chatting in pleasant groups around the room. In the centre of each table was a pretty bouquet.

Mrs. I. N. VanSickle had charge of the supper, which was given for the purpose of raising funds to finish paying for the piano. She was assisted in the arrangements by Mrs. H. C. Stillman, Mrs. Lucy Dunham and Mrs. Joseph M. Miller.

These young ladies acted as waitresses: Miss Mabel Potter, Miss Bessie Titsworth, Miss Lizzie Allis, Miss Ernestine Smiley, Miss Lulu Lewis, Miss Lulu Clawson, and Miss Mable Maxson.

WHAT OUR LAW MAKERS ARE DOING.

The Senate and House Discuss Bills Relating to Improvements Etc.—Other Business.

Senate.

BILLS PASSED.

Senate 10, provides for the election of freeholders in second-class counties by wards and townships instead of districts.

House 140, provides for patriotic services and exercises in public schools on Fridays preceding Washington's Birthday, Memorial Day, Fourth of July, and Thanksgiving Day. House 82, provides that the treasurer of any town, borough or township may be elected from among the legal voters.

House.

House 157, provides for the payment and cost of sewers heretofore constructed without authority of law in boroughs and borough commissions. Applies to Belmar; House 92, makes chairman of township committee, assessor and treasurer of township and two resident freeholders, commissioners of sinking fund of said township; House 96, provides that the acceptance of, public streets and alleys shall depend on whether governing bodies authorized the laying out; House 57, repeals act relative to sale of lands.

BILLS PASSED.

The following bills were passed: Repeals the act of 1889, giving prosecutors of the pleas power to appoint special detectives. House 183, prohibits the erection of barb wire dividing line fences without the mutual consent of the owners of the properties divided. House 203, makes it unlawful to dredge for clams in Delaware Bay South of Dennis Creek to Brandywine Creek lighthouse and er penalty of $200 or two years' imprisonment, boats and tackle to be confiscated.

MR. HETFIELD AT WASHINGTON.

Accompanied by Congressman Dunn and Judge Coddington, he Visits the Postmaster General.

The Washington correspondent of the Trenton True American, wrote to that paper as follows, yesterday, concerning Plainfield's Postmaster:

John M. Hetfield, who has been recommended by Representative Dunn, for Postmaster of Plainfield, is in the city today, accompanied by his backer, Judge Coddington. The trio went to the Post Office department to-day to see why the Postmaster General had not acted upon Mr. Dunn's recommendation, and they learned that the opposition to Mr. Hetfield's appointment had been so great as to compel the Postmaster General to hold up the case. Mr. Dunn being especially indignant at the action of the Postmaster General, who, he says, ought to execute the wishes of Congressmen, who know a great deal more about Post Office cases than the head of a department in Washington. Post Office, however, shows that Mr. Bissell is unso- [illegible] impervious to congressional criticism.

In Strange Costumes.

Iona Council, Degree of Pocahontas, gave its first annual masquerade ball in Reed Mott's Hall last night. A large number attended. The room was very prettily decorated and won the admiration of all present. The committee who had charge of the decorations was composed of the following: Mr. J. W. Kline, Mrs. Fred Westphal, Mr. David C. Allen, Mrs. Weigman and Mrs. Stephany.

The principal characters and those who kept everyone laughing were the two colored girls and the colored dude.

Miss Carrie Mehl and Miss Lillie Kuzon were the colored girls and Mr. George Bouseman was the colored dude. Some other of the interesting characters were Miss Lillie Mumford, a waiter, Mrs. W. Kline, old fashioned lady, Miss M. Pullen, Greek, Miss F. Pullen, peasant, Bert Frazee, butcher boy, Mrs. Radin, night, Miss Stelhany, jockey girl, Mrs. Allen, daisy, Miss Etta Stelhany, waitress, Mrs. Charles Holstein, morning star, Mr. Johnson Young, coachman, Mr. David Allen, Duke, Mr. Andrew Love, fireman, Miss S. Pearsen, fairy, Fred. Kriething, Prince Carnival, Chas. Bond, domino, and the Prince of Wales and Louise III.

Supper was served shortly after midnight.

Enraptured the Audience Completely.

The Schumann Lady Quartette will be assisted to-morrow evening, at the Casino, by Miss Schumaker, of Chicago, who excels as a singing reader and delineator. The Pittsburg Dispatch says of them: The Schumann Lady Quartette of Chicago was the attraction at Carnegie's Music Hall. They appeared before a large and critique and enraptured the audience completely. Their beautiful blending of tones, their clear articulation, combined with delicate shading, seemed to leave nothing to be desired except to hear them again and again. The voices of the four ladies are unusually harmonious and they sing together with perfect expression.

A Novel Sight.

The sun disappeared beneath a bank of clouds about four p. m. yesterday. Soon three circles appeared in the heavens. They dashed fourth all the colors of the rainbow. Brilliant sun dogs were visible, and the sun cast its rays out a band of sunlight forming a perfect cross in the sky. The novel sight lasted half an hour and then faded away.

A Messenger Sent.

COLLARS AND CUFFS.

FASHIONS FOR MEN AND WOMEN.

An Authority Writes Describing "What's What" in Stylish Garments. —Summer Gowns for the Gentle Sex.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—

The "twice around scarf," as its name implies, goes twice around the neck. It is now made in four shapes. One is to tie into a small bow. Another has the bow already tied. The third is in the shape of a four-in-hand, and the fourth is the ascot style. The last two shapes may be tied to suit the idea and taste of the wearer. The New York Tribune, from which these styles are quoted, thinks that the popularity of this new scarf, while unquestioned at the present, is likely to be of short duration. One reason for this is that it can be worn with only one style of collar—namely, the so called polka.

The "broken point" collar is still very popular. It may be worn by any one having either a long or short neck.

Colored shirts are in fashion as much as ever, but they show more or starch bosoms. Collars to match the shirts are entirely discarded, and white collars are the proper wear. They are largely made fast to the shirts. Cuffs, which should have square points and made for links, must match the material and be fastened to the shirt.

Plain pink and blue shirtings, and the same having neat, satin finished, self figures, are at present quite in fashion, to be followed later by those of white ground, with neat hairline and cluster stripes of pink, blue, navy, black and lilac. An entirely new shade is the dull heliotrope shading on stars. It is introduced by the fashionable manufacturers quite late, and more of it will be seen in early summer.

It seems that sleeves will not diminish in size and may be even wider, if possible, but not high on the shoulders. The effect of draping the skirts slightly on the sides is being tried, thus showing embroidery or trimming on an underskirt, and in very thin materials panniers are seen.

An unusually pretty and appropriate evening gown for a girl is made in white tulle, accordion plaited, with rows of gold trimming at the edge, falling over an under satin skirt, having a ruche at the hem which is so arranged that it forms festoons with a spangle at each point. Corsage of the waist there are narrow strips of brocaded ribbon fastened down at intervals with bows. The bodice is simply made with the same kilt plaited material. The junction of bodice and skirt is marked out with a torsade of ribbon, three rows being carried up the front, a second round the neck. The sleeves are of a newer style than the puff, a series of full frills one over the other.

Spangles are more used than ever on evening dresses of gauze, crape or mousseline de sole.

Among the thin fabrics now being made up into gowns for next summer's wear are sheer lawns and organdies, swiss muslins (pin dotted with red or blue or striped in fine lines), baptiste and nainsook.

Some of the nainsook and swiss muslin skirts are covered by from three to five flounces; others have three or four wide tucks or puffings, two of insertion around the bottom; others still are trimmed with a festooned lace flounce.

For quite young girls entire skirts of narrow frills or accordion plaiting find much favor.

In some of the double skirted dresses the upper skirt reaches only to the knee in front, but falls to the hem behind.

Moire or satin crush collars and belts in colors will be worn with many of these thin summer gowns.

Very attractive are the thin waists of fine lengthwise tucks from bust to belt, with an added basque and collerette of lace.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Deacons Elected.

There was a large attendance at the church meeting at the First Baptist church last evening to elect deacons. Mr. George B. Bachelor and Mr. George F. Brown were unanimously elected deacons for five year terms.

The other six deacons who hold over are Messrs. L. W. Serrell, H. E. Needham, J. B. Probasco, D. F. Randolph, R. E. Case, and E. L. Bonny.

It was decided to continue the Third Street Mission.

Decision Reserved.

Yesterday afternoon the case of Henry DeMott vs. Simon Springs was tried before Justice Hosher. The suit was brought by Mr. DeMott for money he claimed the defendant owed him, having contracted for the burial of a relative. The defendant claimed that he didn't make any agreement with Mr. DeMott. Lawyer Hance appeared for the plaintiff and Lawyer Runyon for the defendant. Justice Hosher reserved his decision.

COXEY HURRIES BACK.

Commonweal's Commander Returns From Chicago.

ARMY RECEIVED WITH OPEN ARMS.

In Salem, O., the Mayor Met the Commonweal With Boiled Eggs and Sandwiches. Over Five Hundred Striking Potters Will Join the Ranks Sunday.

SALEM, O., March 29.—Salem has treated the Coxey commonweal most generously by supplying food, shelter and recruits. The quality of these contributions of men and things was of the highest. Indeed the leaders are so pleased with the new army to be, so more hopeful in their talk than ever. The army filed into the town 79 strong. Crowds were awaiting them. Three thousand people gave them a silent welcome.

The mayor, J. W. Northrop, provided two halls—Kauffman's armory and the Federation of Labor hall—in sleeping quarters, quantities of food, such as coffee, bread, meal, sandwiches and 10 dozen boiled eggs, had been prepared by a committee of citizens, and these were turned over to Marshal Browne. Camp Anna Diggs was a vacant lot near the depot and was donated by a prominent townsman for that purpose. In a gasoline sheetstorm the army camped and was fed.

Mr. Bonsall, who has managed the citizens' arrangement for days, had Carl Browne as a supper guest, the latter then held a crowded meeting in the opera house. Sixteen of the best of recruits enlisted and joined Industrial's after coming was punched. They are all genuine workmen, eight of them having federation or lodge tickets. Two are cooks and were hailed as acquisitions. Two are tinners and can obtain in four days. Another came from Connecticut and two from Alliance.

An Ambulance Corps Needed.

Three men are sick under Dr. Kirkland's care. The food and exposure to the cold are responsible. Browne was informed here that 200 striking potters at East Liverpool would join the army. A late start was ordered, for the march from Alliance was trying.

The weary commonweal straggled into Beloit at noon, five miles out of Alliance and 72 from Pittsburg. The march was broken at Niles Junction, where Marshal Bryon was called a halt for half an hour.

Horn blowing and chaffing from the villagers greeted the commonweal. Some of the boys had several bushels of snow balls on hand for the army, but the appearance of the men was so forlorn that they were allowed to pass through unmolested. Several have deserted, and there is much grumbling. Owing to rough roads, the marchers were not able to make schedule time today.

An Army of Recruits.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., March 29.—The Coxey contingent showed its hand at a public meeting in Wittenberger's hall. James F. Green, defeated candidate for the Democratic nomination for city marshal, was elected marshal of the East Liverpool regiment. During the past few days the local movement has been attracting increased attention, but nobody on the outside was prepared for any such showing as was made both in the quality and the quantity of the attendance at the meeting.

The leaders have a bona fide roll of 225 "soldiers" to date, and the force is being steadily enlarged. Allowing for defections, the prospective increase will enable the leaders to marshal a strong force into here. The class of men who are identified with this thing is a notable feature. Almost all of them are striking potters, a great army of them. Being highly skilled men of the very best class. It is the great number of idle men now here that has made the movement assume such proportions. It is proposed to join the army at Beaver Falls on Sunday next.

Coxey Rejoins His Army.

CHICAGO, March 29.—Coxey appeared at a horse sale at the stockyards and was greeted by a band playing and calls for a speech. Coxey's horses brought $450, while he had expected not less than $1,000, and with this for a cue he roundly scored cattle speculators, shaking the hand of three to "a lack of money." This evil, he said, he proposed to remedy by compelling a government issue of $20,000,000.

Coxey's Chicago lieutenant, Albert Manson, claims that he will leave for the east on Saturday with 3,000 men. At present the 3,000 is represented by a foregoing shadow consisting of 21 men. Mr. Coxey took dinner at the Auditorium and left the city late at night. He will reach Salem, O., in time this morning to take up the march.

Shavers Must Graduate.

PITTSBURG, March 29.—The barbers' national convention adopted a new constitution and bylaws, which provide that no shaver shall be compelled to serve three years and undergo an examination, when, if successful, he will be given a diploma.

Prince Shakes Up.

BERLIN, March 29.—The railway saloon carriage of Prince Albrecht, prince regent of Brunswick, was run into by a luggage train at Vienenburg, Brunswick. Prince Albrecht, beyond a somewhat severe shaking up, was not injured.

Railroad Lands to Be Sold.

SOMERSET, Pa., March 29.—The commissioners of this county have instructed the county treasurer to advertise the right of way of the South Pennsylvania railroad for sale.

DOTS AND DASHES.

Missouri Populists nominated a state ticket.

Deaths from yellow fever in Rio average 70 a day.

Two children were fatally burned in a hayloft in Montgomery, Ala.

T. V. Dickinson, a leading jeweler of Buffalo, was closed out by the sheriff.

Seven men were killed in Central Mine, Keweenaw county, Mich., by a premature blast.

There have been 10 burglaries of country postoffices of New Hampshire in two weeks.

The striking silk weavers of Paterson, N. J., have agreed to the manufacturers' methods.

Heavy snow is falling in the west, and another colder wave is following the one just gone.

Hartford Republicans nominated Leverett Brainerd, a brother-in-law of ex-Governor Bulkeley, for mayor.

New kirk, Alias Thayer, the absconding clerk of the Jay City (Ind.) savings bank, was arrested in California near the Alexican line.

GEORGE T. CURTIS DEAD

Noted as a Lawyer and as an Author.

A FRIEND OF DANIEL WEBSTER.

Death Came Suddenly at His New York Home—His Writings Were Largely on Law and Are Considered Authorities. Funeral Will Be Friday.

NEW YORK, March 29.—George Ticknor Curtis, one of the most eminent authorities on constitutional law and the author of many legal works, died suddenly in his house at 241 Fifth avenue. He had been ill with a slight attack of pneumonia and yesterday morning was found unconscious in bed. He died of heart failure several hours later.

He was born in Watertown, Mass., in 1812, and was graduated from Harvard college. Then he studied law in the office of Charles Pelham Curtis in Boston, and after teaching school in Greenfield, Mass., began the practice of law in Boston.

Early in his career he devoted himself to the study of patent litigation and was concerned in a large portion of the patent cases prior to 1850. Then he came to this city in 1853, and up to 1870 practiced in partnership with Benjamin Curtis, from which place he moved to the Moss building. His active life in the legal profession ended in Washington six years ago.

Cases in Famous Cases.

Among the important cases with which he was connected were the Colt patent case, the Goodyear rubber cases and the sewing machine cases, in all of which the legality of patents was called in question.

He was also one of the lawyers in the Dred Scott case and argued it before the United States supreme court while his brother, Justice Benjamin Robbins Curtis, sat on the bench.

Much of his time was spent in writing on law subjects, and some of his works are the textbooks in use now. Among these are "Curtis on Patents," "History of the Constitution of the United States," "Treatise on Copyrights," "Admiralty Law" and "Equity and Precedents."

He was an intimate friend of Daniel Webster and was his literary executor. His principal work was "The Life of Daniel Webster," and he also wrote "The Life of President James Buchanan." His last book, "Creation or Evolution," was published about 10 years ago.

Contributions to fiction were also produced by his pen, but he wrote under a nom de plume. One of his novels was "John Charaxes." His last writings, however, were magazine and short articles for the newspapers, until a short time ago he finished a history of his own life.

Held Office but Once.

He was married twice. His first wife was a daughter of Joseph Story of Massachusetts and a sister of W. W. Story, a noted sculptor. A son by this marriage is now a mining engineer in south Dakota. By his second wife, Miss Louise Nystrom, a daughter of John Nystrom of Morristown, was married to him in 1851.

He left her two sons and three daughters survive him. One of his nieces is the wife of President Low of Columbia college.

In politics he was a Democrat and was at one time a member of Tammany. The active part he took during the civil war and his remarks at that time led to the belief that he sympathized with the Confederacy, but he was always for the Union, although not an extreme abolitionist. He held public office but once, and that as justice of the peace. He will be buried on Friday from Trinity chapel, in West Twenty-fifth street, where the services will be held at 10 o'clock in the morning.

COLQUITT'S FUNERAL.

Honors to the Dead Senator In Georgia's Capitol.

MACON, March 29.—The remains of Alfred H. Colquitt were buried in Rose Hill cemetery here with imposing ceremonies. When the funeral train reached Atlanta, it was met by a number of prominent citizens, and a guard of honor was placed around the casket. The local military escorted the governor and other officials of state, the Confederate Veterans' association and many distinguished citizens to the car in which the body lay. There it was received from the guard of honor and placed by reverential hands in a hearse drawn by four gray horses. The cortege was then formed, and the march to capitol began.

On the arrival of the cortege at the statehouse the troops were formed on either side of the Washington street entrance, and while they stood at present arms and the bands played dirges their hands the body of the dead senator was borne into the capitol and placed in the main corridor.

During the two hours in which the body lay there many hundreds viewed it. Banks of flowers surrounded the casket. Memorial exercises were held in the house of representatives. Dr. Robbins conducted the religious services, and eulogies were delivered by Governor Northen, Judge Brockley, Senator Gordon and Mayor Goodwin. After the services the body was escorted back to the train, and a few minutes after the arrival there the train left for Macon.

Czar Wants to Thank the Kaiser.

VIENNA, March 29.—It is learned from the Russian embassy that the czar desires to meet Emperor William on German territory and thank him for the successful issue of the negotiations for the Russo-German commercial treaty.

Gambling Debts Illegal.

BOSTON, March 29.—The supreme court of Massachusetts has decided that a note given in payment of a bet on horse racing is illegal and cannot be collected by process of law.

New Weather, This.

ERIE, O., March 29.—A terrible sandstorm has raged in this section for three days, and business at times has been almost suspended. A hard snow followed.

Mrs. Lockwood's Reqbeat Denied.

RICHMOND, March 29.—Judge Wellford adhered to his decision denying the petition of Mrs Belva A. Lockwood for license to practice in his court.

Seventh Gaylord Victim's Body Found.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., March 29.—The body of the seventh victim in the Gaylord mine was taken out. It proved to be that of Thomas Leyshon.

Town Totally Destroyed by Fire.

NORTH PLATTE, Neb., March 29.—The town of Sutherland, 16 miles west of here, was totally destroyed by fire.

A Wonderful Cure

Ulcer in the Stomach

Hood's Sarsaparilla Restores Flesh Strength and Health.

"G. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"I feel it my duty to suffering humanity to give a statement of the wonderful cure Hood's Sarsaparilla brought about for me. Over two years ago I became ill, and was so ulcer in my stomach. I had six or seven different physicians, whose standing was of the highest, but they did not cure me. I was broken down in health and lost in weight from 145 to 118 Pounds.

I could hardly get around, and after suffering severely for about a year, I commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. After the first bottle I began to feel like a new man. I purchased another, and then a second, and by the time I had taken three bottles I was entirely cured. I am now in good health and weigh 145 pounds. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla to all suffering from impure blood." P. W. BUSH, Anakonda, Pennsylvania.

MADELINE'S OLD LOVER

Rossell Tells of His Courtship of Miss Pollard.

SOME EROTIC DEPOSITIONS READ.

The Kentucky Schoolmaster Testifies That He Was Once Engaged to Marry Madeline, but Broke the Engagement—She Wanted to Go to Chicago With Him.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—The surprise of the Pollard-Breckinridge trial was the unexpected appearance of one of Miss Pollard's old lovers—Rankin Rossell, a Kentucky schoolmaster. His deposition had been read in the case, but to make his testimony doubly sure the ex-fiance was introduced in person, and no sooner had he taken the stand than Madeline Pollard gilded in for the first time this week from the office of her attorneys across the street, where she waits to be sent for when her presence is needed.

Most of the testimony was in the form of deposition and much of it was of a character which can only be published in expurgated form. Those depositions regarding which Judge Bradley expressed his regrets that they could not be excluded on general principles were recited, and the justification for the scathing comments on them was self evident.

Some of the language employed by Hiram Kaufman, a Lexington butcher, and John Brandt, a janitor from the same place, would hardly be tolerated in a well regulated barroom. These gentlemen admitted in a matter of fact way their tendencies toward habitual drunkenness and marital infidelity, and their hours admitted their statements unexpurgated, as he remarked in conversation, that the jury might judge of the character of the witnesses.

Colonel Breckinridge's private secretary was one witness of the day, and another was Colonel Hay, the best known man in Washington and incidentally an expert on penmanship, who was subjected to further cross examination upon the principles employed in detecting forgeries, under the auspices of another expert who sat at Attorney Wilson's elbow.

From the addition of this new expert to the case it looks as though a hard fight had been precipitated over the authenticity of that black bordered letter.

Old Lovers Face to Face.

There was a stir in court when Mr. Shelby said: "Now, Mr. Rossell," and a tall, slender, sunburned man whose dress betokened that he was from the country came forward and kissed the Bible. Rankin R. Rossell will be remembered, was one of Miss Pollard's lovers.

"Do you know the plaintiff, Madeline Pollard?"

This was the first important question asked by Mr. Shelby, who conducted the examination, and the reply was, "Yes."

"State when you became acquainted with her and under what circumstances?"

Mr. Rossell was evidently embarrassed. He spoke slowly, and his command of grammar was not all that might be expected of a schoolteacher.

"It was either in October or November, 1888," he said. "There was a lady came into the room looking for me."

Just at this juncture occurred one of the most dramatic episodes of the trial, for as Rossell said these words the door between the jury room and the court room was open, and for the first time this week the black robed plaintiff, followed by her faithful attendant, Sister Ellis of the austere features, entered.

Miss Pollard wore a new bonnet—more becoming than the little affair which has covered her head heretofore. She glanced forward and kissed her hand to Rossell as she was their first meeting since 1885. The young woman's facetiousness slightly. The ones incident in his and Rossell's boyhood days by with the Bible on the stand. Miss Pollard took a seat beside Mr. Wilson nearly in front of the witness. There was silence, deep and embarrassing, as Rossell looked to Mr. Shelby as he said, "Proceed, Mr. Rossell."

"Thence told how Miss Pollard had introduced herself to him and how she had asked him to come to Wesleyan college to see her.

"Did you see her alone or with other persons?"

"Most frequently alone. Sometimes other young ladies came in."

"Did your visits lead to friendship?"

"At first I had an admiration for the young lady. My admiration led to love and love to an engagement. We became engaged just after the holidays."

Told Him About Rhodes.

In answer to questions Rossell said: "Miss Pollard stated first that Mr. Rhodes was her guardian; afterward that she was desirous of getting an education, and having no one to help her, Mr. Rhodes having proposed matrimony, she became engaged to him on condition that he would pay for her schooling. She said from the start that she did not intend to carry out the contract. She was going to Wesleyan to secure an education. I saw her at the school sometimes in the reception room adjoining the parlor, sometimes in the parlor, generally about from 9 to 10 in the evening.

"What was her manner after she became engaged to you?"

"It was very affectionate. She frequently kissed me and caressed me. Is this what you are after?"

Mr. Shelby assented and inquired when she set out for Chicago.

"She would sit beside me at first, generally in a chair. As our friendship increased we became closer. She has sat in my lap time and time again."

"Were there any demonstrations of affection?"

"Oh, yes. There naturally would be. I would put my arms around her and kiss her."

"During that time did you ever meet Mr. Rhodes?"

"I met him on one occasion only. Miss Pollard stated that Mr. Rhodes had heard of my calling, and she desired that he should see me. I was pretended not to know her. That night a friend of hers met me at the door. There were three or four other couples in the parlor. I was introduced to him and to her as if I had never met her."

"Did you meet as friends?"

"We were strangers, according to previous arrangement."

"Did anything occur to spoil your arrangement?"

She Wanted to Go With Him.

"We were sitting opposite, and once she hallooed across the room, 'Oh, Rankin!' Mr. Rhodes said he thought she knew me. Introduced to me, and she made him believe she was hallooing to a young lady."

"Did you tell her you were going to leave Cincinnati?"

"Only yes. The evening before I left I met her in the library. She expressed her regrets; did not want me to go and desired to go with me. I told her if she really desired to go to get ready. She went up, stains and came down with her hat and coat on, so I was in a box. I told her that under the circumstances we had better not go, that we had better wait until June."

"Did you think she was in earnest?"

"I did not until she went up stairs."

"Did she tell you her trunk packed?"

"She said so."

"Did she ever say anything about her age?"

"She represented herself as three years my junior. I was born in 1860."

Rossell further said that he had presented two rings to Miss Pollard. He had taken her to the car on the night just before leaving Cincinnati. One of the pictures was handed to him and identified, as were three other tintypes which had been sent to him by Miss Pollard in 1884, two of them taken with friends.

Mr. Wilson was sustained in an objection to the reasons why Rossell had let the engagement drop. In another form the latter question was permitted, and the witness said that she had allowed him to kiss her long her in a way he did not like to a woman he loved. Once he had written her about the rings he gave her. He had destroyed the reply.

After the noon recess Mr. Shelby inquired whether in 1884 Miss Pollard was a mature person physically and mentally. Objection was made and the question overruled. It was also whether her conduct was that of a mature person, and this was also excluded, but a question was passed to which Mr. Rossell could answer that she was a woman.

He had seen Principal Brown but once, and there had been no unpleasantness between them. Last April he had made application for the position of gauger in the internal revenue service, but when his friends persuaded him to run for superintendent of schools he withdrew his application. He did not know Colonel Breckinridge when he applied for the revenue position. His application had been withdrawn before he made a deposition in this case.

Catechised by Wilson.

Mr. Wilson jumped into the cross examination enthusiastically.

"You withdrew your application before you made that deposition?" he asked.

"Yes, sir."

"How long before?"

"Well, about"——

"Was it not the same day you made your deposition—the morning of the same day?"

"Yes, it was."

"And didn't you have your application in your pocket when you made the deposition?"

"Yes, sir; that's a fact."

There was a brief tilt between lawyers over questions regarding the standing of Wesleyan institute, Mr. Wilson desiring to show that Mrs. Rutherford B. Hayes, Mrs. Springer and other prominent women had graduated there and Mr. Butterworth saying that all that was admitted. Then Mr. Wilson catechised the witness about the location of reception rooms in the school; whether or not the door between parlor and reception room was not always open. When Boswell's memory failed on details, Mr. Wilson prodded him with: "But you were there two or three times a week."

Asked if he did not know it to be a fact that visitors were permitted at Wesleyan only one night in the week, Rossell said he knew he had told the truth, and Mr. Wilson returned sarcastically: "We don't care for protestations about your testimony. We only want answers."

Rossell reiterated that Miss Pollard had sat on his lap for two hours at a time there. He had first told of his acquaintance with Miss Pollard in a letter by O'Mahoney of Lexington, who had come as a messenger from Colonel Breckinridge. Rossell was positive Miss Pollard had told him that she was married to Julian in a mock marriage and said he had never heard of Owen Tinsley. Rossell had loaned a picture of Miss Pollard to a mail carrier, who got it to a gentleman who was related to Colonel Breckinridge and who sent it to the defendant; had withdrawn his application for office of his own motion.

"How long was Miss Pollard up stairs when she said she would go to Chicago with you?" asked Mr. Wilson.

"Fifteen or 20 minutes."

"Had packed her trunk and got ready in 15 or 20 minutes?"

"She said so."

"What time was this?"

"Nine or 10 o'clock at night."

"Who was about there?"

"I didn't see anybody. We were alone."

This ended the testimony of Mr. Rossell, and the deposition of Hiram Kaufman, a butcher of Lexington, Ky., was taken up by Attorney Stull.

Kaufman Reads Deposition.

Mr. Kaufman had known Miss Pollard when she lived in Lexington in 1883. There were some words not customarily heard in the best society in this statement, but with the consent of Judge Bradley the lawyer substituted a milder term. Once he had visited an assignation house with Jim Rhodes. Jim had said, "I want you to see my girl." Miss Pollard was in the hall and sat on Rhodes' lap, and Rhodes had hugged and kissed her. On another occasion Miss Pollard had retired to a room in that house with one John Brandt and had remained there three-quarters of an hour, and when they came out she had returned there with another fellow. Miss Pollard had once asked him to go into the room with her, but he had declined because he was a friend of Rhodes. Rhodes had borrowed money from him for his girl, and he had insisted upon seeing the girl. Rhodes had brought them, saying, "Jim, let me introduce you to my girl, Miss Pollard."

Rhodes had taken liberties with Miss Pollard in the presence of other people. "Miss Pollard had on some of this gauze stuff, kinder Mother Hubbard," was the lucid description of her attire by the deponent. Rhodes had called her "pretty full" that evening. He had visited the house two or three times a week after the first call and always found Miss Pollard there. Kaufman had boarded there six weeks in May and June of 1883.

The witness had indulged in some profanity and obscenity, most of which he credited to Miss Pollard as quotations of her remarks; had seen her "drunk as the devil" and had been obliged to put her to bed.

A School Janitor Called.

The deposition of John A. Brandt, a school janitor of Lexington, followed. Brandt said he had first met Miss Pollard in 1883 at a house kept by Lena Singleton, who was reputed to be the mistress of James Rhodes. The plaintiff had accosted him about 17 years old. Brandt had often taken Miss Pollard riding, according to his story; had often picked her up and carried her to and from the street, as he was a married man.

Mr. Brandt also had employed language which would not bear repetition. He described Miss Pollard as "a spare made woman," with dark hair, and said she was then going to school.

Brandt's testimony was somewhat contradictory as to when he first met Miss Pollard, saying once that he had met her first in 1881 and again in 1883. He was introduced to Miss Pollard in Lena Singleton's house by a woman he had met at a house of ill fame in Cincinnati, but could not remember the name of the woman or the location of the house. In explaining one of his lapses of memory the witness said, "You see I was sometimes pretty full, drunk, as I generally was." He could not remember whether he was drunk on the occasion of the alleged meeting with Madeline Pollard at Lena Singleton's. The deponent expected that he had made improper remarks to Miss Pollard, but declined to say whether he had taken liberties with her.

The deposition of Letcher Lusby, chief of police of Lexington for six years past, testified that he had known Lena Singleton; that she kept a sporting house, as he characterized it, although he was careful to explain that he had never been there.

Mr. Wilson objected to a question as to Lena Singleton's reputation for chastity; but Judge Bradley remarked that considering what the witness said of her house her character could be inferred. Questions as to whether Mr. Rhodes had sent money by express through an office in which Lusby had been employed, were objected to, but admitted, and it appeared that Rhodes had sent money to a young lady at Wesleyan college. When witness joked him about her, he had replied that she was his niece.

The deposition of W. T. Jones, an alderman of Lexington, showed that he had been acquainted with the family of Professor Brown of Wesleyan college in 1883 and 1884; had known Miss Pollard and understood that she was frequently visited by Rossell. She had told him that Rhodes was paying her attentions, but she had promised to marry him, but did not intend to carry out her contract, as he was an ignorant old farmer.

HURRAHED FOR M'KINLEY.

The Republicans Give Him a Rousing Reception In Minneapolis.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 29.—Governor William McKinley and party reached Minneapolis from Chicago. In St. Paul they were joined by Governor Clough, John Goodnow, president of the Republican State league, and others. Upon arrival in Minneapolis they were met by the cadets of the State university to the number of 600 and the University Republican club. The party was escorted to the West hotel, where 4,000 people had assembled in the spacious lobby. Along the route to the hotel the bands had been playing "Marching Through Georgia," the refrain of which was: "We're here because we're here, Kitty," and the famous "Skil-a-ma-rah" yell of the university students rent the air.

The governor's reception at the West hotel was such as only 4,000 strong northwestern throats could give. The North Star quartet sang "All Hail," expressing the sentiment, "Glad to see the leader, to follow thee," after which the governor ascended the staircase and was introduced by President Goodnow.

He directed his remarks principally to the students and declared that it was to the young men of thecountry that all parties must look. During his address he declared that the people of the country never wanted to vote in all their history as they did now.

Later the governor was driven to the exposition building, where the State League of Republican Clubs was in session. There he made another address, in which he said that nobody knew what the Democratic congress would do. He then went on to talk about the principles of protection. Again to-day he was driven over the guidance of Bishop Fowler, Governor Nelson and Mayor Eustis, to some of the public institutions and made an address to the pupils of the central high school.

In the evening he was escorted to the exposition building, which was packed to overflowing by people from all parts of the northwest to hear the leading address of the day.

After a brief speech by the president Governor McKinley's well known face and form advanced up the aisle. The vast assemblage rose, cheering.

President Goodnow, in presenting the governor, asked the introduction to be by rising and giving three cheers, which was enthusiastically responded to. Governor McKinley then delivered a stirring address. In its main points it did not differ from the speech made at the exposition building late in the evening. After the retirement of Governor McKinley the election of officers followed. John Goodnow of this city, the present incumbent, was re-elected by acclamation. F. C. Stevens of St. Paul was elected to succeed himself as secretary.

Canadians Tariff Mad Too.

MONTREAL, March 29.—Wholesale grocers and liquor dealers here took a quarter of million of dollars' worth of liquors out of the bonded warehouses to-day, anticipating that the duty would be raised. Intense excitement prevailed here while waiting for news of the new tariff.

Business Improves.

HARTFORD, March, 29.—The industrial situation in Connecticut is showing a remarkable improvement.

QUORUM IN THE HOUSE.

Did Not Last Long Enough, However, to Seat O'Neill.

WASHINGTON, March 29.—As a preliminary to the sessions of the house the committee on rules met and prepared a rule for the consideration of the Joy-O'Neill and the Hilborn-English contested election cases. The rule provides for two hours' consideration of each case. It was not brought in immediately upon the assembling of the house, but was held while some necessary business was transacted to afford time for the full attendance of the day to develop. When it was introduced, the Democrats mustered a bare quorum to enforce the demand for the previous question and again to adopt the committee's rule, but melted away again after the discussion of the Joy-O'Neill case had been concluded and before the majority report of the elections committee, declaring the contestant O'Neill entitled to the seat, could be adopted. The day's discussion was without special interest.

For the first time since last Thursday the senate held a session for the transaction of business, and a number of resolutions were passed, among them one authorizing the secretary of the treasury to receive on deposit the money derived from the sale of the Cherokee bonds.

Several important bills and resolutions were introduced, among them a joint resolution by Senator Dolph abrogating the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, and one by Senator Peffer repealing all laws granting the secretary of the treasury authority to issue bonds and other interest bearing obligations without specific authority from congress. All these went over without action.

The resolution offered some time ago by Senator Sherman, directing the judiciary committee to examine whether the existing laws are sufficient to punish the simulation of United States coins by coins of the same size and value, was laid before the senate and agreed to after a brief discussion.

Then the senate went into executive session, and when the doors were reopened the McGarrahan bill was laid before the senate, and Senator Morrill spoke in opposition to the measure. He was followed by Senator Hunton of Virginia, who advocated its passage, and at the conclusion of his speech a short executive session was held, and the senate adjourned.

Fourth Class Postmasters.

WOMAN AND HOME.

IMPORTANCE OF PROPER VENTILATION FOR THE HOME.

Jeanie Welsh Carlyle—Women Who Are Overworked—George Eliot In Society. A Philanthropic Woman—It Is the Hour of Maturity—A Play Garment.

If one stands outside a room and holds the flame of a candle to the keyhole, and the flame is blown inward, it shows that the room is not sufficiently ventilated, since the chief current of air comes from the keyhole and cracks of the door. Ventilation through the door is one of the worst methods of ventilation, for it generally means that the air of the room is changed only by the introduction of impure air from the house; of air tainted by dust, human breath, kitchen odors and frequently by the exhalation from decaying matter and drains. Every room should have a direct opening into the outer air, and in order to prevent drafts this inlet should be so constructed that the air shall enter the room when it takes an upward direction. Instead of falling like a cold shower, upon the occupants of the room, for if the outer air is colder than that of the room, as it nearly always is, it is heavier, and consequently sinks by its great weight.

A simple plan of giving an upward direction to the air is to cause the room to have an ornamental glass screen fitted across the lower part of the window and to raise the lower sash. Air then enters from two quarters, both in an upward direction, since that which enters at the bottom of the sash passes upward till it reaches the top of the screen, and that which enters between the two sashes is directed upward by the lower sash, which acts as a second screen.

A similar plan is for the bottom edge of the window frame to overlap by some inches the bottom of the window, which can then be raised to within half an inch of the edge of the frame, so that air is admitted between the sashes only and of course in an upward direction. In many modern houses the windows are so made as to permit of this, and when this construction does not exist at the expense of a shilling or two a piece of ornamental board may be fixed for the purpose.

Another plan of giving ventilation through the middle rails of the sashes is to have a block of wood to fit the window frame at the bottom, on which the lower sash, after being raised for a couple of inches, accurately rests.

This plan, first advocated by Dr. Hinckes Bird, is one of the cheapest and is suited to houses where economy is necessary, as it also is the still simpler method of boring holes in the wooden surface affected by the meeting rails of the upper and lower sash.

This is rather an effective means of ventilation for cold and especially for fuggy weather, as the slight blower of cotton wool over these holes the air is both filtered and warmed on its entrance, and it is quite surprising to see how, in a short time, the wool becomes black and grimy, showing that it gives our rooms and lungs from much soot and dirt. Air as it enters may also be filtered by muslin curtains across the windows.

Double windows open below outside and above inside give an effective ventilation without draft, and a good plan for large rooms, hospital wards or halls is for the top of the window to open with a flap shipping inward. Such a flap, however, allows the air to fall into the room like cold water unless the sides are filled up by a leather or some other similar contrivance.

When one has venetian blinds, rooms can be ventilated without draft by opening the windows at the top and allowing the strips of wood in the blind to slope upward and inward so as to admit the air in an upward direction. The Louvre ventilator, which is fixed in a window pane and opens with a cord, is arranged on this plan.—Sanitary Report.

Jeanie Welsh Carlyle.

Although the little woman who is now lovingly remembered as Jeanie Welsh Carlyle was, in a different way, quite as intellectual as her husband, she continually subordinated her life to his. However, she was not always content to "play second fiddle" where the conversation was concerned.

She did once confess, in a familiar chat with a friend, "I can't bear to be thought of as only Mr. Carlyle's wife," and that unwillingness was chiefly patent in talk at her own fireside.

Since she was able to tell "Before folks" anecdotes which rendered Carlyle ever so slightly ridiculous, and his unceasing inconsiderateness gave her rich opportunity for such betrayal.

The contrast between his doctrine of the sacredness of silence and his own incessant talk was very tempting, and the wife could not resist comment on the difference between her husband's preachment and practice.

Once, when he was declaiming on the foolishness of travel and the general desirability of staying where you are, the little lady suddenly broke in upon the harangue with, "Now, my dear, among the group of remarkable men, politicians and authors of the first literary rank. She would talk and laugh softly and look up into my father's face respectfully, while the light of the great hall lamp shone on the waving masses of her hair, and the black velvet fell in folds about her feet. But the delicate tact-ing away of her social chances when she left for Germany with Lewes she would undoubtedly have achieved a very great position in the London world quite independently of her novels.

In those days not a soul suspected her of a tinge of imaginative power. A real, deep thought and quiet wit were the characteristics of her speech. Most striking as it was, I should hesitate to call it charming. There was always a want of brightness in her conversation. Her nature smoldered deeply and occasionally glowed with interior fire. To the outward eye it never burst into a quick flame.—Contemporary Review.

A Philanthropic Woman.

The Boston Transcript pays the following tribute to the late Mrs. Hemenway: "It was her patriotism that saved the Old South Meeting house and established and maintained there the historical courses which continue to teach the young the beauty and the worth of American institutions and monuments. It was her faith in the spirit of modern education of mind and body that has established kindergartens and women's gymnasiums and made the teaching of the hand in Sloyd complete the school work of Boston. To enumerate the departments of work which Mrs. Hemenway endowed or aided is almost to catalogue the subjects mentioned with progressive education in Boston. Her support of American archæological research is noted, and the summer when a number of Zuni Indians were guests at her house at Manchester-by-the-sea is historical to more ways than one. The administration of her fortune during her lifetime was always one of conscious trusteeship for the good of her country and her time. As far as possible she eliminated the personal element from her beneficence, and considering its simply service liked nothing less than to be publicly associated with her gifts. But no one ever reaped unsought a heartier reward of affection and gratitude than Mrs. Hemenway."

It Is the Hour of Maturity.

The "bread and butter" miss, the comparatively inexperienced maiden—may, even the very young matron, is hopelessly "out of it" at the present. It is the hour of maturity, and the woman has triumphed over the girl. She may now be anything over 30 to hold sway, provided always that she keeps herself 30 in heart and face. She has learned the power to attract. She must possess tact and judgment, and then she can snap her fingers at time and boldly set down what she likes of the census paper. At all events, she need no longer dread the attainment of her third decade, for it is then that her reign begins. Not until then does she begin to understand the meaning of power. And it does not want to be regarded as a schoolgirl's ideal to live on kisses and kisses and eternally play the innocent game. He wants companionship, he wants to have his faults recognized and openly discussed, and he knows that with her ripened experience the woman will not expect too much of him or invest him with a halo of romance; neither has she any mere matrimonial designs upon him. So has she cultivated her younger sisters, and her own daughters, and thus need she no longer fear the taking of the census and the revelation of her age.—Lady's Pictorial.

A Play Garment.

I wish to describe a very useful little garment which I have made for my little 3-year-old boy, and which has proved itself practical by trial. He is still wearing dresses, and I found that every time he went out of doors to play during the present wet and snowy weather he always came in with his dress and skirts very wet around the bottom. So I made overpants out of an old gossamer waterproof, and now he can go anywhere with his little boots. The long overcoat hides all peculiarities.

For a child of 3 years they should be about three-quarters of a yard long from top to bottom. Each leg should be a little fuller at the top than at the bottom, say 36 inches around the top of each leg and 32 around the bottom, in order to have plenty of fullness for the dress and skirts, as the trousers are expected to be worn over all these regular clothes. Make each leg separately until you come to the inside seam, stitch that up 9 inches, then join the two legs together on one side and leave the opposite side open. Gather top and bottom into bands.

I am so pleased with my invention that I intend to have my little boy use it after he goes into pants, if he goes out in the deep snow.—Babyhood.

A Happy Woman.

A woman with a happy disposition is far more to a man as a wife than the woman with a great fortune, for riches take wings. Worldly prosperity has a way of altering, and if once money vanishes the gloomy individual does naught but sit down and weep, giving no word of encouragement for the husband, on whom the blow falls, most heavily. The happy dispositioned wife will see a way out of the difficulty or will accept matters as they are in a sweet spirit of cheerfulness that endows her husband with new zeal and causes him to look upon her as the guiding star of his existence. If God has not given you such a disposition, cultivate it as far as possible. It does no good to brood over one's troubles. It doesn't help matters out a bit. Be on the lookout for bright rays, and you will certainly find them.—Philadelphia Times.

The Intellectual Woman.

In a contribution to "Worthington's Magazine" Junius Henri Browne compliments the intellectual woman. The intellectual woman of society is better dressed, because more quietly and less extravagantly, than the nonintellectual woman. She appears to more advantage in the drawing room and on the promenade. She is sounder, fuller, more methodical and exact. Her evolution is loftier and more complete. When she is rather plain than pretty, she is often thought very pretty, because her manners are so fine and her understanding is so clear that she neglects no one and is considerate to all. She is almost always frugal in expenditure and wearing, for her mind animates her whole body and embraces the smallest details. She has the latter half of the nineteenth century spirit, which is too broad and sympathetic to permit her to reserve her faculties for her own benefit.

Memory and Pluck Were Good.

Miss Sara Jennette Duncan, the author of "An American Girl in London," "A Social Departure," etc., possesses quite as much pluck as she does literary ability. In common with all other prophets, she calculated much of her early success. One of New York's famous magazines, only to have it promptly returned, and this continued to be the case after she had made her début elsewhere. Scrapbook after she had ceased to besiege the magazine, however, she received a letter from one of its new editors asking her to the favor of a contribution. Miss Duncan, with all the serenity at her command, sent the sweetest little note in reply, in which she contrived to state very positively, however that after so many years of disapproval from the magazine at large she could not think of imposing upon the leniency and good nature of its new editor.—Chicago Post.

Cold Hands and Feet In Children.

Many children, though apparently in very fair health, habitually have cold hands and feet. This is indeed such a common occurrence that in many instances it hardly excites the attention of those to whose care of the children it is intrusted. Even if it does strike the observer as rather unusual, it is generally dismissed with casual comments as of no particular importance. This indifference is regarded as a serious error by Dr. Flint of the Presbyterian hospital, New York. He asserts that persistently cold hands and feet are the infallible index of disorder in the bodily mechanism or deterioration in vital fluids. Indigestion, nervous excitement, imperfect circulation and impure blood are named as the unnatural conditions capable of giving rise to cold hands and feet.—Babyhood.

Fruit For Children.

Some families incline more to febrile complaints than others. Such should use fruit freely. It should absolutely be a part of the daily diet. A woman whose success in keeping her large family well is almost phenomenal to her friends said that she ascribed their immunity from tendency to febrile complaints almost entirely to the unlimited use of fruit. Seasonable fruit is best, and it should always be in good condition, neither over nor under ripe. Oranges for children are preferably eaten by cutting across the grain and digging out the juice and fine pulp with a spoon. This is all that is needed, and the tough, stringy fiber when the fruit is eaten entire is irritating to the stomach and is why some persons fancy oranges do not agree with them.—New York Advertiser.

When You Write to the Queen.

The paper on which letters to Queen Victoria are written must not be folded. No communication which bears evidence of having been creased will ever fall into her majesty's own hands. The proper method is to write on a thick, glossy white paper and to dispatch the missive in an envelope which fits it. Any folded communication never reaches the queen, for the simple reason that she won't look at it. All such letters are opened by the mistress of the robes, and, as a rule, their contents never get beyond her, or, if the letter is of importance, it is returned to the writer with directions how to forward it.—Chicago Tribune.

An Overindulgent Mother.

A doting, overindulgent mother is the most contemptible creature I can have. The insane kindness of such mothers has ruined thousands of sons and daughters, who, under proper management, would have been a comfort and a credit to their parents. Compromises may sometimes be expedient in politics—although that is doubtful if any wholesome principle is waived or sacrificed—but in family government they are almost always unwise. All this, it may be said, is so true that it is trite; yet, in view of the lawlessness of the children of this generation, it cannot be too often reiterated.—New York Commercial.

To Prevent Spotting.

A teaspoonful of black pepper will prevent gray or buff linens from spotting if stirred into the first water in which they are washed. It will also prevent the colors running when washing black or colored cambrics or muslins, and the water is not injured by it, but just as soft as before the pepper was put in.—New York Telegram.

Let each child have a box in which to keep his own possessions and see that he keeps them there. Never allow one child to molest the things that belong to another. Teach him to draw sharp the line of ownership even in trivial things.

As Carlyle puts it, "There is a perennial nobleness and sacredness in work." Man is in harmony with himself and the whole world when he gets congenial work to do. Woman's expanding power demands rewarding work.

It's pretty hard for a woman wearing a dress she has "turned" three seasons, and faded cotton hose, with patched heels, to say to her liege lord, "I love you just as well as when we were married 10 years ago."

Something soft and sweet for baby's toilet is a circular bag of crocheted wool lined with the thinnest flannel, through which sifts the perfumed baby power.

A veil may be made becoming by lining it with gossamer tulle of a pink tone. It will be invisible to the observer, but the effect in the complexion is incredible.

VISITING LEGISLATORS.

New Jersey Pays New York an Official Visit at Albany.

ALBANY, March 29.—Forty members of the New Jersey legislature, with about 30 guests, are in the city today, the guests of the state. They were met last night by not only a committee, but by at least two-thirds of the New York legislature, the assembly having adjourned early in order to allow the members to be present. The guests were escorted to the Delevan House, where rooms had been secured, and about an hour after their arrival an elaborate collation was served.

Speaker Malby, Mr. Sulzer, Senator O'Connor and others made addresses of welcome. It was quite an unusual sight to see over 200 legislators assembled around a banquet board. The speeches after dinner were witty and entertaining. Today the visitors will visit the capitol and watch the legislative proceedings. There, also, will be present at a joint session for the election of a regent.

KOSSUTH'S FUNERAL.

Remains of the Hungarian Patriot Taken to Buda-Pesth.

TURIN, March 29.—The funeral services over the body of Louis Kossuth were held here in the Evangelical church. The streets of the city were crowded with people, including 40 deputies of Hungarians in their national costumes.

A special train to convey the remains of Kossuth to Buda-Pesth arrived here, and the coffin containing the body was removed from the mortuary pavilion and placed upon the train. There was a great crowd about the station before and during the transfer, and all the men reverently removed their hats as the coffin was being placed on the railway carriage.

The guard of honor, composed of Hungarian students, then took places in the carriages, together with the members of Kossuth's family and the representatives of the municipality of Buda-Pesth.

A detachment of military was present, and as the train started on its journey to the Hungarian capital three volleys were fired by them.

The municipal authorities of Turin have decided, as a mark of respect to the memory of the great Hungarian, to have a tablet bearing a suitable inscription set in the front wall of the house in which Kossuth died.

THE LAST CONSIDERED THE BEST.

The Lady Cyclers' Final Progressive Whist Party a Grand Wind-Up.

During the winter of '93 and '94, the members of the Ladies Cycling Club, had been meeting every other Thursday for progressive whist.

Now that riding time is so near at hand again they have decided to prepare for their usual "runs" instead of playing "whist." So they held their last meeting for that term, yesterday afternoon, at the beautiful home of Mrs. Colles T. Pond, of Madison avenue. As usual a most delightful as well as an extremely jolly time was enjoyed by all, for, to tell the truth, a more congenial party of ladies would be hard to find.

Mrs. Pond gained her own favors as well as the prizes. The favors were dainty personal bon-bon dishes.

The prizes consisted of two large bon-bon dishes, for first prize; two beautiful vases, for second, two pen holders, booby. The first prize were won by Mrs. Fritz, lady, and Mrs. Crane, gentleman.

Mrs. Green, lady, and Mrs. Taylor, gentleman, captured the second prizes.

Miss Maltby, lady, and Miss Brown, gentleman, came in for the booby prizes.

Among those present were, Mrs. David Pond, Mrs. Crane, Mrs. Fritz, Mrs. Green, Mrs. Curtis, Miss Saltzman, Miss Brown, Miss Maltby, Mrs. Taylor, Miss Morrison, Mrs. Lowrie, Miss Jeffries, Miss Coffin of Branchport, Miss Cook, Miss Devier, Mrs. Williams, Miss Ethel Green, Miss Fritz, Miss Holmes, and Miss Longdon.

The playing stopped shortly after five. At the close of the games there was another delightful surprise in the way of the refreshments Mrs. Pond had prepared for the occasion. It being the last Club Whist party for the season she had devisted from the rule of the Club, which is that only light refreshments be served, and gave them dainty, numerous and tasty dishes, quite in keeping with what had preceded. After this feast the party dispersed. Before leaving they gave Mrs. Pond three cheers and the Club yell.

The first meeting of the Club in their new Club house, corner of Fifth street and Park avenue will be held next Wednesday afternoon.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. Ezra Loomis of Grove street has moved into Mr. Griffen's house on Mountain avenue.

Mrs. J. Marsh of Rahway is visiting her daughter, Mrs. John M. Schorb, Jr., of West Front street.

Letter-Carrier Edward Haun moved yesterday from West Fifth street to Park place, North Plainfield.

Mayor-elect Needham will address the Young Men's meeting at the Y. M. C. A. at 4:45 Sunday afternoon.

There was a social dance at the residence of Mr. L. Enoch, on Park avenue, last night, given by his son.

Councilman William G. E. Soo moved yesterday with his family from Sandford avenue to Cleveland avenue.

Master Jesse Hurlbut, formerly of this, but now of New York, is visiting William Cornwell, of Washington street.

Dr. A. H. Lewis will have for his theme to-morrow morning: "The certainty of success when we work with God."

Miss Coffin, formerly of New York, now of Branchport, N. J., is the guest of Miss Arline Crane, of West Eighth street.

Dr. E. B. Lightbill, a very successful specialist of Trenton, on account of his health, has decided to remove to Plainfield.

The condition of Capt. Mimms of the Salvation Army has so far improved that she is again able to take charge of the meetings.

Mr. Clarence S. Johnson, who has been employed as salesman at Mr. Howard A. Pope's for the past few years, has obtained a position with Mr. Seely Ehrell.

Next Sunday will be Choirmaster Cheeswright's last day at Holy Cross church. He leaves next week for New Haven, Conn., where he becomes connected with the Trinity church.

Mr. and Mrs. George Rogers of Rockview terrace gave a progressive euchre party last evening. Mrs. Evans won first prize. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Evans, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Church, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Stillman, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Doazlass, Mr. and Mrs. S. St. J. McCutchen, Miss Florence Marsh and Miss Minnie Marsh.

At the residence of Mrs. J. W. MacNaughton, on West Front street, last night, a very pleasant affair was held, in the form of a supper to the pastor of the M. E. church, Rev. De. Barnes, and family and to the Superintendent of the Sunday-school, J. W. Jackson, and wife. It was given by the members of Mr. MacNaughton's Sunday-school class. Supper was served at about 7:30, after which games and other amusements were indulged in until the hour came for them to part.

It Deserved a Better Attendance.

The entertainment at the Y. M. C. A. rooms, last evening, for the benefit of the gymnasium fund was very enjoyable and deserved a much larger attendance.

The programme was as follows:

Violin Solo	Dykman Wheeler
Recitation	J. H. Yocki
Horizontal Bar, A. Wagner, W. Probasco, A. Crowell
Cornet Solo—"Little Wooden S. Prose"	A. Carpenter
Two Brother Act	Chas. Myers, Fred. Schneider
Indian Clubs	Edward Galbraith, Marshall Eaton Swinging	Edward Galbraith
Cornet Solo	W. Shoo, Yocki
Recitation	J. Yocki
Pantomime	Warren Rice.

BREVITIES.

—The Schumann Lady Quartette will be at the Casino to-night.

—The chief's degree in ample form will be conferred to-night by Mintomomo Tribe, No. 118, I. O. R. M.

—To-night the Junior Entertainment Committee of the Park Club will give a dance in the club house.

—To-night the Sunday school of the First M. E. church will hold its annual meeting in Vincent chapel to elect officers.

—The entertainment in the parish building of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, Evons, last night, proved very successful.

—The choir of the First Baptist church will repeat the Easter music at the evening service next Sunday evening, April 1st.

—One week from to-night Mayor-elect Needham and Councilmen-elect Peck, Valiant and Lounsbury will take their seats in the Borough Council.

—Two trees were cut down to-day on the Fourth street side of Mr. Alex. Rasyon's property at the corner of Park avenue. Mr. Rasyon is also having curbing put down.

—The next of the series of "Evenings with Charles Dickens" will be held at All Souls church on April 6th, when Mr. H. B. Wells will introduce "Pickwick Papers," by a short paper or address.

—Contractor Michael Undal, at seven o'clock last evening, completed his work of putting on the tan bark floor in the Crescent Rink. It is four inches deep and rolled so that horses cannot slip on it.

—Court Plainfield No. 1174, Independent Order of Foresters, meet to-night in Pioneer Hall, Front street, new members will be initiated and a revision of the by-laws will go before the "Court" for consideration.

—The present cold snap covers the whole country, and has severely damaged early vegetables and fruit in Southern States. At Galveston, where they were picking strawberries, the mercury fell below freezing.

—The Hall Signal Company of Garwood has just made a contract with the Delaware and Hudson Canal Company to equip its road from Albany to Saratoga. This order will make business lively at the works for some time to come.

—Architect B. Fossate yesterday awarded the contracts for the new Queen Anne house at Netherwood on Woodland avenue, next to Ex-Councilman Spingenberg. Chas. Barnett is the mason, and a Westfield man, Wilcox is the carpenter.

—There will be an evening sociable under the auspices of the Independent Fife and Drum Corps, in Hulett's Hill, Tuesday evening, April 10, 1894. The couple in charge comprise D. Robins, Chairman; A. Wilcox, Secretary and Treasurer, F. L. Manchester, H. C. Ackerman, A. Allen, and J. V. Bodman.

—Miss Shoemaker introduced a novelty in a series of graceful and beautiful declamation gestures poses and attitudes accompanied by music. The audience was taken by storm, if the expression can be used for a capture which was made in perfect silence except for the rippling accompaniment—Cedar Rapids Gazette. Miss Shoemaker will appear with the Schumann Lady Quartette under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. at the Casino this evening.

THE A. P. A. IN PLAINFIELD.

A Branch of This Association Instituted Here Last Night.

Last night a branch of the American Protective Association, the organization that has occasioned so much talk in the West, because of its declaration against the Roman Catholics, was organized in Plainfield.

There was the utmost secrecy about the whole affair, and it is learned that about fifty of Plainfield's prominent citizens signed the charter list.

The oath the members are required to make binds them to secrecy of the strictest kind, one member not being allowed to even tell who his fellow members are.

Mr. Cheeswright's Piano Recital.

Mr. F. H. Cheeswright gave his last piano recital last night in the parish building of the Holy Cross church. The following was the programme:

At the Firemen's Fair.

Crowds are still on the increase at the firemen's fair.

Last night the contest for the driver's uniform was decided last night. It was won by William Townley of Alert Hose Company.

To-night the Plainfield Cornet Band and the Independent Fife and Drum Corps will be at the fair.

THE "FRIENDLY VISITOR."

Miss Smith Explains the Boston Methods.

Miss Zilpha D. Smith, general secretary of the Associated Charities of Boston, explained the "friendly visitor" system as conducted in Boston, at All Souls' church yesterday afternoon. She said the method in Boston was for the agent to make the first visit, and then give the person who is to make the visit a case of the person's surroundings in order that the visitor may have a pretext for calling and thus hiding the real object of her visit.

The friendly visitor does not give the aid direct, but in visiting a person she gradually finds out the needs of a family, through friendly conversation, and then has others give aid.

A friendly visitor, she said, should make frequent calls at first, say once or twice a week until the immediate wants are met, and then the visits can be made less frequent.

The object of the friendly visitor is to act as one of the family and counsel and advise the needy, and after hearing their traits to make suggestions to them, as to how they could become better situated.

Miss Smith cited a case where one lady had saved a disreputable woman, had made a bad boy a good brother and had rendered material aid to an invalid so that she had recovered.

Miss Smith thought that the giving of jelly, or the like, to a sick person would not be received in the sense of alms, because such a gift contained some thought for the person receiving from the one giving. Persons she said would accept such things when they would be indignant if you offered them money.

SAYS HE TRIED TO RIDE HIM DOWN.

Oswald Young Gets a Warrant for the Arrest of W. G. Peckham.

Oswald Young, of Westfield, a carpenter in the employ of Builder James Moffett, yesterday, swore out a warrant for the arrest of W. G. Peckham, attorney, and one of the prominent men of that place. Young claims that yesterday morning Mr. Peckham, who was on horseback, got angry at him, and endeavored to ride him down, and that he saved himself by flourishing a nail keg at the animal. He says he has at least seven witnesses.

Constable Koester took the warrant and waited at the station two hours for Peckham to return from his business in New York, and then failing to see him gave it up until to-day.

That Charity Benefit.

A charity benefit, as announced, took place in Music Hall last night. The attendance was not very large, the entire audience numbering about 250 people. This audience was either displeased or did not care to applaud the efforts of those on the stage. The only response heard when Billy Williams was cracking some very good jokes, was the echo of his own voice. The children, however, met with better favor. A faint applause was heard, while they were executing some of their fancy dances, which were very well done, indeed, for children of their age. Each child seemed to be thoroughly familiar with its part and not once during the evening did a break occur in any of their dances. The Spanish and serpentine dancers (outside talent) who were on the bill, did not appear. It was announced from the stage that they had not arrived in time to take part.

To Establish a Bowling Green Here.

A bowling green is likely to be established here. The movement is now on foot, and some of the most prominent in the Dunellen bowling team are the instigators of the project in this city. Already grounds in the Second Ward have been looked over and almost secured, and it is only a matter of a very short time before New Brunswick, Dunellen and Plainfield will come together in a series of games.

Not Much Demand for Soup Now.

The W. C. T. U. propose to close the soup kitchen after Saturday.

During the Winter it was liberally patronized by the poor to whom it was a great and un-red-taped help. Now, however, warm weather has come, the men have work, and there is little or no demand for the soup.

Next Winter, if needed, the soup kitchen will be resumed.

Somerset County Commissioners of Deeds.

At Trenton on Tuesday the following Commissioners of Deeds were appointed for Somerset County:

R. B. Spencer, North Plainfield, George V. Veghte, Hillsborough, John C. Cooper, Warren, Parmenus C. Henry, Bernards, George Terrill, Warren.

At the Riding Club Last Night.

Those who rode at the riding club last night were Mr. J. W. Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Roome, Mr. Harry Johnson, Mr. A. W. Haviland, Mr. A. C. Vail, Miss Carrie Vail, Mr. Coard, Mr. Cruikshank, Mr. J. P. Mimms, Miss Mimms, Mr. and Mrs. Peters of Fanwood, Mr. Benderson, Mr. Oyville Waring and Mr. Holly.

JUDGE FORBES DETERMINED.

He Resents Interference of Other Courts in the Cornell Case.

When court reconvened at Ithaca, N. Y., yesterday Judge Forbes sent for the District-Attorney and Sheriff.

He stated that a certain person committed to the County Jail for contempt had been removed from the jail and taken over to Watkins, and he wanted to know by what right this had been done. The District-Attorney stated that Judge Walter Lloyd Smith had granted a writ of habeas corpus in the Taylor matter, and the Sheriff, in obedience to the mandate, took Taylor to Watkins.

Judge Forbes said that he would like to know by what authority another Judge interfered with his court while it was in session. "My idea of the law is that no other court can interfere with another court while that court is in session" he said, "There is no other court which can tell this court what to do."

The Judge then told the District-Attorney if any further witnesses in the Cornell matter refused to answer to bring them before him, and he would send them to jail until the room gave out. "This court will not be trifled with any longer in this matter, and it is determined that this case shall be investigated and that there will be no miscarriage of justice."

Judge Forbes later excused the Grand Jury until April 24.

The reason for this long adjournment was the absence of student witnesses, it being the Easter recess at Cornell. Taylor did not take the stand when brought before the Grand Jury, nor was he asked to go before it. The effect of the adjournment is to leave him in jail to fill out his sentence of thirty days. His sentence will expire on April 14, but immediately he is released he will be subpoened to appear before the Grand Jury on the 24th, when, if he still refuses to answer, he may again be committed to jail for another thirty days. Much sympathy is expressed for Taylor here because it is known that a large number of witnesses were examined, and that some of them committed perjury, but that Taylor was too honorable to swear falsely, and is entitled to that much credit at least. Taylor is not well, as yesterday he had a high fever and a sore throat.

The War is On.

The Plainfield Board of Education is up in arms to defeat the bill at Trenton to abridge its powers in school expenditures. The bill requires that the Board shall consult Common Council before engaging in any undertaking involving large expenditures of money.

A member of the Board said to a NEWS reporter to-day that if the bill was even reported, it was unlikely to pass, and if it passed, it would be vetoed, as it affected Morristown, the Governor's home.

For the Study of the Scriptures.

Mr. F. W. Grant of Grove street will conduct meetings for the study of the scriptures every Sunday afternoon, at four o'clock, at the residence of Mr. T. L. Thomas, Washington avenue, Dunellen.

Some of the subjects will be "Peace With God; What is It?" "The Presence and Work of the Holy Spirit," "The Lord's Coming."

To Elect Church Officers.

The annual meeting of the Seventh-Day Baptist church will take place on Sunday afternoon next at two o'clock in the church, for the election of officers, including two trustees—one for 5 years and one to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Geo. B. Babcock.

MARRIAGE AND DIVORCE.

The Statistics for New Jersey.—17,178 Marriages During the Year.

The New Jersey lads and lasses seem to have no fear of hard times as an obstacle to marriage. The number of marriages solemnized in the State during the year 1893, the reports of which have been just issued, was 17,178. About 4,000 of these were couples from Pennsylvania, thus reducing the actual number of Jersey notches to 13,105.

The divorce records show a slight increase from year to year in the number of divorces granted. New Jersey has possibly prevented the increase to a degree by refusing to multiply the grounds for divorce, as has been done in many States, and the courts here have held parties strictly to the condition of the law. The only step taken recently to aid in procuring divorces was the shortening of the time in which a deserted man justified application for a divorce from three years to two years.

By the census of 1885 the population of the State was 1,378,638, and five years later, in 1890, it was 1,441,912. The number of divorces for the five years ending July 1, 1885, was 795, and for the five years ending July 1, 1888, it was 1,172. For the past five years they have numbered 1,371. The marriages for the five years ending July 1, 1888, not including nonresidents, numbered 62,865, and for the five years ending July 1, 1893, 61,251. For the past five years the marriages numbered 62,117. The divorce rate for the five years past was 22.07 per 1,000 marriages, or one divorce to every 62 5-10 marriages.

Out of the 1,371 divorces granted, the wife was the applicant for the decree in 903 cases and the husband in 468. There were 40 cases of desertion, 68 of adultery, 50 of extreme cruelty, 16 of bigamy, and 5 others. The largest number was granted in 1890—311. In 1888 there were 256; in 1889, 232; in 1891, 278; in 1892 to July, 1893, 302.

Tobacco and Insanity.

Tobacco, like alcohol, often gets credit for more than it merits. Like the man who is caught prevaricating or stealing once or twice, when it becomes generally known he gets a reputation as a liar or a thief, although he may not steal or falsify again during his lifetime.

Tobacco is now exciting the attention of the medical profession in this country as well as in Europe, as a factor in the production of insanity. The Swiss government has taken strong grounds in the matter. A drunken man or a habitual on the streets is promptly arrested and punished.

The French government has also taken active measures for the prohibition of the use of tobacco by the students in the public schools.

While we have not taken any active measures in this country, the time is coming, and not far distant, when a crusade against the use of tobacco will be inaugurated; this is as it should be.

To say that tobacco is not injurious to the health when used in large quantities, is an error as grave as the same assertion relative to the use of alcohol.

The tobacco habit, doubtless, is a nuisance, and the tobacco-user abominable to those who do not indulge. In general principles it is disgusting and degrading. When we come, however, to the consideration of diseases, we are going beyond the limit of reason when we attribute the use of tobacco as the cause of insanity, as an hereditary. We cannot believe that an idiotic child is the result of tobacco-using on the part of his parent, as is so positively stated by some authors. That tobacco has a bad effect upon the mind of those who use it we will not deny; but that the baneful effect upon the offspring is perceptible we must positively challenge. At the same time, the so-called authority who tells us that the use of tobacco is hereditary will in the same paragraph inform us that tuberculosis is hereditary while our experienced and observing men in the profession tell us that the reverse is true.

We do not wish to be understood as advocating the use of tobacco. We are opposed to it, not because of the hereditary influence, but because of its effect upon the person who uses it, and its general filthiness. If we could, we would banish it from the face of the earth. At the same time we are inclined to be reasonable in our views upon the subject. Nervous system of those who do not use it and who can, therefore, only be effected through the channel of heredity.—Kansas City Medical Record.

Favorable to the Road.

Agents for the electric railway company, which has begun work on the road to run from New York to Philadelphia, by way of Plainfield, Bound Brook, Princeton and Trenton, have been about Millstone and secured signers for such a road to run through Millstone. Almost all the property owners are in favor of the scheme. A meet has also been in Somerville and Raritan this week, with the purpose of securing the right of way of a line, starting from the main line from Bound Brook to Raritan. It is found almost all the property owners along the proposed route favorable. Information has been received also of an agent having been this week in North Plainfield on the same mission.

Grey's Rules of the Rule.

"It's been so Sunday-cool, I has,"
Your grey-eyed Bettie said;
"It's warmed the hearts of men, I wots,
Does like the teacher read."

Her heavenly eyes were fixed on me—
"O innocent and true!
Teach me the rules of good," I said,
"And I must needs do you."

"I listened for those words of gold—
Those words I so well knew;
"Do to fellows how'd make
As fellows do to you."

Some more she did not understand,
I guess her ire explains,
She said: "If I write pinafore rhymes,
"It's to pinch him back again."

BRAIDING IS IN AGAIN.

A Pretty Nihilist Venetian Cloth Coat Dotted With Humor Braid Trimming.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE NEWS:—

Braiding has decidedly "come in" again this season. Both the wide and narrow varieties of braid are used, the former in plain or waved bands, the latter in close and complicated patterns. It is a particularly suitable decoration for close fitting street gowns of lightweight wool, and to women who like the tight, tailor made styles and yet consider the usual rows of ornamental stitching too plain and commonplace for braiding commends itself as an ideal trimming, since it does not at all interfere with the close, severe lines of such costumes and yet gives an effect of richness and elaboration. Braid of mixed designs and hard usage patiently, and is therefore a most appropriate decoration for seaside and mountain gowns in tweeds and other fine qualities of mixed goods that, although expensive as to first cost, repay the outlay by wearing forever, comparatively speaking.

America may flirtily pride herself on her cotton fabrics, and her silks are by some judges considered almost equal to French goods, but she does not yet turn out such firm, close woven, thoroughgoing tweeds and cheviots as Great Britain. To do her justice, there is far less demand for them here than there, as this climate is so much clearer and drier. She produces what the general public demands. There is, however, a certain satisfaction in the possession of a good English serge or Scotch tweed gown that no other costume can impart. It looks equally well in fair weather and foul. It is unaffected by rain, mist or mud. It wears and wears for years and is less and will last unto the third and fourth generation. It is always to be depended upon, makes an ideal traveling gown and has its own particular place in every well dressed woman's wardrobe.

As an example of severe braiding, a sketch is given of the coat bodice of a traveling costume of a recent English bride. The material is nihilist venetian cloth, and the trimming is in black.

Close braiding designs are seen on silk goods traced in silk cord. The cord is sometimes in varying shades and is enriched with beads or sequins, giving an extremely elaborate effect particularly suitable for wraps intended for ceremonious occasions. Silk corded patterns are also used as a garniture on fine wool costumes.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Why Plainfield is a Good Place to Live In.

HIGH GROUND PRODUCES LIFE.

[From the London Hospital.]

There are two sorts of pressure which tend to shorten life — blood pressure within and atmospheric pressure without. The latter is a specially important factor in a humid climate. In advancing age the circulation of the blood and lymph tends to become slow, and the enfeebled heart finds its embarrassment increased by this condition. Especially do the more vascular organs, such as the lungs, the liver and kidneys, put skids on the wheels of the blood circulation. Plainly, then, an important condition of cardiac easement, and therefore of life prolongation, is the maintenance of an uncongested state of lungs, liver and kidneys.

There are internal pressures relieved, and there is cardiac energy conserved. Of almost equal importance, as any rate in Great Britain, is the question of atmospheric pressure and moisture to aged persons. Situations which are at once low-lying and damp, are those of the maximum of atmospheric pressure. Such pressure weighs down at a single stroke body, mind and life. The difference to aged persons, between living at the sea level and living 500 feet above it, between living in a moist atmosphere and living in a dry one, is sometimes quite incalculable. Not seldom life may be lengthened by five or even ten years by living in an atmosphere which is both light and dry. These physiological considerations are commended to the aged and to the physicians of the aged.

THE NEW POSTMASTERS.

One has Received his Commission, but Two Others Haven't.

John Quinn, the new Postmaster at Roselle, has received his commission and will enter upon his official duties on Monday.

Postmaster Whitaker at Westfield, is still in charge of the office, though his term expired nearly two months ago Mr. Scudder, the newly appointed Postmaster, is expecting the commission to arrive any day.

John M. Hetfield, the supposed new Postmaster at Plainfield, is waiting and watching for a commission also. Will it come?

Dance of the Schubert Musical Club.

On Wednesday evening, the Schubert Musical Club of Dunellen, gave their third dance of the season in Friendship Hall. Mrs. J. H. Buckley of this city, is the efficient leader of the club, and the members are: Miss Watson, Miss Smith, Mrs. J. H. Buckley, first violins; Miss Davis, second violin; Miss Irene Day, cornetist; Miss Fisher Suter; Mrs. Van Epp, trombone; Miss Ella Bunce, accompanist; Miss Phillips, triangle; Miss Benton, 'cello.

TENTH ANNUAL MEETING.

Of the Elizabeth Presbyterial Society for Home Missions.

The tenth annual meeting of the Elizabeth Presbyterial Society for Home Missions was held in the First Presbyterian church in this city, to-day.

The morning session began at 10.30 o'clock, and opened with a responsive service and prayer by the Rev. Charles E. Herring, the pastor of the church.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved, after which there was a word from the President, Mrs. Owens.

The corresponding secretary read her report. It showed that there had been a growth in every branch for the past eight years. In the past year the society had gained three Auxiliaries and three Bands. The twelve months ending March, 1893, had been the most prosperous of the ten years. There are at present 24 churches represented in the society. The society's membership in 1885 was 688, and from that it has steadily grown until to-day its members number 1,614. There has been a gain of 93 in point of membership over that of last year.

The society takes in the churches of Elizabeth, Rahway, Roselle, Crawford, Plainfield, Springfield, Basking Ridge and Dunellen.

The report of the treasurer showed that there are $4,019 in the treasury.

Mrs. Gibson made the report of the Woman's Executive Committee of the society.

Mrs. Manning of this city was elected delegate in Mrs. Gibson's place, as that lady had moved out of this district.

At 12.30 a recess was taken for lunch. The society re-convened at two o'clock, when an address was made by the Rev. Geo. F. McAfee, Superintendent of the school work.

Miss Wishard of New York also made an address.

Lunch was served in the Sunday school room. The following committee of the church had charge of it: Mrs. Frazee, chairman; Mrs. Olsen, Mrs. Dunn, Mrs. Pope, Mrs. Hand, Mrs. Williams and Miss Vandell.

The following young ladies acted as ushers at the sessions, and as waitresses during lunch: Miss Mabel Fruden, Miss Lottie Meserschmidt, Miss Jessie Mac Killop, Miss Evelyn Bearing, Miss Marion Wilcox, Miss Florence Duck and Miss Bertha Wilcox.

Gay Masqueraders.

Gay masqueraders enjoyed a most pleasant time at the home of Miss May Thompson, on Liberty street, last night. The parlors were in red and violet. The dancers unmasked at 11.30 for supper, after which dancing was resumed. Bert Naplay and Bert Frazee were the musicians.

Those present were:

From Plainfield—Miss Laura Smith, Miss Minnie Smith, Miss Minnie Gulick, Miss Kate Albert, Miss Florence Marsh, Miss Ella Kirar, Miss Grace De Forest, Miss Minnie Van Dyke, Miss Ida Mosiniz, Miss Nellie Powers, Miss Lizzie Stanford, Miss Minnie Shuter, Miss Mamie Clark, and Messrs. Ten Thousand Miners Called Out.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., March 30.—At a meeting of the executive committee of the new Mine Workers' association a circular was issued formally declaring a strike throughout the region, to go into effect on Monday, and urging the men to come out at once and enforce the demands of the organization. About 10,000 men will be involved. The Pittsburg people do not expect their men to strike, as they have signed a scale for 1894. Should the men at the other plants strike, the Frick employees will be forced out, and raiding and trouble can be expected.

Breckinridge Has Friends.

LEXINGTON, Ky., March 30.—A petition signed by 600 Breckinridge men in Oldham, Owen and Henry counties was forwarded to Colonel Breckinridge demanding that he continue to fight his persecutors and make the race for congress.

Alexander Pitcher Coming Home.

ST. VINCENT DE PAUL, Que., March 30.—Charles A. Pitcher, who six years ago absconded with all the assets of the Union bank of Providence, amounting to over $1,000,000, left the penitentiary for home, having served his term.

Nine Persons Burned to Death.

WHEELING, March 30.—A terrible disaster occurred at McKendree. The residence of John Witt at that place was burned to the ground this morning. It were occupied by eight small children and a servant girl named Mary Hendricks.

Von Bulow's Body Cremated.

HAMBURG, March 30.—The remains of Hans von Bulow, the distinguished pianist who died recently in Egypt, were cremated at the crematory here. Previous to the cremation there was an imposing funeral service.

CRISP CHOSEN SENATOR

Speaker of the House Named to Succeed Colquitt.

HIS ACCEPTANCE IS UNCERTAIN.

Governor Northen's Selection Is Filling the Dead Georgian's Chair In the Senate Causes a Surprise—Crisp Says He Must Confer With His Party Supporters.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—It is announced that Governor Northen of Georgia has appointed Speaker Charles F. Crisp to succeed the late Senator Alfred H. Colquitt. Not a word has passed between the governor and the speaker, and the latter's name had not even been presented formally to the governor.

It was after midnight when Governor Northen's telegram offering the junior senatorship of Georgia to Speaker Crisp to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Colquitt reached him. He was much surprised, the offer coming wholly unsought and unexpected. It is understood that Mr. Crisp first thought after receiving from the surprise incident to the receipt of the telegram to wire the governor at once that he could not accept the high office tendered. He finally decided, however, to hold his answer in abeyance until he could consult with political friends and associates, and he telegraphed the governor to that effect shortly before 1 o'clock.

The unexpired term to which Mr. Crisp is appointed closes March 3, 1895—the same time that he is entitled to a seat if the house would expire should he decide to remain in that position. There are, therefore, many considerations which will urge Mr. Crisp not to accept the offer of the senatorship.

Whether these considerations will outweigh the inducements to fill the position holds for him it is impossible to learn today. Mr. Crisp was in receipt of a large number of congratulatory telegrams, to which he replied substantially as he did to the governor, expressing his gratitude and gratification, but also his determination to weigh the question of acceptance carefully.

Northen Wires Crisp to Accept.

ATLANTA, March 30.—In a message wired the speaker the governor asks him to resign his seat in congress at once and qualify as senator, so that he can take part in the tariff discussion which comes up next week. The governor was considered a candidate, for the senate himself, but he announced that he did not care to run. He says that he feels it his duty to appoint the Georgian who could do the country the greatest good, and he considers Speaker Crisp that man.

Exciting Scenes In the House.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—A recurrence of the exciting days of the fifty-first congress, during the consideration of the celebrated Reed rules, occurred in the house by a strange coincidence during the consideration of the contempt resolution.

When it had been demonstrated that the Democrats had not enough members present to break the deadlock on the O'Neill-Joy case, Mr. Patterson presented a resolution instructing the sergeant-at-arms to arrest absentees. A struggle followed, which was prolonged after the usual hour of adjournment and at one time threatened to keep the house in session all night.

After the previous question was ordered the house was treated to the unusual spectacle of seeing the speaker take the floor for a speech. It was brief, but full of spirit, and was largely an appeal to the Democratic side to attend the sessions and prevent these constantly recurring deadlocks.

The prolonged filibuster aroused partisan feeling, and toward the close it broke forth in all its fury. The speaker decided to crush down the opposition by ruling all dilatory motions out of order.

This he announced in the din amid a chorus of protests, sharp words and at least one attempt to bring a member before the bar of the house for contempt. After the adoption of the Patterson resolution the excitement subsided, and by mutual agreement the house adjourned.

After many delays and disappointments the conference Sherman bill passed the senate. The morning hour was occupied in the discussion and passage of several bills of purely local interest, and the McGarahan bill occupied the remainder of the time from 3 o'clock until the hour of adjournment. The senate went into executive session, after which it adjourned until Monday, when Senator Harris intimated the tariff bill would be taken up.

Denver's New Hotter Than Ever.

DENVER, March 30.—Chief of Police Stone sent his officers out on duty last night as usual in defiance of the injunction issued by Judge Gunn, and Commissioners Orr and Martin still be gited to appear in court in contempt proceedings. Martial law seems to be the only alternative, and it is believed that Governor Waite will not hesitate to declare it unless the supreme court consents to take up the case at once.

Freezing American Insurers Out.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 30.—The government has decided that henceforth all American insurance companies conducting operations in the empire must divide their profits with the insured after the policies have been in effect for four years.

Fearful Coal Mine Accident.

WILKESBARRE, March 30.—The shaft of a coal mine at Kocsleev collapsed, causing serious loss of life. Thus far 11 bodies have been recovered, and a number of miners have been removed from the mine seriously injured.

New Secret Service Chief.

PHILADELPHIA, March 30.—William J. McManus of New York has been appointed chief of the United States secret service agents in this city. Mr. McManus will succeed William R. Lindner.

The Nine Regatta.

NICE, March 30.—In the steam yacht race the distance was 53 miles, and the prize was 5,000 francs, offered by Mr. James Gordon Bennett. This race was won by the Roxana.

Prendergast Very Meek.

CHICAGO, March 30.—Assassin Prendergast is back in his cell meek as a lamb. Night hours in the dungeon was enough for him. He apologized for his act.

Composer Rosenhain Dead.

THE COLONEL'S STORY.

Breckinridge Begins Evidence In His Own Defense.

TELLS HOW HE WAS LURED AWAY.

The Silver Tongued Congressman Relates His First Meetings With Madeline—Miss Pollard In Court During His Testimony. An Uninterrupted Flow of Eloquence.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—Had an alien, untutored in the queen's English, dropped into the circuit court he might have received the impression that the benevolent, elderly looking gentleman, with ruddy face and waves of snowy hair and beard, who held the open mouthed attention of 200 men while he discoursed in a slow, mellifluous tone, was preaching a sermon from the gospel of peace. The mistake would have been a natural one, but it would have been a mistake, for the elderly gentleman with the scriptural head was the silver tongued orator of Kentucky—Congressman and Colonel W. C. P. Breckinridge—who was telling to 12 of his peers and incidentally to the world at large the story of his intrigue with Madeline Pollard.

There is a minor key of tenderness, of exquisite pathos in the voice of Colonel Breckinridge which has done much to win for him his soubriquet of the "Silver Tongued." It is such a tone as one would have expected Antony to employ in rehearsing the virtues of dead Cæsar.

The Colonel's Easy Attitude.

The colonel stood in the little witness box, his left elbow resting on Judge Bradley's desk, with his left hand a pillow for his head and his right hand thrust carelessly into his trousers pocket. He smiled occasionally as he spoke. At first he was evidently a little tremulous in his utterances, but he lost that trace of nervousness before he proceeded far with his story. Once he glanced down at the slender pencil lead in the first row of seats before him. That was when he was assuring the court that her manner toward him had been "perfectly respectful and very deferential, but for the most part he addressed himself to his attorney, Major Ben Butterworth, who did the questioning.

As for the probably intelligent men and readers. Newspaper enterprise is a good thing, but in this instance it was enterprise with a vengeance. It was a contempt of court and a gross impropriety to publish it before it was given to the jury. I presume the reporters were not aware of the impropriety of their acts but for the restraining words of Attorney Carlisle, who sat beside her.

Elevated above the scene sat Judge Bradley, with his chair turned away from the defendant, his head tilted back, his eyes closed and his features cast into an utterly bored expression.

The Kentucky congressman got no further in his story then the first meeting with Miss Pollard. He held that the young woman had taken him to her heart almost more than half way in their intimacy, and the ground of his excuse is found in his words: "I used a man with passion; she was a woman with passion. We were human."

Before the appearance of the defendant there had been two witnesses introduced out of order to testify for the plaintiff that no such woman as Lena Singleton had kept an assignation house at the place which Miss Pollard had described and sworn that they saw Miss Pollard, and a deposition was read from a Memphis woman who announced herself as a former prostitute and who swore that the character of Madeline Pollard was bad in her early girlhood.

Breckinridge Takes the Stand.

Pressure for admission to court after the noon recess was unusually great and was occasioned by the expectation that the centor-defendant would take the witness stand. Colonel Breckinridge and Mr. Butterworth, with their heads together, were the center of observation. First the redfaced counsel for Mrs. Miller was read by Attorney Stoll.

This deposition was followed by a three cornered conference in a whisper between Judge Bradley and Attorneys Carlisle and Stoll over some disputed points in the deposition by Dr. Green. Finally the disputed points were settled.

Mr. Butterworth then arose and said: "Colonel Breckinridge, will you take the stand?" and the commotion which ensued required all the efforts of the bailiff to quiet the noise.

Colonel Breckinridge declared that he was born near Baltimore in 1837; that his father, John C. Breckinridge, soon afterward moved to Jefferson, Pa., to accept the presidency of the college, and in 1847 to Lexington to take the pastorate of the Presbyterian church. He had taken his diploma at Center college. He had practiced law only at Lexington, after studying in the office of Madison C. Johnson and in Louisville at the law school, a diploma from which was a license to practice.

"When were you married?"

"On 28, Patrick's day, 1859."

"How long did your wife live?"

"She died in April, 1880, after the birth of her first child."

"Were you in the late war?"

"I was."

He told of his various services in the Confederate army under Kirby Smith; how he had risen to be a colonel and commandered his regiment of Kentucky cavalry at the close of the war.

He was married the second time the night the Federals occupied Lexington to Miss Desha on Sept. 19, 1864. He had five children, four living. One son and one daughter were with him here.

Here Miss Pollard and Sister Ellis entered, taking seats before the bar to the right of the defendant amid a quiet rustling in the spectators' gallery.

Colonel Breckinridge, continuing, said that he had practiced law with Attorney B. F. Butler from 1874 to the time of the appointment of the latter to the bench.

He had a matter of duty he had served on the local school board; had afterward been county prosecutor; was a member of boards of trustees of several educational institutions, among them the father schlegs, but had never been a teacher except in a law school, to which he lectured.

"Do you know the plaintiff?"

"I do."

"When did you first meet her?"

The Meeting on the Train.

"In the spring of 1884. It was a cool morning and on a train between Lexington and Frankfort. I had an overcoat on the back seat of the car, and as I passed down the aisle to get it she accosted me in a perfectly proper way. I said, 'I suppose I ought to know you, but you people grow up so on us we forget their faces.' She said, 'I am Madeline Breckinridge Pollard;' that her father admired my father; that if she had been a boy he would have named her John C. As it was, he gave her the middle name of Breckinridge. She was going to Lexington to see the dying of consumption. I expressed my sympathy and passed on."

"When did you next meet her?"

"I do not remember exactly. I received a letter from her. I have lost that letter, but the substance of it was a request that I should call on her at the college on some business of great importance to her. The substance of my reply was that it would be inconvenient for me to call at the college, but if I could give her any advice I would be glad to do so, and if she was in Lexington she might call."

"Did you receive another letter?"

"I did."

"Is this the letter?" asked Mr. Butterworth, handing up the black bordered epistle.

"It would be affectation for me to examine that. I am familiar with it."

This provoked a titl over the letter, Mr. Wilson objecting that it had not been proved to have come from the plaintiff, and Mr. Butterworth asserting that unless the supreme court was in error it was on several grounds unassailable evidence.

Apart from the letter, Colonel Breckinridge continued, he could not relate the conversation concerning it which he had had with Miss Pollard when she called at the school a few days afterward. He could not well give the purport of the conversation without the letter apart from the rest of their talk.

"The plaintiff," he began, referring always to Miss Pollard by the legal term—"the plaintiff said, 'I suppose you were surprised to receive such a letter from a schoolgirl.' Laughingly I responded that perhaps my surprise was greater than anyone of the matter. Then she said, 'But all this time you are standing,' and invited me to take a seat."

"Now, I suppose," said Mr. Butterworth, "to offer this letter to the jury that they may examine it and compare it with the admitted specimens of plaintiff's handwriting in evidence. Even if we had produced no expert testimony on the point, under the ruling of the supreme court it would be admissible."

The Letter Admitted.

After a good deal of legal sparring on the admissibility of the letter Judge Bradley said:

"It appears that this is largely a dispute over a shadow, as the contents of this letter have been published by the press, and I presume probably intelligent men and readers. Newspaper enterprise is a good thing, but in this instance it was enterprise with a vengeance. It was a contempt of court and a gross impropriety to publish it before it was given to the jury. I presume the reporters were not aware of the impropriety of their acts by which must have been committed within the precincts of the courts. The letter would have been admitted anyway, but suppose it had not been admitted, you'd read it. Great harm might have been done by the action."

After these admonitions Mr. Butterworth read the letter. This finished, Colonel Breckinridge rose again and described what had become of the letters. He had kept three plate-copies of his letters, one in his office and one partnership file. It was his recollection that the two had been placed in the file at his office. Returning to his visit to the Wesleyan female institute at Covington, he had gone to Cincinnati to stay over night. After dinner, remembering the letter of Miss Pollard, he strolled up to the college.

"I sent my name up," he said, "was invited into a room, and in a few moments the plaintiff came down. We shook hands. She said she supposed she had astonished me by the substance of her letter; that it was worse than a divorce case. We took seats—she on a divan, I on a chair, in the corner of the room. She narrated the circumstances under which she had made the agreement with Mr. Rhodes. Until then I had not understood her motive or conduct.

"I had known her father, but not whom he married. As soon as she told me she was living with her aunt, Mrs. York Keene, I knew who her mother was, because her uncle, York Keene, had been in my brother's regiment. Because her father had died in wretched circumstances her married life with her aunt had not been pleasant she wanted to leave. Mr. Rhodes had fallen in love with her, but she had respected him as a married man, but had not loved him. She wanted to know whether he could compel her to marry him. I treated the matter with some levity and said that it was a case in which she could be compelled to the specific performance of a marriage contract. She grew grave, looked thoughtful for a little while, took out her handkerchief, put it to her face, and I got up and walked the room. Looked her if her mother was alive. I had not seen her mother for 10 years. In fact, but she said her mother had not approved of the contract, and it had made unpleasantness in the family. I spoke of my grandfather's death and of the sacrifices and her uncles. We had ceased to walk the room. She was sitting on the divan, and I was standing beside her.

Mary Rhodes.

"I started to leave after some expressions of sympathy, but she detained me. She said, the plaintiff said, that much worse than that it's much worse than that. He insisted on marrying me. I did not want to be like Aunt Lou, with a house full of children and unable to clothe them.'

"She gave her handkerchief to her face. [Here Colonel Breckinridge spoke very slowly and reproduced the mournful tones which a young woman might use in making such a confession.] She said, 'I gave him a higher proof than that contract.' Then I said she ought to marry him anyway. She said: 'I can't. I have grown away from him. I know what other men are, and his very presence is offensive to me.' I replied, 'You can't afford to marry him on a young girl as you are.' Then the conversation drifted away. There was nothing more I could say. She seemed to have said all she cared to.

"The conversation drifted away," he replied reflectively, fingering the Bible at hand. "I kissed them with my left hand, she said, 'I have set my heart on becoming an authoress.'

"I said I don't see why you can't do that, but you must remember that this double life [here he assumed the stern tone of a moralist]—this double life," I said, "must come up against you any time. He has you in his power. A young girl can't afford that. You should marry him as soon as you can."

Mr. Rhodes Accepted the Ride.

"She said: 'I won't do that now anyway. No danger of his giving me up.' Then she spoke of an entertainment at Vine street. She said there was to be a comedy in which I have been going to Cincinnati ever since I was a boy, but I never knew which one of the hills Vine street was on. She said it was entirely proper—perfectly proper [Colonel Breckinridge seemed anxious to make assurance doubly sure on this point] —that we might ride. I asked if they would let me in, and she said she was a summer boarder, and she knew of no rule against it. Then a young man came into the room, whom I recognized as Mr. Brown, for although I did not know he was connected with the school he had represented Jessamine county in the legislature. We shook hands, and he said it would be perfectly proper for us to go. Then I took dinner at the Burnett House. After dinner I walked up to a stable and selected a carriage without any particular thought about what kind it was. It was a warm August evening. There was quite a little group on the portico. Nothing was said about a closed carriage, or about my having a sore throat—no allusion whatever, no excuse nor any reason for any excuse."

In the mild, depreciatory gesture with which the colonel brushed away the breath of a suspicion of impropriety from his action at that time he knocked a tumbler from the stand with a crash which startled the room, and men looked around apprehensively as though they thought of Gatling guns and carriages.

"We started in an entirely proper way," he resumed. "Any excuse would have been wholly out of place, for was any reason asked."

For the first time the flow of silvery testimony was harshly torn by the matter of fact query of Major Butterworth, "How long were you at the college that afternoon?"

"About an hour or an hour and a half. There was a light conversation which deepened into a tense, grave conversation and afterward became light again."

The Drive In the Closed Carriage.

"Did you speak of going to Lexington the next day?"

"Nothing was said about going to Lexington that day, but the next day we started in to Lexington I was surprised to find her on the train."

"What do you know about any bogus telegram?"

"I never heard of any such telegram until after this suit was brought. There was no way I could have sent any bogus telegram. This is exciting news to me."

"What do you know about her going to Sayre institute in Lexington?"

"I know nothing whatever of it until afterward—nothing whatever in any way."

"How long were you driving that evening?"

"I can't say, Butterworth. We got back before the school was closed—just about 10 o'clock."

"Did you have any conversation about your first wife?"

"None whatever. My first wife was not alluded to. My dead little boy was not mentioned. There was no allusion to my family surroundings in any way."

"Did you make protestations of love to this woman?"

"I did not."

"Did you go to any concert that night?"

"We did not."

"What was there in the conversation, bearing, dress or appearance of the plaintiff to indicate that she was not a girl of mature years?"

The $10 Bill.

"She seemed to be a young woman of 20 or 23. She might have been 19. She was a fully grown young woman of perfectly proper manner [glancing for the first time at the plaintiff—very deferential, very."

"Anything to indicate that she was not a proper young woman?" asked Mr. Butterworth.

Colonel Breckinridge wanted none of his hearers to cherish a suspicion that he would have ventured forth with an improper person. His disclosures were repeated; and in his softest tones he replied: "Not the slightest. Her conduct was entirely correct. Nothing was said about her familiar relations to Mr. Rhodes."

There was a marked inflection upon the word "peculiar," as if Mr. Breckinridge did not wish to speak disrigidly of such things as those relations. Returning to the drive, he continued: "We took the left hand road at the top of the hill because she said it was much hard. The middle of the park was made uncomfortable hot by the gaslights. So I told the driver to turn to the left."

"Were the windows of the carriage open or shut?"

"They were open," replied the colonel, and then the conversation became to the heart of his narrative.

The Colonel's Confession.

"After we had driven some distance," he said, "and she was talking at some length about her desire to go into journalism—to be an authoress—and we had spoken of George Eliot, she took off her hat and put it on the front seat. I put my hand around her. Made no protestations on my part—no offer of love. What occurred occurred in the natural way. I put my arm around her and kissed her once. I was a man with passion; she was a woman with passion. That was all. There was no outcry by her, no resistance. I, man as I was, took liberties with her person."

"Just a case of illicit love?" broke in Mr. Butterworth.

"That was it, Butterworth. I a man, she a woman, a woman both of us."

Continuing, he said: "That was going out. Going back there was hardly a word spoken. She came to the city. Under the gaslight I took out of my pocket a stamped envelope. She was on my left hand side. I put my hand in my pocket and put something into the envelope. She refused to accept it. I said, 'There are a great many little things you need.'"

"What was in that envelope?" Mr. Butterworth asked, but the congressman ignored the interruption, continuing, "As we got out I put it into her hand, closed my hand on it and bade her good night."

"What was it?" repeated Attorney Butterworth.

"It was a bill—I think a $10 bill!"

Here Judge Bradley—the "court" shouted Judge Bradley, who had sat through the narrative with his head averted and eyes closed, and the court adjourned.

BLAND'S BILL VETOED.

President Says the Seigniorage Measure Is Dangerous.

NEITHER WISE NOR OPPORTUNE.

He Says He Desires to Avoid a Disagreement, but Cannot Sanction the Bill, Which He Characterizes as Unfortunately Constructed, Faulty and Ill Advised.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—The president's veto of the Bland seigniorage bill was evidently expected, for when the house met a feverish anxiety was manifested. This was soon relieved, for while the roll of the house was being called on the contested election case Mr. Pruden, the president's executive clerk, appeared at the bar of the house and transmitted the president's special message. As Mr. Pruden announced that he was directed to transmit a message in writing and the president's approval of sundry house bills, for a moment the Democrats believed that possibly Mr. Cleveland had signed the Bland bill.

Members rushed down the aisles from all directions and crowded about the speaker's desk.

Speaker Crisp himself broke the seal. One glance was enough. "It is a veto," said he, and the word was passed from lip to lip.

The news was received with a mixture of joy and sorrow. To a large majority of Democrats the news was a severe blow, and their expressions of dissatisfaction in some cases were loud and emphatic. The Republicans seemed to be greatly elated at the confusion and havoc created in the Democratic camp by the message.

The president's veto message did not create any surprise in the senate, where it was generally expected by both the friends and opponents of the bill, with a few exceptions among silver Democrats, who had held to the last the hope that the action of congress would be sustained.

The message was in part as follows:

The Veto Message.

To the House of Representatives:

I return herewith without my approval house bill numbered 4,986, entitled "An act directing the coinage of the silver bullion held in the treasury and for other purposes."

My strong desire to avoid disagreement with those in both houses of congress who have supported this bill would lead me to approve it if I could believe that the public good would not be thereby endangered, and that such action on my part would be a proper discharge of official duty. Inasmuch, however, as I am unable to satisfy myself that the proposed legislation is either wise or opportune, my conception of the obligations and responsibilities attached to the great office I hold forbids the indulgence of any personal desire.

I believe that if the bill under consideration should become a law it would be regarded as a retrogression from the financial intentions indicated by our recent repeal of obnoxious forcing silver bullion purchases; that it would weaken, if it did not destroy, returning faith and confidence in our financial tendencies, and that as a consequence our progress to renewed business health would be unfortunately retarded and a return to our recent distressing plight seriously threatened.

This proposition, however, is so related to the currency conditions growing out of the law compelling the purchase of silver by the government that a discussion of its provisions and a partial review of the law referred to may not be unprofitable.

The message then reviews the existing financial conditions as to the quantity of gold and silver on hand and continues:

Having referred to some incidents which I deem relevant to the subject, it remains for me to submit a specific statement of my objections to the bill now under consideration.

The President's Objections.

This bill consists of two sections, excluding one which merely appropriates a sum sufficient to carry the act into effect. The first section provides for the coinage of the silver bullion in the treasury which represents the so called gain or seigniorage which would arise from the coinage of all the bullion on hand, which gain or seigniorage this section declares to be $55,109,565.

It directs that the money so coined or the certificates issued thereon shall be used in the same manner as the silver dollars now coined, except that if the needs of the treasury demand it the secretary of the treasury may in his discretion issue silver certificates in excess of such coinage, not exceeding the amount of seigniorage in said section authorized to be coined.

The entire bill is most unfortunately constructed. Nearly every sentence presents unnecessary and, indeed, invites criticism as to its meaning and intent. The first sentence is especially faulty in this respect, and it is extremely doubtful whether its language will permit the consummation of its supposed purposes.

I am not willing, however, to rest my objection to this section solely on these grounds. In my judgment sound finance does not commend a further infusion of silver into our currency at this time unaccompanied by further adequate provision for the maintenance in our treasury of a safe gold reserve.

Uncertainties of Expression.

Whatever else may be said of the uncertainties of expression in this bill, they certainly ought not to be found in legislation affecting subjects so vitally important and interwoven as finances and currency. In stating other and more important reasons for my disapproval of this section I will not undertake to say that under its provisions the treasury notes issued in payment for silver bullion will continue to be redeemed, as heretofore, in silver or gold at the option of the holders, and that if, when they are presented for redemption we resort to the treasury in any other manner, there are in the treasury coined silver dollars equal in nominal value to such treasury notes presented in that case notes will be destroyed and silver certificates to an equal amount substituted.

I am not convinced that this scheme is ill advised and dangerous. As an ultimate result of its operations, treasury notes, which are legal tender for all debts, both public and private, which are redeemable in gold or silver, at the option of the holder, and which are issued by authority which, whatever may be their character and description, will have none of these qualities.

In anticipation of this result and as an immediate effect the treasury notes will naturally disappear from use and circulation. The fact that gold can be realized upon them, and the further fact that their destruction has been decreed when they are presented for redemption in gold, will induce their speedy presentment to their withdrawal from general circulation to be immediately presented for gold exchange, or to be hoarded for presentation at a more convenient season. The sequel of both operations will be that the volume of silver currency will be lessened in circulation and a corresponding reduction of gold in the treasury. The argument has been made that this result will not occur at once because a long time must elapse before the coinage of anything but the seigniorage can be completed. Whatever the physical effects of the execution of the second section of this bill are not to be realized from the first, for that section may furnish a strong reason why it should not be passed so much in advance. But the postponement of ill effects from legislation can only prolong fear and loss of confidence and nervous prostration which would immediately follow its passage and bring about its worst consequences.

Should Strengthen Gold Reserve.

I regard this section of this bill as manifestly a plan by which the government will be shifted to pay out its gratuity store of gold for no other consideration than the mere promise and ability of silver money into the hands of our people. This is an exact reversal of the policy which safe finance dictates if we are to preserve and

By between gold and silver and maintain a sensible bimetallism.

When it is proposed to inflate our silver currency, it is time for strengthening our gold reserve instead of depleting it. It cannot conserve at a longer step toward silver circumstances than we take when we spend our gold to buy silver certificates for circulation, especially in view of the fact that such purchase increases the replenishment of our gold.

This leads me to earnestly present the destructibility of granting to the secretary of the treasury a better power than now exists to issue bonds to protect our gold reserve when for any reason he shall be required to do so. Our currency is in such a contracted condition and our financial affairs are in such a delicate state at present as to put a position that it seems to me such a course is dictated by ordinary prudence.

I am unable to find in the arguments in favor of coining the bullion seigniorage now in the treasury, and I believe it could be done safely and with advantage if the secretary of the treasury had the power to issue bonds at a low rate of interest under authority in substitution of that now existing and better suited to the protection of the treasury.

I hope a way will present itself in the near future for the adjustment of our monetary affairs in such a comprehensive and conservative manner that we will not be driven to frequent fluctuations in our currency, but in the meantime I am extremely solicitous that whatever action we take on this subject shall be such as to prevent loss and discouragement to our people at home and the destruction of confidence in our financial management abroad.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

COXEY IN COMMAND.

His Army Well Fed, and the Ranks Are Increasing.

COLUMBIANA, O., March 30.—Coxey has rejoined his cohorts. The army is among Populists, and the commonweal is enjoying a big boom. Coxey was waiting at Columbiana when the train pulled in and threw cheers. The farmers at Alliance provided three wagonloads of provisions and two of wood. Beef, hams, coffee and 1,000 loaves of bread. Coxey joined the commonweal with provisions for three days at least.

At Leetonia 29 coopers joined the ranks, and in Salem Carl Browne, who is in charge, is being misrepresented by 40 Argus eyed demons of hell who followed him around. He meant the reporters and has given orders to fill up on victuals and get back. At Columbiana, Marshal Smith told the men there were to be no more begging expeditions through the towns at night. Strong words from the commonweal with provisions for three days at least.

When camp was being put in order, Thomas Holloway, a farmer, aged 70, who was in town to see the parade, dropped dead from heart disease.

Thirty-six recruits—farmers, mechanics and potters from East Liverpool—joined the ranks. They were escorted to camp by Camp Gompers at East Palestine. The four men arrested at Salem were discharged, there being no case against them.

Fire in the Catskills.

CATSKILL, N. Y., March 30.—The large summer boarding house belonging to Thaddeus Collins and the adjacent Presbyterian church at Durham, in the Catskills, were burned to the ground.

AT THE CASINO LAST EVENING A SUCCESS.

The Schumann Quartette and Miss Shoemaker's Delsartean Gestures Meet with General Praise.—The Proceeds for the Building Fund.

Those who failed to put in an appearance at the Casino last night missed not only a very pleasing entertainment, but also the opportunity of hearing the wonderfully beautiful tones of Miss Hattie Sonnenberg. The quality of her voice forcibly recalls the rich tones of Miss Antonette Stirling, to whom the old world and the new both paid their need of admiration and—dollars.

Miss Sonnenberg's voice has been well trained and she sang with feeling and in thoroughly good style her solo, "Still as the night," and an encore, which was most enthusiastically demanded.

The "Schumann Lady Quartette" rendered some very pretty, and some very amusing selections. Miss Jennie Shoemaker recited with a great deal of grace and dramatic effect. Her presence is pleasing, and her voice low and rich and was especially attractive in her "Singing Reading."

Her delsartean exhibitions was very graceful and effective, and showed the result of a long and careful training. The Casino was well filled and the audience very enthusiastic.

The following was the programme.

Theirs, Jr., William McCutchen and Mr. Van Boskerck.

The music was by Bassett of Newark. The dance was given by the Junior Entertainment Committee of the Club.

The Wheelmen Want You to See What They are Doing.

The Crescent Wheelmen say that if you don't think they mean business, take a walk or ride down there to-morrow and see for yourself. A ditch has been dug around the track for the surface water to run off into the gang. Men are steadily at work at the grading, while another is putting up board fences with a racecourse. The prospects are that the track will be finished in short order.

Tendered the use of Their Room to the Other Tribe.

Miantonomo Tribe, No. 118, Independent Order of Red Men, unanimously voted last night to tender the use of Red Men's hall, to the other Tribe of Red Men on the night of their institution.

Messrs. William Newcorn, William A Westphal and David C. Allen were appointed a committee to make arrangements for another entertainment.

Took the Body to Flatbush.

On July 21, 1890, Mary Goldsmith, a cook at General Schwenck's on the Bailly Farm, died and was buried in St. Mary's cemetery, by Undertaker Casey.

Recently the mother of the deceased died in Brooklyn, and a sister sent to Mr. Casey to have the body taken up and re-buried at Flatbush, L. I. To-day Mr. Casey took to body to Flatbush.

Boys Make Good Time.

William McCutcheon, William and Clarence Rooms, and Bert Moore practiced riding around the Willow avenue, Mercer avenue and Washington avenue course on their bicycles this morning. They rode 2½ miles in 8 minutes and 20 seconds. Willie McCutcheon made the best time for a half mile, riding it in one minute and 22 seconds.

To Give a Supper.

The Play Committee, the Bowling Committee and the Reception Committee of the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum held a joint meeting last night and decided to give a supper on April 11th, in their hall to those who assisted in the play "Married Life," and to the ladies who assisted at the banquet to the Jersey City Club recently.

—In order to accommodate his many servant patrons Mr. Gus Gerdes will wait for their new Spring bonnets until he opens up in the Babcock building, Edsall will open his new millinery department (temporarily) in his present quarters next Tuesday, April 3d, under the management of Miss Eunice Gayton, fashionable milliner from James G. Johnson & Co., Broadway, New York.

Y. P. C. E. SOCIETY.

THIRD ANNIVERSARY AT WASHINGTONVILLE LAST EVENING.

Rev. Dr. Richardson Lectured on "Modern Davids." Horace Martin Sang, and There Were Music and Refreshments.—All Happy.

The third anniversary of the Washingtonville Young People's Christian Endeavor society was held last evening in the village church.

The President presided, opening the meeting at 7 45 o'clock. After devotional exercises annual reports were read and were very gratifying.

A most eloquent lecture on "Modern Davids" was presented by Rev. Mr. Richardson of the Park avenue Baptist church.

Mr. Horace Martin, who led the singing, also sang a solo, "We Are Praying for You at Home, My Boy," which was heartily applauded.

Refreshments were served, and music was furnished while the company enjoyed themselves at eating and chatting.

The musicians were Mr. D. Witt Frazee, cornet; Frank Sabins, first violin; Mr. Speer, second violin, and Mr. Timpson, organist. They had volunteered their services and were heartily thanked for their kindness and their good music.

The meeting concluded at 10.30.

BREVITIES.

—City Common Council meeting Monday night.

—The Seventh-Day Baptist church will elect trustees to-morrow.

—The corner stone of the Emmanuel Baptist church will laid April 8th.

—Caleb Dickinson, the jeweller, moved to-day from Park avenue to 121 North avenue.

—A Bible class for boys will be organized at the Y. M. C. A. rooms on Sunday at 9.15 a. m.

—Monday night the Plainfield Liederkranz will give their initial entertainment in Red Men's hall.

—The Board of Trade bowlers will go to Westfield on April 4th to bowl a game with the Westfield Club.

—The Newark M. E. Conference will meet April 4th, in St. Luke's Methodist Episcopal church, Clinton avenue, Newark.

—On No. 3 of the Somerset street branch of the street railway run off the track about two o'clock this afternoon.

—Nearly all of the truckmen in town have been kept busy to-day moving furniture from one part of the city to another.

—A pool tournament is being arranged among the members of the Catholic Young Men's Lyceum to take place next month.

—The annual meeting of the Congregation of the First Presbyterian church will be held on April 4th, to elect elders and trustees.

—Guerdler's engine company's steamer, recently sold by the Fire and Building Committee to the Bayonne Department, was shipped to-day.

—Thursday night there will be a bowling match at the C. Y. M. L. club house between the home team and the Catholic Club of Jersey City.

—The Orange Valley Y. M. C. L. bowling team will visit the C. Y. M. L's of this city Monday night and roll a game with the Plainfield team.

—A special session of the New Jersey Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows has been called by Grand Master Tussey for April 17th, at Trenton, to hear the report of the committee appointed in November last to inquire into the trouble over the proposed orphanage.

—Cotton hose after use should always be thoroughly dried by exposing it to the sun and air. Great care is taken by fire departments in this respect, there being generally a tower in the engine house in which the hose is suspended. The function is for the men, after returning from a fire, to unreel the wet hose and suspend it in the tower, another set being placed upon the reel. This, of course, requires two sets of hose, and some city authorities prefer the rubber for this reason, it saving capital and trouble when that article is employed.—Hardware.

A RUNAWAY ACCIDENT.

In which Mrs. A. W. Haviland is Injured.

Mrs. A. Walter Haviland of Rockview avenue was injured in a runaway accident yesterday afternoon between three and four o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Haviland were out driving with a horse and buggy. As they turned into Chatham street from Somerset, Mr. Haviland discovered that there was something the matter with the bridle. He stopped the horse, and he and his wife alighted. Mr. Haviland took the bit out of the horse's mouth to fix it. Before doing so, however, he had buckled a strap around the horse's neck and by this strap Mrs. Haviland was holding the animal when it suddenly sprang toward the side of the street. Mrs. Haviland held to the strap until she was struck by the wagon, as the horse turned toward Mr. Blatz's Hotel, and knocked down.

The horse then dashed upon the sidewalk back toward Somerset street. It turned toward the mountain and ran into a telephone pole in front of Mr. Peter Wooden's. The force of the collision upset the buggy and changed the horse's course so that it headed across the street, where the buggy struck the curb and tipped.

In front of Smalley's butcher shop the runaway started for the sidewalk again, but stumbled at the curb and fell across the walk.

Mrs. Haviland was assisted into the hotel by her husband and Mr. Blatz She had been injured in the hip by the wagon and her fall upon the curb. She was taken to her home in a carriage and Dr. Davis summoned. The physician found no bones fractured, she having received only a severe bruise.

Last Night's Natural Display.

This has been a week of remarkable displays in the heavens. Wednesday we had the three suns. Thursday the pink sun, and last night a display of Northern lights which took the most extraordinary forms, one being a most perfect representation of an American eagle with outspread wings, flashes of white light radiating from it in all directions. The eagle changed at one time to red, white and blue. The display began at about seven o'clock and lasted until about half-past ten o'clock.

WILL HE GET RECRUITS HERE?

A Branch of Coxey's Army to Pass Through Plainfield.

A branch of Coxey's Army is to organize at New York and Newark and meet the main body at Philadelphia. It has been stated that the army of 15,000 would march from New York at 6 or 7 o'clock in the morning, reaching Newark by noon, and resting for a couple of hours before proceeding to Elizabeth, where the army would camp for the night. From Elizabeth the army would proceed to New Brunswick, one division by the way of Railway and another through Plainfield, picking up recruits on the way and joining Coxey's army in Philadelphia.

James Barnhill, a stoutly built German, who claims he has charge of the New Jersey Division of Coxey's Commonwealth Army, has been in Elizabeth distributing circulars which read:

"N. J. Division of Coxey's Army—Notice—An army, numbering 20,000, is on its way to Washington. Good roads. Eight hours a day. Cursé and victory. On to Washington. Come join us. Join us. 2,000 men wanted."

—The Bible Training Class of the Y. M. C. A. will be held this evening at 8 and to-morrow at 8.15 p. m.

THIN EVENING WRAPS.

A Pretty Parisian Model With Wide Sleeves and Satin Lining.

To the Editor of The News:—

Some of the most charming dinners and dances of the year are given at the end of the season, when flowers are in profusion and windows may be left open to admit the fresh outer air, and the low entwined embrasures form pleasant retreats after the glare and heat of the gaslight. It is at this time of the social year that a woman who can afford half a dozen different wraps for every degree of temperature may wear her light evening cloak of silk or thin cloth, covering her low cut dress, but neither crushing it nor burdening her. For a sea side summer such light wraps are by no means necessary, as the fur lined ones used in December are not too great a protection against the strong cool winds that blow in from the ocean at night. Neither does mountain air affect any one to the extent of covering to unprotected arms and shoulders, for after sunset the temperature falls amazingly and does not mount to a comfortable altitude again until several hours after the sun has risen.

EVENING WRAP.

Therefore winter evening wraps will be found more available than those lighter ones which amply protect the woman who indulges in city festivities at this time of the year. The keen upland air has a security and quality that will not be denied once one is out of an artificial temperature. To go to the mountains or the shore with only summer weight clothing, like going to ball without flannels and warm wraps, betrays a lack of previous experience. Of course there are exceptional years when this atmosphere is almost unfriendly warm, but as a rule it is safe to count on not only chilly but cold nights.

A sketch is given of a pretty Parisian model for a thin evening wrap. It is made of light cloth and lined with satin of the same shade. The back is loose and laid in plaits in the middle, the front is plaited at either side, while the wing sleeves form a part of the body of the cloak. A wide gathered piece of velvet forms an epaulet over each sleeve, and a gold and pearl passementerie ornament with a long fringe of pendants is placed on either side of the back folds.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

Paid for Their St. Patrick's Day Fight.

This morning the trial of John Corrigan, Patrick Donnelly, John Shannon and Michael McNamara, for fighting on West Second street on St. Patrick's Day, took place. They all plead not guilty.

Manager Charles Runyon of the telephone company was sworn and testified that he was at work in that locality on that day. He heard a racket in a yard nearby and ran over to see what it was. He saw seven or eight persons all fighting together. He identified Donnelly and Corrigan as two of the crowd.

William Kiely corroborated Mr. Runyon's testimony.

Judge Coddington suspended sentence on Shannon, but he fined Corrigan and Donnelly each $5.

Nine Killed by Snowslides.

PORTLAND, Or., March 31.—The Union Pacific officials have received advices from the Idaho division to the effect that six snowslides occurred between Burke and Black Bear, on Canyon creek, each from 2,000 to 3,000 feet in length and 100 to 200 feet in depth. Nine lives are supposed to have been lost in all.

Alleged Smash Ins in New York.

NEW YORK, March 31.—A bomb was found under the city hall. At least a suspicious thing of iron, with fuse, plunger and clockwork, was found at the very door of the basement leading into the Third precinct police station in the southeast corner of the building.

BORDENVILLE, Miss., March 31.—Ludwik Kopera, a Polander, attempted to kill Agnoski Nikodem because she refused to marry him. He then shot himself and is not expected to recover.

A Wild Ride in Imagination.

One of our engineers sends the following with a request for publication. Those who have attended piano recitals, where artists manipulated the keys, will appreciate the description.

ENGINEER NELSON'S DESCRIPTION OF A PIANO RECITAL.

[New Orleans' Picayune.]

"I was loitering around the streets last night," said Jim Nelson, one of the old locomotive engineers running into New Orleans. "As I had nothing to do I dropped into a concert and heard a sleek Frenchman play a piano in a way that made me feel all over in spots. As soon as he sat down on the stool I knew that he understood the machine he was running.

"He tapped the keys way up one end just as if they were cinders and he wanted to see if he had water enough. Then he looked up, as if he wanted to know how much steam he was carrying, and the next moment he pulled upon the throttle and started the main line as if he was half an hour late.

"You could hear her thunder over culverts and bridges and getting faster and faster, until the fellow looked out in the west like a cyclone. Somehow I thought it was old 'Thirty-six' pulling a passenger train and getting out of the way of a 'special.' The fellow worked the keys on the middle division like lightning, and then he flew across the north end of the line until the drivers went around like a buzz-saw, and I got excited.

"About the time I was fixing to tell him to cut her off a little he kicked the dampers and the smokebox wide open, pulled the throttle way back in the cylinder, and how he did run! I couldn't stand it any longer, and yelled to him that he was pounding on the life side, and if he wasn't careful he'd drop his sub-han.

"But he didn't hear. No one heard me. Everything was flying and whizzing. Telegraph poles on the side of the track looked like a row of cornstalks, the trees appeared to be a blur of green, and all the time the exhaust of the old machine sounded like a bumble-bee. I tried to yell out, but my tongue wouldn't move.

"He went around curves like a bullet, slipped on tenacity, blew out his safety plug, went down grades fifty feet to the mile, not a controlling brake set. She went by the meeting point at a mile and a half a minute, all calling for more steam. My hair stood up straight, because I knew the game was up.

"Pure enough, dead ahead of us, was the headlight of a 'special.' In a daze I heard the crash as they struck, and I saw cars universal into atoms, people and animals mangled and killed, the engine for water. I heard another crash as the French professor struck the deep keys away down on the lower end of the Southern division, and then I came to my senses.

"There he was at a dead standstill, with the door of the fire-box of the machine open, wiping the perspiration off his face and bowing to the people before him. If I live to be a thousand years old I'll never forget the style that French man gave me on a piano."

LIVELY FILIBUSTERING.

Speaker Crisp and Ex-Speaker Reed Clash in the House.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Another long filibuster consumed the time of the house, and although the day's proceedings were not characterized by the turbulence and disorder which marked them Thursday they culminated in very warm personal passages between the speaker and Mr. Reed and left partisan feeling still at high tension when the recess was taken.

For four hours Mr. Reed successfully filibustered against the approval of the journal. During the progress of the filibuster the speaker several times declined to entertain motions for appeals from his decisions, refusing to state the grounds upon which these decisions were made. He held that it was the chair's privilege, as it was the privilege of a judge, to furnish the reasons for decisions or not as he saw fit.

Mr. Reed made a motion to reconsider, and Mr. Springer moved to lay that motion on the table. Pending the latter motion Mr. Reed moved to adjourn.

Mr. Lynch of Wisconsin made the point of order that the house was operating under a special order and that under that order no intervening motion was in order. Speaker Crisp, after a statement of the parliamentary situation, sustained the point of order.

"I appeal from the decision of the chair," said Mr. Payne of New York.

"The chair declines to entertain the appeal," said the speaker.

"On what ground?" asked Mr. Reed.

"The chair declines to state the grounds for his decision," said the speaker. "The chair declines to state," he continued, with a sharp rap of the gavel, turning and squarely facing Mr. Reed, "that in parliamentary body no member has a right to inquire upon what grounds the chair makes a decision any more than a lawyer has to demand the grounds upon which a judge makes a decision in front of justice. The chair has the privilege of giving his reasons if he so desires, but no member has a right to demand it." [Democratic applause.]

Mr. Reed, who was standing in a side aisle, smiled broadly. "That looks very much like tyranny," said he.

"Oh," replied the speaker quickly, "members understand that the transactions of the house are made by The Record, not by mere declarations of members on the floor."

The motion to lay on the table the motion to reconsider the vote by which the journal was approved was carried—190 to 0.

When the president's veto of the Bland bill was read, Mr. Bland gave notice that on Tuesday next he would move to pass the bill, the president's objections notwithstanding.

A single vote was had in the O'Neill-Joy contested election case after the long struggle, but although the Democrats had had a quorum present all the afternoon it mysteriously disappeared at the critical juncture, spoiling the voting. The struggle will be resumed today.

RIOT IN SOUTH CAROLINA

Four Shot In a Row Over the Dispensary Law.

THE STATE DISPENSARY BLOWN UP

The Militia Disband Rather Than Enforce Governor Tillman's Unpopular Liquor Laws—Spies Surrounded in a Swamp and Perhaps Massacred.

WILSON, N. C., March 31.—There was a serious riot at Darlington, S. C., growing out of an attempted enforcement of the dispensary law. Two citizens of Darlington and two of Governor Tillman's spies were killed, and a number of spies and citizens were wounded. The country in the vicinity has been thoroughly aroused, and a large number of people have turned out to hunt down the spies.

The trouble grew out of an attempt to search private houses for liquor. The citizens protested against this, and the spies yielded in face of the excitement and agreed not to search private premises. They also promised to leave Darlington, although the original force, 17 in number, had been re-enforced to 37. They had gone to the depot, and they were there set upon by some citizens. Out of this grew an alarming riot, which spread rapidly.

Arms of the Militia Seized.

The arms of one of the militia companies were taken by the citizens, and a neighboring militia company is reported not to be in sympathy with the governor. The people of Charlotte, Sumter and Darlington have spread throughout each other in resisting the search of private houses. In accordance with the agreement armed parties of men from town and country assembled in the streets, and the spies were picked off all the railroad stations from which the spies could escape by rail.

Mounted men are scouring the woods for the constables, who are armed with winchesters and will fight for their lives. The Darlington guards are under arms and endeavoring to prevent the peace, but the trouble has outgrown their control. Sheriff Scarborough is powerless and under threats of being killed by the citizens if he interferes. He has subsided. One of the wounded constables is in Darlington jail protected by a local military company.

There is great excitement all over the state, and the inability to procure liquor at this critical juncture is a godsend to the public peace.

In Columbia, S. C., the excitement was at fever heat, and threats were made against the governor and the dispensaries.

Governor Tillman will uphold the law, no matter at what cost, and will call on the country companies to enforce obedience should the city military continue to refuse to act. The constables are said to be surrounded in the swamp, and slaughter was expected at daylight.

Constable Brennan, one of the three who left Darlington by the Charleston, Sumter and Northern railroad, is now here. He reports to the governor that his detachment got out to the north on the train that was pulling out, and that at the other end of the detachment which was about to leave on the Cheraw and Darlington railroad was similarly effected. [illegible]

How the Fight Began.

Two of the constabulary left on the Charleston, Sumter and Northern railroad, and the other constables, 18 in number, went to the depot of the Cheraw and Darlington road to depart. The train was late. Not many citizens were at the depot. Two of them—Paul Rogers and Billy Floyd—had an altercation.

Constable McLendon had some words with a Mr. Redmond about the Floyd-Rogers fight. Some say Redmond cursed McLendon, and McLendon fired at Redmond. Others say McLendon fired at Rogers, and the bullet passed through Redmond's throat instead, killing him instantly. Firing then became general, and citizens hurried to the front of the encounter.

It was found that the constables had scattered to the woods, and four men were lying on the ground—Redmond, Frank Norment and Constables Pepper and McLendon. Pepper was shot through the heart, McLendon through the stomach. The latter is living, but will die. Norment is dead.

Chief of Police Dargan was shot in the side, and several citizens were wounded. Mr. Norment, who was killed, had taken no part in the riotous proceedings in the last few days and had gone to the depot on business of his own.

State Troops Disband.

COLUMBIA, S. C., March 31.—Three companies of state troops have disbanded under the great pressure brought to bear on them relative to carrying the governor's orders to go to Darlington. The excitement here in consequence of this action is at fever heat.

Blow Up the State Dispensary.

FLORENCE, S. C., March 31.—A mob entered the state dispensary at 2:30 a. m. and destroyed the entire stock of liquors.

Collapse of a Standpipe.

PEORIA, Ills., March 31.—A standpipe 139 feet in height collapsed, letting loose 1,500,000 gallons of water. Several workmen at the time narrowly escaped. A little boy was killed and the locality flooded. Several persons were fatally hurt.

THE COLONEL STILL ON

Breckinridge Tells the Second Chapter In the Story.

PROMISE OF MARRIAGE DENIED.

All Day Long in Ever Recurring Variations the Defendant In the Famous Suit Protested That He Gave No Such Promise. Story of High and Low Life.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Chapter two of the story of Colonel W. C. P. Breckinridge was told. It consumed the whole session of the court, and still the narrative remains incomplete.

It was a wearying experience for the Kentucky congressman to stand all day in a narrow stall detailing step by step the history of a decade of his life so far as it had any bearing upon his illicit relations with Madeline Pollard, whose movements were entangled with his so often and so intricately. From their second meeting at the Lexington house, the antagonists kept by Sarah Guess in 1884 down to the late spring of 1893 the recital wound its way along a path stormy with pistols, illegitimate children, concealed meetings, clandestine interviews and of secret marriage—

MISS POLLARD.

From photograph taken while she was at Wesleyan seminary.

more of intrigue than one would suppose could be contained in the life of such a mild looking elderly man as the one who leaned over the witness box and told it all in a matter of fact way, occasionally dropping into a jest.

Before him sat the woman who is willing to emulate Samson by dragging down herself with the temple, and she was the only disturbing factor in the scene. She persisted in becoming agitated, and once she made an outcry, demanding to know why the defendant could not tell the truth, but Judge Bradley warned her firmly and kindly that she must exercise control or leave the room.

There is a wealth of detail in the defendant's story. He binds it about him with many extraneous matters, and throws an atmosphere of high life over it, weaving in with his meetings with Miss Pollard allusions to the many political events in which he has taken a part. Sometimes he has addressed, the Confederate reunions he has attended, the banquets to which he has been called, sometimes a quiet, the home he has taken to call on Mrs. Cleveland, even the dinner of the Reform club in New York, at which, as Mr. Butterworth observed, "Virginia did not speak."

A Question of Veracity.

The case is practically narrowed down to a question of veracity between the plaintiff and several of her supporting witnesses and the defendant. Their stories coincide on many points, but it is noticeable how difficult they find it to maintain the appearance of the two standpoints of Colonel Breckinridge and Miss Pollard. Only on a few points was he obliged to take issue with the testimony of anybody but the plaintiff. Sometimes he and Mrs. Blackburn differed, and the story of Claude de la Roche Francis that he had overheard a conversation wherein the pair which related to their engagement, he said, could not be true, for no such conversation had occurred.

The heart of the defense, however, is that he had represented to Mrs. Blackburn that there was an engagement as a method of explaining to others about the pretty young woman and enabling her to leave town with an untarnished name.

The growth of interest in the sensational trial is shown by the crowd of several hundred people which filled the street before the courthouse at the hour of adjournment, while the windows of the parsonage as they came out. Many well dressed women were in the crowd which filled the sidewalk before the office of Attorney Carlisle and the crowd pressed so eagerly to state at Miss Pollard that she had difficulty in forcing her way through. They saw in Colonel Breckinridge a man who had aged visibly under the burden of his trial and who walks with bowed head and low step.

The witness devoted the forenoon principally to a recital of his intimacy with Miss Pollard. After the noon recess Mr. Butterworth quoted some of Miss Pollard's testimony in Breckinridge's denial, in eluding her statement that the colonel was concealed in the room when she broke the engagement to Mrs. Blackburn.

The Meeting With Rhodes.

Mr. Butterworth next referred to a conversation between the defendant and Mr. Rhodes in regard to the plaintiff and called the witness to relate the facts and circumstances of the conversation.

"I met Mr. Rhodes at an election booth," said Mr. Breckinridge, and he then recalled to the plaintiff and said he would like to talk with me about her, and we walked to my office. I did not go to Sarah Guess' with Rhodes. I think that was to notify the plaintiff that I had seen Rhodes. Mr. Rhodes had been to Cincinnati on that Saturday and Sunday, and I met him on the north bound train corresponding to the south bound train on which we were going to Lexington, so that the trains passed each other. When he reached Cincinnati, he was informed that the plaintiff had left Cincinnati and that I had been to see her the day before."

"He said to me that he was interested in the plaintiff; that he was engaged to be married to her, and that he had gone to Cincinnati to consult with her friends as to whether she should remain in Cincinnati. He said he had had an agreement with her by which he was to advance her and to support her during this time, and then she was to marry him; that in accordance with that agreement he had spent a great deal of money on her, more money than he could afford to spend—but that he had become very anxious as to whether she intended to marry him, and that he had to make some arrangement about taking her away from Cincinnati because he was then behind and was being very much dunned. He said he was getting old, and that if he was going to have a married life it was time for him to see about it. I told him I had seen her, and that she had told me substantially of the same agreement, and that she had not expressed any particular desire to marry him; but had spoken of her gratitude for what he had done and of her respect for him. He said that he wanted to marry her and intended to marry her, for he was very much in love with her.

"During the course of the conversation, which occupied a long time, he said he ought to marry her—not only that he wanted to marry her, but that he ought to do so; that things had happened which made it necessary for him to marry her. And that he intended to do so, but that she seemed to have taken a dislike to him. He wanted me to tell him what he should do to bring about that marriage."

In answer to a question from his counsel the witness denied that he had related this conversation to Miss Pollard at the time, but said that he subsequently did so.

"Did Mr. Rhodes say what it was that made it necessary for him to marry her?" Mr. Butterworth asked.

Mr. Wilson objected that it had not been shown that the conversation had been repeated, contending that if he could tell with such particularity what Rhodes said to him he must tell what he repeated to the plaintiff.

Miss Pollard Interrupts.

Much of his former statement was repeated by the defendant, and before he had finished Miss Pollard broke forth, sobbing, and exclaimed: "That is not true! Why can't he tell the truth about something?"

Judge Bradley admonished her, "If you can't control yourself, you will have to leave the room."

No attention was paid by Colonel Breckinridge to this interruption, but he continued, "I told her in the spring of 1890 that after what Rhodes had told me of the relations between us, it would be impossible that any other relation could ever exist between us."

Then Colonel Breckinridge passed on to the spring before the opening of the Columbian exposition, when he had declined to deliver the opening address and when at her request had sent her tickets to view the parade in New York. His attention being called to the statement of Miss Pollard that she had returned to Washington from New York at his request in August, 1893; that he had met her at the depot, taken her riding and proposed marriage, he said:

"The plaintiff was not here in August so far as I know. I reached here on the 29th from Lexington, where I had opened the campaign with a speech. I did not see the plaintiff when she was not here. No such occurrence happened. Going to New York on the 20th of September, I saw her at the Hoffman House for the first time that summer. I did not meet her at the depot; did not put my arms around her and kiss her; did not say that I had a commission to make her a queen high enough to believe she would be pleased with."

He did not recollect ever having seen the letter regarding her proposed trip to Germany until it was read in court. Speaking of the stand by the plaintiff, although he remembered others signed by a lady purporting to be the secretary of Miss Willard. There was no correspondence between himself and Miss Pollard regarding the trip.

"We want the witness to produce these letters," said Mr. Wilson. "We have given notice to have them produced."

"I received them and destroyed them," replied Colonel Breckinridge.

"Did you not meet her at the Hoffman House?" he continued, "and tell me she had an opportunity to go abroad and study with young ladies of a good family and could go if I would represent that she expected to be married to me in two years. This was the first time the subject of marriage had been broached. I did not suppose she would be married, but would not let that stand in the way; that under no circumstances would I consent to any representations of a marriage engagement; that she could go abroad, study the modern languages and come back in two years fitted to be my wife. I said that could never be; that I was not open to negotiations of that sort."

At the Hoffman House.

Witness and Miss Pollard had looked over the Hoffman House together. She had figured that the cost would be $400 a month, but he had expressed his willingness to give her $125 and her traveling expenses. The witness added: "Her final answer at our next meeting at the Hoffman House was that she would never go except as my affianced wife. I went back to Washington and he there when I arrived. We parted with considerable acerbity, even enmity. At our next meeting she said that she would want to part in that way; that I must not think her a devil or a fiend. I put her into a cab saying, 'You know there can be no such thing as marriage between us, and this affair I'll never permit, can only end in public scandal that will destroy us both.'"

"Was it said you had a fear that the plaintiff claimed you had engaged yourself to marry her?"

"In a communication to that effect in the Washington Post, which I understood was inspired by her, and thereafter I received several letters from her to the same effect."

"Now," interposed Mr. Wilson, rising, "we want those letters."

"I have destroyed them," returned the defendant. "I have produced all the letters I have received to my knowledge. There were replies to those that she may have."

Mr. Butterworth asked what the witness knew of Claude de la Roche Francis, who had already testified in the case, and Colonel Breckinridge replied that he had met the gentleman at the house of Mrs. Thomas. The first time the plaintiff had gone to an entertainment with the gentleman. On the second occasion when they had been invited the plaintiff came down stairs from the library and found Mr. Francis in the drawing room.

Mr. Butterworth asked about the alleged conversation between the defendant and Miss Pollard which Mr. Francis said he had overheard in which mention was made of the engagement between the plaintiff and witness.

"Of course," said Colonel Breckinridge, "that did not occur, because there was no engagement between the plaintiff and myself about which such a conversation could happen."

The testimony then drifted into the circumstances and conversations attending the efforts of the defendant to induce the plaintiff to leave the city to prevent the scandal which would inevitably come sooner or later if Miss Pollard remained in the city.

Then he related a conversation when Miss Pollard had come to him in distress on account of Mrs. Fillette and another lady had been talking about, her, the witness saying: "I told her that this was what I had always expected; that such affairs always came sooner or later to an end, and urged her to go away, as she had promised so many times, and to let the scandal blow over.

"My name was mentioned with that, but I said it would be if the thing went on. Mrs. Fillette had not mentioned my name. It was other parties. She said that Mrs. Fillette had made a most scandalous remark against her name; that she had a receipt with which she had intended to kill herself if such stories ever came out. I made light of that. She told me afterward that she had gone to Mrs. Blackburn that Mrs. Blackburn had talked with Mrs. Fillette and found that the charges did not affect the chastity of the plaintiff; that she was charged with being an adventuress; that it was said she lived by her wits; had no known means of support and did not pay her debts. She insisted that I must go to Mrs. Blackburn and tell Mrs. Blackburn that the relations between us were such that Mrs. Blackburn must stand by her."

She Had Threatened Suicide.

About the latter part of February—about the time he had decided to leave his room, the plaintiff having got in the habit of going there at all hours, making it impossible for him to remain there—she had asked him to go to Mrs. Thomas and talk it over.

On several occasions, the witness said, the plaintiff had declared her intention to commit suicide, saying that she had destroyed all her manuscript, including the manuscript of a novel she was writing, and that she had given away her clothes.

She had once said to the witness that if he did not help her out in the matter she did not intend to let him live; that she did not intend to bear the disgrace alone. He had told her there would be no difficulty about it if she would leave Washington, as she had so often promised, and that he would pay her expenses wherever she went. In one of those conversations, when she had apparently consented, she got up, went into the bathroom, came to Mrs. Blackburn, and I finally left Washington on the 12th of April with the same confidence in her I had held when I left on the previous day to speak at a banquet. She had said, 'I will keep my promise and go as soon as I can.' On account of a misunderstanding regarding the banquet I did not go.

"No misunderstanding was between us for the next 10 days. We both knew the circumstances of the engagements

CURIOUS YOUNG FOLKS

THE INCANDESCENT LIGHT.

A Little Lesson For Boys and Girls Interested in Electricity.

Some of the mysteries of that great and subtle force—electricity—which plays such a puzzling part in our every-day life are simple enough for the older boys and girls in "A Lesson on Electricity" in St. Nicholas, from which the following is taken. It may be well to explain first, however, that the "incandescent" is the milder form of electric light, and the "dynamo" a machine by which electricity is generated.

The lamp for this purpose is made with a little glass globe, from the size and shape of a pear, from which nearly all the air is pumped out. But before this is done a very fine piece of carbon not much bigger than a large thread and about five inches long, or else a platinum wire (which resists heat), is placed inside the globe, being first bent round, like a horseshoe, or in some other convenient shape, so as to fit without touching the glass. The ends of this filament are attached to two pieces of fine platinum wire, which pass through the glass stopper and are imbedded in it. To these are attached the ends of the copper wire or external circuit from the dynamo, so that the electric current goes into the globe by one platinum wire, goes round through the filament and comes out again by the other platinum wire.

After the stopper with the filament attached is put in, the glass is melted round it, so as to be air-tight, and the air is pumped out through a little hole in the bottom of the globe where you see the point, which is afterward stopped by melting the glass.

The filament gets white hot—that is, incandescent—when the electric current passes along it, because it is not a good conductor, giving a bright but not glaring light, but it does not burn because there is scarcely any air in the globe. The wires do not get hot because they are good conductors.

A large dynamo will supply enough electric current for several hundred incandescent lamps, which are arranged on small wires connecting the two large wires of

The March Hares.

"Dearie me!" said old Papa Bun,
"What do you think we hares have done
That folks should try to catch us with dogs?
We're the smallest creatures under the sun!
Heigh, ho, heigh!

"Or lures they oughn't to make such game,
I really, ma'am, a regular shame.
We don't be crazy, but all the same
We're not so mad as some I could name.
Heigh, ho, heigh!"

Sir Walter Scott and His Pets.

The frog who would "a-wooing go" has become very famous, and the pig that wanted to go hunting is perhaps not so well known.

Sir Walter Scott and some of his friends were once on the point of starting out to hunt when Sir Walter's daughter laughingly screamed:

"Papa! papa! I know you could never think of going without your pet."

Sir Walter looked round and could not help smiling when he saw that a little black pig had joined the party and was frisking about his pony. Poor piggy, with a strap round his neck, was soon dragged away. This pet had become very fond of Sir Walter, and whenever possible used to mix with the numerous greyhounds and terriers that the great writer owned.

Horses, donkeys, dogs and even hens seemed naturally to wish to force their company on Sir Walter, who always treated every creature with kindness and humanity.

Curiyle tells an anecdote of Scott and one of "the beautifulest and tiniest of lapdogs" that he knew. This little creature was so shy that he would allow no one but his mistress to approach him.

On one occasion, when in the street, a "tall, rugular, heavy looking man" stopped close by. Immediately the dog began jumping and barking and licking at the stranger's feet.

Ever afterward when the lapdog met Sir Walter he showed the same delight.

EYES OF DEEP SEA FISH.

Some Fish Have Luminous Organs on Their Head, Body or Tail.

The eyes of deep sea fish are very varied. Some have neither eyes nor sight. Others have greatly enlarged eyeballs, so as to catch the least glimpse of light. Therepes tend either to disappear or to be unusually efficient, but since no trace of sunlight can penetrate to any great depth, and it is probably quite dark beyond a depth of some 200 fathoms, of what use can eyes be?

Chambers' Journal says that fish have been captured at a depth of nearly 3,000 fathoms, where there must be not only absolute stillness, but also total darkness, except for the fact that some of these deep sea creatures are phosphorescent, and therefore luminous. This fact was first ascertained in the Challenger expedition. Since then Mr. Alcock of the Indian marine survey has found that some deep sea crustaceans have a similar power, one large prawn quite lighting up a bucketful of water in which it was placed. Of what light can have therefore a better chance of finding food and mates, but they cannot wholly depend upon sight, since some have quite abandoned all attempts to see.

Some, again, have luminous organs on their head or body or tail, which are used by their owners, no less than other cats actually throw light at pleasure on their prey or extinguish it in times of danger. Thus the angler, ancenrops, others, attracts prey by means of these colored lures or phosphorescent lights. It has been well said that these "vast profounds of the deep have become a sort of slumbering or asylum, whereunto antiquated forms have retired, and amid the changeless environment have dwelt for ages unaltered."

A Legend of the Spring.

A curious legend regarding the cuckoo is found among the Danes, which, with some modifications, is likewise current in many parts of Germany, in England and the north of Europe. When in early springtime the voice of the cuckoo is first heard in the woods, every village girl kisses her hand and asks the question, "Cuckoo, cuckoo, when shall I be married?" And the old folk laugh. "Cuckoo, cuckoo, when shall I be released from this world's cares?"

The bird, in answer, continues singing "Cuckoo!" as many times as years will elapse before the object of their desires will come to pass. But as some old people live to an advanced age, and many girls marry in their 'teens, the poor bird has so much to do in answering the questions put to her that the building season goes by. She has no time to make her nest, but lays her eggs in those of the hedge-sparrow. The Swedes have a similar superstition, and many a peasant girl exclaims:

Cuckoo, gray, tell to me,
Up in the tree,
How many years I must live and free,
How many years I must live and go unmarried.

The Origin of the Bean.

The common bean was cultivated by the ancient Egyptians, but their priests regarded it as "unclean." The Old Testament mentions the bean, but it is not certain that the Hebrews knew of its existence at least 1000 years B.C. The ancient inhabitants of Switzerland and of Italy, in the age of bronze, cultivated a small fruited variety of the plant. It was also known to the ancient Greeks and to the ancient Latins, and it grew wild in northern Africa in the days of Pliny.

The first cultivation of the bean is pre-historic. It was probably introduced into Europe, says De Candolle, by the wanderers Aryans (Celts and Slavs) at the times of their earliest migrations. A century before the Christian era it went into China, and still later into Japan, and only recently into India. There were probably two places where it grew wild before cultivation—Inhabitants of the north and north of Africa. The bean would long ago have become extinct had not man cultivated it, says The Farmer's Review.

Why Water Expands When It Freezes.

Ice is in reality crystallized water, and during its formation the particles arrange themselves in definite lines, which cross each other at angles of 60 and 120 degrees, and, as an exchange explains, occupy more space than when liquid. Cast iron bomb shells 12 inches in diameter and 2 inches thick were filled with water and their apertures or fuse holes firmly plugged with iron bolts. Upon exposure to a temperature of 19 degrees below zero, at the moment the water from the shells burst asunder, demonstrating the enormous interior pressure to which they were subjected by the water assuming its solid shape.

Uncle Sam's Cats.

The United States government maintains some 300 and odd cats, distributed among about 50 postoffices, and their duties are to keep out of the offices the mice and rats that would destroy the canvas mail sacks and postal matter, and this is a most important work in large offices. It is stated that the pussymeows in large cities are allowed from $6 to $40 a year for the support of their feline assistants, the cost being carried as a regular item on the accounts of the postoffice department.

Very Antique Patchwork.

There are traces in history of very ancient patch-work. An Egyptian queen was carried to her burial beneath a canopy formed of gazelle hide of different colors sewed together and ornamented with various devices. A great deal of the Persian work made at Resht consisted of different pieces of stuff sewed together, forming leaves and flowers, and then embroidered. Two generations back patch-work quilts were really works of art of which our ancestors were not a little proud.

A Strange and Ancient People.

Science tells of the Veddahs, a strange and ancient people, who live in the hottest and most magnificent jungle and forests of Ceylon, leading a thoroughly savage life, nearly naked, in temporary shelters, cultivating nothing and avoiding as much as they can any intercourse with the other natives of the territory. It is believed they are the sole representatives of the original inhabitants of the island. The Veddahs have few institutions and faint religious observances.

Superstition About Salt.

In some parts of the north country it is regarded as unlucky to put salt on another person's plate; hence the couplet:

Help me to salt,
Help me to sorrow.

A second helping, however, is supposed to avert the ill luck, on the homeopathic principle that "like cures like." For salt to fall toward a person at table portends in the west of England coming dire disaster.

A Woman's Hands.

It lies within a woman's power to improve the appearance of the hand if a little care and study are brought to bear. One should know that if the hand is bead a severe cuff or tightly fitting wristband will make it appear doubly so. So also does the fashion of wearing a little finger ring. Rings on any but the third finger aggravate the breadth and give a round effect in spite of the curvature of the manicure. In the choice of rings and their disposition on the hand much art may be brought to bear. On a fat hand pearls look well; on a bony one they look atrocious—at least the hands do. It may be a difficult matter to persuade the fair ones that a hand with prominent joints is best left absolutely unadorned—that pebbles stones but add to its hard and horny look.

Red hands should shun contact with pearls, turquoises or even diamonds. Fine old signet rings, black pearls, sapphires, onyx, cameo or pigeon blood rubies are the most suitable ornaments if decorations be longed for. Ill formed finger nails should never be highly polished. It is a sad mistake to do so. Almond shaped tips, lustrous as agate, are fascinating to a degree, but an unnatural gloss is apt to make square, unshapely nails terribly prominent.—New York Herald.

Opium In the Nursery.

Why is it that so many men and women move heaven and earth to put down the liquor traffic and the use of opium, and not one of them ever says a word against the traffic in the nursery? How many nurseries are free from some preparation of "remedy" that is guaranteed to "quiet" the fretful child and give it and mother a good night's rest? If it is right to drug a fretful or wakeful infant to sleep, why should the community raise such a commotion when an adult seeks the same means by a pipe of opium or getting full of liquor? Of the two the baby drugging is the worst, for the babies have no choice. If they had, they probably would refuse the dose, as adults take a drug or drink voluntarily. To be sure, all these pharmaceutical productions are "guaranteed" to be "harmless," but the guarantee amounts to no more than any other guarantees of cures by medicine—that is to say, it amounts to nothing. Eliminate the opium, alcohol or other drug including drugs from any one of these preparations and its power to quiet the child is gone. The effect of these compounds on children is of course ultimately very disastrous, a toss up between death and a life of ill health.—Homeopathic Envoy.

An Autograph Instead of an Interview.

Miss Mary E. Wilkins has a good deal of the eccentricities and lack of practical ideas which are apt to characterize geniuses. A correspondent for an English magazine once wrote to Miss Wilkins asking for an appointment for an interview which the editor of the magazine had requested. He inclosed a stamped and addressed envelope and in due time a reply for which he had asked. But days went by, and weeks, too, and finally the correspondent gave up expecting any answer. At last, however, at the end of several months, a letter addressed in his own familiar handwriting and postmarked Randolph, Mass., turned up in the mail. He opened it and found a slip of paper on which was written, "Yours sincerely, Mary E. Wilkins." He was both puzzled and piqued at first, but related the incident to a friend, who promptly told Miss Wilkins, whom she happened to know. The correspondent soon received a gracious note of explanation, saying that the letter had been mislaid and forgotten, and that, on coming across the stamped envelope, she had concluded it was from an autograph hunter and had put one in and sent it off. —Exchange.

A Year Old Baby's Outfit.

First a warm shirt, as large as can be used, to allow for shrinking; two flannel skirts, one to button to a cotton waist and one with flannel sleeveless waist, long woolen stockings, gartered to the waist, and a thin dress.

If drawers are worn, they should be buttoned to the waist and take the place of one flannel skirt. The drawers should be flannel or some woolen material, with or without thin cotton drawers over them.

If warmer dresses than the ordinary white dresses are used, there will be no need of the flannel waist to the underskirt. The waist called "double V" is strong and well shaped. The shoes need not be heavy, for the baby will probably ride in his carriage, but feet and legs can hardly be wrapped too warmly for riding.

A long cloak, that is loose enough for an extra jacket inside, is most convenient. Many pretty caps come for boys, and the little close bonnets are pretty for all babies. Fifty mittens and plenty of carriage wraps and a veil for the windy days he will be well provided.—Philadelphia Times.

To Foot Stockings.

Here is a good way to foot stockings. Taking the worsted or yarn, fold it on the seam, and where the heel merges into the leg begin to cut, and keeping half way between the two edges cut off the under part; then cut out the heel seam, and in spreading out the part cut away from the stocking, make a paper pattern from which to cut out a new bottom of cloth. Fold this together in the middle and stitch together the rounded edges for a new heel; then, unfolding, stitch the new bottom into the stocking, holding the corner toward you, as on account of the room for seam and shrinkage, which of course was allowed in cutting the pattern, it will be larger than the stocking. Woolen or cotton stockings past wearing should not be thrown away, as often one pair is useful in mending another.—St. Louis Republic.

Where to Mark Your Belongings.

Regarding the proper place to put the mark on different articles, it is usually understood that a handkerchief is to be marked only in one corner, and that when folded the distinctive corner is to be the one exposed. Tablecloths are to be marked at the middle of the end; if with small letters, they are placed near the hem; if larger, at a corresponding distance from the edge. In any case there should be not less than the height of the letters between their lower edge and the hem of the cloth. Napkins are marked diagonally across the corner; towels at the middle of one end, just above the hem; sheets on the middle fold, two inches from the top hem; long pillowcases at the end, an inch or two from the hem, and square cases at the middle of the top.—Boston Herald.

Room Colorings.

One color is monotonous in a room's furnishing and appointments. Even two colors are apt to be rather flat. White and gold, for example, do look a little like a poached egg, and apple green with old rose like a tomato salad. Have a few contrasts —not glaring, nor, as the French say, "swearing at each other," but to add touch and tone to the whole effect.—Decorator and Furnisher.

CRISP DECLINES.

Had Rather Be a Senator, but Thinks He Ought to Remain.

Speaker Crisp Declines.

WASHINGTON, March 31.—Speaker Crisp sent the following telegram from Atlanta, Northern of Georgia, declining the seat in the senate offered him:

Hon. W. A. Northen, Governor, Atlanta:

I have an ambition to represent Georgia in the senate of the United States, and appreciate most highly the appointment you have given me, but in the present crisis I think I should put my ambition, if was, as you know, unanimously nominated for speaker. In accepting that office I have incurred obligations to our party throughout the country. A very large majority of the Democratic members of the house have united in a request that for the remainder of this congress I continue in the position to which they have elected me. They base this request upon grounds which I cannot in modesty repeat, but which I cannot in duty ignore. As a speaker I feel to some extent responsible for the action of the house.

I feel a pride in its organization, and I have a settled purpose, so far as my influence extends, to have it fight a fight before it and vindicate, which, if enacted into laws, will redeem to the fullest extent our party pledges. Think, I think, I will serve the interests of the people of Georgia. I am grateful to you for the honor you have done me, and to my colleagues and many friends throughout the state who have seemed pleased with and who have urged my acceptance of the appointment, and I beg that you and they will believe what I in the utmost sincerity say—that in declining it I am sacrificing a cherished ambition to what I regard as a sense of duty.

DIME SAVINGS INSTITUTION.

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

The managers at a regular meeting held December 11, 1893, ordered an interest dividend paid at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum on all sums entitled thereto for money deposited three and six months prior to January 1, 1894, payable on and after January 10, 1894.

Interest not drawn will be credited the same as original deposit. Money deposited now and before January 10, 1894, will draw interest from January 1, 1894.

JOHN W. MURRAY, President.
E. R. POPE, Treasurer.
